THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Garrett County as Seen in the Report of the Maryland State Board of Forestry.

In many forest areas that were cut over years ago there has come up a mixture of hardwoods which has reached the point where merchantable material may be secured, although many years may be required to bring the stand to a state of maturity. The trees are often too close together to make a rapid growth so that thinning is needed. In applying the thinning, more than the simple removal of a tree here and there is to be considered because some of the trees will never amount to anything of value because of worthless species or because of undesirable form. It is just such trees that should be removed in the thinning, which is called an improvement cutting, because it improves the character of the permanent stand. In this way it is often possible to eliminate the red maples, black gum and many other inferior species, giving needed room for the best development of the more promising species. Ordinarily a cutting of this kind should not be made until the trees have attained their principal height growth and have clear trunks—the result of close shading. A thinning at this time would greatly stimulate diameter growth and materially hasten the maturity of the stand. Since the trees that are to be thinned out have a value for some particular purpose such as pit ties, mine props, or cordwood, a net revenue may be secured.

There are large tracts of woodland scattered over the county which were cut over many years ago for the best of the timber, but many large worthless trees were left, and since then there has sprung up a young growth. In many cases a considerable number of the trees of the original stand were left because of their inferior quality, often they were too short and limby to make saw timber, or of unmerchantable species. These trees, with wide, spreading crowns monopolize a considerable portion of ground space, thereby preventing the young growth from coming on, but the trees themselves are worthless for any purpose. If such trees were cut they could not generally be utilized, and the cutting would be somewhat expensive. As they stand, however, they are doing an incalculable amount of damage to future growth. Therefore, if there is anything in the trees that would pay for cutting them, they should be cut; but in cases where they would not pay for the cutting they can be deadened at small expense, which will prevent them from doing any further injury to the young growth that is striving for light and growing space around these trees. Experiments in deadening have been conducted on the State Forest Reserves under these conditions and at a cost of $1.00 per acre the work has been done satisfactorily with very gratifying results. It is believed that this plan is entirely practicable for large areas in the mountain section and that in carrying it out it will very materially improve the growth of timber in such tracts.

To the land owner who desires to hold his woodland for future timber production and has a merchantable stand ready to cut, the introduction of forest management is extremely important. There is at the present time a market for practically everything that the forest will produce, from the large sized trees down to the very small ones. It is found however, in many cases that the owner can realize from the small trees scarcely more than the cost of cutting. In such cases he should carefully consider the question of cutting only the larger trees and saving the small ones for a future crop. It is true that considerable damage would be done to the young growth in getting out the larger timber and also that there is danger of fire getting in the slashings and destroying everything that has been saved. Since, however, the young growth represents so small an investment and the value of timber is increasing so rapidly, and also that the conditions for better fire protection are improving, it is geneally best to save the small trees wherever possible. After the larger trees are cut the younger ones will grow at a much increased rate and in a surprisingly short time there is a good chance to cut a second crop, thus placing the woodlands upon a basis of continued production instead of making a clear cutting and then waiting for a long time before another crop can be secured. Under this arrangement a minimum diameter limit is adopted which reserves the trees below a certain size. The diameter is usually measured on the stump, which is more or less unsatisfactory because by cutting stumps low the diameter of the tree can be made larger to suit the purchaser. A good plan is to specify that the diameter shall be taken at a fixed height from the ground, say breast high or 4½ feet, generally used in forest measurements, as this is the point on the tree above the usual root swelling near the base and where the tree is apt to be cylindrical. Trees that are near the diameter limit but just above it can be marked with a blaze or stamp upon the base so that there shall be no question. Those that are manifestly above the diameter limit need not be marked.

There are some areas in the county where land has been cleared by repeated fires or where cleared land is unsuited for anything except a forest growth, and until such lands are planted they will very likely be unproductive.

The best species for planting are white pine, Norway spruce, red oak, and basswood. A pure plantation of the species that appears best adapted for the situation is recommended. The trees should be planted 6 x 6 feet, requiring 1,210 per acre.

White Pine is a native tree making a rapid growth and producing lumber of considerable value. It is well adapted for any well drained soils except the very thin soil of the rocky ridges.

Norway Spruce is a much better tree for planting than the native black or red spruce, because it grows more rapidly and makes just as good timber. This tree is well adapted for deeper moist soils on the lower slopes, and will produce good pulpwood or saw timber. It can also be used to advantage for underplanting to thicken up a growth of hardwoods.

Red Oak is the most rapid growing of the native oaks and is adapted to a variety of soils. It will not do well on thin dry soils, but makes a very good growth on the slopes where a moderate amount of moisture is present. It is a timber tree attaining large size and well suited for saw timber.

Basswood only thrives on moist soils, but is a rapid grower, producing a soft wood suitable for excelsior, pulpwood, or saw timber.

GRANTSVILLE.

Christmas is coming is evident by the splendid display of holiday goods to be found in our village stores. Grantsville merchants have provided well for old and young.

Your correspondent's letter of Nov. 19 has been copied by several papers, advertising our rural village, but none of them giving credit to The Republican, for producing the letter.

"Grantsville on the Pike" will doubtless become famous for its beautiful surroundings, being high up in the Alleganies, as an ideal resting place for automobile parties, because of splendid hotel accommodations. We mean it. Good, comfortable, clean rooms and a square meal three times a day and all the modern conveniences, and courteous treatment for the public. When the Ocean to Ocean Good road becomes operative Grantsville will become one of the best known of Maryland towns. We are preparing for that day. We have the market to feed the tourist enroute to either coast, and feed him well. Our Mt. Nebo honey is of the very best, the buckwheat flour from the village mill is strictly first class, many orchards furnish delicious fruit, fertile farms produce wheat, rye and buckwheat for flour, the mountain mutton of this region is famous, and the vegetables raised hereabouts are of the premium kind and for prime beef, come to Grantsville, and our chefs know how to prepare a meal. Mr. Editor, if you think your correspondent is putting it pretty strong, come and sample it and be convinced

The opening musical at Cassleman Cabin, near this place was quite a delightful occasion and greatly enjoyed by those present.

Miss Ida Stark of this village, is taking care of her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. B. Stark, who has been on the sick list for the past three weeks, at her home at Shaw Mines, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Steward Rodamer and baby of Grantsville, spent two weeks with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Rodamer and Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Maust, at Springs, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Schaffer, Mrs. D. M. Lohr and son Wendell and Miss Amelia Frantz of this town were recent guests of Miss Mary Lohr, at Springs, Pa.

Mrs. Sophia Winterburg is spending several weeks at Bittinger with her daughter, Mrs. Lydia Wiley.

Rev. L. P. Young, pastor of the Lutheran congregations of Salisbury, Greenville, Grantsville and Keim, for the past 8½ years, has tendered his resignation. Rev. Young is taking this action, not on account of any dissatisfaction on his part with his present location or his work, or on the part of his parishioners with his ministry, but because he was appointed district superintendent of missions at the last meeting of the Synod of Western Pennsylvania. Rev. Young is greatly loved in this vicinity. He leaves a splendid monument of his ministry in Grantsville, in the erection of the beautiful new church we now worship in. The best wishes of our people go with him to his new field of labor.

The Meyersdale, Pa., Republican republishes the Oakland Republican's write up of our village and says: The followinog orrespondence from Grantsville to the Oakland Republican is interesting because it is true.

Mr. and Menno Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Carney, Mrs. A. C. Bowen, Mrs. Chas. Getty and Mrs. Fred Livengood motored to Salisbury and attended the concert given in the Opera House.

L. A. Rudisill, Ravenscroft building Oakland, receives subscriptions for any magazine published, at lowest club rates. Will duplicate any proposition made. Send for catalogue, or call for one. Your order solicited. Adv.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. McComas George and his good wife will soon leave us and go to Green Spring, but our loss is Green Spring's gain. Good luck Mc.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Foreman and two little daughters were visiting relatives in Terra Alta.

Jerry Mankis had business in Oakland Saturday, and attended the sale of the Mountain Lake Hotel furniture.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Last month Postmaster Rathbun sent to Baltimore over $500 surplus money order fund. An indication that the patrons of the Park post office were putting their spare money in circulation. So far this month the money order business has been quite large.

Mr. Simon P. Baker has purchased the Dennet acres adjoining the Park extending from the county road back to Hotel Dennet. A valuable piece of property.

Enoch Kesner, at the post office news stand, has a splendid display of Christmas goods. They are worth looking at, and will add much to the happiness of any one receiving them as a gift.

The interior of Allenhurst is being painted, papered and calcimined. It will present a fine appearance at the opening next spring.

The lawns cleared of leaves are bright and green, as in early spring. Last week the lilac bushes were budding.

Miller public school, the finest in the state of West Virginia. The fine new building was thrown open to public inspection after the program was carried out.

R. L. Cunningham, one of the summer visitors and property owners is on trial at Fairmont, W. Va., for violating the State license law. The hearing is attracting State-wide attention, as Mr. Cunningham, one of the oldest and best known embalmers of the State, is the father of the State embalmers' law, and he is the first person to be prosecuted under its provisions. The specific offense he is charged with is that of shipping the body of Mrs. Tucker from Fairmont to Kentucky under one of the blanks provided by the State board when he was not an officially licensed embalmer of the State.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Y. Lohr, of Boseman, Mont., are visiting Mrs. Lohr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dawson in the Park.

Mrs. Jonathan White and son Floyd returned home Wednesday from a visit to Fairmont, W. Va.

District No. 5 this season has had a bountiful supply of everything, hence our farmers are laying some money aside for "the rainy day." Our farms are well tilled and our barns are well filled, in consequence thereof.

Canal Saves Twenty-three Days.

According to the reports made by captains of incoming steamships from the West Coast of South America through the Panama Canal, the distance saved in comparison with the Magellan Straits route is 5,550 miles. This means, for a cargo vessel that averages ten knots, a saving in the sea voyage of twenty-three days. The largest cargoes carried through the canal so far have been grain from the West coast ports of the United States and nitrate from Chile.

Republican Labor Men to Organize.

As a result of the decision of the executive board which met in Boston, Mass., recently, a convention will soon be held in Washington for the organization of the National Republican Association of Labor Men. At that meeting national organization work will be planned.

The association plans to cover the entire country within the next few months to extend its membership. The executive council claims that interest is manifest all over the country in the new republican labor movement, and they are claiming a membership of 250,000 already. It is also claimed by men prominent in the movement that the recent Republican gains were largely due to its activities.

BLOOMINGTON.

Piedmont Independent.

Notwithstanding the very disagreeable weather and the disappointment in obtaining conveyances to take the Daughters of America to Aaron's Run school house, on the afternoon of December 2nd quite a delegation hiked it up the mountain and carried out the program as agreed upon for the presentation of a flag to the school. Mrs. Minnie Wilson, on behalf of the Daughters, presented the flag in her usual happy manner. Her remarks were timely, well chosen and suited the occasion most admirably. Hon. George L. Michaels of Firm Rock, accepted the gift for the school and was in fine condition for the occasion and made one of the most patriotic and interesting speeches that has been heard in that community for a long time. He was complimented highly by his friends on the conclusion of his remarks. Before the ceremonies began a splendid dinner was served to the ladies, at the home of Mr. and Mrs: Floyd Duckworth. The following ladies composed the committee and deserve great credit for making the occassion a success, despite the disappointment endured in the early part of the day, Mesdames Minnie Wilson, Bessie Coffman, May Stump, Margaret Spence, Mary Rowe and Mary Paugh.

The disgraceful affair on our streets on last Sunday afternoon, when the church bell was ringing for services, is a step backward, so far as the reputation of the town is concerned and reminds one of the time, in the history of our village and not long ago, when street fights were our main amusements and drunks a common sight.

Mrs. Martin Squires of Beryl, who has been a patient in the W. M. hospital uncer the care of Dr. A. H. Hawkins of Cumberland, returned home the latter part of last week, very much improved in health.

The superintendent, teachers and different committees of the M. E. Sunday School are getting busy, preparing the youngsters and some of the older members of the school for the annual Christmas recital.

Religious ferver is at its highest temperature in the Chestnut Grove settlement, about four miles from town. A "Big Meetin" revival service is on in true earnest and has been for the past three weeks and many devils have been cast out from young and old and many accessions have been added to the army of up lifts in that neighborhood. Rev. Barnard is the minister in charge and is doing great work for his church.

The Bloomington Coal Co., is making improvements to the road bed of tram way that leads from their opening at Greens to the tipple on the B. & O. a short distance west of town preparatory to the arrival of a dinkey engine, which is designed to replace mule and horse haulage. The engine arrived on Tuesday.

A Loss to the State.

State Senator Samuel Emmert, one of the wealthiest men of Washington county and a leader in Republican politics in Western Maryland, died at his home in Hagerstown, following an attack of kidney trouble last October. His death has been expected for the the past week.

Ernest Hoffman, a well known lawyer of Hagerstown, for 11 years a police magistrate of Hagerstown in which office he achieved much distinction by his able handling of cases coming before him, and a member of the Maryland Legislature, died at the Washington County Hospital Sunday, following injuries he received in an automobile accident about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Death was due to heart failure, superinduced by the shock and injuries.

These men were among the most active members of the legislature at its last session. Mr. Hoffman was a Democrat. The death of such men are a great loss to any community.

High School Notes.

Anent an article in one of the county papers, entitled "Inter-High School Debates," it is only fair to state that the fault does not lie with the Oakland High School. For two years Professor Bender has tried to arrange for a debate between a team representing the Oakland High School and one from some other high school. He communicated with five neighboring high schools, suggested topics for debate, and offered to let their team take either side of the question, but so far his efforts have been without success.

Miss Bess Hendrickson, of the Senior class, returned to school last Monday, after a three days' absence, due to illness.

Dr. Darby made a professional visit to the high school on Monday, and examined the throats of all the students, in order to ascertain whether or not any one was afflicted with any contagious disease of the throat. No serious diseases were found.

The girls have organized two basket-ball teams, and are practicing daily. The members of the first team are: Forwards, Bess Hendrickson, Mildred Thrasher: Center, Ethel Welth; Guards, Clara Bush, Lena Ravenscroft. The Reserves: Forwards, Mary Sincell, Blanche Clark; Center, Carrie Mann, Guards, Louise Chance, Carrie Thrasher: Substitutes, Lucille Friend, Elizabeth Townshend.

The boys' basket-ball team will play Terra Alta High School at Terra Alta next Friday night.

OUT OF TOWN HAPPENINGS

A Variety of Interesting Paragraphs for Republican Readers.

Recently the best grade of white eggs have sold at 60 cents a dozen wholesale in New York City. This is about as high as eggs will get this winter.

P. F. Snider who has a fruit cannery at Eglon, reports that he canned over 5000 cans of tomatoes besides a smaller amount of corn and tomatoes.

The Myersdale, Pa., Pastimes basket ball team will play the Friendsville high school Saturday night.

The suggestion that a high school be located at Accident is a good one. The location is central and with the good road system it can be easily reached by scores of pupils. The experiment is well worth trying.

In arranging for your holiday presents patronize your local merchants. They deserve and ought to have your patronage.

Hog butchering in this county is now in full sway, so let us have the weights of some big porkers.

Next Saturday night there will be a debate at Firm Rock near Bloomington. Subject, "Resolved, That women should have the right to vote." At the close of the debate there will be a box social. A splendid time is expected. Everybody welcome.

A revival meeting is in progress in the North Glade Methodist church. Last Sunday Pastor McCamic was taken sick and had to be taken from the church.

Saturday John Carr and Samuel Kight, of Keyser, W. Va., had business in Swanton. Rabbits and buckwheat flour attracted their attention.

Ross Fike and wife, of near Friendsville, spent several days with West Virginia relatives.

The holiday season is again with us, and all indications point to early buying this year. Local merchants are ready for the trade, the big and little stores displaying a great variety of goods for gifts, both useful and ornamental; and the prices are low, in many instances much below what stores in larger cities are asking.

"Safety First"

In purchasing Fire Insurance the first object is to secure protection against loss of your savings of years, represented by your home, store or stock of goods, and you should look into the quality of your protection as carefully as you would the title of your property or the selling power of your stock.

The Home Insurance Co., New York

offers you the very best protection obtainable, having paid out $150,000,000,00 to satisfied policy-holders, and while the cost to you BEFORE THE FIRE may be a trifle higher than some of the protection offered you by Mutual and so-called Independent Companies in which the cost to you AFTER THE FIRE may be infinitely greater.

The Home's $35,000,000.00 assets makes you safe. We invite intelligent comparison and suggest to you as a business man to secure "Safety irst."

FORESTRY BOARD WINS.

Telephone Company Must Get Permits to Trim Trees.

In refusing to grant an injunction asked by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company against the State Forestry Board, Judge Ambler, in Circuit Court No. 2, Baltimore, held that the telephone company was subject to the rules of the board and must obtain from the board a permit for trimming trees along its telephone lnes.

The injunction was asked to restrain the board from interfering with the telephone company in trimming trees along certain roadways when authority to do so had been bought from the owners of the land. Attorney Shirley Carter argued the case for the telephone company and Attorney-General Poe for the board. It is understood that the company will take the case to the Court of Appeals.

It was stated in the telephone company's bill of complaint that the Foresty Board claimed that it had jurisdiction over the work contemplated to be done by the company, and that the company must obtain a permit from the board and do it under the board's supervision. The trimming of trees along telephone lines is necessary for the successful operation of the lines, the bill stated, and the privilege of doing so on the highways mentioned in the bill had been bought from the owners of the land long before the passage of the Act of 1914 creating the State Forestry Board. It was contended, therefore, that the company did not have to apply to the board for permits.

The bill stated that it would cost the company $10,000 a year to comply with the views of the board, which the court upheld.

HELP YOUR NEIGHBOR.

A Call Sent Out to The Charitably Disposed Residents of Oakland.

All the churches and the local Civic Club will unite in preparing baskets of good things for the needy of Oakland and immediate vicinity on next Wednesday, December 23rd, from ten o'clock a. m., until four o'clock in the afternoon, in the basement of the Lutheran church where articles such as clothing, blankets, shoes (please tie in pairs), groceries, meats, fruit, candy, cakes, etc., will be received on Wednesday morning or early in the afternoon.

This call is made to everyone in the town and it is hoped all will contribute generously to this greatest of all giving gifts to the poor and needy.

The business men of the town, the ladies and children are all asked to assist by sending money to the treasurer, Mrs. Charles S. Davis, or to the Lutheran church.

"He that has pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord, and that which he hath given will He pay him again."

SUTTON

Last week a heavy sleet prevailed in this vicinity, doing considerable damage to the telephone lines of the Avilton Mutual Telephone Co., and on Sunday, the 13th, we had a heavy snow storm with considerable wind that drifted the roads badly.

On Sunday afternoon three young men from Sutton started out coon hunting and when they reached Heitz's gate one of them thought the coons would be in the hollows and started for Shade Mill by way of Charley Hetiz's and there he struck an old trail, borrowed Heitz's dog and then soon treed the coon. The snow being so deep he was compeled to leave the coon till some future time. The other too boys headed towards Finzel and report treeing two coons in one tree but owing to the storm had to stay untill next day and leave the coons for better weather. Probably they will be able to get them by Christmas.

Our school is progressing nicely under the able management of Miss Letitia Friend.

OAKLAND STORES READY FOR CHRISTMAS RUSH

Splendid Line of Christmas Goods on Exhibition. Sure to Please.

The stores of this city are beginning to be filled with a crowd of buyers. Notable so far is the large number of morning buyers found in the stores from 9 a, m. to noon. Many complimentary words are heard of the varied assortment of holiday goods on sale and the very reasonable prices asked.

Already the employees of the post office this city are realizing the liberal spirit of the public in gift making. Every indication points to a bountiful yule time this season.

THE REPUBLICAN suggests to the people of Garrett county the duty of patronizing home merchants wherever located in Garrett county. They are your friends, your neighbors, are interested in the prosperity of the county, help maintain our churches, public schools and roads. They are tax payers. The far away from home merchants are not.

Special advertisements in The Republican tell of tempting suggestions being offered buyers here. Read the advertisements and shop at the earliest day possible.

D. E. Bolden's general store is an inviting place to shop. Things that last are to be had at this store, something that will be pleasing and enjoyable every day of the new year. In furniture and rugs some most desirable gifts will be found. You cannot afford to miss a call at this store.

White's exclusive grocery store is a very attractive place for the house wife, upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of the Christmas dinner. The storeroom is full of the most tempting line of food supplies.

Offutt's Christmas display is up to that of former years. A magnificent assortment to select from. Things useful and things ornamental. The selection embraces the needs of the entire family, from the grandparents to the little tot in the cradle. No matter what you may want, you doubtless will find it at Offutts.

A. D. Naylor & Co., has a line of goods well worth looking at. Something that will please the lady of the house and add very much to the home comfort and happiness.

The store room of Austin Brown & Son was one of the most attractive places in town. It was toyland. Toys everywhere and of all kinds and all prices. The grocery line is inviting and of endless variety. Candies, fruits, nuts, enough to make you feel real hungry. See the Browns before completing your purchases.

Savedge's meat market is the place for a hungry man to go. Almost anything you want in the eating line is to be seen. You have a choice stock to select from. Read his adv. It tells a good story.

Dixon & Kelso, farmer's headquarters for everything, are "loaded up" with holiday goods and bargains. Read their advertisement. They want all kinds of farm produce at the highest prices and will exchange holiday goods at lowest prices. Of course you will visit this bee-hive of industry.

Said a lady "Sincell's store never looked better or contained a superior stock of goods." What else would you expect. It is the quality store. For something real pleasing, something really enjoyable and appropriate go to Harry Sincells' store. You will not be disappointed.

Among the first places the purchaser of Christmas goods goes, is to J. M. Davis & Son's big store, always filled with suitable, enjoyable, sensible articles for the house or for individuals. One just naturally expects to find something suitable at Davis'. They have a beautifully trimmed tree for the little "tots" first Christmas tree.

Nothing would be more suitable or beneficial for the boy or girl, than to start a bank account for them in the Garrett National bank. You will find the bank's advertisement on the fifth page.

Santa Claus' headquarters continues at Andrew Gonder's store. It has been fixed up in great shape. It is always headquarters for boys and girls. Nobody leaves town without calling at Andy Gonder's great "toy land," and they generally find what they want. Take the children to this fairy land, it will be an occasion of great pleasure to them.

Thos. Little's store must not be overlooked by holiday purchasers. His stock of Chinaware is attractive and very reasonable in price. His line of seasonable goods will meet your approval in fruits, nuts and candies he is well supplied, and the Christmas groceries are prime. Mr. Little and son will be pleased to have you call at the store and look their offerings over.

Oakland Easy For Lonaconing.

Lonaconing, Md., Dec. 10.—The fast Oakland Collegians were defeated in the Firemen's Armory here last night by the local quintet, 69 to 24. The line up:

The Advocate of Lonacoining says: John Hart's fast Collegian Basket-ball Team of Oakland, was the big attraction at the local Armory last night, and in the presence of one of the largest crowds ever in attendance at an indoor sport in Lonaconing, went down to defeat at the hands and feet of the locals, The Oakland boys had been taking everything that came their way into camp this season, and long before time for the game, the eager fans began to crowd into the Armory seeking points of advantage to view the game.'

The game had no sooner started than the fans could see that a real struggle was in progress, but the superior teamwork and passing of the home boys soon pulled them into the lead and safe territory.

Throughout the game was exceedingly rough, the visitors adopting drastic defensive measures which proved themselves equal to any "rough-house" tactics that were going.

The first basket ball game of the season was played at the K. of P. armory Thursday evening between the Oakland Collegians and Piedmont. The home team won by a score of 41 to 28. The home team being strengthened by McKenty and Clark, of Lonaconing. The line up:

A Tribute To Mother.

Nancy (Daniels) Durst was born near The Cove, Md., May 9, 1852; died at the old homestead at New Germany Dec. 2, 1914. The world will not long remember her death but those who knew her cannot forget her life.

The family desires to thank their many friends for their sympathy and assistance during the dark hours of affliction.

She was married July 5, 1877, to James Madison Durst. During thirty-seven years of married life she has been a faithful wife and a loving christian mother.

Her parting words were "You will know where to find me."

She was reared in the Lutheran church but since her marriage she was a faithful and loyal Methodist.

For more than ten years, waking or sleeping, she has never had a moment free from pain. Yet she never complained but fought quietly, bravely on. But those tireless hands are folded now and a loving heart is stilled. Mother the rarest, fairest gem in the eternal diadem.

REPUBLICAN PARTY SOLIDIFIED

Declares Former Chairman McKinley And It Will in Win The 1916 Election.

Former Representative William B. McKinley, for several years chairman of the National Republican Congressional committee, and who has been re-elected to the next Congress, is in Washington on a brief visit. In an interview, Mr. McKinley said: 'I believe that the next Congress will witness the solidifying of the Republican party. Among the new congressman elected are many able and experienced young legislators. They will find the older members who have returned disposed to give them every opportunity to participate actively in the work and committeeships. Those of us who were left at home in 1912 appreciate the leadership of Representative James R. Mann. Under his leadership in the next Congress all elements of the party and all representatives, young and old, will be treated fairly. There will be no disposition on the part of the returning older men who are not members of the present Congress, to take away any of the laurels belonging to the men who stood up and fought for the Republican party during the dark days since 1912. The attempt of the Democratic party to create an insurgency within the Republican party because the older men are returning is doomed to failure. On the other hand, I expect to see a great deal of insurgency crop out in the Democratic party.

The undersigned have been requested by the Belgian Relief Fund Association to act as a committee for Garrett county to solicit help for this unfortunate people. Any amount of money, no matter how small, food stuffs, such as bacon, beans, flour, potatoes, canned goods, new or old clothing for men, women or children, will be thankfully received. THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Due to the generosity of Messrs. Robert and John W. Garrett three tracts of land in Garrett county were given to the State for forest reservations. The Kindness Reserve lies just east of Hutton and extends along the south side of the county road to Oakland and contains 206 acres. The Swallow Falls Reserve lies between the Oakland-Cranesville road and the Hutton Switch road with the southeast corner on the county road at Herrington Creek, and contains 823 acres. The Skipnish Reserve lies on both sides of of the Hutton and Cranesville road between the Swallow Falls road and the Hutton Switch road and contains 888 acres.

The merchantable timber was cut from these lands prior to their coming into the possession of the State, so that their management has consisted primarily in keeping out fires and encouraging the young growth, which has come up over the entire reserve areas since the logging operations ten to fifteen years ago. The object of management is to handle these lands in such a way as to secure the highest timber protection of the watersheds lying within their borders. The Kindness Reserve was burned over in the spring of 1910. No fires have occured on the Swallow Falls and Skipnish Reserves since these lands became State property, with the exception of a small area which was burned over in 1910. It is the purpose of the State to manage these woodlands according to the best methods of forest practice, so that they shall serve as an object lesson of what practical forestry is and what it will accomplish. The fire problem is the most important and the State maintains a fire patrol and lookout station on the Reserves during the dangerous season. Fire lines are being constructed for the purpose of checking any fires that may occur, and it is gratifying to note the increased interest shown in fire protection in the community. It is an absolute certainty, under the favorable conditions of timber growing, that if fires can be excluded timber of as good quality as ever grew in this section can be reproduced, and under better methods of forest management the maturity of the timber crop can be very much hastened. To this end the State is conducting experiments in forest management on the State Reservations. Over portions of the Swallow Falls and Skipnish Reserves a system of deadening the old, over mature trees that have no merchantable value is being practiced, so as to give the young growth that is coming on rapidly the best opportunity for normal development. In other places experimental plots have been laid out to show the increased growth that may be secured by proper thinnings in young stands. In other cases improvement cuttings are being made to improve not only the character of the forest but also the conditions of growth. As soon as reasonable fire protection is assured, not only for the State lands but for the forest lands in the vicinity, some planting will be done on the Skipnish Reserve. It is confidently expected that public sentiment against forest fires will have reached the point in a few years where forest fires instead of being frequent as is now the case will be uncommon. When that time comes there will be considerable encouragement to the man who wants to hold his land for timber growing, because it will mean a timber crop from his lands in much less time than is required where fires so frequently damage the young growth.

The natural conditions for timber growing are excellent—abundant rainfall, good soil, good climate, and native tree species of great value.

The large area of woodland in the county, 64 per cent of the total area, nearly all of which is better adapted for timber growing than for any other purpose, insures a large producing area that will continue to make timber growing and the manufacture of lumber and other forest products one of the most important industries in the county.

The transportation facilties for the handling of timber are very good in the southern half of the county, but lack of good transportation in the northern half greatly reduces timber values in that section. A good macadam road traversing the county northward overcomes some of the difficulty.

There is an active market for almost all forest produce where cheap transportation is available. In districts back from railroads the low grade produce such as mine props, cordwood, etc., does not pay for cutting, but timber values are increasing and market prices are certain to advance.

The prevalence of forest fires offsets in a large measure the otherwise favorable conditions for timber growing.

There are three rivers within the county and one on the border, besides a large number of streams possessing enormous potential waterpower. In order to conserve this power for the greatest usefulness the forest cover on the watershed of these rivers and streams must be preserved.

The forests of the county produce annually lumber and timber products valued at $1,300,00. In addition to this large annual revenue the forest industries give employment to large numbers of wage earners. This industry is already suffering serious loss from fire destruction and wasteful methods of cutting. Better fire protection and the adoption of improved methods of handling woodlands would in time place the forest industries on a permanent basis and greatly increase the revenues of the county.

Garrett county by reason of its altitude, scenic attractions, healthful climate, and diversified conditions, attracts every year a large number of tourists and summer boarders. The scenic beauty of the county can only be preserved by maintaining a good forest cover on the mountain sides and along the streams. Denuded, burned mountain slopes are very unattractive to the summer visitor.

Does Not Spell Prosperity.

Never in the history of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, says the Wheeling Intelligener, on this section of the system have conditions been so depressing as at present. The freight shipments are only a small precentage of the usual amount, and as a result the forces of railroad men have been reduced almost to nothing. Out of 500 men that are ordinarly employed in the local shops, only 18 are now at work. The dispatchers from Grafton have been moved to distant points of the system, wherever possible, and thus the furloughing of the telegraph operators at these points made possible. Nearly a thousand men have been laid off on the three divisions of the B. & O. system, which make Grafton a terminal, during the past three months.

Married.

FAZENBAKER—BURK—A quiet home weeding occured at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Burke on Wednespay evening at 3 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Lida, was married to Mr. James Fazenbaker of Beryl. The wedding was a quiet one only a few inimate friends being present. Rev. Ray of Piedmont, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Beryl performed the ceremony. The young couple are well and favorably known in the community in which they reside and have a host of friends in the younger set of their native town and neighborhood. The bride and groom expect to made Beryl their future home.

TO VOTE ON PROHIBITION LAW.

Woman Suffrage Amendment Also to Be Brought Up Before Body.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The issues of national prohibition and woman suffrage will be placed squarely before the House of Representatives as a result of action taken yesterday by the House Rules Committee, when it decided to report special rules for the amendments on both subjects. Incidentally, the committee put an end to all hope of an extended holiday recess.

Representative Henry, chairman of the Rules Committee, asserted the rule on the Hobson prohibition resolution would be presented December 22, and that the resolution, after eight hours of debate, would be pressed to a vote on that date. The suffrage resolution, he said, would follow immediately.

Prohibition and suffrage supporters immediatly began to line up their forces for the coming encounter. Members who had determined to go home for Christmas, whether Congress adjourned or not, revised their program.

It was generally believed in the House that the special rules would be adopted, as a majority vote only is required. It was also predicted, however, that the suffrage amendment would be unable to secure the necessary two-thirds vote in the House and opponents of prohibition expressed confidence that it, too, would be defeated.

As framed by Representative Hobson, the prohibition bill would prohibit the sale, manufacture or importation and exportation of "intoxicating liquors for beverage purpoes in the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof forever."

The suffrage amendment would declare that the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged on account of sex.

THE FORESTS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Due to the generosity of Messrs. Robert and John W. Garrett three tracts of land in Garrett county were given to the State for forest reservations. The Kindness Reserve lies just east of Hutton and extends along the south side of the county road to Oakland and contains 206 acres. The Swallow Falls Reserve lies between the Oakland-Cranesville road and the Hutton Switch road with the southeast corner on the county road at Herrington Creek, and contains 823 acres. The Skipnish Reserve lies on both sides of of the Hutton and Cranesville road between the Swallow Falls road and the Hutton Switch road and contains 888 acres.

The merchantable timber was cut from these lands prior to their coming into the possession of the State, so that their management has consisted primarily in keeping out fires and encouraging the young growth, which has come up over the entire reserve areas since the logging operations ten to fifteen years ago. The object of management is to handle these lands in such a way as to secure the highest timber protection of the watersheds lying within their borders. The Kindness Reserve was burned over in the spring of 1910. No fires have occured on the Swallow Falls and Skipnish Reserves since these lands became State property, with the exception of a small area which was burned over in 1910. It is the purpose of the State to manage these woodlands according to the best methods of forest practice, so that they shall serve as an object lesson of what practical forestry is and what it will accomplish. The fire problem is the most important and the State maintains a fire patrol and lookout station on the Reserves during the dangerous season. Fire lines are being constructed for the purpose of checking any fires that may occur, and it is gratifying to note the increased interest shown in fire protection in the community. It is an absolute certainty, under the favorable conditions of timber growing, that if fires can be excluded timber of as good quality as ever grew in this section can be reproduced, and under better methods of forest management the maturity of the timber crop can be very much hastened. To this end the State is conducting experiments in forest management on the State Reservations. Over portions of the Swallow Falls and Skipnish Reserves a system of deadening the old, over mature trees that have no merchantable value is being practiced, so as to give the young growth that is coming on rapidly the best opportunity for normal development. In other places experimental plots have been laid out to show the increased growth that may be secured by proper thinnings in young stands. In other cases improvement cuttings are being made to improve not only the character of the forest but also the conditions of growth. As soon as reasonable fire protection is assured, not only for the State lands but for the forest lands in the vicinity, some planting will be done on the Skipnish Reserve. It is confidently expected that public sentiment against forest fires will have reached the point in a few years where forest fires instead of being frequent as is now the case will be uncommon. When that time comes there will be considerable encouragement to the man who wants to hold his land for timber growing, because it will mean a timber crop from his lands in much less time than is required where fires so frequently damage the young growth.

OUR NEARNESS TO WAR TOLD

Taunts Cause Hobson to Reveal Government Secrets

SENSATION AT NAVAL HEARING

Secretary Daniels Challenged by Congressman to Deny That Country Was on Verge of War In Pacific in 1913, But No Answer Is Given—Hobson Tells of Activities on Corregidor Island at That Time.

Washington, Dec. 15.—A statement made before the house committee on naval affairs by Representative Hobson of Alabama that the United States got itself in readiness for a possible war in the Pacific in May, 1913, was permitted to go unchallenged by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, although Mr. Hobson called on Mr. Daniels to deny the truth of the assertion.

Hobson was compelled to make this declaration by the testimony of Captain A. G. Winterhalter, a member of the navy general board, who intimated that Mr. Hobson and many other persons in the United States are constantly seeing visions of war.

"I am not seeing things," said Hobson. "I know that in May, 1913, and for some weeks longer our gunners at Corregidor islands stood at their guns night and day with provisions for a two years' siege. The harbor was mined and troops from all over the islands were brought into Corregidor. Everything was prepared for a two years' siege except the transfer of the government from Manila. It did not take any vision to see that."

Secretary Daniels and Captain Winterhalter looked grave as Mr. Hobson proceeded. The former made no direct reply to the assertion of Mr. Hobson about the alleged preparations for war on Corregidor island, whereupon Mr. Hobson exclaimed:

"Well, the secretary of the navy is here. I will ask him if what I have stated is not true. Let him deny it."

Secretary Daniels, his face pale and lips drawn, looked Mr. Hobson in the eye and made no reply. Turning angrily toward Captain Winterhalter Mr. Hobson remarked:

"I don't want people to say any more that I am seeing things."

It was recalled in the committee room that it was just about that time when diplomatic negotiations were pending with Japan relative to the alien land law question in California. The relations between the two countries were strained, much more strained, in fact, than was generally supposed at the time. It has been said in well informed quarters that it was due largely to the good offices of Great Britain that the situation was smoothed over.

It was just about this time also that the president recommended the repeal of the free toll clause of the Panama canal act, saying that unless congress yielded to him on this question he would not know how to deal with other questions of a "more delicate character."

It was said that administration officials are bitter over the developments before the committee on naval affairs in the past few days and that as a result of the Hobson incident, in which there was a frank discussion of a question that the government would rather have ignored, an effort may be made to prevent further discussion of naval subjects before the house.

In the course of his testimony Captain Winterhalter, who is an expert on ship construction, gave it as his opinion that the British battleship Audacious was blown up by a mine.

Replying to a question Captain Winterhalter said he had never heard of a modern battleship being blown up by a submarine.

Mr. Witherspoon directed attention to the exploit of the British B-11 submarine in destroying the Turkish battleship Massudieh in the Dardanelles. The witness insisted that this engagement was not conclusive in proving the submarine would prove effective against modern battleships. He pointed out that the Turkish ship was built in 1874, that its armament lacked the power of resistance now employed in battleship building and further that this battleship was not constructed in compartments like the battleships of today.

It was brought out in the course of Captain Winterhalter's testimony that within the past few years the United States had dropped from second to fourth place among naval powers by reason of the large building of the Germans and French, Germany now standing second and France third.

EXPLOIT THRILLS LONDON

Submarine B-11 Slips Into Dardanelles and Sinks Turkish Cruiser.

London, Dec. 15. The announcement that a British submarine, the B-11, had passed under a mine field and had sunk the Turkish battleship Messudieh in the Dardanelles thrilled and delighted London almost as much as if the admiralty had reported that a British submarine had slipped through the mine defenses of Wilhelmshaven and had torpedoed one of Germany's superdreadnaughts in the Kiel canal.

It is recognized by naval and military experts that it was as difficult a job to enter the Dardanelles and let fly a torpedo or two and get away unscathed as it would have been to dare the perils at the mouth of the Elbe.

It was the most daring marine exploit of the war, more hazardous and difficult adventure than any of the open sea raids of the German submarine U-9, and greatly restores the confidence of the public in the royal navy's ability to match the German navy in boldness.

The B-11's victim, the battleship Messudieh, was an old pre-dreadnaught built in 1874 in this country and reconstructed at Genoa in 1903. She was about 10,000 tons displacement and still a useful defensive vessel.

The official report makes no mention of the loss of life when the Messudieh was torpedoed, but it is assumed here from the experience of submarine attacks that the loss of life was heavy. The concussion resulting from the explosion of a torpedo against the plates of a battleship almost invariably produces an explosion of the magazine.

The Messudieh had a crew of 600 and was probably officered in part by Germans, as German officers have been assigned to Turkish warships very generally since the sultan declared himself as an ally of the kaiser.

DRESDEN AT PUNTA ARENAS

German Cruiser Will Probably Intern In Chilean Port.

Valparaiso, Chile, Dec. 15.—Dispatches received here from Punta Arenas declare that the German cruiser Dresden has come into that port uninjured.

Dresden May Be Interned.

Washington, Dec. 15.—American Consul Latham at Punta Arenas, Chile, cabled the state department that the German cruiser Dresden had reached that port safely and uninjured.

The German embassy here issued the following statement in regard to the recent battle between the British and German fleets off the coast of South America:

"According to official information, eight English cruisers, among them two of the Invincible type, took part in the battle off Falkland islands. The Dresden, which arrived undamaged at Punta Arenas, intercepted a wireless message which stated that the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst were sunk and that the Leipzig was burning. Nothing definite was known about the Nurnberg."

This location of the German cruiser Dresden clears up all doubt as to the whereabouts of the last of the German warships that encountered the British squadron Dec. 8, off the Falkland islands. The Gneisenau, the Scharnhorst, the Leipzig and the Nurnberg were sunk; the Dresden escaped, pursued by British warships. Her presence at Punta Arenas means that she either was endeavoring to reach the Pacific again or that she contemplates interning for the remainder of the war. Punta Arenas is a Chilean port. The Strait of Magellan is narrow. British warships are doubtless at its Atlantic entrance and Japanese cruisers are said to be either watching or not far from the approach on the Pacific side.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XII.—Fourth Quarter, For Dec. 20, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xxiv, 50-53; Acts i, 1-11—Memory Verses, 10, 11. Golden Text, Acts i, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We have the option this time of the regular lesson on the ascension, or what is called a Christmas lesson on the reign of peace, from Isa. xi, 1-10, but as the ascension lesson includes His return to set up His kingdom we will take it and look at both. The time when Isa. xi shall be literally fulfilled cannot come during this age of a rejected Messiah and a consequently scattered Israel, but as truly as He at His first coming literally fulfilled all that is written in Isa. liii and elsewhere concerning His sufferings, so shall He when He shall come again as literally fulfill all that is written everywhere concerning His kingdom and glory. Animals that now devour each other shall live in peace together, nations shall learn war no more, for He shall have smitten them and broken them in pieces, and the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea, for the rod out of the stem of Jesse, who is also the root of Jesse; the son of David, who is also David's Lord, shall sit on David's throne and reign over the house of Jacob, who will then be a nation all righteous, according to Gabriel and all the prophets, the neglect of whom made the two with whom He walked to Emmaus to be foolish men (Luke xxiv, 25; i, 31, 32; Jer. iii, 17; Isa. ix, 6, 7; ix, 21).

He who rose from the dead was indeed the Son of David, the long promised king to rule over Israel, which He shall surely do at His return, and not only Israel, but all nations (Mic. iv, 3; v, 2; Ps. lxxii, 11; Matt. i, 1; Rev. xxii, 16; II Tim. ii, 8; Rev. i, 5; Ps. lxxxvi, 9). How wonderful the king and the kingdom! Thy kingdom come! Christmas is almost without significance unless it points us on to the coming again of Him who was born in Bethlehem, not in the winter season, but probably in the springtime.

Turning to the lesson in the Acts, the former treatise referred to was the gospel by Luke, wherein he, as well as Matthew and Mark in their gospels, set forth the things that Jesus began to do and teach and which the Holy Spirit through redeemed people has ever since been doing and teaching and will till the church is completed.

Notice that doing always goes before teaching, for we cannot teach others until we have done the things ourselves. He continued to do and teach until the day in which He was taken up. May we by the same Spirit be faithful witnesses until taken out of the body or taken up in the body to be ever with Him (I Thess. iv, 16-18; Phil. i, 21, 23). We must not confuse these two, but either will be glorious.

Notice how He did all by the Holy Spirit. And remember that from His conception to His resurrection all was by the Holy Spirit, the same one concerning whom He said, "Ye shall receive the power of the Holy Ghost coming upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me" (verse 8, margin). As He showed Himself alive in His resurrection body He expects us, in the power of His resurrection by the Holy Spirit, to manifest Him in our mortal bodies that others may see Him and not us.

He will manifest Himself in us if we are fully yielded. Since He is more willing to give the fullness of the Spirit than parents are to give good gifts unto their children, what can hinder us from being filled but our own unwillingness? Their question, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" was in no sense a foolish question, for the prophets are full of such a restoration, and the heaven has received Him only until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began (Acts iii, 21). Our Lord did not reprove them for asking the question, nor did He say that they were carnal in looking for such a kindom or that they misunderstood the nature of the kingdom. He simply said to them, and He says to us, that we are not to know the time, and elsewhere He said that it will be in such an hour as we think not. But His great desire for us is that we shall be, in the power of His Spirit, His faithful witnesses to His death and resurrection and present ministry and coming again.

He led them out as far as to Bethany, and while He blessed them with uplifted hands He was parted from them, carried up into heaven and sat on the right hand of God (verse 9; Luke xxiv, 50, 51; Mark xvi, 19). As they looked steadfastly toward heaven two men in white apparel said, "This same Jesus * * * shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven." Then they returned to Jerusalem with great joy and were continually praising and blessing God (verse 11; Luke xxiv, 52.) Let us hold fast the very words about "this same Jesus," and if we believe them as they did we will be affected as they were to His glory—not death nor any great event in the past, but a literal personal coming to the air to welcome His church and then to the same Olivet to set up His kingdom.

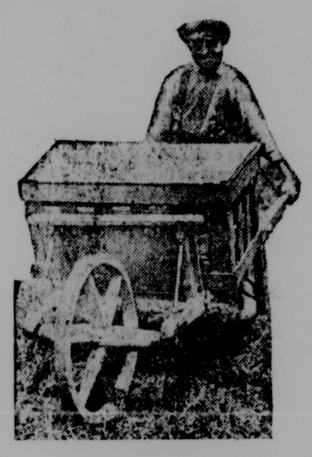
We distinguish between His coming for us and His coming with us—not two comings, but two stages of the great event with an interval between.

WHY STAY ON HIS FATHER'S FARM

Farm Boy Winner Of $20 State-Wide Prize In Maryland Week Competition Gives the Answer.

EDWARD ADY,
Of Harford County.

What inducement does Maryland offer the Farmers' Boy to remain on the farm? First, in no state of the Union can he find a choice of so many phases of farming as here. Every condition favors his success, no matter what line of agriculture he may follow. He can become with assurance of success a general farmer, orchardist, stockman, dairyman, poultryman or he can combine several of these branches of farming profitably.



A MARYLAND FARM BOY.

Further, there are two things he knows every man should do; one is to earn a living, the other, to develop within himself his latent possibilities. He knows if he gives up farming and undertakes to build up another business, that he loses by this change at least fifteen years of valuable time, since he has acquired many valuable facts through experience and observation, which facts would be of no financial value to him in another occupation. If he leaves the farm, he will have to begin wholly at the bottom of the ladder again.

The Maryland farmers' boy has spent many hours, days, and months studying and investigating conditions on the farm. He has learned the essentials of success, he can explain the many opportunities in agriculture. He has experimented with crop rotation He knows how to estimate profits. He knows by experience the cost of farming operations. He has had experience with the necessary machinery to carry on farm work. He knows how to handle animals and what returns are received for them. He is not a stranger to the farm labor question. He has acquired some knowledge of shipping and marketing in a business way. He is better acquainted with the laws affecting land and labor than those of any other occupation. He has kept abreast of rural legislation and is fully equipped to put in practice all of his knowledge. As the inventory of facts grows, the reasons are deeper and clearer why he should remain on the farm.

To sum up these reasons, the Maryland farmers' boy should remain on the farm because he belongs there by hereditary principles. He is needed there to continue the work of his forefathers in a more practical and profitable way. He knows that by not remaining he would lose many years of experience and take up an uncertain proposition of which he is in darkness. He is confident that the soil is adapted to his occupation. The climate is ideal for his health and crop conditions, and from the economical side of the proposition there is no state in which he can practice farming more profitably than in Maryland. He is conscious of the fact that he can still be a pupil at any of the agricultural colleges and thus avoid the many ruts into which the old-time farmer fell. Finally, he knows that he will find pleasure and enjoyment in making two blades of grass grow where one formerly grew and in trying out many interesting experiments on a responsive soil.

QUARANTINE YOUR PLACE AGAINST FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

This disease is a menace to breeders and owners of live stock,—particularly cattle, sheep and hogs. Federal and State authorities are using their best efforts to check its spread and to eradicate it, where it now exists.

To succeed quickly they must be met with energetic co-operation of farmers. To be of greatest service, farmers must closely watch their animals, and report at once, sore mouths or lameness. They should furnish complete information if they have added new animals to their herds or flocks within 60 days, to the State Live Stock Sanitary Board, Baltimore, Md., or U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., stating the kind and number of animals, and where they were secured.

Farmers shoould establish voluntary quarantine on their farms, and prohibit any cattle, sheep or hogs from passing into or out of their premises.

For the present, all movements and shipments of live stock should be reported to the above departments, giving the source and destination of shipments, and the kind and number of animals.

Do not engage in the shipment or movement of animals from place to place if it can possibly be avoided.

MAKING LIFE ATTRACTIVE FOR FARMERS' DAUGHTERS

Country Girl Winner Of $20 Prize In Maryland Week State-Wide Competition Tells What Makes For Contentment.

VIRGINIA LOUISE BYRD,
Of Worcester County.

In making the farmer's daughter happy, attractive country homes are first to be considered. The farmer's daughter should see to it that the farm house is tastily painted or whitewashed, the lawn well laid out, and sufficiently large to admit of flowers and shrubbery that she can easily care for herself; that the barns and other necessary out-buildings are far enough away from the house to insure good sanitation. Then if we add water, lights, and heat, much has been done to better social conditions, since our thoughts and feelings in a great measure are in keeping with our surroundings.

Such a home will want the latest magazines and books that are worth while, the reading of which will not only cultivate the tastes and desires, but open to them larger possibilities. A piano, a Victrola or some other musical instruments should not be lacking in adding to the refinement and pleasures of home life for the farmer's daughter.

She should, of course, be independent enough to hitch up her own horse and buggy whenever she needs it, and will thus be able to greatly improve her opportunities for social intercourse. In addition to this, occasional automobile trips can be arranged to more distant friends or to attend something attractive at the theater or opera for the automobile is no longer a luxury, but a necessity of country life. With such conveniences as rural mail delivery, telephones, parcel post, and automobiles, distance is no longer a drawback and the system of good roads which our State is building has already done much to better our social conditions.

EARNING EGG MONEY.

The farmers' daughters can earn money for herself in some home industry such as the poultry business on a small scale, or by having a vegetable garden whose products can be marketed at the near-by town, while she enjoys the ride delivering them, or if she has more vegetables than she can dispose of at the home market, she can ship them by parcel post. Dairy products, poultry, and eggs can be disposed of in the same way. Such things can be and are being done by many a farmer's daughter, who is well-educated, well-read, and is conversant in some degree at least with the public questions of the day.

The farmer's daughter in any community should never out-grow the country school. She shoould teach it herself, for she knows best the existing conditions of the children and having common interests can best serve them. Further, the establishment of high schools in many rural districts is doing much to better the social conditions of the country, making it possible for her to receive something more than a "common school education" such as has been regarded for generations "good enough" for the farmer's daughter.

FEEDING DAMAGED GRAIN A POOR PRACTICE.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

There is always a temptation when mouldy or spoiled grain is around to give it to the chickens so as not to waste it. While often no ill effects follow this practice, still there is considerable danger attached to the practice. The argument is often advanced that chickens running around naturally at large, eat feed in whatever state they find it, and still keep perfectly healthy. This may be true, but under these conditions the birds probably do not get an especially large "dose" of any one particular kind of spoiled grain and their digestive system is able to handle it.

Where one feels he simply must feed damaged grain to poultry some precautions should be taken. It might be fumigated to kill the mould spores or it could be heated up to a high temperature on the kitchen stove, small quantities being thus treated as used. Another method might be to scald the grain with boiling water a short time before feeding. The safest method if it is at all bad, is to use the feed for fuel.

Once More Will Jehovah Shake Both Earth and Heaven.

The Significance of Earthquakes—The Part They Play In Nature—In Grace. Their Association With the Reign of Sin and Death—The Grand Results to Be Expected—Stability of the New Order In the Messianic Kingdom—A Dark Hour Predicted—Preceding the Millennial Morning of Great Blessing.

October 18.—Pastor Russell's text today was, "There shall be great earthquakes in divers places, and famines and pestilences; and fearful sights and great signs shall there be from Heaven."—Luke 21:11.

It is not the Pastor's thought that in itself an earthquake is a sign of the end of the Age, but that the prevalence of earthquakes since the beginning of the twentieth century properly enough attracted his attention to what the Scriptures say upon this subject. His text is a part of the Master's description of the trouble to come upon the world in the close of this Gospel Age, preparatory to the inauguration of the Millennium.

The Master was answering a question asked by His disciples respecting the signs which would mark the conclusion of the Age. In the context He had replied that they might expect to hear of wars and tumults, but that they were not to be terrified; for such things would not indicate that the end was near. Then, mentioning the events to be expected at the close of the Age—earthquakes, famines, pestilences, etc.—He also declared that His disciples would suffer persecution in the synagogues, churches, etc., for His sake and the Truth's sake.

Fire of This Day Symbolic.

Our Adventist friends have also been calling attention to Scriptures predicting great tribulation upon the world in the very near future. The Pastor pointed out the wide difference between his views and theirs. Their message is that the convulsions of nature now due will result in "a wreck of matter and a crush of worlds"—in the utter destruction of humanity and the reduction of earth to a mass of cinders. The speaker holds no such ideas. On the contrary, he quoted Scriptures to prove that "the earth abideth forever"; that cold and heat, summer and winter, will continue as long as the earth abideth; and that God "made not the earth in vain."

It was then demonstrated from Scripture that the fire of this Day of the Lord will be symbolic, just as the fiery trials that have tried the Church throughout this Age have not generally consisted of literal fire. The fiery troubles coming upon the world will overthrow present institutions and engulf the whole world in anarchy. In the Scriptures this condition is symbolized in some places by a flood, in others by a consuming fire that will devour the whole earth. Then will be established the new heavens and earth—the Messianic Kingdom.

No attempt was made to prognosticate the character of the fearful signs referred to in the text. Attention was called to the fact that the Prophet Joel foretold these signs. In Hebrews 12:26-28 St. Paul refers to the same thing. He shows that the wonderful manifestations of Divine Power at the establishment of the Law Covenant at Sinai were typical of the still more wonderful shakings, signs, etc., to be expected at the close of this Gospel Age, when the New Covenant is about to go into effect at the hands of the greater Mediator than Moses.

Earthquakes Symbolic of Revolution.

St. Paul was quoted as saying that God's Word implies that at this transition period all shakable things will be removed, and only the unshakable things associated with the Kingdom will remain. In the Revelation this shaking is described as a mighty earthquake, the greatest ever known. What we are to expect in fulfilment of Revelation 16:18 is a great revolution, a great shaking of present institutions, overthrowing everything not of the Lord's establishment and approval.

In the Divine order there seems to be a harmony between the literal and the figurative; therefore literal earthquakes have their part in the great Program. Not only are they to serve the Church as signs corroborating the prophecies respecting the approach of the Time of Trouble closing this Age, but they serve another purpose.

The Scriptures clearly intimate that our earth has not yet attained the grand physical perfection which God designs it to have, in order to be fit for the blessed ones who are to inhabit it throughout all eternity. While the faithful Church are to experience a change of nature from human to spiritual, which will prepare them for Heavenly conditions, yet for the remainder of mankind God's provision is different—a restoration to the perfection of human nature which Adam lost and the development of earth to that perfect condition which will make it as a whole the antitype of the Garden of Eden—Paradise restored, to be the everlasting home of a happy race.

IT is the most remarkable fact in the whole history of mankind that betwixt the vast Dominion of Canada and the United States there is not a fort or redoubt or gun or military station along all that 4,000 miles of frontier.

IT is said that last year Canada imported from the United States ten million, seven hundred and ninety-five thousand, six hundred and eighty-two dozen eggs. Because of the war, this year's report will show a large advance over that of 1913.

THOMAS A. EDISON said as he looked on the seven million dollar fire that was burning up his work of years: "I'm pretty well burned out, but I'll start all over tomorrow." He is starting all over again, aged 67. That is the kind of pluck that wins.

THE condition of the United States Treasury at the beginning of business Tuesday was: Net balance in general fund, $70,466,097; total receipts yesterday, $2,458,523; total payments yesterday, $4,552,916. The deficit this fiscal year is $60,125,611, against a deficit of $11,285,052 last year, exclusive of Panama Canal and public debt transactions. This may in part account for the war tax.

The Grand Jury Report.

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett county:

The Grand Jury for the December term, 1914, beg leave to report that we have concluded our labors and have to the best of our ability performed the duties devolving upon us as members of this body, now desire to submit the report of our proceedings and receive our discharge.

We have had before us and have examined 129 witnesses and have found 37 presentments and 37 bills of indictment.

We have found presentments in al cases in which we believed the evidence justified and have ignored trivial cases and those cases in which the evidence did not appear to warrant presentments.

We have inspected and examined the several county buildings, except that we find a leak in the dome of the court house, and also the roof above one of the rooms in the Sheriff's residence, which should be promptly repaired.

We would recommend that the walls of the court room which have become soiled and unclean, be painted or tinted. In making our inspection of the several offices in the court house we found that there was an inadequate office equipment in the office of the Supervisors of Election and that the election booths therein are in a very bad condition and would suggest the purchase of adequate and necessary polling booths and other election furniture for said office.

We desire also to recommend that the stairway leading from the first floor to the second floor in the county jail be screened and sufficient doors be installed in order that the male and female apartments of the jail be separate and non-communicating.

We found that several of the mattresses in the jail to be unclean and unsanitary and the same should be destroyed and replaced by at least one dozen new mattresses.

We have examined the records in the several offices and found them to have been carefully kept.

As Grand Jurors and citizens of this county we desire to take this opportunity to commend and thank the County Commissioners for the erection of two splendid arc gas lights at the entrance to the court house on Third street, which adds to the beauty and appearance of the court house grounds. We also wish to commend the County Commissioners for installing a much needed toilet on the third floor of the court house for the convenience of the grand jury.

We desire to acknowledge the courtesy extended us by the Court and several officers of the county.

We desire to express our thanks to Mr. Julius C. Renninger States Attorney, for the kindness shown us and for the assistance rendered us, and whom we found to be a careful, conscientious and painstaking officer.

The janitor, Mr. Oscar Notes, is to be commended for the neatness in which he keeps the court house.

The Grand Jury has considered the advisability of changing the present times of holding the Circuit Court and are of the opinion that the time as now fixed by law for holding court is desirable and seems to meet with the approval of the people.

Respectfully submitted
ORVAL A. WELCH,
Foreman.

HYDE'S, The Leaders.

P. S. We extend to all the compliments of the season.

Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft took Mr. H. A. Kaese, who operates a grist mill near Accident, to a hospital in Baltimore the early part of last week. Mr. Kaese has suffered quite a great deal with a broken leg since July 23rd last, resulting from the kick of a horse. He was operated on Thursday of last week and at this writing his condition is reported favorable.

The thermometer 6 below zero here and 15 below on the mountain this morning makes one think of the "Sunny South" with its warm sunshine, roses blooming, birds singing, the little squirrel scampering 'round, and the boys and girls playing in the sand. Here we are thawing water pipes, cleaning snow, cutting ice, and kept wrapped in fur all the time. Here we are and there they are, content each one with his lot.

Last Sunday a Hungarian called at the jail and asked Sheriff Scott for shelter. He had no money and a very badly bruised leg, which was swollen black and blue. Mayor Mathews of Oakland, gave him an order for three days in the jail. Dr. Hinebaugh was called and dressed the wounds and did all he could for the unfortunate man, who said he had fallen and hurt himself. The limb looked as if it might have been frozen.

Evidences that Oakland is in the prosperity zone are now shown daily in the shopping district of Oakland. Hundreds of Garrett countians realizing that only a few more shopping days remain before Christmas, are making tours every day to the department store section and freely purchasing gifts for their many friends and relatives. On every street where articles for Yuletide are displayed there is a continuous throng of persons who visit one shop after the other. All seem to be determined to have a joyous Christmas and to make it so for others.

Throughout the past week there has been more or less snow, but Sunday a genuine snow storm struck Garrett county. Monday evening about eight inches of snow covered the ground. Monday the roads were almost impassable. The rural mail carriers had to abandon their routes because of heavy drifts. Travel was slow and tedious, and the only sure way to reach destination was by horseback. Several gentleman were from 5 to 6 hours going 12 miles. Monday evening it began to grow clolder. The windows in stores and houses was frosted over with a heavy coat of ice and high wind prevailed. At 10:30 p. m., the mercury in the themometer registered zero. At 7 a. m., Tuesday it was 8 below zero.

Attention, Please.

Christmas is drawing nigh and you will want to make the children happy; not only the children but the older ones as well. Do you know how you can do it? I will tell you: E. E. Kesner, at Mt. Lake Park Postoffice Building, has just received a fresh line of candies, nuts, toys and sweet things as you need for Christmas. The finest assortment that has ever come to Mt. Lake Park. If you don't believe it come and see. We have the right price. Adv.

A Birthday Dinner.

Kemp of Bloomington; Dr. W. W. Grant, Mr. R. E. Sliger, Mr. Wm. Davis, Mr. Harland L. Jones, Mr. Norman R. Sanner and Mr. Benj. H. Sincell. The evening was pleasantly spent by all.

Injured While Hunting.

While hunting in Garrett county Thomas Beeman, of Lonaconing, received a painful wound in the face and body, from a shotgun at the hand of his son George. They were stalking a pheasant through the woods and were about fifteen yards apart when the son raised the pheasant, and without looking where he was pointing, shot at the bird, and struck his father, who fell to the ground. Mr. Beeman was hurried to town where he received medical attention by Dr. W. Q. Skilling. It was found that he had been shot on the left side of the face, and his left hand had also received several of the shot. His eye was slightly injured.

SERVIANS TAKE BACK BELGRADE

Old Capital Is Wrested From Invading Austrians

FIERCE BATTLE FOR THE CITY

Superior Force Blamed For Reverse. Russians Claim to Have Thrown Back Germans' Left Wing In Poland When Cavalry Engagement Was Won—Little Doing Along Battle Line In France.

London, Dec. 15.—The Servians have re-entered Belgrade, their old capital according to a dispatch from Nish.

The invaders were not in possession of Belgrade very long, for they captured the city on Dec. 2 after having besieged it since July 29.

When war was declared the Servian government moved from Belgrade to Kraguyevats and later went farther south to Nish, where it remains.

The most striking feature of the official news is the candid admission by the Austrian government of the defeat of the Austrian army in Servia and apparently of the abandonment of its third attempt to invade the territory of its small Slav neighbor.

While attributing the failure to the enemy's superior force, as all government bulletins explain failures, the Austrian war office announces plainly an extended retirement and heavy losses.

This communication follows:

"Our offensive movement directed in a southeasterly direction from the river Drina, encountered southeast of Valjevo a superior force of the enemy.

"Our advance had not merely to be stopped, but we were compelled also to make more extended retirements of our troops, which for many weeks have fought obstinately and brilliantly, but with many losses.

"New decisions and measures consequently will be taken to repel the enemy," adds the Austrian statement. Apparently that means that the Austrian army directed against Servia will assume a defensive line.

Russians Win Cavalry Engagement.

London, Dec. 15.—According to an official report from Petrograd the Russians have defeated the Germans in a cavalry engagement at Juromientna, seven miles southeast of Mlawa. The defeat forced the German left wing to hurry its retreat toward Mlawa and Thorn.

The cavalry engagement, which is reported to have been very heavy, followed the success of the Russians in piercing the German front between Przasnysz and Olechanov, ninety miles north of Warsaw.

Following a characteristic plan the Grand Duke Nicholas detached a strong cavalry force and swung it from the right bank of the Vistula along the main road from Block to Mlawa, catching the Germans on the flank immediately after their front had been broken by heavy infantry attacks.

Russians Fleeing Across Carpathians.

Berlin, Dec. 15.—The official press bureau gave out the following official communication from army headquarters at Vienna:

"In the fighting in western Galicia the southern wing of the Russian army was defeated Dec. 12 and forced to retreat. Pursuit of the Russians has commenced. All attacks elsewhere along the battle front have broken down as previously.

"Our forces which advanced across the Carpathians are now energetically continuing the pursuit of the enemy and there is constant fighting. Newy Sandec was occupied Dec. 12. We also re-entered Grybow, Gorlice and Zmigrod, Galicia. The Zemplin district is completely clear of the enemy. Our troops are in control of the passes in the mountains and the line formed by the valley of the river Suczawa in Bukowina.

"North of Lowicz our allies are successfully continuing their attack on the strongly fortified positions of the Russians."

The German general staff issued the following report regarding the operations in the east:

"From East Prussia and southern Poland there is nothing to report.

"In northern Poland our operations are taking their normal course."

Quiet In Western Zone.

Paris, Dec. 15.—The late official communique was as follows:

"Attacks by the French have progressed along the Ypres canal and west of Hollebeke. Several violent counter attacks have all been repulsed by our troops.

"The railroad station of Comercy (in the department of the Meuse) was bombarded by batteries firing from a great distance. In Alsace the enemy assumed the offensive northwest of Gernay, but was repulsed.

"On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

Son of German Chancellor Captured.

Berne, Dec. 15.—A son of Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg of Germany is reported to have been wounded by the Russians at Piotrkow and taken prisoner.

Cuban Commander-in-Chief Dies.

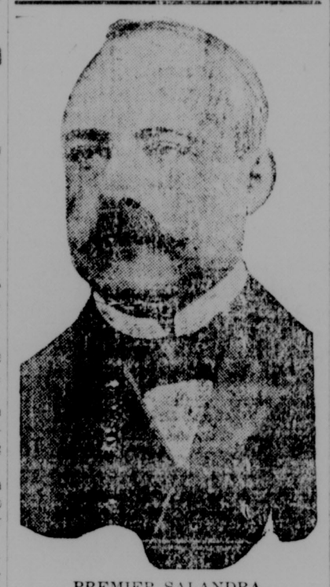
Italian Statesman Advises Armed Neutrality



PREMIER SALANDRA.

MAY NOT GET HIS SHIPS

Colonel Goethals' Demand Likely to Be Ignored.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The request of Colonel Goethals for the services of torpedo boat destroyers to be used as a police force to compel the observance of the regulations regarding the neutrality of the canal was referred by Secretary of War Garrison to Secretary of State Bryan and Secretary of the Navy Daniels. Though conferences were held by the officials of the three departments no decision was reached.

It developed that the navy department does not want to detach destroyers from other duties to the service of Governor Goethals in the Panama canal waters. It now seems doubtful whether Goethals will get the ships he has asked for. In many quarters, however, the opinion was expressed that swift armed vessels of some sort should have been furnished Goethals for policing the canal and adjacent waters at the time the United States neutrality was declared and certainly as soon as the special regulations regarding the use of radio stations in United States jurisdiction as special rules for the canal were promulgated.

FIND AIRMEN IN NORTH SEA

Dutch Steamer Picks Up English Officer and Mechanic.

London, Dec. 15.—A telegram to Reuter's from Flushing says the Dutch steamer Oranje Nassau has picked up two aviators in the North sea.

The aviators proved to be a British officer and his mechanic, who had been compelled to descend upon the sea when their motor became disabled.

At first they refused to leave their craft until they were assured they would not be interned in Holland, whither the Oranje Nassau was bound.

It was reported the aviators had been flying over Belgium, where they dropped five bombs.

TURKS FAIL TO REPLY

Italy May Put Time Limit For Answer to Demands.

Rome, Dec. 15.—The foreign office has not yet received the Turkish reply to the Italian demands resulting from the attack on the Italian consulate at Hodeida.

The Turkish ambassador here explains the delay as due to the congestion of the telegraph and says he is convinced that Turkey will accede to the demands of the note. It is probable, however, that a time limit will be fixed for Turkey's reply.

Army Rations Cost Is Higher.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The cost of the American army ration has increased to such an extent on account of the European war that it will cost $130,000 more to feed the soldiers during the coming year than during the present year. Even the price of horse food has so increased that $100,000 more must be paid next year for army forage than this year.

Woman Sculptor Dies.

Philadelphia, Dec. 15.—Miss Katherine M. Cohen, a sculptor widely known in this country and Europe, died at her home here. She was fifty-five years old and had studied under famous masters both here and abroad.

The little boy was playing with an old army musket. His father thought that he had removed all the shells from the gun when the little boy began playing with matches around the musket a shell exploded and the contents entered his left foot. He was removed to the Miner's Hospital and it is thought his foot can be saved.

The Republican---The Leading Paper.

GRANTSVILLE.

The Myersdale Republican has this to say about the summer village to be, near this place: It is the upbuilding of a summer resort at one of the most picturesque spots on the line of the rehabilitated National Pike, which will constitute a link in an Ocean to Ocean highway, reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. There is no more ideal spot on the pike for a first-class summer and health resort than "Little Crossings," where the historic stone arch bridge spans the Casselman River, one-half mile east of the village of Grantsville.

The Frostburg gentleman who have purchased ground at Stanton's dam as a site for summer cottages have shown commendable foresight, and the probabilities are that they will be joined next summer by others from Frostburg, Cumberland and the large cities of the East who will want to erect cabins or cottages and spend the summer at this pleasant spot.

In course of time The Republican hopes to see a large summer hotel, country club, or all-the-year-round sanitarium established at this picturesque place than which there is no more delectable spot in the Allegheny mountains. The Casselman River at this point affords splendid boating and fishing facilities, and land for the laying out of golf links is available. It could be made ideal rendezous for automobile parties coming from the East and the West over one of the most magnificent highways in the United States. The building up of such a resort would prove of benefit, not alone to the village of Grantsville, but of the country for miles around.

Stanton's dam has for years been a favorite picnic ground for pleasure parties from Salisbury and Meyersdale. From Salisbury to the state line there is a good road leading toward the National Pike. Between the state line and the pike at Little Meadows (Stone House Farm) there is about one mile of road that needs improvement very badly. If this were improved, there would be a splendid outlet for automobiles from Somerset county to the National Pike and a great many more of our people would go on pleasure trips during the summer months to Grantsville and other places on the pike.

The National Pike between Cumberland, Md., and Wheeling, W. Va., was opened to traffic in the year 1818. The magnificent stone bridge at Little Crossings was built between the years 1814 and 1818, and there is a movement on foot at Grantsville to hold a centennial celebration of the completion of the bidge next summer. The event is one worthy of celebration and if attempted should be carried out on a scale that would attract thousands of visitors.

Meno Miller, in Mr. Wisseman's automobile, drove Mr. George Wisseman and family to the State of Deleware. Mr. Miller returned to his home by railroad.

Mrs. Henrietta Smouse and son Homer are visiting her sister, Mrs. Arthur Jordan, at Fredonia, Pa.

Samuel Hershberger, one of Garrett county's best stock raisers, is making some sales of fine stock. His farm is located near this village.

A Pennsylvania merchant has this to say of Grantsvill's buckwheat flour: Stanton's buckwheat flour is the best on the market and more sold than all others brands.

Troop No. 3, Boy Scouts of Amererica, Frostburg, defeated the Grantsville Athletics in the assembly of Beall High school, by the score of 24-20. This was the second game of the season between the two teams. Grantsville winning the first game by a score of 20-16. The game was a fast and interesting one. Foul pitching of the Grantsville players was the feature of the game. They made four out of every five fouls pitched. The Troop No. 3 team is comprised of most of the players of the crack Scout team of last season, which only suffered one defeat during the whole season.

Democrats Eat All Day.

About 500 Baltimore Democrats with sharp appetites and an acquired thirst, attended the oyster roast of the Eighth Ward Democratic Club at Buedel's Park, near Middle River Sunday. The feast began at 9 a. m., and ended at 9 p. m. The cooks and dispensers of liquid refreshments did not have, it is said, an idle moment. As quickly as one contingent was satiated another was ready to be served and by the time the last bunch had obtained what it wanted the first comers had cultivated another appetite, and so the performance was continuous.

Forty-five barrels of oysters, served fried, steamed and in fitters.
Forty gallons of shucked oysters.
Thirty gallons of sourkraut.
Eighty pounds of pigtails.
Sixty pounds of spareribs.
Forty pounds of roast beef.
Two hundred loaves of bread.
Three crates of celery.
Sixty barrels of beer.

The Red Cross Seal.

All over the United States the Red Cross Christmas Seal is being sold. This is the very vital part the Red Cross is playing in the fight against our great enemy—tuberculosis.

For nine years there has been a nationally organized campaign against this disease.

The plan is—1. A direct attact on the disease itself and on the source of infection.—2. Education of the people in personal and public hygiene.—3 Teaching simple truths about tuberculosis.—4. Creating a public sentiment to demand measures necessary for the control of the disease.

This plan is carried out in different communities by voluntary associations for the prevention of tuberculosis and by state societies. Such a campaign must be financed and this has been a baffling task. It is precisely here that the Red Cross Christmas Seal has brought a support and played a part without which we should now be far behind the point at which we have arrived.

In 1908 the American Red Cross issued its tuberculosis stamps on a national basis for the first time and $135,000 was realized. In 1909 the sum was doubled. In 1912 it reached $400,000. This money is devoted to anti-tuberculosis work. In certain states the entire movement is financed by the sale of these seals. In some communities the proceeds are devoted to specific efforts such as day camps, open air schools, visiting nurses, etc.

In Clarksburg, W. Va., the Civic Club has charge of the sale of these seals, and the proceeds go to aid in the fight against tuberculosis in that city. Last year, after a small percentage was paid to the state and national organizations, $323.00 was realized. This money goes toward the support of the Civic Club, visiting nurses and for milk for needy tuberculosis patients.

American Consul Asks Bread for His Family.

That the famine in Belgium is no respecter of person was vividly brought home by a letter received by the American Commission from Henry W. Diederich, the United States Consul General at Antwerp, who appeals for food for his family, for his consular staff and for himself. Mr. Diederich writes:

"About 10 days age Jarvis Bell of New York, informed me that if my family and myself needed anything to let him or the relief committee know.

"At the time the offer was made I did not think it would be necessary to make use of it, but we have been suddenly made to realize that Antwerp is not victualized, as common report has it, as a few days ago all the bakers in the city declared they were not able to supply bread any longer for want of flour.

"For the time being they again have started their work, but the outlook for a steady supply of bread this winter is very gloomy. In view of this condition it is requested that the relief committee let me have at the earliest opportunity some flour for myself and the families of the consular staff.

Keep On Keepin' On.

If the day looks kinder gloomy
An, yer chances kinder slim;
If the situation's puzzlin'
An' the prospects awful grim;
An, perplexities keep pressin'
Till all hope is nearly gone—
Jest bristle up an' grit yer teeth
An' keep on keepin' on.

Palestine As An Independent State.

London, Dec. 4.—One result of the present war may be the realization of the dream of centuries past—the setting up of Palestine as an independent Jewish state. Both England and Russia will favor the project says the London Globe—England because a small neutral state in the Holy Land will be the best possible protection to Suez and Egypt; Russia because it will make the way easier for her to settle certain Jewish problems within her own borders. Continuing, the Globe says:

"The events of the moment show how immediately Egyptian integrity is imperiled by the fact that a right of way through Palestine is open to a hostile power. Palestine must become either British or neutral. There is an obvious political objection to a British occupation: Neutrality is the more desirable solution.

"But if Palestine is to become neutral, who is to govern it? Directly that question is raised the claim of the Jews forces itself upon our attention. We have to deal with the remarkable fact that a people which lost its country over 2,000 years ago still cherishes the memory of that loss, and links the hope of recovery with its deepest religious instincts.

"Here, then, we have two influences at work for the re-establishment of a Jewish state—the British desire for a neutral Palestine and the territorial instinct of the Jews themselves. There is a third influence. Russia has pledged herself to the re-establishment of an autonomous Poland under the Czar. But in Poland, as we know it now, there is one obvious obstacle to the development of a Polish state strong in its national consciousness, and that is the presence of a large Jewish element. All who know Russian-Poland will agree that a settlement of the Jewish question is essential to the complete success of the great scheme to which Russia is pledged, and will recognize that it is precisely to the Polish Jews that the reconstruction of the Jewish state would make the strongest appeal."

Making the Farm Interesting.

The boy who has won a prize for raising 153 bushels of corn on an acre will not leave the farm and hunt for a job in town. The farm is too interesting, and the possible returns are too large. The boy who did not win the prize because he only got 75 bushels of corn from an acre is not at all likely to hunt for a job in a store.

Corn is being raised by girls, too. And they find it interesting. They are incited by competitions to show what they can do in the raising of flowers, or fruit, or poultry, all of which have some advantages for girls over corn culture. All serve the same purpose of awakening the interest of the young in farm life, and suggesting to them possible rewards, and teaching them to put some science, or book knowledge, and some skill into their work. These things make the work worth while.

Boys leave the farm where the father makes no effort to give them a personal interest in the work, and keeps the boys working every minute for him, and sees no reason why they should occasionally have a day for fishing or hunting. These fathers do not have much science in their work, and their returns are usually small, and their sons grow up looking on farm work as endless drudgery, with no personal interest for them, and no reward for them. Ordinary farm work, which makes no appeal to the intellectual faculties, which is hard work and nothing else, which gives the boy no sense of achievement, and no prospect of anything beyond a subsistence, and which does not satisfy the instinctive craving to own something, is only drudgery, from which the boy looks forward to the day of escape.

The agricultural college and the agricultural periodicals are doing a great deal to inject intellectual life into farm work, which is capable of being made vastly more interesting than nine-tenths of the work done in towns. The offer of prizes for the best acre of corn, or the fattest pig, or the best field of wheat, has aroused the interest of thousands of boys and girls in farm work. They have found that they can accomplish results far beyond the average, and this opens up undreamed of possibilities in farming. They have satisfied the passion to own something for one's self, and to see not only father's crops grow, but their own crops grow. These conditions together with agricultural teaching and literature, are turning drudgery into a profession. The young people are taking an interest in the selection and testing of seed, and in the preparation of the ground, and in the cultivation of the crop which will attach them to the soil, not from necessity, but because it is interesting, and will give the country in the next generation far larger crops of everything than it gets now.

Recently an agricultural lecturer urged that a pig be given to each child in a farm family. Give each child an animal, or a hen yard, or half an acre of ground, to care for on its own responsibility, and the proceeds of which are to be its individual gain, and the procession from the farm to town will be checked.—Jeffersonian, Towson, Md.

The wind howls, swaying the great oaks to and fro as if they were twigs, the heavy snow casts its cloak of whiteness over the entire ground, the Christmas season is upon us.

Seated before the open hearth of plenty, gazing into the brilliant hue that arises from the burning embers we cannot help but see the conditions that exist about us. We sit as if bound to the chair, helpless and hopeless. But it is not the will of God to have us sit idle at this season, where there is much to be done to relieve the suffering of the poor and needy—children of God, who are helpless, who cannot at this hour help themselves.

Stand up! Go forth and fulfill your Christmas duty! By helping in the most modest way you will have accomplished your individual share. If we all did just a little, how much real suffering could be averted.

A few pounds of meat, a few loaves of bread, a bit of coal would mean much to a family where the unfortunate father cannot secure work, yet is worthy. Then, again, we cannot place the blame of a worthless father upon his needy family. The children crying for bread—can YOU sit and hear this and see the vivid impressions in the firelight, without promising yourself to help? Not help from day to day with the promise "that I'll do it tomorrow," but do it now—tomorrow may never come, and besides these unfortunates need your assistance, not only yours, but the assistance of all the folks you can interest.

You will show the real Christmas Spirit.

Your deed will be noble.

Your act of humanity.

Your Christmas happier, knowing the good you have done to bring cheer and Good Will to the destitute.

Will you pledge yourself today, NOW, starting at the earliest possible moment. The cries of distress are distinct—the volunteers are few. They need your individual help.

Secretary of War Contradicts President's Assertions.

President Wilson's statements in his address to Congress respecting the state of military preparedness of the United States are flatly contradicted by Secretary of War Garrison in his annual report says the Carroll Record.

The president told the country last week that it had been deceived respecting actual military conditions and that there is no need for any immediate effort to strengthen the national defense.

Secretary Garrison makes clear in his report that the country is unprepared to defend itself.

In contrast with the president's assertions, that national defense has not been neglected, Mr. Garrison, in clear and virile terms, shows how the lack of an adequate army and reserves places the United States at the mercy of an enemy, and urges the immediate provision of a much larger land force.

After showing that it would require six months to raise and train an army adequate to repel invasion, the secretary of war says:

"Any one who takes the slightest trouble to investigate will find that in modern warfare a prepared enemy would progress so far on the way to to success in six months, if his antagonist might as well concede defeat without contest."

This statement by the head of the military establisement of the republic surprised many Democrats, who applauded the president's assurance, regarded as complacent by his critics, that there will be no difficulty in providing an adequate defense, "should occasion arise."

Mr. Garrison pays his respects somewhat vehemently to the ultrapacificists who fear the growth of "militarism" in the United States and that preparedness for war breeds war, and who preach reliance upon brotherly love instead of "brute force" for the preservation of peace.

Warning to Motorists.

The automobile club of Maryland warns all operators of motor vehicles to be very careful at this season of the year, when roads and streets are slippery from ice, snow or rain, for unless precaution is taken motor vehicles are sure to skid, which invariably results in accident, often proving serious. In stopping suddenly, the brakes should be applied with clutch in, and in the event of the car skidding, always turn the front wheels in the same direction as that of the rear wheels.

Boy Accidently Shot.

Thomas Reese, of this place, received a letter Saturday morning stating that George, the 17 year old son of his brother, Isaac Reese, Selbysport, Md., was accidently shot. A revolver in the hands of a boarder residing at the Reese home, was accidently discharged and the bullet entered the boy's hip.

Thomas Reese, Daniel Reese and David Reese, all of this place, motored to Selbysport yesterday to visit the injured lad. They report that he is in a very serious condition and that his father is constantly at his bedside.—Press Cumberladd.

THE DEATH RECORD

J. ROY HAMMOND.

The announcement of the death of J. Roy Hammond, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hammond, of Oakland, came with startling suddenness on Tuesday evening at a late hour, the young man having died in the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, at nine o'clock, to which institution he was taken from his home in Oakland Sunday night. The cause of his death was typhoid fever, with which he had been ill several days, but only confined to his bed since Saturday of last week. The deceased was a most exemplary young man with, those noble attributes that make and hold friends, and his friends are numbered by the score who will hold his commradeship as a memory dear. A recent graduate from the University of Virginia his prospects for a brilliant future in the law were bright. The remains of the young man were sent to his home from Cumberland yesterday afternoon and on Friday afternoon at three o'clock the funeral services will occur from St. Paul's M. E. church, of which he was a consistent member. The services at the cemetery will be in charge of the local lodge of Masons.

The Christmas Spirit.

Christmas! One dayspring of cheerfulness and freedom from cankering care and selfishness and envy in a year of toil and strife and consuming unrest. Christmas, marvelous boon to humanity, springing legitimately from the brief, eventful life of the carpenter's Son, is a fixed institution. The twentieth century could not spare it if it would; wouldn't if it could. The Christmas spirit is everywhere perdvading the world for this brief, blessed dav. Leveling ranks, silencing selfishness, dwarfing care, ignoring toil, forgetting creed and cult and birth and environment, it makes peace and good will not only possible, but inevitable. The gifts it bears are the spontaneous fruit of the omnipotent, all pervading spirit of Christmas—a wellspring in the desert, a sunbeam on a wintry day, a single exception to a steadfast rule. The spirit of Christmas never cloys. We cannot have too much of it. Morning, noon and night, for breakfast, dinner and supper, the first thing on awaking and the last thing on going to sleep, every hour of every day of every week of every month of the year we want the spirit of Christmas, for it is the spirit of ministration, of giving, of service, of doing for others.

"Not to be ministered unto, but to minister"—this motto lived out on every day of the year would dispel the sorrows of the word, smooth out its wrinkles, abolish its poverty, soothe its pain, comfort its heartaches, heal its diseases, make it a heaven. This is what is typified by every Christmas tree and every gift it bears, by every bulging little stocking that hangs in the chimney corner, by every wreath of holly, by every greeting and merry wish.

ANOTHER CHRISTMAS.

We commend the following taken from the Cumberland News, to the readers of this paper:

"Not since the Christian era began has there been a Christmas season in which so large a part of the world has been so torn and devastated by all that belies "peace on earth, good will toward men." One cannot look forward to the most popular of holidays, the most sacred of holy days, in this 1914th year of our Lord, without painful appreciation of the contrast between the Gospel of the Prince of Peace and the actualities of a world in which more than half the people are engaged in war or involved in the conflict.

"Yet, for this very reason, we need the Christmas season more than any preceding generation has needed it.

"Its lesson, its softening influence, its cheer, its good fellowship—all these things the war-racked world needs as never before.

"It is of the very essence of Christmas that all the elders should conspire to gladden the hearts of all the little ones. It is a day of gifts and of gayly decked trees and of feasts, and all the festivities center about the child.

"But this Christmas will have a sober side. The joy and gladness must not be marred.

"But—and this is for the children's sake, too—we must tune our hearts to the heaven given anthem of the feast.

"That Carol, as sung by the angels hovering over the little town of Bethlehem, is the song to sing. It should sweep across the lands at peace and reverberate above the cannon's roar in the countries at war, rising loud and clear, swelling in mighty chorus, thundering across battlefields and ringing in the ears of kings and emperors and cabinet ministers.

It should be the united aspiration of all people, so mighty in its compelling force as to move and sway the few who have locked great nations in war's embrace, and to bring into tumbling ruin the personal ambitions that bred this war, as the walls of Jericho were shattered by the shouts of the children of Israel.

Test With Potatoes.

A report has been received by the Department of Agriculture of tests made in Ireland in which pototoes were allowed to sprout before being planted. The average results obtained in every county in Ireland during the 10 years of the experiment, showed that sprouted seed yielded 12 tons and unsprouted seed 10 tons per acre. According to the tests the advantages of storing potatoes during the winter in sprouting boxe are as follows: "(1) A substantial increase in yield; (2) planting may be deferred for a time in an unfavorable season without detriment to the crop; (3) several weeks' growth is secured in the boxes previous to planting the first bud is preserved, which results in the crop making rapid growth when planted, enabling it to smother weeds; (4) the crop is usually ready for lifting several weeks before that from unsprouted seed; (5) seed potatoes can be safely and conveniently stored in boxes and easily examined for the removal of unsound tubers or for the detection of those of other varieties which may have been accidently introduced."

No one who traversed this county ten years ago can pass through it now without noting the great progress that has been made by the farmers. At that time there were but few barns, no silos and the farmers bore but few earmarks of prosperity. How different now! The farm homes are better kept, the buildings better painted and in many ways more attractive. Large barns with silos attached adorn many farms. The stranger in passing is impressed with the thought that here live a prosperous, happy and contented people.

Electric Plant Goes Into Other Hands.

The Oakland electric light plant will be taken over on January 1st, 1915, by the Oakland Electric Company, a corporation recently organized by a few local men. The management of the company will be in the hands of Mr. Harland L. Jones, who has been elected secretary and treasurer.

The plant has been thoroughly overhauled and improved by installing a new generator, capable of furnishing 3000 lights. With Abram Lawton in charge, who has been retained by the new management, there should be no interruptions in the service. Just as soon as the weather will permit the service lines will be placed in first class condition and some other improvements contemplated will be made.

PLENTY OF POLITICS IN MARYLAND NEXT YEAR

State and County Campaigns Closely Followed By Presidential Contest.

Soon after the first of the year the 1915 politics will begin and once it begins there will be no stopping until long after everyone is sick and tired of the mere thought of it. There will be politics enough to satisfy the Eastern Shore, Southern Maryland and Garrett county in the aggregate, and that is something that was never expected in this disappointing world.

As a matter of fact, when the 1915 politics gets under way there will be no end of the game until the next president is elected in the fall of 1916, and ordinarily the fall of 1916 would be as far off politically from now as the way is long to Tipperary. Ahead is two years of continuous excitement, two years in which will come a mayorality primary and election at Baltimore, a state and local primary and election, a new state administration, a session of the Legislature and a Presidential and Senatorial primary and election.

The state and local campaign loom up big. The primary will be held in September, not earlier than the 8th and not later than the 15th. Candidates for governor, comptroller and attorney-general will be nominated by the "county unit plan" of direct primary, that is, by direct instruction of the voters in each county and legislative district to their delegates to the state conventions.

In all the counties nominations will be made for the House of Delegates, in a large number for the state senate, and there will be nominations for other offices, such as clerk of the circuit court, register of wills, county commissioners, state's attorney and surveyor, according to the terminations in each county.

After the primary is over in September there will be a supplemental registration and the state conventions, when organization of the respective state central committees will be effected, the state nominations formally ratified and the party platforms adopted. Then there will be the campaign until in November and after that the fights over to the organization of the legislature, which will convene in January, 1916. Those fights will end when the legislature meets and the new governor is inaugurated, and as they end the fights for patronage will be on—all that mass of patronage that is on the counter when the state administration changes.

Three months of that, plus the turmoil of a legislative session, it all concluding in early April with the presidential and senatorial (Blair Lee's term will be ending) primary due in May. That primary, next the national conventions and, finally, the national election.

Christmas Time.

Because it is Christmas time says the Farm Journal, the Christmas spirit is in the air, let's pull our chairs up near the fireplace and talk of some things we do not think of so much as we should. In the first place, it is a good time to stop trying to right up other people, and to see where we need righting up ourselves. Let's wipe the old scores off the slate, and never make any more. Let's not look back over the road we have come. We are not going that way again. What lies on ahead is all that concerns us now. Experience sets the lamp in the window for us, and we need not be afraid to go straight on. Looking toward the light all the shadows lie behind us. Let's have more patience—patience with ourselves, patience with other folks and patience with all that belongs to it. Let's stop whittling toward ourselves. Nobody ever got anything by doing that except sores and pains and sorrows. Let's give place to big hopes for the future instead of pangs of regret over the past. Let's bravely turn over the new and do our best to keep the white page free from blots clear around to another Christmas time.

GERMANS HELD AT BZURA RIVER

Russians Are Able to Stop Advance on Warsaw

DEEP SNOW IN FIGHTING ZONE

Russian Commander Holds Line Fifty Miles In Length—Slavs Fight Way Into West Prussia, Threatening Thorn Fortress—London Still Thinks Germans' Celebration of Poland Victory Was Premature.

London, Dec. 22.—In Poland and Galicia battles are being fought between the Russians and the Germanic allies amid deep snow in bitter cold.

The Germans again are making a fierce attack toward the Poland capital and the Russians are making a stand against them on the east bank of the Bzura river, thirty miles west of Warsaw.

Grand Duke Nicholas' army here holds a natural strategic line fifty miles long, running roughly north and south along the east banks of the Bzura and Rawka rivers.

A regiment of the Prussian guard was annihilated by the Russian artillery, which commands the right bank of the river for eighteen miles south of its junction with the Vistula.

After evacuating Lodz on Dec. 6 the Russians withdrew to a line of trenches, which, together with artillery positions and natural obstacles, form a strong defense line from west of Nivo Gerorgivsk, twenty-five miles northwest of Warsaw, to Opoczno, twenty-five miles east of Piotrkow.

For two weeks the Germans have battered at the Russian line, but have made no appreciable progress and are compelled to sacrifice great numbers of men, including detachments of the Prussian guard, their finest troops, in order to hold the Russians on the defensive.

It is realized by Berlin military writers that the enthusiastic celebration over victories won in Poland by Von Hindenburg was premature and that the German armies have accomplished nothing more than the maintenance of the offensive. The German war office avoids mention of the situation in East Prussia, says that the situation in West Prussia remains unchanged and confines its report in Poland to the statement that the Germans are meeting the attack on the German position.

The newest development of the situation is an offensive movement by a large Russian force which fought its way along the lower Vistula to and over the frontier of West Prussia. The German official statement admits that there are operations in West Prussia and it is reported from Petrograd that the Germans will have to face a determined attack made by the Russians toward Thorn.

Russian forces are gathering in strength on the north bank of the Vistula and are heading for the great base point of German operations in Poland—the fortress of Thorn. The news confirmed a statement sent from Petrograd several days ago that the invaders in front of Warsaw would find themselves imperilled by a Russian army operating in their rear. The Russian force appears to be spreading over the German frontier southwest from Mlawa.

ROBERTS' ADVICE UNHEEDED

Had It Been There Would Have Been No War, Says Sturdee.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 22.—German sailors to the number of about 100 who were saved during the fighting off the Falkland islands Dec. 8 when the British squadron under Admiral Sir Frederick Sturdee defeated and sent to the bottom a German squadron sailed from here for England on board the steamer Crown of Galicia. They were brought into port by the British cruiser Invincible.

It was learned that the Invincible showed signs of having been struck by six different shells. Nine men on board of her were wounded, including Commander Richard H. D. Townsend.

In the course of the reception tendered the British officers in Victoria hall an address of welcome was made by the British minister, A. M. Innes. In response Admiral Sturdee spoke as follows:

"I thank you for this reception. I hope our little victory will improve conditions for British, French, Russian and probably for Japanese commerce during this titanic conflict which has just begun.

"Lord Roberts recommended military preparations; had he been listened to the war would have been avoided. English business men, forgetful of their true interests, employed Germans for reasons of economy, but I hope that British merchants and British steamship companies will profit from this lesson."

Delaware Ordered to Mexico.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 22.—Orders from Washington directing the battleship Delaware to be ready to sail for Mexico by Sunday caused surprise in naval circles. The Delaware was preparing to join the Atlantic fleet for maneuvers in Guantanamo next month. Officers on the Delaware said that they did not know what caused the hurry orders from the state department.

Allies Move Ahead Slowly—Gains Not Great But Significant.

Paris, Dec. 22.—The allies are hammering back the German line from the Belgian coast to the heights of the Meuse and in the past two days of hand-to-hand infantry fighting and terrific artillery duels have made more progress than in any similar period since the Germans lost the offensive.

The government's announcements covering the operations of two days are impressive in their summary of infantry and artillery successes. Now that the allied offensive is gaining momentum and is powerfully supported by the new Creusot batteries the French have in the field the Germans are being driven from their first and second line trenches in districts along a front of 200 miles.

Such advances as the French and British made in the two days represent only a few hundred yards, but the significance of the successes is that the captured lines were extraordinarily strong and prepared with the scientific thoroughness characteristic of the German field works.

The only conclusion to be drawn from the official reports is that the Germans are slowly but surely being uprooted in Flanders, in northern France, along the Champagne and in the Argonne.

There are numerous optimistic unofficial reports all of which point to the success of the general offensive movement. It is said that in Flanders the allies have advanced to the north of the inundated region and are able, therefore, to attack the Germans from the west as well as from the south. It is believed the allies have recaptured Dixmude and are making a very strong attack against Roulers.

CARE FOR PRISONERS

Pope Instructs Bishops to Look Out For Welfare of Men.

Rome, Dec. 22.—In the hope of alleviating the discomforts of prisoners of war and the anxiety of their relatives at home Pope Benedict has instructed all bishops in dioceses wherein are military prisoners to appoint one or more priests who are acquainted with the languages spoken by the imprisoned soldiers. These priests will be instructed not only to offer spiritual counsel but so far as possible to look after the material welfare of the prisoners.

Particular efforts will be made to discover whether the prisoners have communicated with their families and if they have not done so to persuade them to send word home immediately. Where prisoners are unable to write letters the priests will perform this service and see that such letters are sent home safely.

ADVERTISING GARRETT COUNTY.

A Descriptive Article of an Exhibit At the Recent County Fair.

The Bulletin of Pharmacy published at Detroit, Mich., for December has an article which we transfer to the columns of The Republican. It is as follows:

ADVERTISING A DRUG STORE AT A COUNTY FAIR.

In the early part of the fall thousands of prospective customers had their attention directed to some of the leading lines of merchandise featured by the Oakland Pharmacy, Oakland, Md.

The occasion was the second annual fair of Garrett county, held at Oakland. In one of the buildings devoted to display purposes, Joseph E. Harned, proprietor of the pharmacy, had an exhibition booth built in the form of a rectangle twenty feet long by ten feet wide. This booth was attractively trimmed with the colors of Maryland.

A settee placed just outside the exhibit served as a convenient resting place for the many tired pleasure seekers who were looking for a moment's respite from the joys of the midway.

The centre of the display was occupied by a large pyramid covered with mirrors, brushes, combs, trays, and various other toilet accessories in the popular white ivory.

Cameras, photograph supplies, sargical dressings, thermometers, perfumes, talcums, toilet waters, and other specialties featured by Mr. Harned in his store occupied conspicuous positions in the show.

Perhaps the part of the display that attracted the most attention was an exhibit of a number of spices, such as nutmegs, cinnamon, ginger, etc., both in the whole and ground conditions. Mr. Harned makes a specialty of the spice business, and a display at such a time brought this line to the notice of hundreds of people who were in the habit of going to a grocery store when they wanted anything of this sort.

One end of the booth was given over to a completely equipped soda fountain where thirsty crowds could obtain satisfying drinks as a relief from the ver million-hued lemonade to be found on the fair grounds.

The booth was in the care of three of Mr. Harned's assistants, ever ready to show and explain the numerous articles on display. Many souvenirs and samples intended to impress the public with the desirability of trading at the Oakland Pharmacy were given out. There were roses for the ladies, lead-pencils for the children and attractive calendars for all. For farmers, who were present in large numbers, Mr. Harned had samples of Kreso Dip and literature concerning it. An excellent handbook on "First Aid to The Injured" was also distributed.

This article was illustrated by a half tone, 3½x5½ inches, of Mr. Harned's booth. Mr. Harned received a cash prize for the best trade article appearing in the December number of the largely circulated magazine.

This article is a splendid advertisement of Garrett county, of the fair, and of Mr. Harned's store and shows to the country at large that Oakland has a first class pharmacy. It certainly gave Oakland a large place on the map. The Republican congratulates Mr. Harned in the publication of this article in The Bulletin of Pharmacy.

EMOTIONAL VALUE OF DAY

Christmas Spirit Almost Universally Felt, But What It Is Remains a Mystery to Many.

The emotional value of Christmas may be said to be universally felt. Something happens at Christmas that, if only for a day or two, does the whole world good. What that something is remains for many a mystery. A number of persons who feel the renewing impulse are like Faust when the notes of the Easter song arrest his suicidal intent; they take and enjoy the moment's deliverance and continue to regard the source of the boon as nothing more than mythology made potent through human associations. Others are moved through superstitious fears; they approach the great season with consciences crowded with uncomfortable memories; Marley's ghost is after them, but, unlike Scrooge, their new heart is only for Christmas week. Another group simply fall in with an ancient custom and are surprised, and indeed pleased, when the dry bones of their unbelieving minds come together, take on flesh, and begin to live. A vast multitude meet the great day with buoyant expectation, take with thanks its new happiness, return to their work in this exalted mood, and ask no questions about cause and effect. A few philosophize on the phenomenon, and they are willing to stake their lives on the substantial truth of their insight.—George A. Gordon, in Atlantic Monthly.

Don't and Do

in Holiday Fire Caution

Do not decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton or flimsy materials.

Do not use cotton to represent snow.

Do not permit children to light candles.

Use metallic tinsel and non-inflammable decorations only.

Use asbestos fiber to represent snow.

Set the tree upon a substantial stand.

A house of merriment is better than a house of mourning.

Have an extinguisher or a few buckets full of water near the tree, ready for use in an emergency.

When and Why.

"Do you go to Sunday school now, Georgie?" inquired Georgie's uncle.

"Yep; Christmas is comin'!"

"Don't you go except just before Christmas?"

"Yep; I go just before the summer picnic, too."

MISTLETOE HISTORY

Gathering of Plant Sacred Rite in Druidical Religious Festivals.

Also Considered a Potent Remedy for Ills, a Belief Which Still Exists in Some of the Remote Places of Europe.

We decorate our homes with sprays of mistletoe at Christmas time, but few of us know the history of it as a Yuletide symbol. Pretty girls are kissed under it and a great deal of fun and nonsense is carried on apropos of it, but no one stops to think of how ancient a decoration it is or how sacred it was once thought to be.

Almost everybody has a vague knowledge that the Druids of old had something to do with the gathering of mistletoe, but just what that something was is not clear to the average mind.

The fact is that the ancient Celts in their druidical religion had two great festivals, one in June and the other in December, the latter being equivalent to our Christmas. In both of these great festivals the gathering of the mistletoe was a sacred rite.

Pliny in his "Natural History" describes the ceremony. Speaking of the Druids' worship of the oak, he says: "They believe that whatever grows on these trees is sent from heaven and is a sign that the tree has been chosen by the god himself. The mistletoe is very rarely to be met with, but when it is found they gather it with solemn ceremony. This they do especially on the sixth day of the moon, because by the sixth day the moon has plenty of vigor and has not run half its course.

"After the preparations have been made for a sacrifice and a feast under the tree they hail it as the universal healer and bring to the spot two white bulls whose horns have never been bound before. A priest clad in a white robe climbs the tree and with a golden sickle cuts the mistletoe, which is caught in a white cloth. Then they sacrifice the victims, praying that God may make his own gift to prosper with those upon whom he has bestowed it.

"They believe that a potion prepared from mistletoe will increase their flocks and that the plant is a remedy against all poison."

It was believed to be a remedy for many ills, and this belief is still to be found in many remote places in Europe. In Holstein, for example, the mistletoe is regarded as a healing remedy for wounds, and in Lacaune, France, it is always administered by the native people as an antidote for poison.

In the northeast of Scotland people used to cut withes of mistletoe at the March full moon; these they bent in circles and kept for a year to cure hectic fevers and other troubles. In some parts of Germany the mistletoe is especially esteemed as a remedy for the ailments of children, who sometimes wear it hung around the neck as an amulet.

In Sweden on Midsummer eve mistletoe is diligently sought after, the people believing it to be possessed of many mystic qualities, and that if a sprig of it is attached to the ceiling of the dwelling house, the horse's stall or the cow's crib, the trolls will then be powerless to injure either man or beast. Branches of the plant are commonly seen in farm houses hanging from the ceiling to protect the dwellings from all harm, but especially from fire, and persons afflicted with the falling sickness think they can ward off all attacks of the malady by carrying about with them a knife which has a handle of mistletoe.

Like their Swedish neighbors, many German peasants consider the mistletoe a powerful charm against evil spirits. A similar belief seems to have lingered among the Romans, whose religion at a very early date was somewhat similar to that of the Druids. When Aeneas descended into Hades he gathered to protect himself from the infernal powers a branch of mistletoe, which Vergil calls the golden bough.

The Christmas Robin.

In many parts of England the robin is associated with Christmas-tide. There is a belief that on Christmas eve these birds will sing near a house where a person is dying, to cheer him.

WHAT YOU CAN GIVE

Helpful Christmas Present Suggestions for Those Who Are Puzzled.

Unabridged Dictionary Will Be Appreciated by Children of Kindergarten Age—Other Suitable Gifts for Young and Old.

A number of correspondents who have requested suggestions of books suitable for Christmas gifts will find answers to their queries in the following:

Among the many attractive gift books for very little boys might be mentioned Professor Rausmissen's "Analogy Between the Monogamous Protoplasm and the Silurian Molecule." We can think of no book that would be a greater source of delight to the child that is not yet out of short dresses. It tells in easy words of eight and ten syllables of the sports and pastimes of the protoplasmic family and draws beautiful moral lessons from the corpuscles of the carboniferous era. It is handsomely illustrated with representations of the agile animalcule and will be sure to delight the heart of the little boy or girl who finds it in his or her stocking, as the case may be.

Another dainty idea for a child of three or four years is the Unabridged Dictionary. The simplicity of style observed in this interesting narrative recommends it at once for children who have reached the kindergarten age. The plot is not so complex and the characters are sufficiently varied to hold the unflagging interest of the little ones. We have in mind a gentleman who gave his little son a dictionary last Christmas, and he assures us that the lad simply devoured the book.

A pretty present for a child is the clinical report of the county hospital. This comes nicely printed on clean white paper, with bizarre illustrations showing the rise and fall of the temperature, amount of protoids eaten, official count of the germs, statistics as to microbes and many other amusing and entertaining ideas. A rare source of pleasure with this book is to have the little fellows pronounce the long words first the way they are spelled and then read them backward and see what difference, if any, there is in the sound. Some boys would rather do this than go skating.

In the line of pure romance there is nothing more entertaining from Prof. T. L. Escopex's "How the Spectrum Caught On in Saturn." This highly original historical tale tells how the spectrum revealed the secret of Saturn's rings, showing that the planet was warm and dry and that the two rings were for ice water. It comes in four large volumes, with 22 pages of logarithmic calculations that are sure to delight young and old.

As a gift book for a member of a temperature family there is nothing pleasanter than "The Complete Barkeeper." This tells exactly what goes into the stuff that men put in their mouths to steal away their brains, and will be of valuable assist nce to any person who wishes to apply satisfactory tests and determine whether or not he has been equipped with brains and would inspire larceny.

"One Thousand Ways to Cure a Cold," by Burton Bales, is a beautifully written book, giving all the remedies for cold that were suggested to its author in one day. There are 89 variations of the quinine and whisky treatment, and the other 911 remedies consist of the same prescription without the bitter quinine. This is a good book to have in any house.

"The Servant Question and Its Answer" will deceive many people, but it might do for a gift to a young married couple. The answer is quaintly given: "Board."

WILBUR D. NESBIT.

"They are to be married on Christmas day."

"Would you call that 'Yule-tied?'"

VALUE OF A CHILD'S GIFTS

Those Made With Their Own Hands Teach Good Lessons and Give Inspiration.

If we stop to think about our Christmas giving we realize that a gift means more to the giver than it does to him who receives. If it is given in the proper spirit the donor finds out to the full that it is really "more blessed to give than to receive," a fact that is lost sight of in an age of the commercial spirit.

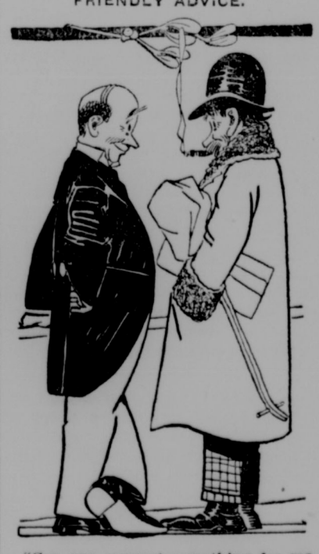
With children there is a great educative value in their present giving if it is encouraged to be really their own giving. If the mother, however, simply prepares some little remembrance, and says "Mary, this is your Christmas present to Aunt Ellen," the gift has no meaning in the thoughts of the young giver. And not only has it no meaning, but it becomes actually harmful for the reason it presents the idea to the child that the gift without the giver is really a gift. And the child has put no thought or self sacrifice into the giving of that present.

On the other hand, if the child be given pocket money which it may consider its very own, or, better still, if it is enabled to earn pocket money and is then encouraged to set aside a portion of its very own money for present making the idea of true giving is acquired. The sacrifice, the forethought, the love necessary to make a gift a real gift are there.

The home-made gifts of children have many valuable lessons to teach the young givers. Many lessons in sewing, raffia, bead-work or painting may be given under the guise of making a gift. In one family, where the elder sister had never made gifts, and really never learned to sew well until she was eighteen years of age, the younger sister, a girl of ten, inspired by the example of a small friend, wished to make birthday gifts for her family. Once she asked her mother to teach her how to crochet; another time to scallop, and before she was twelve years old she had become as proficient a little seamstress as one would want to see.

Thus practical lessons are learned, while the child is inspired with the idea that "Not what we give, but what we share; the gift without the giver is bare."

FRIENDLY ADVICE.



"Can you suggest something for me to get for my wife for Christmas?" he asked of the shopkeeper.

"You'd better get her a box of cigars, I expect," said the shopkeeper. "She was in here this morning and bought a lace parasol for you."

MORE SLIPPERS COMING.

"The time is at hand," said the preacher,
With wrath showing plain on each feacher,
"When slippers will be
Showered down upon me
By every feminine creacher."

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 24 1914.

THE Christmas spirit is the spirit to do good and to be good the whole year around.

"MAY all that Christmas means to all the world be given you to bless and gladden you on Christmas and every day."

SENATOR SMITH said "Carranza had given President Wilson twenty-four hours to withdraw our troops from Vera Cruz." Well, what's he kicking about. Didn't he get them out on time?

IT is not worth while to be discouraged if Christmas this year finds you just about where you were at this time last year. The only thing is to strike a bit higher from now on and keep pegging away.

IN the state of Maryland there were reported to the commissioner of Internal Revenue, at Washington, three persons who had an income over $500,000 per year. In the entire United States there were only 44 persons who had an income of $1,000,000 or over a year.

CHRISTMAS in Europe will not be one of "peace and good will," but one of relentless bloodshed, suffering and sorrow. In that land of conflict there will be but few, if any, happy homes. Never before in the history of the world has such an awful condition existed as to day. We of the United States, are indeed a fortunate people.

SECRETARY Garrison asked Congress for an urgent deficiency appropriation of $554,271, in addition to current extroardinary expenditures in connection with the movement of United States troops to Vera Cruz. The Vera Cruz occupation failed to recure a salute to the United States flag. The President's action was a hugh joke and rather expensive.

THE railroads operating in official classification territory have been granted most of what they asked for in the petitition filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission in May, 1913—that is an anvance of 5 per cent in freight rates, except on coal and coke, iron ore and certain other articles.

Based on earnings from freight received in the fiscal year ended June 30 last the increased allowance amounts to approximately $80,000,000 less than the carriers had petitioned the Commission to sanction.

THE tomorrow of Garrett county is full of good cheer and promise. The year closing has been very kind to the county. In all directions there has been growth and development. It has been a year of blessings, of peace and happiness. Spiritually, intellectually and socially there has been an advance. In and among the mountains Garrett countains are a law abiding people. The telephone, the rural mail delivery and the automobile bring us in contact with the best of life.

Better days are before us, days of plenty and of wealth. Knowledge is power. We are students, we are reading up on the culture of fruit, of crops, on stock. Results have been obtained; greater results are expected.

"UNTO you a Saviour is born," was the glad word given to the Shepherds centuries ago. In commemoration of this glorious event, throughout Christendom tomorrow, many gifts will be given and a general holiday observed and in many churches special services will be held. December 25th is the one day of the year when the public mind takes in the birth of the Saviour of mankind.

The yule time season is the gladsome occasion of the home life, when each member of the home circle thinks of the happiness of the other, and of the homeless and friendless as well, hence the community Christmas tree,

It is a day of happiness, especilly to the children. For months and weeks they look forward to this day of gifts and pleasure. It is a day of cheerful, friendly greeting. A day of peace and good will to all men.

Garrett county will experience a "Merry Christmas." We are well prepared for it—possibly better than for many years previous Providence has graciously smiled upon us throughout the passing year.

In the midst of our delightful happy home jubilee let us not forget the poor and needy in our community—the unfortunate ones. Let us do what we can to brighten up their lives and add to their comfort and happiness.

In our devotations let their be a prayer for the countries engaged in war, that war shall soon cease and peace and righteousness reign.

Progress In Maryland.

Superintendent Hare of Maryland has issued a statement setting forth the progress made by the dry forces in this state during the past year. Three new counties or 1,548 square miles embracing a population of 60,435 persons were added to the no-license territory of the state. One hundred and five soloons will have to close May 1, 1915. In addition St. Mary's county will vote on the license question on August 3 next.

We confidently expect Queens Anne's to send a thoroughly dry delegation to the next Maryland legislature.

At Belair on Thursday, December 10, an enthusiastic company of representative temperance men from every section of the county met and the work of organization in Harford county for a state-wide fight was projected. Enthusiasm attended both the afternoon and evening meeting.

The first year of prohibition, Georgia showed an increase of $4,000,000 of taxable property mostly in rural districts, and now this year an appreciable rereductian in the tax is announced by the state comptroller.

In North Carolina under Prohibition the average increase in property valuation has been over $54,000,000. This means a reduction in the tax rate.

The Farmers Are Disgusted.

"There is no question but that the farmers generally are disgusted with the Underwood tariff bill. There is a growing dissatistaction among working men. The business men of the country justly admire the splendid personality of President Wilson, but they now realize the failure of the tariff law. Added to their troubles are a lot of annoying features incident to the war tax and banking measures. Business men who during September and October were inclined to believe that the depression existing throughout the country should be attributed to the war, know better now. The falsity of this Democratic claim is shown by the monthly statement of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the present administration, which sets forth tremendous increases for the ten months just ended. We are not at war with Australia, or Brazil or China or Canada or Cuba or Holland, yet the balance of trade with these countries is against us. Nor has war interfered with our business with Argentina, which is increasing its imports into this country. It stands to reason, you can't bring these imports into this country without laying off men; and for every man that you create at least five dissatisfied and complaining voters.

Santa Claus' Last Message.

With a list of telephone numbers in his hand, good old Santa Claus was busy at the phone this morning when The Republican reporter blew in at head-quarters and made a dash for the big stove in the corner to get warm.

"Hello! Is this the reindeer farm?" Santa was saving. "Well, I want one hundred and fifty dozen deer at once."

The reporter whistled at the size of this order.

"Those fellows must be nice and fat and I want the speediest you have," continued Santa.

The reporter was about to ask a question when the jolly old fellow secured another connection and his order this time was for a fleet of airships—great big vessels that are floated with gas and speedy aeroplanes similar to those the children of Garrett county have seen flying over the county occasionally.

This was fine news to the scribe, who had been wondering how Santa was going to distribute his toys among the girls and boys throughout the world, but he received the surprise of his life when Santa called another number and asked for a fleet of submarine boats.

"Gee willikins!" said the scribe when he heard the last order, "What in the world will you get next, Santa?"

"Just keep your eyes and ears open, son, and you will learn many things," said Santa, with a twinkle in his eye.

He will be on hand to-night at the many happy homes of Garrett county to fill the stockings and leave behind many evidences of his kindness. A Merry Christmas to all the boys and girls of Garrett county.

The Joy of Shopping.

I love to go and shop for things
To send as Christmas gifts to friends,
For then my fancy girds on wings,
I feel the joy that never ends.
O, what a rapture 'tis to stand
And be stepped upon, bumped into, joggled, pushed, squeezed, shoved, frowned at, scowled upon, trampled, bruised, slammed, rushed, hurried, jolted, and finally get up to the counter and discover that you are at the wrong one!

Santa Clause Says.

Better broken toys than broken hearts.

Santa Claus by any other name would cost as much—and be worth it.

Lots of men put on long white whiskers and think they look like me when they look more like a goat—and perhaps they are.

If Willie wants to see what is inside the drum for goodness sake let him.

You are living in God's own country. What more do you want for Christmas.

It is more blessed to give than to receive, except in the matter of offense.

Fortunately for most of us, we won't get what we deserve on Christmas.

There is more joy in heaven over a ton of coal given to the poor than a ton of diamonds given to the rich.

But Where Will They Go?

"Mr. Bryan in an autograph letter to Tom C. Rye, Governor-elect of Tennessee, says the liquor element must be driven out of the Democratic party.

"Wonder if Mr. Bryan ever had the thot that it may not be necessary to drive men engaged in our industry out of his party. Now that he assumes to speak for his party, it is very likely that men engaged in this business will voluntarily leave the party of democracy for some other, not pledged by its leaders to exterminate an industry which contributes somewhat liberally toward the support of our government."—Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular, December 10, 1914.

Voting for Presidental Candidates.

The Lawyer and Banker, a legal and financial journal of New Orleans, recently sent out 9000 letters seeking the choice of leading lawyers and bankers throughout the country for the Presidency two years hence. The letters were evenly divided between parties. More than 60 per cent. of the letters sent out were replied to as follows:

Republican (for President)—Mr. Justice Hughes of New York, 1584; James R. Mann of Illinois, 816; Governor-elect Whitman of New York, 510; M. T. Herrick of Ohio, 300; Senator Borah of Idaho, 297; Hiram W. Johnson of California, 59; Theodore Roosevelt of Oyster Bay, 11.

For Vice-President, Senator Borah of Idaho was a 10-to-1 shot over all other names.

Democratic (for President)—Franklin K. Lane of California, 1119; Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, 703; Champ Clark of Missouri, 700; Oscar Underwood of Alabama, 345; George Gray of Delaware, 126.

The choice for Vice-President was largely favorable to Senator Lewis of Illinois, with the incumbent second.

The Angels' Prophecy Shall Be Fulfilled.

It is the Christmastide. The world is thinking of a mother and a child, of a little town that slept, of shepherds that kept watch and of an angels' song. Many as they think are worshiping for to them the Babe of the manger is the Saviour of the World. But others wonder, Has He come? And can it be that the promise of the Son has gone for naught? The guns on the battle fields have put to silence the bells in the steeple. Has He failed?

Men have praised Him, but they have not obeyed Him. Of His government there shall be no end; but that is a government whose schools and marts must be as reverent as it temples. Only obedient faith can really test the promise.

He has not failed. Sailor on the sea, your ship may not make port. Soldiers in the trenches, you may not see the waving harvest which in the coming summer is to hide the battle scars on the old earth. Woman, you may not greet your comrade come to keep love's holiday with you.

But peace will come—not the old peace which humiliated Weakness buys from arrogant Might, but a new peace, when every throne of power shall be a throne of equity, and government shall be interpreted in terms of brotherhood, and the measure of a nation's glory shall be in its contribution to world federation.

Thoughtful soul, be gentle and forgiving, kind to your own and to the stranger within the gates. Be reverent to motherhood and childhood. Let the Christmas ship be type for your argosies. Set your own life to the fulfillment of the angels' prophecy. Take herat, be glad. It is the Christmastide!

MASON'S OLD STAND, OAKLAND, MD.

A Full Stocking

By Fitch G. Bryant

MUCH weather, and Christmas but a few days away. The city was properly dressed for the occasion. Snow covered the streets and the steps leading to the beautiful homes on the boulevard where every holiday wish of the people would be gratified.

The bright-eyed, thinly-clad boy on the steps of one of these beautiful homes was not wasting any time in envying the rich. He had waited there for some minutes for the big automobile he knew was due to arrive from the hospital about that time each day.

The big car pulled up beside the curb. A big, kindly-faced man stepped from it and started up the steps.

"Say, are you the doc?"

The surgeon paused half-way up the steps and glanced at the small bit of humanity balanced on the stone handrail.

"Why, yes, my little man, what can I do for you?" he asked tenderly, as he stepped over and put a hand on the lad's knee. He was familiar with the type of boy who had greeted him, and it was a type of boy he liked, a fearless, independent, little waif of the streets. In the great hospital, of which he was the head, they were his most uncomplaining and appreciative patients, even if they were not the profitable ones.

"Nothin' fer meself; it's fer me brudder." The little fellow spoke earnestly and looked straight into the eminent surgeon's kindly gray eyes.

"Your brother? Oh, I see. Well, what's the matter with your brother?"

"Cripple." The one word, with the saddened tone, told the whole story to Doctor Harrison. He knew the rest of the tale from long experience, and asked no further questions.

"Come in the house, and let's talk it over."

"Say, doc, I don't believe you want me to come in. I ain't got no money."

"Why, that's just the reason I want you to come in," the doctor replied, with a merry twinkle in his eye, and ran up the steps closely followed by the small urchin. As the door closed behind them he seized the youngster in a playful bear hug, and landed him in a heavily upholstered leather chair. It was such a chair as that boy had seen in the great shop windows, but had never thought of sitting in, and the warmth of its soft cushions gave a pleasant thrill to his shivering little body.

"What is your name?"

"Tom McGuire. You know Pat McGuire that tends bar down in East Downey street?"

"No, I don't believe I do."

"Well, he's me uncle, and he says you set his leg, time of the big railroad smash-up at Hanover."

"Yes, I remember going out to Hanover with a lot of other doctors at the time of the accident; but that was ten years ago."

"That don't make any difference to Uncle Pat. He never forgets favors. Guess he ain't had many in his life."

"Did your Uncle Pat send you to see me?" asked the surgeon.

"Naw, but it's because what he told me 'bout you made me think it might be all right to come and see 'bout Pete's leg."

"Where is your brother, Thomas?"

"Aw, don't call me that. I ain't Thomas. I'm just Tom. Raggy Tom they call me 'round the square. I sells papes on the southwest corner of the square. Business ain't so bad this time o' year, and I'm breakin' in Pete."

"He can walk, then, can he?" The physician had seated himself close to his small caller, and was giving his whole attention to the case in hand. "Tell me more about Pete."

"Pete was born that way. Doctor said one leg wasn't no good and never was goin' to be, so when Pete got big enough, I saved me pennies and bought him a crutch, and after 'while he got so's he could use it. Then I took him down to the corner and he helped me sell papes in rush hours. He likes to be doin' sonthin', but he gets awful tired holdin' the papes and hangin' on to his crutch."

"Does he stay there all day?"

"Naw, not all the time. Business ain't rushin' only mornin's and nights, and Pete stays home part of the time. On cold days he gits shivery 'cause he can't get 'round very fast so's to keep himself warm."

"Is there any news stand on that corner?" the doctor asked, becoming still more interested.

"Naw, we dassen't put one up. Billy Hahn, he's the feller what had that corner before me, he tried to get leave to put up a stand alongside of the fountain where there's plenty of room, but the aldermen turned him down. He didn't have no pull, and I ain't got none neither. Me and Pete was up on the northeast corner, and when Billy got wet feet and pneumonia and died, we come down to his corner."

"Tom, are your father and mother living?"

"Maw is. I dunno much about paw. He ain't no good. Uncle Pat says he sees him hangin' 'round once in awhile. Maw's got two younger'n me and Pete. I'm ten and Pete's goin' on nine. Maw works awful hard takin' care of the kids and sewin' fer a department store. She says to me one time: 'Tom, you look after Pete and I'll take care of the young uns.' Maw can't hardly get enough to buy 'em clothes, so I chip in when biz is good. Say, doc, I read in my papes 'bout that kid you fixed up last week, and I'll bet ten cents Pete's leg's just like that. Thinks I, when I read that, 'I'm goin' to see Doc Harrison and tell him 'bout Pete.' Now, doc, on the level, how much do you charge for a job like that?"

"I received $3,000 for that operation." There was a merry twinkle in the doctor's eye that was lost on his little visitor.

"Aw, say, doc, wot yer givin' me? You didn't make all that in one day?"

"Yes, in two hours, Tom."

The youngster's eyes filled with tears, and he bit his lip to hold back the sobs. A good leg meant so much to Pete, and he would gladly give $3,000 for one for him if that were possible, but the doctor might have as well asked for the moon in payment for that leg. His vision of Pete without the hated crutch was fast disappearing, but he would not let it get away entirely.

"Don't you never charge no less?" the boy managed to ask, without giving away to the burst of tears ready to flow at his disappointment.

"Oh, yes, indeed; but you asked me how much I received for an operation like last week's, and I never performed one just like that before. It was very difficult and peculiar."

Tom slid out of the chair as if to go. "I guess it's all off, doc. I ain't in your class."

"Tom, sit down there." The doctor's tone of command was filled with more laughter than severity. "Let's talk business."

The youngster obeyed, watching the eminent surgeon with a puzzled look, uncertain whether the great man was really going to make a concession or upbraid him for taking his time. Faint though it was, a new hope sprang up in the small breast. Possibly there might be some terms of payment that he could meet as he grew older and could earn more than the few pennies that meant the day's profits on his paper sales.

"Tom," the doctor continued, "I know Pete."

"You know Pete?" Tom gasped in amazement.

"Yes, I have seen him down by the fountain at the square. You know we specialists always keep our eyes open for anything in our line, so I have noticed him several times as I passed the corner. Of course, I can't say positively, but I think an operation will give Pete two legs instead of one. Now, how much can you afford to pay for such an operation?"

The youngster's eyes shone like two live coals. So the doctor knew Pete, and thought he could cure him! Was it a dream? Tom pinched himself to make sure it was all real. Yes, he was awake all right. How much could he afford? He felt he could afford anything to give Pete a new leg, but how little that was compared with what the doctor would expect! Both sat in silence for over a minute. The surgeon knew what was going on in the youngster's mind, but thought best to let him come to his own conclusion. The boy fumbled his cap nervously while he considered the great question, and at length looked up suddenly into the surgeon's face. There was no doubt or uncertainty in his face or tone as he announced his decision.

"Doc, the only thing I've got in the world is me corner down by the fountain, where me and Pete sells papers. I can't give you all that, for I wouldn't have nuthin' for me and Pete to live on and to help maw with the kids. I'll tell you what I'll do, doc, I'll let you have half o' that corner. You can hire a kid to sell papes fer you and have some dough left, but you won't make no $3,000 in kingdom come."

The doctor knit his brows and Tom imagined he could see a quick refusal of his proposition, but the kindly gleam came back into the doctor's eye and Tom began to hope again as the doctor pondered over the proposition for a moment. Then the doctor said:

"All right, Tom; I'll accept that proposition, and we'll draw up the agreement right now. Let's see, this is December eighteenth. We'll start the new arrangement beginning with January first."

In the course of a quarter of an hour the paper was duly prepared and signed and witnessed, and Tom saw the doctor file it carefully in the strong box in his safe. With a hearty handshake, the surgeon bade adieu to his ten-year-old man of affairs, and turned to a patient waiting in the outer office.

Tom McGuire had known all too little of happiness in his hard ten years, but this was surely the climax of his earthly bliss. A new leg for Pete! Could anything be finer! He ran most of the way back to the square, and nearly knocked the cripple over in his eagerness to tell the good news.

"Say, Pete, you're goin' to have a new leg."

"What?" the bewildered Pete was too intent on selling papers to bother about new legs.

"A new leg, I say. Doc Harrison, what I told you 'bout, is goin' to make one fer you."

"Aw, gwan. Wot yer givin' me?" grunted the skeptical Pete, ignoring the enthusiasm of the head of the house.

"Come on, I'll show you."

"Naw, you don't. You don't get me losin' what leg I've got."

"Honest, Pete, I'm on the level. The doc says he bets he can fix you up good as new."

"Nixy fer me. I'm fer keepin' me bum prop. I reads how a doc saws off a boy's legs just for fun."

"Aw, Pete, don't be silly. The doc won't hurt you."

"Don't you believe it," Pete replied, and started down the sidewalk to get away from temptation. Tom knew Pete's stolid strength of will, and decided on another tack. He felt in his pocket and found sixteen cents. Counting out five pennies, he ran across the street, and soon had Dr. Harrison on the wire.

"Hello, this you, doc?—Pete won't come—Naw, he's afraid you'll hurt him. He's read how a doc cut off a feller's leg just fer fun.—Send up a pape? Sure, but you'll have to hide yer sign, or he won't never come in.—All right, I'll send him up. Please don't hurt him, will you, doc?—Goodby."

Tom ran back to the corner.

"Hey, Pete," he called, as soon as he was within earshot of the cripple, "a guy just told me to hustle a Star up to 345 West Alden avenue. Get on a Prince street car, and hurry up. Here's a dime fer carfare."

"There ain't no profit in that," Pete grunted, "go yerself an' save the dime."

"Do as yer told. I'm boss o' this corner," the young financier retorted, shoving Pete toward a car as fast as the cripple could hobble. "Get off at Walnut street and walk west half a block," he shouted as he helped Pete on the car platform.

For the first time in twenty-two years Dr. Harrison's sign was hidden as the cripple struggled up the steps and rang the bell.

"Here's yer pape," he said in a matter-of-fact tone, holding out the first edition, when the maid opened the door.

"Paper?" asked the girl, pretending ignorance. "Step in a moment and I'll see if it belongs here."

Pete stepped inside and took off his cap. The girl disappeared, but returned presently, and pointed to an open door down the hall. Pete hobbled in the direction pointed, and entered the doctor's outer office.

"Sit down a minute," came a pleasant voice from somewhere, and Pete crawled up into one of the large chairs. The next few minutes were about the busiest the cripple had ever known. Pictures, statuary, books, furniture—never in his short life had he seen such an array. How could he possibly remember all to tell Tom? Before the survey was half finished, however, a tall man with a kindly face stood before him and held out his hand for the paper. Pete handed him the Star and arose to go.

"Hold on a minute, how much do I owe you?"

"Two cents."

"Two cents?" the doctor shouted, so loud that Pete feared he had overcharged him. "Didn't you pay carfare to get here?"

"Yes, Tom paid that." Pete smiled with relief.

"Tom? Who's Tom?"

"He's me big brudder." This time the smile bespoke pride and thankfulness.

"Likely sort of chap?"

"Yes, sir; Tom's all right." The smile was wider than ever.

"Do you know who I am?" the doctor asked in his kindliest tone, placing his hand on the boy's shoulder.

"No."

"I am Dr. Harrison." The smile disappeared and the boy began to tremble at mention of the awful name. "Possibly you have heard of me?"

"Ye—es," Pete whispered, too scared to realize whether he was saying "yes" or "no."

"Now, Pete, take a good look at me," the doctor continued as he arose from his chair and stood in the middle of the room for the cripple's inspection. "I'm not really such an awful man, am I, Pete?"

"N—n—o—o," Pete answered, more because the surgeon's tone needed a negative reply than because he knew what he was saying.

"Pete, I like little boys," the doctor went on, ignoring the lad's terrified expression. "And I kind of think some of them like me. Do you think you could?"

"Ma—a—aybe," the youngster was doing his best to be brave.

"Tom McGuire is out at the door and wants to see you," she said.

"Send him in," the surgeon answered heartily. "Well, I never. Hello, Tom!"

"Hello, doc! Done anything to Pete's leg?"

"Why, no, we haven't mentioned legs. Have we, Pete?"

"Not yet," said Pete, with a feeling that something was still to come.

"Say, doc, look at it now, will you?" Tom exclaimed energetically and began to take off his brother's shoe.

"Hold on a minute, Tom; this isn't the place to examine legs, and besides, I never make an examination without the owner's consent."

"Tell the doc you want to have yer leg looked at," Tom commanded in a tone that bore authority.

"You keep out of this, Tom. This is Pete's leg, and he shall have the whole say about what is done to that leg."

This announcement was a revelation to Pete, who had had visions of being bound and gagged while the doctor attacked his leg with a common handsaw.

"Is that straight?" he asked, looking up dubiously into the surgeon's face.

"Absolutely!" the doctor exclaimed. "I won't touch a finger to that leg till you give me your consent."

"There, Pete, what'd I tell you," Tom broke in, but the doctor frowned at him to keep quiet. The eyes of both Tom and the surgeon were now on Pete.

"What'll it cost?" The cripple seemed about to yield but wanted one more obstacle cleared away.

"Never mind the cost, Tom and I have arranged that between us."

The look of appreciation and gratitude that the cripple brother gave Tom at that moment would have repaid any sacrifice—yes, even the whole of the corner paper privilege. Pete's eyes glistened with teardrops as he turned to the doctor.

"Go ahead, doc. Do anything you want, only don't hurt me too much. Say, ain't Tom all right?"

"You bet he is," the doctor replied, and motioned the cripple to the inner office.

* * * * * * * *

Tom was busy as he could be on Christmas eve and it was well after midnight when he crawled into his little bed, tired and lonely, for Pete had gone to the hospital three days before. He knew away down deep in his heart that it would do no good to hang up his stocking, but hope dies hard in the young and the stocking was pinned to the side of the chair.

The sun had shone for an hour or more when Tom awoke and realized that it was Christmas day. He hardly dared to glance at the stocking but summoned up courage and looked at the chair where it hung. The stocking was empty. Tom reached over and felt it to make sure and then crawled back under the bedclothes. For the first time in his life the roughness of the world had overcome him and, in spite of all the strength he could muster, the great hot tears crowded into his eyes and flowed down his cheeks. He buried his face in the pillow and cried a great big soulful cry.

"Tom! Tom!" It was his mother calling, but he only pulled the bedclothes over his head and pretended not to hear. He would not for the world let maw know that he would cry, he who was supposed to bear the burden of the family on his shoulders.

"Tom! Tom! Tom!" come the call again, "here's a letter for you."

A letter for Tom? Such an event had come into his life only twice, once when the fresh air society offered him a week in the country which he could not afford to take, and a letter from the license bureau with his newsboy badge. The dry side of the pillow served as handkerchief and towel, and, holding his head low to hide his red eyes, he ran into the next room.

"John J. Sweeney," he read on the corner of the envelope, "why, he's the alderman from this district." Fingers were all thumbs trying to get that letter open and part of it was torn before the envelope would give up its secret. The note was short and typewritten but it took Tom nearly five minutes to read it aloud. Each word seemed to have taken a new meaning to the astonished boy.

"Mr. Thomas McGuire, 148 Willow St., City.

Dear Sir:

I have the honor to inform you that the application of McGuire and Harrison for a news stand adjoining the fountain on the southwest corner of the square has been granted and possession may be taken at once. Believe me, Yours very truly,

"JOHN J. SWEENEY,
"Alderman 17th District."

"Great Jewhilikens," Tom shouted, and his mother, too, made some sort of an exclamation that was drowned in the racket of the two smaller McGuires, who felt called upon to add to the general din.

"Me and the doc's goin' to have a real news stand right where I wanted it. Don't I wish Pete was home to hear the good news! What do you think o' that, maw? A great big news stand right at the fountain where we can sell ten times more papes! Ain't that a bully Christmas present? Say, maw, the doc's a brick and don't you forget it."

"Well, hurry up and get dressed or you won't have much Christmas Day left."

Tom vaulted clair and cradle on his way back to the bedroom and slammed his tear soaked pillow into a corner of the room as an expression of his feelings toward tears.

"A real news stand. A great big stand all to ourselves. I can see just how it's goin' to look. Gee! ain't that grand!"

But greater news was on the way and before he had pulled on the empty stocking he heard a noise in the other room and peeped out. There was a big man in a fur overcoat at the door with another letter and he was not the postman either.

"Tom, here's another one for you." The summons was needless for Tom was already at his mother's side and had seized the white envelope.

"James B. Harrison, M. D.," he read. "That's about Pete. Jimminy Christmas! Say, maw, you open it. My hands is all shaky."

Mrs. McGuire could not make much better headway opening the envelope than Tom, but she managed to pull out the letter and Tom began to read laboriously.

"Mr. Thomas McGuire, 148 Willow St. Dear Tom:

Merry Christmas from Pete and the doc. Hurrah for Pete! The operation was a great success. Pete will be running around without a crutch long before next Christmas. Come around to the hospital at four o'clock. Sincerely your friend.

"JAMES B. HARRISON."

"P. S.—By the way, Tom, I don't believe I shall have time to take care of my half of that newspaper privilege at the corner, so I return herewith the agreement cancelled. Leave a paper at my house every night while Pete is in the hospital and we will call it square. J. B. H."

"Three cheers fer Pete," Tom yelled, and gave the table such a kick with his bare toe that it almost made him howl. A little thing like that was not allowed to break up the celebration so he grasped his mother's hands, and swung her around and around in a "ring around a rosy" until the poor woman hardly knew whether it was Christmas or Fourth of July.

"Ain't this a grand Christmas?" he shouted. "Ain't the doc bully? Ain't Peter the luckiest feller in the whole world?"

"Yes, yes; yes," groaned Mrs. McGuire, trying her best to regain her breath and balance. "O, it's—too—good—to be true!"

"Aw, Gwan, Wot Yer Givin' Me?" Grunted the Skeptical Pete.

"Well, it is true, fer I knew the doc wouldn't fool me. Ain't he the grandest ever?"

"Tom you'll never be ready to go to the hospital by four o'clock if you don't get dressed."

Tom rushed into the bedroom and came back with the empty stocking that had hung on the chair.

"Say maw, I'll shut my eyes, and you stick them two letters in me stocking and I'll pretend I found 'em there. Ain't this a bee-ootiful Christmas?"

WORLD'S MOST SACRED SPOT

Manger in Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem Where Christ Is Said to Have Been Born.

What may perhaps be described as the most sacred spot on earth is the grotto or manger in the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem. This small underground chamber, reached from the church above by a flight of steps, is said to be the site of the actual manger where Christ was born, and a silver star, let into the floor underneath the altar, is alleged to be the exact spot of the Nativity. Above the star hang fifteen lamps, which have continually illuminated the little chapel for several hundred years.

The altar is adorned with most elaborate embroideries, the work of royal princesses, while from the ceiling hang a number of brass lamps and a few paintings. There has, of course, been no little controversy as to whether this is the actual site of the original manger. To begin with, it is underground, and many people wonder how it could have been used by cattle and horses. Here, however, we have to remember that in the East donkeys and mules often dwell in underground stables, and the staircase would present no difficulty to the agile native cattle of Palestine. No less an authority than Colonel Conder has declared that "the rude grotto with its rocky manger may be accepted even by the most skeptical of modern explorers."

Georgie's Threat.

Little Georgie Prim had rejoined the Sunday school, as was his annual custom, just two weeks before Christmas.

"I'm glad to see you here again," said the superintendent.

"Well, believe me," said little George, "You've got to do better by me than you did last Christmas or I'll go to the Presbyterian church next time."

Friendly Advice.

"Yes," said the Fairy Prince, "you may have whatever you want for a Christmas present."

"I will choose," said the Fortunate Person, "either a wife or an automobile."

"How foolish!" exclaimed the Fairy Prince. "Why do you not select something that you can manage?

Maid and Mistletoe.

According to Archbishop Nares, the maid who was not kissed under mistletoe at Christmas would not be married in that year. The mistletoe speedily invaded the drawing room, without, however, reducing the quantity of kissing in the kitchen.

The Right Christmas Attitude

BEWARE of uttering pessimistic and cynical remarks about Christmas and Christmas joys. If only from motives of vanity, abstain from grumbling during the festive season, for nothing so surely fixes a person's age as disagreeable remarks about the utter futility and absurdity of keeping Christmas. However well preserved, however free from gray hair, wrinkles and other distressing marks of devouring Time, be quite sure that your Christmas attitude will not give you away. "Heigho for the holly! This life is most jolly!" is the correct attitude. It is the attitude of the child, and at Christmas time the immortal child which lurks in every human being wakes to life if we do not frighten it and allow it to creep back to its hiding place for want of encouragement. Grumpy, disagreeable people naturally do not like Christmas, because it shows them up.

KINDHEARTED.

"Are you going to hang up your stocking on Christmas eve?" asked the boy's uncle, patronizingly.

"I suppose so," answered the boy, still more patronizingly. "Father and mother seem to expect that sort of thing, and it would be a pity to disappoint them."

Christmas Beauty.

Think lovely thoughts in keeping with the spirit of the time.

The GIFT CIGARS by WILBUR D. NESBIT

DON'T laugh! But she gave me cigars,
Selected the things by their color—
They came out in one of those jars—
I think they were called the "Maud Muller."

I've read all these gift-cigar jokes,
I know I must read them hereafter;
Please wait for the place for the laughter.

Don't smile! But she bought them herself.
I know how she talked to the dealer—
She looked at each box on the shelf
And spoke of the wrapper as "peeler."

O, beautiful-looking were they—
I think they were called the "Maud Muller."
Of course you think now of hay
Unless, as I was, you are duller.

Don't grin! They wore gilt and red bands,
And really looked quite artistic.
She says that she now understands
Why smoking has charms that are mystic.
She says that it's cheering to see
How much as I smoke I enjoy them.
I know you are choking with glee
And think that I wished to destroy them.

Now, wait! Well, I sat down and smoked;
She placed the ash tray on the table;
I chuckled and subtly I joked—
"Maud Muller," you know, was the label.
Well, talk of your jokes on cigars!
I said you might laugh when I'd ended.
These came out in one of those jars—
And, honestly, now, they were splendid.

Couldn't Have.

"Huh! I bet you didn't have a good time at your Christmas party yesterday" taunted Billy.

"I bet I did," answered little Eddie.

"Aw, go 'way. Why ain't you sick today, if you did?"

FESTIVAL FOR THE YOUNG

Opportunity of Christmas of Bringing Happiness to Children Should Not Be Passed By.

Christmas, the celebration of the birthday of the Divine Child, is peculiarly the children's festival. And while it cannot, too, but be a time of special rejoicing among grown-ups, we realize after all, that it has no other charm to compare with the pleasure we take in some kiddy's delight over the doll or drum or picture book that our special Santa Claus has brought him.

This opportunity of making some child's Christmas one of surpassing joy, of which he will carry a gracious and ennobling memory into after life, years, it may be, after our direct influence for good or evil will have ceased forever—this opportunity of giving pleasure is one of the best that life has to offer us. And perhaps the greatest opportunity is his who in place of home times, has the wide, gray world of homeless, loveless, unhappy childhood from which to choose the most needy recipient of his Christmas giving. The chances of giving happiness in this way are so many, the means so simple, and the deed itself so worthy, that no one of us should let the season pass unimproved.

For it is good to be children sometimes, and never better than at Christmas, when its mighty Founder was a child himself.
—Charles Dickens

WISE AND JUST.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise;
He said all plants were mistletoe
To his discerning eyes.

Whene'er beneath a spray of green,
From holly down to fir,
He found a maiden young and fair,
He then and there kissed her.

And when the maids objected, he
Did penance there and then;
He counted up each kiss he took,
And gave it back again.

Satisfied.

He was a poor man but a contented one. Santa Claus came to him and said:

"What do you want, my friend?"

"Nothing," he replied, with becoming modesty, which he hoped would be rewarded.

And Santa Claus was so pleased that he gave it to him and passed on.

Papa's Suggestion.

Miss Fosdick (who is self-willed)—I wish I knew what to give dear Charles for a Christmas gift.

Fosdick, pere (who hates "dear Charles")—Give him a wide berth.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Should Farmers' Institute Teachings and "Book Farming" be Esteemed by the Average Garrett County Farmer?

To the Editor of The Republican:

We have just passed through a season of county farmers' institutes and without being an attendant at more than one place of meeting the writer is doubtless safe in hazarding a guess that not one institute in Garrett county was as well attended as it should have been. The writer of this criticized the management within the year for not conducting the institutes as systematically as should have been done; but now, commendation is in order, because the institutes were held at a time when farm work is never as a rule pressing; at a time, too, when ideas received from the instructors, or ideas developed because of some suggestion made by some speaker, are timely in this that they may be used in all of next year's farming operations to which they may apply; and last but not least, the speakers were practical farmers and Dr. Hill's assistants were familiar with conditions similar to our own. The Atlantic coast plain farmer's conditions and problems are entirely different to ours and to foist upon Western Maryland, Chesapeake Bay or Southern Maryland speakers exclusively is a mistake and an injustice. An intelligent and observant hearer of Mr. Roudebush of Ohio could readily detect a sameness of farm problems present in operations as told by the speaker to our own. Furthermore the speakers were practical and none of them state paid clowns. But again criticism is in order and they who have voluntarily offered themselves as targets are the cynical, scoffing suspicious class of farmers ably (?) aided and abetted by the typical star loafer who helps make up the quorum of the forum—those modern Solomons who with dispatch discuss and dispose of the stati and destinies of men and things and nations. The statement has been made and repeated again and again, here and elsewhere, that institute speakers farm with public money; are paid by the state etc., etc. Suppose those statements were all true: it certain operations as to kind and method demonstrated prove more economical—bring more clear, net profit than others, dollar for dollar expended what difference does it make as to the value of conclusion, whether individual or public money is used in bringing about such demonstration or test? In other words for example if by state—fund tests it is proven that Garrett county seed potatoes are superior to Maine grown potatoes is the conclusion not just as valuable as it tested by private expenditures? The institute corps employed by Dr. Hill were not connected with the Maryland experimental station and it Mr. Roudebush is connected with the Ohio station and farms with Ohio's money do the institutes detractors object on that score? They usually don't when they can get something for nothing. Those critics argue that farmers cannot afford to feed their animals in the manner indicated by writers of the agricultural press and by lecturers.

The same class condemned the silo roundly and postively in the past—said it would only be a few years until the "silo fad" would have run its course and one would hear the word silo used to refer to abandoned structures only. But what are the facts? Writing from a local stand point more particularly, Grantsville district has at least fifty four silos—and had none in the spring of 1899 and perhaps a year later, am not positive as to the exact year. And by whom were the silos introduced? By those who read up on scientific farming those who had confidence in the things advocated by the agricultural papers. Would our Grantsville farmers who study their Almanacks more closely than the farm press—such as the Rural New Yorker, National Stockman and Farmer and like papers from their own experimenting and research and profound (?) reasoning ever have discovered how to build silos and how to make sileage? Not likely. Why it took some of them ten years to discover the silos' merits after they had seen it in practical, successful operation right in their community and some of them are in doubt yet. How was the pneumatics or blowing ensilage cutter introduced here? An owner of one of the first silos here organized a company which purchased an ensilage cutter with a blow elevator upon the advice of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station and the Rural New Yorker independently given at about the same time. The scoffers laughed, even some of the silo men and when the new fangled fodder cutter which blew the green, finely cut corn mass up to an elevation of over thirty feet through a tube choked a few times they laughed in exultation but now every ensilage cutter within reach is of the pneumatic or blow pipe type. Only one of other elevator type ever entered the districts' bounds for ensilage cutting and it has been relegated to "innocuous deseutude" as a "had been" many seasons back. When the writer had a case of much dreaded bovine tuberculosis among his few Jersey cows and a friend just across the Pennsylvania border about the same time also had several cases some sympathizing friends, whose intentions were far better than their judgments, suggested that the trouble was probably due to feeding of ensilage; and our cows to the best of our knowledge had never eaten an ounce of ensilage. For the good of the cause it was fortunate that the three farms having infected herds had not yet erected silos, for had they had silos the wiseacres could not have been convinced for many years that the silos were not responsible for tuberculosis: As it was they made only preliminary prosecuting addresses and then quashed the indictments. As to feeding, the most successful dairyman we have feed most nearly a scientifically compounded ration, yes they expend more per cow for feed than the average Garrett county farmer, but they also make twice as much butter per cow approximately. Does that go down hard? Swallow it friend, for we can put up the push to put it down, don't hold it in your mouth a while before swallowing—unless you like the taste of it. No, their cows don't do wonders or even produce liberally on nothing they feed well. And the quicker our average farmers sense a relationship between cause and effect and learn that effect will be in ratio to cause, the better it will be. Why even a lot of agricultural journal antagonists are "book farmers" but their book is the almanac and the governing laws they respect and follow are the mystic ones of the Zodiac—the signs of the moon and some of them willingly remain in ignorance of the known laws and principles, elements and factors of season, soil, sunlight, air and moisture which an all wise and beneficent God has placed at our disposal as tillers of the soil.

RURAL RAMBLER.

Dec. 2nd, 1914.

Christmas.

To The Republican.

Rather a suppressed Christmas spirit pervades the land this season, drawing all people together, as never before on common ground, with conflicting sentiments and personal aspirations merged in the softening memory of peace and good will toward men.

Surely an annual cleansing of human grossness and a more devoted bending under the drippings of the altar of our faith must be well. Such an observance is not only time seasoned but mellowed by memories precious at every hearthstone, and if we look back over the generations in search of its beginning it is lost in the fadings of the ages. Beyond that beginning a child was born of which prophets had been teaching more than three thousand years. The march of Old Testament events had been long before the dawn of this new day. Abraham had gone out knowing not where he went; Moses had descended from the smoking mountain bearing the table of a divine law not only for the Hebrew race but now coloring the civil statute of most every enlightened government of the world, Jerusalem had been built and reduced to ruins; the glory of the Jewish nation had departed from it and her population taken as slaves into a distant and strange land to be liberated after a bondage of seventy years. These were among the ancient happenings. In the fulness of time wise men from the East followed a star until it rested from its journey over the plains of Galilee. Under the shining of that star angels sang and proclaimed the birth of a Saviour to His people. This is the birth to which our eyes are turned back across the billows of nearly two thousand year. In no year in all the succeeding generations down to this year of 1914, have a worshipping people approached this natal day under conditions so alarming and anxieties so far extending as now. Mankind is appalled while the mailed hand of war is drawing a red girdle around the globe and the mutterings of the greatest and bloodiest strife in which armies have ever clashed threaten the stability of civilization. No eye can read the lesson and no wisdom can predict the end. While the waves of this sea of carnage are not breaking on American shores, never at a Christmas commemoration has the public conscience been so powerfully reached and so much pity enlisted as at the coming of this Christmas. A bond of strong fellowship has been woven and a holy charity deepened by the most direful calamity that has ever afflicted the world. Some of the tallest spires and strongest towers that have risen in the religious kingdom since that mysterious birth have been disturbed, from summit to base, by this mighty conflict. But the central column the child of Bethlehem lived to found has survived the shock of every storm that has razed about it and that Christianity delivered to the saints has grown and spread through nineteen centuries and may not only live and flourish to the end of time but be found in the void brooding over the atoms of the worlds wreck when time itself shall be no more.

Solly Kimmell has abandoned his thrice weekly trips to Hubbard, and is on the home run.

Farmers are making use of the sledding hauling coal. Sharpless coal seems to be the most in demand.

Owing to impassible roads last week, mail was delayed.

Three-Day Holiday Christmas Treat.

Governor Goldsborough has declared next Saturday a legal holiday, thus providing for three days of rest and recreation in many lines of activity.

The three-day festival will make possible many visits that are not easily made when only one day is allowed. It will make possible family gatherings at the old home on one day and at the home of the younger folks on another day.

Whether stores will be closed on Saturday will depend entirely upon the decision of the proprietors, as the Governor's proclamation does not restrict ordinary commerce but only banking. That many stores will keep open is certain because of the heavy volume of "exchange" business that results from giving the wrong things and the right things of the wrong size or color.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

GRANTSVILLE, MD.

GORTNER

The school at this place closed last Friday evening for the Christmas vacation with a p priate exer e. Several visitors were present and the recitations by the little tots especially were greatly enjoyed. This closes one and a-half terms of our school year, and we are sure it has been a most profitable, as well as pleasant period for both teacher and pupils. The first term closed with three scholars not being absent a day, who were Fannie Yoder, Sadie Swartzentruber and Josephine Sanders. We extend our "best wishes" for a happy vacation to Miss Savage and each of her pupils, and as they resume their duties at the beginning of the New Year may they each one resolve to make this the most profitable school year of their lives.

Miss Della Savage left for Fairmont, W. Va., Saturday, where she expects to spend her holiday vacation with relatives.

Lee Gortner a former Garrett county boy, was visiting relatives at Gortner recently. He has been located in Shabbona, Ill., for the past few years and while enroute home he visited his sister, Mrs. Arch Davis, at Borden Shaft, Md.

A number of young people attended the debate at Sunnyside Friday night. The question for debate was: "Resolved:, That the early Colonists were more Thankful than the present day Americans." The discussion was in favor of the affirmative. The next debate is scheduled for January 22nd, 1915.

J. W. Baker spent several days recently in Piedmont, W. Va.

Mrs. J. M. Conneway and Miss Helen Feather and Messrs. Lee and Grover Gortner spent Sunday at P. P. Gortner's.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Wotring and three little sons of Liverpool, Ohio, arrived Monday to spend Christmas with Mrs. Wotring's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schlossnagle.

On last Sunday morning the remains of Fred James were laid to rest in the cemetery at the Union church at Gortner. He was aged 20 years and 9 months. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Arnold. The text for the occasion were the words found in the Gospel of St. John, 19th chapter and latter clause of the 30th verse. A very sad feature connected with the young man's death, was that not a relative was present as he breathed his last, nor as he was borne to his last resting place. He had made his home with Mr. H. U. Miller for several years. Previous to this he had been in an orphans institution. For several years he had suffered with the dreadful disease, consumption. Typhoid pneumonia developed, causing his death. The pall bearers were Carl and Owen Martin, Daniel and Jacob Petersheim, Edgar Kelley and Roy Lee.

Services next Sunday 10: a. m., and 7 p. m. Also Sunday school 9:30 a. m.

Wishing ye, Editor and every reader of The Republican a "Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year."

BITTINGER.

May The Republican, all its office and press room force, and all its many readers have an abundance of cheer and merriment, and after, the happiness of entering upon a prosperous New Year.

Rev. E. E. Oney, of Gettysburg Pa., is spending the holiday vacation with his innumerable friends here, and will conduct several services in each of the churches on the Bittinger charge.

McKinley Harman, son of John B. Harman, was seriously injured one day last week by being kicked by a colt which he was leading to water. The young man was attended by Dr. Snyder, of Accident, and is now resting comfortably.

Miss Mary Beitzell, who has been very sick for some weeks, is reported to be rapidly recovering.

The teachers of our village school have returned to their homes for the Christmas season.

Mrs. Clark Brenneman returned to her home here last Saturday after a few days visit with her mother, Mrs. David Miller, near Deer Park.

SHORT RUN

"Good by summer, so long fall, hello winter time," is the song every one has been singing for the past week. Winter is here and it seems that every one welcomes it, especially the girls and boys. A jolly old time sleigh ride is the goal which they are looking forward to.

The farmers have been taking advantage of the snow, getting in the winter supply of coal and hauling lime.

Quite a bit of butchering was done in this neighborhood last week, so buck-wheat cakes and sansage is the chief diet but you can "take it from mother" that the menu will be entirely new for Christmas day.

Rev. J. W. Bedford, of Parsons, W. Va., preached a delightful sermon in the M. E. church here Sunday. This place was one of Rev. Bedford's appointments, while he was on the Deer Park charge thirty years ago, so the older residents were glad to have him here once more.

Miss Lois Harvey who has been visiting friends in Iowa since September, has been employed at Oskaloosa and will remain in Iowa for some time. Miss Lois is greatly missed from our neighborhood, but yet we wish her much success in her new position, and hope she may have a pleasant time during her stay in the west.

Cyrus is in hopes that Santa Claus will bring him a "Jersey Pullover" for Christmas.

Bob hasn't had much success trapping this winter, so Nell is not expecting such an expensive present this Christmas.

Mr. White and his saw mill crew are again with us, and are ever ready to hustle "when ever the weather permits."

Mr. Jonas Harvey of Armstead was visiting friends here last week.

Mr. Alex Wilson is moving his wife and other belongings to his farm near Deer Park this week.

Mr. Jasper Myers who is playing the role of School Master at Eagle Rock spends an occasional Saturday night or Sunday at the home of Mr. J. H. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Harvey and family, Miss Cassie and Milo Wilson spent Sunday visiting relatives near Elk Garden, W. Va.

Wishing the Republican and its readers a Merry Christmas.

Portable School House.

The first portable school house to be used in Allegany county will be placed in service at Locust Grove, near Narrows Park when the schools re-open following the Christmas vacation. Miss Ora Murrie will be in charge. The building is frame, 21 by 36 feet, with an office, cloakroom and classroom It is erected in sections and may easily be taken apart. This style of building is extensively used in the north and west. This is a new idea in school buildings, and a good one.

Selbysport Citizen Will Be Guest of County Until Court.

William Morgan, a young married man of Selbysport, was brought to Oakland and placed in jail on Monday by Constable George J. VanSickle, of District No. 2, Justice W. H. H. Friend, of Friendsville, comitting Morgan upon information of the latter's wife, who swore out a warrant before the Magistrate charging Morgan with having beaten and otherwise ill treated her.

Morgan was unable to fill a bond for his appearance at the June Term of Court and as a result he will remain in charge of Sheriff Scott until court convenes at that time.

Married.

KAHL—MALETTE—At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Malette, Pittsburgh, Pa., yesterday, Miss Eleanore Ruth Malette and Mr. Albert William Kahl, of Oakland. Announcements of the wedding, received in Oakland this morning, came as a great surprise to the friends of the young couple. They will reside in Oakland and will be at home to their friends after January 20th.

Messrs. F. O. and Grant Glotfelty, the former of Oakland and the latter of McHenry, left here yesterday morning for Bond, Kentucky, where the former has entered into a contract with the Bond-Foley Lumber Company to do the logging on the tract of land owned by the Bond people. Mr. Glotfelty's contract with the new concern will begin as soon as he can get his teams and equipment upon the ground, now engaged on a contract with Messrs. Dimeling & Bloom at Bond, this county.

BANK STATEMENTS

Sixth Call For 1914 Made By Comptroller of the Currency.

The Comptroller of the Currency and the State Banking Commission of Maryland have issued a call for statements from the National and State banks of the country, as of December 31st last. This totals six calls for the year 1914, which is somewhat extraordinary, as but five calls are authorized under the law. The last call before the present one was dated October 31st, last, when banks in all parts of the country made their statements as required by law.

All the banks of the county have made good showings during the past year, notwithstanding the slump in business, and it is expected that all of them will make good showings at this time, even though it comes after the holidays.

Basketball Notes.

Pittsburgh Silent Five, considered the strongest deaf mute basketball club in Western Pennsylvania are planing a week end trip through West Virginia, Maryland and Western Pennsylvania and would like to book games with first class teams offering suitable guarantees. This is for the week of Jan. 11th. Write Jas C. McDowell, Manager, 9 Earl St., Wilkinsburg Station, Pittsburgh, Penna.

Mr. Michael Boyle, of Oakland, is one of the players of the above club. The Oakland team has under consideration a game for January 13nd with the mutes.

The Board of County Commissioners, in session this week, transacting routine business, and appointing road supervisors, will probably adjourn tomorrow afternoon or on Saturday morning. Under the recent stamp act each bond of road supervisors filed in the Commissioners office must bear a 50 cent revenue stamp. As about three hundred supervisors will be appointed all of whom will be required to file a bond, the approximate cost to the county for stamps alone will be $150.

DISSOLVED THE DISTRICT

Huntington Section of M. E. Conference Parceled Out Among Other Districts.

At a meeting with the superintendents of the various districts composing the West Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church held last Thursday, Earl Cranston, of Washington, dissolved the Huntington district and the conference will hereafter be composed of seven districts instead of eight. The Rev. Dr. Geo. W. Bent, superintendent of the Huntington district, died recentle. The Buckhannon district which embraces Clarksburg and its suburbs was enlarged by the addition of the charges of Salem and Bristol, the charge at Clay Court House and the adjoining charge towards Charleston. The Wheeling district was extended further down the Ohio river so as to include the charges at Sisterville and Middlebourne, heretofore in the Parkersburg district. The Parkersburg district was extended to include Point Pleasant and about a dozen charges from the Charleston district. The greater part of the Huntington district was absorbed by the Charleston district. The Oakland district, over which Dr. W. D. Reed presides as district superintendent, was enlarged by the addition of Elkins and its environs.

Dr. Ward, of Oakland, was spoken of as the successor of Dr. Bent as superintendent of the Huntington district and would have been selected had the district remained intact.

Marriage Licenses Issued.

Since January first Clerk E. Z. Tower has issued thirteen marriage licenses, ten of them being to couples residing in West Virginia of which one to public school teachers; three to farmers, and the rest to men engaged in other pursuits. Of the number issued the following are published as being of local interest:

Leslie Forest Hardesty, of Charleroi, Pa., and Cora Stocket, of near Crellin.

Duffy Herbert Stumy, of Copen, W. Va., and Fay Collins, of Oakland.

Merrill Claude Raikes, of Philippi, W. Va., and Jessie Gibson, of Buckhannon, W. Va., the latter a student in the West Virginia Wesleyan at that place.

My Auto, Tis Of Thee.

One of our farmer friends has handed us the following clipping from the Yoreshire Swine Monthly, which he commends to all down-and-out automobile owners, to be sung to the tune of "American."

My auto, 'tis of thee, short cut to poverty—of thee I chant. I blew a pile of dough on you a year ago, and now you quite refuse to go, or won't or can't. Through town and countryside, you were my joy and pride; a happy day. I loved thy gaudy hue, thy nice white tires so new, but now you're down and out for true, in every way. To thee, old rattle box, came many bumps and knocks; for thee I greive. Badly thy top is torn, frayed are thy seats and worn; the whooping cough affects thy horn I do believe, Thy perfume swells the breeze while good folks choke and wheeze, as we pass by, I paid for thee a price 'twould buy a mansion twice, now everybody's yelling "ice"—I wonder why? Thy motor has the grippe, thy spark plug has the pip and woe is thine. I too, have suffered chills, ague and kindred ills, endeavoring to pay my bills since thou wert mine. Gone is my bank roll now. No more 'twould choke the cow, as once before. Yet if I had the mon, so help John—amen, I'd buy myself a car again and speed some more.

A Pleasant Evening for the Young Folks.

Last Friday evening Misses Anna and Nell McComas entertained about sixty of their young friends at the home of their prrents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. McComas on Second street. The house was decorated throughout in evergreen, holly and cut flowers. A table extending the entire length of the dining room was heavily ladened with fruits, cake, ice cream and other seasonable delicacies, furnished by a Baltimore caterer, and around this the entire assemblage of more than half a hundred gathared and partook of the delicious refreshments furnished by the young hostesses. Later a few older people gathered about the same board as guests of the Doctor and his excellent wife. Music was furnished throughout the evening by the Oakland orchestra.

Rabbit Season Closed.

State's Attorney J. C. Renninger has requested The Republican to state that the season for shooting or trapping rabbits closed on December 24th last and warns all to obey the law strictly.

CONRAD SPEICHER.

Mr. Conrad Speicher, aged 47 years, of near the Cove, died on last Friday after an illness of several weeks. About ten days prior to his death Mr. Speicher's house burned to the ground, the fire consuming much of his household effects, but the sick man was carried out of the building to the home of a neighbor where he remained until Thursday afternoon when he was removed to another farm owned by him on Keyser's Ridge. He stood the trip exceedingly well and stated to members of his family that he was feeling splendidly. Later in the evening he became worse and died. He is survived by his wife and a number of children. He was a splendid citizen and a most progressive farmer. His funeral took place on Sunday and was largely attended by neighbors and friends.

Mr. John J. Miller, a printer of Cumberland, aged more than 75 years, who was a contemporary with Capt. James A. Hayden shortly after the war, died at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, on Monday of this week. He is survived by his wife and several grown daughters. Mrs. Miller is owner of the Chautauqua Hotel at the Park, where she spent last summer in its management. Mr. Miller's funeral took place yesterday, with interment at Marietta, Ohio.

MRS. WILLIS ECHARD.

Mrs. Willis Echard, aged 54 years, died at her home on the Weber farm, east of Oakland, yesterday at noon, as a result of a number of recent strokes of paralysis, the last one occurring on Sunday. Mrs. Echard was before her marriage Miss Edgar, born near Thayerville where she resided until some years ago when she with her husband and family removed to Oakland. Besides being survived by her husband she is also survived by one son, Mr. Calvin Echard, of Oakland, and several daughters. Her funeral will occur at Thayerville on Friday. She was a member of the Baptist church at that point and the interment will be made in the Thayerville cemetery.

A Christmas Dinner 50 Years Ago in War Times.

Falls City (Neb.) Journal.

Dr. J. C. Yutzy of this city, during the Civil war, was a member of Company C. 54th Pennsylvania Infantry, enlisting from Somerset county, Pa., and with his company was taken prisoner at New Market, Va., May 15th, 1864. First he was confined in Libby prison in Richmond, Va., then transferred to Belle Isle, Va., and from there to that hell on earth, Salisbury, N. C., where so large part of the Union prisoners were starved to death. Yutzy was not in very robust health when he was exchanged or released from Salisbury prison February 22, 1865. The bill of fare was not extensive as will be seen by reading his statement following, which gives the Xmas dinner which is usually a little richer even in prison than the common daily fare:

"Falls City, Dec. 25th, 1914."

"Just 50 years ago I was in Salisbury, (N. C.) prison. My chum and I foraged, begged and confiscated sufficient material for an elegant Christmas feast. We had several turnip peelings, some potato peelings with a few rotten potatoes, a discarded beef bone, no meat. The bone was broken to pieces, all the grease boiled out, then the "peelings" named above all placed in our tin cups and boiled to a nicety. For thickening we crumbed our ration of corn bread into the soup. Now, there was a Christmas dinner fit for a king. Not since nor before have I relished a dinner like this of Christmas 1864."

"J. C. YUTZY."

TELEPHONE COMPANY'S ANNUAL MEETING

Was Held In Oakland on Monday and Was Interesting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Garrett County Telephone Company was held in rooms in the Ravenscroft building in Oakland last Monday afternoon. Nearly all the stockholders were represented either in person or by proxy.

President W. A. Smith called the meeting to order and after transacting business properly claiming the attention of the stockholders, a board of directors consisting of Messrs. W. A. Smith, Otho Fike, Clarence V. Guard, A. D. Naylor, J. M. Durst and Joseph H. McRobie, were elected, being placed in nomination by Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill. The election of the directors' board, which is composed of the same body which constituted that board for some years past, closed the stockholders' meeting and the directors organized by the election of the following:

President, W. A. Smith, who is also the general manager; secretary, Paul B Naylor; treasurer, J. Arthur DeWitt.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and adopted. By the report of the secretary it is shown that there is outstanding for rents, etc., nearly $4500, with a balance in the treasury of nearly $200. A detailed statement of the finances of the company is now being prepared and will be published in these columns later.

A Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I want, through the colums of your paper, to thank everyone who assisted me in securing the Daniel Webster automobile recently awarded me by Messrs. D. E. Offutt & Sons. The machine is a splendid one and well worth the effort put forth by me. Again thanking my many friends, I am,

Very truly yours,

DR. RAVENSCROFT'S SUCCESSOR

Has Been Named By President Wilson and He Will Probably be Confirmed

President Wilson broke the long-drawn-out Maryland patronage deadlock yesterday afternoon by sending to the Senate nominations for all the Federal offices in Maryland now occupied by Republicans, with the exception of the subtreasurer. Senators John Walter Smith and Blair Lee are both given recognition in the appointments, and associates of the two men say they will make no move to delay confirmation of any of the names.

The nominations, which were forecasted, are:

Survevor of the Port—Guy Steele, of Carroll county.

Appraiser of Merchandise—Walter B. Warner, of Baltimore.

District Attorney—Samuel K. Dennis, of Baltimore.

United States Marshal—William W. Stockham, of Baltimore.

By this appointment Senator Smith is given the collectorship, the district attorneyship and one of the appraiserships, and Senator Lee is given the marshalship, the surveyorship and other appraisership. Congressman Talbott is also given recognition through Messrs. Warner and Steele, as he backed both men jointly with Senator Lee. It is generally understood that Lee will be given additional recognition later in the year through the appointment of Robert G. Hilton, of Montgomery county, as sub-treasurer, when the term of the incumbent, C. C. Pusey, expires.

School Bells Call Pupils to School.

School bells on Monday called thousands of children back to school in the public school of Garrett county, following the close of the holiday vacation. With the re-opening of the schools teachers and pupils are better prepared to grasp the problems confronting them as a result of their two weeks' enforced vacation.

CHURCH IS KEY TO STEINBACH

With Its Capture French Are Able to Dislodge Germans

TEUTONS RETIRE IN ALSACE

Hand-to-Hand Fighting Results In Heavy Loss of Life—Routed Austrians Are Being Harrassed by Enemy In Eastern Galicia—Germans Keep Battle Warm In Central Poland.

Paris, Jan. 5.—According to the latest communique Steinbach is now in possession of French soldiers and the German defensive positions west of Cernay are in the hands of the French.

In capturing Steinbach the French drove the enemy in confusion from the town.

It was the capture of the church in Steinbach that finally gave the victory to the French. This crucial position had been taken from the Germans only to have it lost again.

Realizing that it must be captured and held strongly, if the general movement was to succeed, a strong force of General Pau's infantry men executed a brilliant charge through the darkness. At daybreak the last German had been driven back and a few hours later the remaining houses were in possession of the French.

Every foot of ground was so bitterly contested that the losses were extraordinarily severe. A separate battle raged about each house and for several hours the advantage rested first with one side and then with the other.

A mile to the east of Steinbach lies Cernay, where the Germans have concentrated especially strong defensive works. The French had managed to capture this German position, but they could not hold their position and in a short time the enemy's forces were again in their trenches. It was not until the overwhelming rush that gave Steinbach to the French and also rolled on toward Cernay that the French town came again and finally into the hands of the attacking force.

Hard Fighting In Central Poland.

London, Jan. 5.—The intensity of the struggle in central Poland has not relaxed in the slightest, according to an official statement issued by the Russian general staff.

The Germans are continuing their offensive operations along the Bzura-Ravka front and at one point were prevented from crossing the Bzura and getting strong positions on the Warsaw side of the river by the vigilance of the Russians.

Against the Austrians the Russian successes go on unabated. In Bukowina the defeated and routed armies of Austria-Hungary are being closely pursued and the Russians are taking a large number of prisoners. At the Uzek pass the Austrians who had come through the Galician plains in a great drive after their removal from Servia have been so badly beaten that there seems little likelihood of their being able to make further resistance of importance.

The Russian statement tells of some of the most bitter fighting of the war in the east, notably at Borjimow, northeast of Bolimow which is on the left bank of the Ravka just east of Lowicz. A German infantry attack there was repulsed by a concentration of artillery and infantry action and by a counter attack with the bayonet.

The feat of the Germans in getting across the Bzura was a daring one. They expected to get over unobserved, but the Russians, warned by their air scouts and Cossacks advance guards, were waiting for them and attacked with the bayonet. A desperate hand-to-hand struggle ensued and several hundred Germans were killed with the bayonet the remainder surrendering.

Pestilence Reported In Lemberg.

Lemberg, Galicia (Via Petrograd and London), Jan. 5.—It is reported here that pestilence is spreading in the city and among the garrison of Przemysl, which is now almost without provisions.

Ineffectual sorties still continue from Przemysl, but they are less vigorously pushed. This is due, it is thought, to the garrison's knowledge of the failure of the Austrian relief forces to break through the Russian lines.

Drys Whitewash Wets.

Columbus, O., Jan. 5.—Bloomington, the home of Wooster college professors, voted dry 28 to 0. Pemberville, Wood county, voted wet by 8 in 280 votes cast. Cambridge voted dry by 684 majority. Girard, Trumbull county, voted wet and Bell Valley, Noble county, voted dry.

Drinking of Bay Rum Fatal to Two.

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 5.—Charles McKee, aged thirty-three, and Hugh Beck, forty-five, died at Perryopolis as a result of drinking bay rum. Each man, it is said, drank a half pint of the liquid.

KAISER AGAIN ILL

Exposure In Flanders Causes Relapse, Says Dutch Paper Dispatch.

Amsterdam, Jan. 5.—A Maestricht dispatch reports that Emperor William has suffered a relapse as a result of exposure in a visit to a point on the Flanders battle front.

The message declares that he is being rushed back to Berlin on the imperial train.

It states that all military trains were sidetracked to give the emperor's special the right of way and that all traffic between Liege and Aix-La-Chapelle was held up for ten hours.

Just how serious the kaiser's condition is was not mentioned in the dispatch, but the fact that such speed was made in conveying the German ruler back to Berlin indicates that Emperor William's condition is critical.

The kaiser has been in poor health for some time and has been under the care of physicians for many months.

BRITISH REPLY IN FEW DAYS

Answer to Note of Protest This Week Likely.

London, Jan. 5.—The British government's reply to the American note concerning contraband probably will be sent before the end of this week. An outline of the reply has been submitted to France, which is greatly interested because of the activity of French ships in searching Mediterranean cargoes.

A statement probably will be issued shortly, showing that Italy has arrived at an understanding with England and the other allies concerning contraband, satisfactory to all the countries affected.

Developments Progressing.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Developments in the negotiations to stop British interruptions of American copper shipments have reached a point, it was understood here, where Great Britain will not interfere with shipments to well known Italian firms if they are made in ships of those countries.

WANT MEN PROSECUTED

Buffalo Aldermen Ask United States to Take Up Slaying by Canadians.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The board of aldermen unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the United States government to take action to secure the punishment of those responsible for the shooting of Waiter Smith and Charles Dorsch by Canadian soldiers on the Niagara river at Fort Erie. Smith was instantly killed and Dorsch was seriously wounded.

The resolution also asks that the government "secure such justice to the families of the dead and wounded as may be just and proper."

"The submarine was pursued by British destroyers, but escaped undamaged."

GRANTSVLLE.

A very exciting basketball game between the Meyersdale and Grantsville Rangers took place in the hall on Tuesday night with the score in favor of our boys.

The high school and Rubes played Saturday night with a score of 11-5 in favor of the school girls. This team will probably play Friendsville in the near future.

The annual election of officers and teachers on Sunday last at the Lutheran Sunday school resulted ss follwing: Dr. J. A. Carney, superintendent; H. P. Miller, assistant superintendent; Mrs. J. A. Carney and Emons Younkin, organists; Mrs. Albert Swauger and Emons Younkin, secretary and assistant. John Zehner, treasurer. Teachers—Dr. Carney and Joel H. Miller for Bible Class; Mrs. Irene Hayes, boys' intermediate· Mrs. Chas. Getty, girls' intermediate; Mrs. John Zehner, boys' primary; Miss Minnie Bonig, girls' primary. The Cradle Roll department has an enrollment of seventeen babies under three years and is growing right along. The latest addition being Alvin Martin Yommer and Donald C. Schaefer.

Christmas was celebrated at St. Mary's Catholic church by early high mass, the mass being rendered very pleasing by the members of the choir. D. W. Dorsey assisted in the "Adeste Fidelis" with violin accompaniment, Mrs. Bowen being the organist. A very delightful soprano solo, "Holy Night," was rendered by Miss May Bloucher. Rev. Father Aloyslis conducted the services. Decorations were in evergreen.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bonig entertained a number of their friends on Sunday at a big turkey dinner with all the good things that usually accompany the Christmas bird. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. John Zehner and family, Mrs. Sophia Bonig and daughter Miss Minnie, Mrs. Irene Hayes and son Emerson, Mrs. C. B. Getty and daughter Margaret and Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Carney.

Master Harry Bender met with an accident, while sled-riding, that resulted in a broken leg just above the knee. The little boy is doing nicely and the broken limb is mending, although Master Harry was deprived of participating in any Christmas activities.

Brevity.

Brevity may be or may not be the "soul of wit," but there is no question in regard to brevity being the soul of conversations nowadays. The aim of the up-to-the-second conversationalist is to cut all corners and get there in the shortest possible time.

In days of yore a man was polite under all circumstances, no matter how much time is consumed. Then he would say, "My dear sir, I desire that you understand thoroughly that I comprehend fully and in all detail the information you are endeavoring to impart to me."

Now he says, "Gotcha!"

Titlow Starts Poor Man's Hotel.

George F. Titiow, the well-known hotel man of Uniontown, has shown his genuine big-heartedness by converting his garage into a poor man's hotel. He will supply the place with light and heat and any persons who are unable to pay for a meal will be fed free. Others are expected to pay, the purpose being to break up the practice of begging from house to house. The institution will be run for profit, Mr. Titlow says, and if any profit is earned it will be donated to a relief society.

TRAPPING BEARS AT WILDELL, W. VA

Town Built By Former Garrett Countians Have Bears A Plenty.

That bear trapping is not a "lost art" in West Virginia, and that bruin still finds a home in the fastnesses of the West Virginia mountains, is the testimony of C. M. Rightmire, of Wildell, a village owing its existence to the lumber industry on the Greenbrier river. In a recent letter to his uncle, Mr. A. Rightmire, Morgantown, W. Va., the successful trapper says:

"I am in receipt of your letter, concerning the newspaper clipping giving an account of my first bear which I caught on October 10. On November 2, I caught another bear, weighing about the same as the first one. The fur on both animals was in good condition. Old trappers of this section say that the bears I caught were the largest brought to Wildell since it has been a town.

"I have been trapping here since the first day of the year, and these were the first bears I caught. You can be sure that I was greatly pleased. September I got two front claws—or rather toes—which was the nearest I had come to a bear until my haul in October.

"I have made several trips to my traps, going early in the mornings before breakfast, more for the exercise than for the profit in trapping, as my work is rather confizing and it does me good to get out at 5 o'clock in the morning for a hike through the mountains. My traps are located about three and one-half miles from my home at Wildell and the walk is through some very rough, steep country. If you doubt it, come up and spend a week with us, and I will make your trip very interesting while you are in the mountains.

"I am having a rug made from the pelt of one of the bears, and an umbrella holder of the other."

Mr. Rightmire is the postmaster at Wildell, and is also in charge of the company store, which handles about $5,0000 worth of merchandise annually.

State Grange Holds Its Annual Meeting

Maryland Farmers and Farm Women Will Meet in Baltimore To Consider Rural Problems.

With the coming of the Maryland State Grange to Baltimore on the 15th and 16th of December, we find many interested to know what this organization stands for and what it has accomplished.

The Grange is the organization of the whole country community, vitally interested in the betterment of the home as well as the improvement of the farm, open to men and women alike and ready to include in its membership the boys and girls who are fast growing into the active life of their neighborhood. The Grange is the educator of the farmer in better farming methods, in better business practice, and in better country life. The first object of the Grange is to train the farmer to help himself and find himself.

The social side of the Grange is the side that really touches the farmer first and brings his family into closer touch with the other people of the neighborhood. Too often the country neighborhood is broken up into social sets or circles or again there is little or no social life at all. "Things are dead," the young folks will tell you, "nothing doing around these parts!" The Grange changes this. The Grange is broad enough to take into it every interest in country life and every one interested in it. It brings people together who have had hardly a bowing acquaintance. It makes them feel free to speak their thoughts out in "open meeting" without fearing too much what this or that neighbor will say. It brings home to them the fact that they are all members of a common neighborhood and engaged in the common and united effort of making it a more desirable place in which to live. If the Grange accomplished nothing else but the making of better neighbors and better neighborhood spirit, it would be still well worth while. Copies of the program for the State Grange meeting will be gladly mailed to any one writing to the State Lecturer, College Park, Md.

SELECTING PROFITABLE LAYERS FROM THE FARM FLOCK.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

At this season of the year the question of how to pick out the laying hen often comes up. Many have recommended the use of trap nests. This may sound very well to persons who have had no actual experience with them, but any one who has looked after trap nests knows that it is no simple matter. Attention has to be given at intervals every day if a complete record is to be had. They have to be looked after Sundays and holidays as well as other days, fourth of July and Christmas included. Of course, trap nests have their place, but it isn't in the hen house of the average farmer or poultryman. How then is the poultry keeper going to pick out the business hen? It is quite a simple matter. The hardest problem perhaps is how to get hold of the birds. If one doesn't mind spending an evening now and then with the chickens they can be easily handled after dark. If the work must be done during the day a sort of darkened corner can be fenced off in the poultry house and the birds driven in where they can be very readily caught.

LAYERS IN THE MAKING.

Each bird should be handled separately and the following points noted: General condition of plumage, color and condition of head and comb, relative size of comb depending on breed or strain, general condition of body as regards flesh, condition of the abdomen and the distance apart of the two pelvic bones. If the plumage is healthy and glossy (this depends somewhat on season of the year) the head parts and comb a healthy red, the comb firm and large for the breed or strain, the body well fleshed, the abdomen full and distended but not with a big chunk of fat, and you find you can get at least three fingers of your hand between the pelvic bones which are located just below the vent, you may be certain the fowl is in laying condition. The width of the pelvic bones alone is not a safe guide because the distance varies considerably before and after laying. A hen might be rejected as a non-layer that just laid.

If one wished to get a complete record of the producing powers of his flock, they could be legbanded, symbols adopted to indicate their condition, and the results tabulated on a sheet of paper.

The neighborhood short course furnishes the farmer and farm woman the opportunity to secure information by personal contact with the instructor without leaving home over night.

Young Fruit Trees Should Be Protected

Painting With Lime Sulphur Is Effective Against Mice and Rabbits.

E. N. CORY,
Maryland Agricultural College.

This is the time of the year when every fruit grower or farmer who has a young orchard should take steps to prevent rabbits and mice from injuring his trees.

The rabbit is especially fond of the succulent bark of young apple trees, frequently feeding upon it when other food is plentiful. They gnaw away the bark, often girdling the trees or injuring them to such an extent that it becomes necessary to replace the trees.

When weeds or grass are allowed to lie close to the base of apple trees, field mice frequently make their nests there and when food becomes scarce feed upon the bark.

The best method of preventing the injury from these two animals is to paint the trunks of the trees with lime sulphur wash. Use at the same strength as for scale control, that is: one part of concentrated lime sulphur to nine parts of water, adding enough lime to make a thick paint. To make one barrel of paint, place five gallons of concentrated lime sulphur (obtainable in most any farmer's supply house) in a barrel; add 30 pounds of stone lime and allow to slake vigorously. Do not allow the lime to burn, but have water at hand to add gradually. Finally, after the slaking has ended, add sufficient water to fill the barrel and stir vigorously.

Paint this material on the trunks of the trees from the ground line up two feet, and you will not be bothered by rabbits or mice.

Wire or wood protectors are not so good. One is expensive and the other holds the snow and water so that the weather, when there is alternate freezing and thawing, the trees are liable to injury from frost.

OUR CHILDREN SHOULD BE TAUGHT IN TERMS OF NEIGHBORHOOD LIFE.

J. E. METZGER,
Maryland Agricultural College.

Rural teaching must be in the terms of child life. The tendency in the past in our school work has been to teach the things that are far removed from the place in which the recitation is taking place. The glowing descriptions of the life and activities of the city, and our elementary readers are full of these descriptions, have served to give the country boys and girls a false comparison, they have overestimated the opportunities of the one and depreciated the other. That there is a tendency for rural people to permit the city people to set for them their ideals, I need to remind you only of the tendencies of the times in the matter of styles and the use of food stuffs. The garment designers of the city change the styles each season and we as country people accept their creations as though it were a necessity. The city man buys practicaly all of his food stuffs in package form because it is about the only form in which it is available, but when the country home uses these food stuffs it is a matter of choice, and the housewife pays for the false economy. Again why should the rural child study in detail the commerce, the mountains, the rivers, the cities, the plant life, the history and literature of foreign or that of countries that have ceased to exist, and completely ignore those things about them. I believe in studying the things that are foreign, but I believe in studying them in their relation to our own country and our own locality. The boy or girl who becomes thoroughly familiar with his own community, its opportunities, its history, its organizations will in due time reach out and learn something about the outside world. Through comparisons he will be able to fully appreciate his own comforts and well being.

Many writers have contended that laying stock should be replaced each season or at the most, every two years, but the results of some experiments conducted with White Leghorns at the Utah Experiment Station seem to show that laying fowls may be profitably kept over a period of at least three years providing they continue healthy and vigorous.

If this is true and there is good reason to believe it is, it makes poultry keeping for egg production considerably simpler. One will have only to replace one-third of the flock each season instead of the whole or half the flock.

SELECT YOUR HERD BULL WITH CARE

The Sire Of the Herd Should Be Judged By the Production Of His Offspring.

G. E. WOLCOTT,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The care that should be exercised in selecting the herd bull is shown by the records of the Jersey herd at the University of Missouri.

The first bull used in this herd was Missouri Rioter, a son of Bachelor of St. Lambert—the only animal of his pedigree known to be a strong breeder. The average production of his daughters was 1009 lbs. of milk and 18 lbs. of fat below that of their dams.

A WELL-BRED SIRE.

The next bull used was Hugorotus, an animal with no high producing individuals in his ancestry. His daughters produced 393 lbs. less milk than their dams; but the percentage of fat was much higher, making an increase in fat amounting to 14 lbs.

The third bull—Lorn of Meridale—had a fine pedigree; and his daughters increased the average production 1410 lbs of milk and 66 lbs. of fat. The average production of his daughters was 5969 lbs. of milk and 287 lbs. of fat.

The next bull was Missouri Rioter, 3rd, a son of Missouri Rioter. His mother was the best cow in the herd. His daughters produced 3230 lbs. of milk and 146 lbs. fat more than their dams.

Minette's Pedro was used after Missouri Rioter, 3rd. He was an animal of fine breeding with many high-class animals in his pedigree. Ten of his daughters were superior to their dams, and ten were inferior. There was an increase of 55 lbs. of milk and 4 lbs. of fat. This bull was holding the average of the herd.

Brown Bessie's Registrar was the last bull used with daughters old enough to test. The data regarding this bull are too limited to draw conclusions, but it is evident his daughters are inferior. The daughters produced 1734 lbs. milk and 76 lbs. fat less than their dams.

The records show the great care that should be used in selecting a bull; and the desirability of keeping the bull in the herd until the production of his daughters is known. Missouri Rioter was sold before his daughters began to produce, and a valuable bull was lost to the breed.

DIFFERENT VARIETIES OF SEED POTATOES SHOULD NOT BE MIXED BEFORE PLANTING.

Potato growers often find their stock mixed and are at a loss to account for it. Some who have not become well informed seem to think that the wind or bees may effect the blossoms and that is the way the mixture happened. It is only when potatoes are grown from the actual seed which is found in the ball-shaped pods where the blossoms have been, that the bees or wind can cause any mixing. There are several ways in which mixing may occur. One is by the accidental dumping of a sack of one variety into a pile of another. Another way which I believe often happens, where one is growing the McCormick variety is, that there are some tubers left over in the soil from a previous digging which perpetuate themselves and thus get into a later crop. Another chance for mixing which is probably the least common, although by no means rare, is bud variation. Bud variation is constantly happening in plants and the most common form in potatoes is the color of the skin. The White McCormick is a bud variation of the older pink-eyed variety. Now, there has appeared in the White variety a "sprout" or bud variation with splashes of pink on the skin.

If potatoes do get mixed it is often less trouble to separate them after they commence to sprout. Sprouts that have started in the dark in some varieties are pure white, others are yellowish white, others have some purple in them. A very common mixture is Irish Cobbler and Green Mountain. The sprouts of Green Mountain, when grown in the dark, are a clear greenish yellow, while those of Irish Cobbler are white, with purplish streaks and patches at the base.

It has been found that the quality of high egg production is what is known as a sex limited character, and that the male bird is capable of reproducing the high laying quality very much more than the female.

Heretofore, little attention has been paid to the male, outside of selecting one from a high producing dam. Now the approved method of breeding for egg production is to get a male from some known high producing strain, and mate him to the flock.

In order to breed for high productiveness, it is necessary to test out the ability of the male to get high laying pullets. This can be done by keeping the pullets from several matings in separate pens and getting a record of their eggs.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson II.—First Quarter, For Jan. 10, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Judg. iv, 4-16. Memory Verses, 14, 15—Golden Text, Ps. xxxiv, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The one great aim of God in His word is that we may know Him and let Him through us make Him known to others, those who will not read His word being able to read of Him in our lives. For that end He chose Israel and brought them unto Himself that they might be unto Him a kingdom of priests, ministering unto Him and finding in Him their inheritance (Ex. xix. 4-6; II Sam. vii. 23; Ps. cxlvii, 20). The end of the story, after centuries of failure on man's part, will be that Israel shall know Him as never before, and all nations shall know Him through Israel (Ezek. xxxvii. 21, 22, 28; xxxix. 7, 21, 22, 25, 28, 29; xliii. 7; Jer. iii. 17).

In all the past history of the world since Adam sinned, whether before the call of Abram or since the birth of Israel as a nation or during the present age of gathering a people for His name from all nations, those who have known Him have been comparatively few, the vast majority doing what seemed right in their own eyes, which is always evil in the eyes of the Lord (Judg. iii, 7, 12; iv, 1; xvii, 6; xxi. 25).

The Lord is always looking over the whole earth to find any one who is whole hearted for Him, who will walk before Him and be sincere, as He exhorted Abram to do (II Chron. xvi, 9; Gen. xvii, 1). To that end He is ever proving His people to see if they will turn to Him alone or to their own thoughts and ways (Deut. viii. 2, 3, 16; Judg. ii, 22; iii, 1, 4; Isa. lv, 8, 9), and His cry ever is, "Oh, that my people had hearkened unto me and Israel had walked in my ways!" (Ps. lxxxi. 13.) So full of compassion is He that when people are in trouble because of their sin if they turn to Him with the whole heart He hears them and sends deliverance (Judg. ii, 16; iii, 9, 15, 31). The rest which He gave israel from time to time (chapter iii, 11, 30) might have been theirs all the time if they had not turned to their own ways.

Our lesson today shows us the Lord delivering by the hand of a woman, Deborah, the prophetess, and also using another woman who feared God more than man and preferred to stand with God at any cost, Jael, the wife of Heber, the Kenite (chapter iv, 4, 5, 17, 21). Let the sisters note for their encouragement the stories of Huldah, the prophetess; Priscilla, the teacher; the daughters of Philip, the host of women who publish the word of God and those women laborers in the gospel whose names are in the book of life (II Kings xxii, 14; Acts xviii, 26; xxi, 8, 9; Ps. lxviii, 11, R. V.; Phil. iv, 3). Let the brethren be better believers than Barak, who said that he would not go unless Deborah went with him (verses 8, 9). Yet Barak is mentioned among the men of faith in Heb. xi. Oh, how great is the grace of God, which uses such weak ones as we are and gives us credit for what He Himself does in and through us!

Note in lesson, verses 7, 14, 15, 23, that it was the Lord's victory and deliverance, and so they sang of it in chapter v, 2, 3. There was just one thing that Israel did that was worth mentioning—they willingly offered themselves (verses 2, 9), and this reminds us of I Chron. xxix. 9, 17; II Chron. xvii. 16; II Cor. viii. 12; Ex. xxv, 2; xxxv, 29, and of the question in I Chron. xxix, 5. There were some who came not at all to help, and a curse was pronounced upon them (verse 23). What about the many professing Christians today who do nothing whatever to help deliver the oppressed from the power of the enemy? May there be great searchings of heart (verses 15, 16) and a readiness to say, "Thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my Lord the king shall appoint," "For any manner of service * * * wholly at thy comandment" (II Sam. xv, 15; I Chron. xxviii. 21). Some jeoparded their lives unto the death, as did three of David's mighty men and as we are commanded to do (verse 18; II Sam. xxiii, 17; Rev. ii, 10).

The saying in chapter v, 12, "Lead thy captivity captive," makes us think of Ps. lxviii. 18; Eph. iv, 8, and of Him of whom all deliveries were the faintest foreshadowings. The desire that those who love Him should be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might (verse 31) makes us think of the great morning of victory, when He shall finally deliver Israel, make wars to cease and the righteous shall shine forth as the sun (II Sam. xxiii. 3, 4; Ps. xlvi, 5, margin, 9; Mal. iv, 2; Matt. xiii, 43). Then shall all the enemies of the Lord perish and the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, and there shall be rest everywhere (Ps. cii. 15, 16; civ, 35; Rev. xi, 15, 18; xix, 1-6). Our Lord is still calling for followers, for such as will love Him more than all others, or even their own lives. He is saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" and He will gladly welcome all who willingly say: "Here am I. Send me!" (Isa. vi, 8).

The present European conflict will probably lead to the recognition of Israel as a nation. We are seemingly at the beginning of the end of the times of the gentiles.

WATER ALWAYS NECESSARY.

During the winter season of the year many farm animals do not receive as much water as they really need to give the best results, says the Kansas Farmer. This is especially true of hogs. In cold weather, when all water left in troughs or other receptacles is likely to freeze, the animals do not have the opportunity to drink as much as they otherwise would.

Professor Deitrich, formerly of the Illinois Agricultural college, found in conducting a series of experiments in feeding swine that a sufficient amount of water is a very important consideration in securing the largest returns from the feed consumed by hogs. He found that oftentimes in securing the best results in the feeding of hogs it was necessary to encourage the consummation of the proper amount of water by supplying some of the food in liquid form. Those who are feeding hogs through the winter season should bear in mind that the supplying of a source of pure, clean water at the proper temperature is of the greatest importance. Perhaps in many cases it will be desirable to supply a part of the water in the form of warm slop feeds. A feed cooker for the cooking of feeds has little economic importance, but such a device may be very useful in supplying warm liquid feeds during the cold season of the year.

THE DAIRY HOUSE.

Separate Building For Handling Milk Is Necessary.

In every case where a considerable portion of the farm income is derived from the sale of dairy products a building should be provided to be devoted exclusively to their care.

The essential features which should be retained in any plan are a room just large enough for the actual needs; a floor, wall and ceiling which can be easily, quickly and thoroughly cleaned; a good drain to carry away waste water; a suitable method for heating the house in cold weather; plenty of light and ventilation; convenient arrangements for washing, scalding and drying dairy utensils, and a good tank and water supply for cooling the milk or cream. This building or dairy house should be convenient to but entirely separate from the barn where the milking is done.

In case a special dairy house cannot be provided the milk or cream should be handled and stored in a clean, light and well ventilated place, free from strong odors of any kind.—From Bulletin of Indiana Agricultural Experiment Station.

one place. The illustration gives all of the explanation necessary for any one handy with tools. The boxes may be set endwise.—Southern Agriculturist.

HIRED MAN LAW.

Controversies about wages frequently arise between farmers and their hired men when the latter are discharged or quit work before the expiration of the time for which they were employed. Sometimes a man who is hired to do certain specified work or work for a certain period of time for fixed wages quits his job without good and sufficient reasons, and the question then arises what compensation, if any, he can recover by law from his employer for the work he has actually done. There is some conflict of authority in the decisions of the courts upon this subject, but the weight of authority is to the effect that in such case the hired man can recover the value of the services which he actually rendered, deducting from this amount any damages which his employer has sustained by reason of his failure to complete the services which he was hired to perform. Sickness or death of an employee is considered by the law to be the act of God and constitutes good excuse for delay or even for nonperformance of a contract for personal services. An employee who is prevented by sickness from completing services according to his contract can recover the actual value of the services which he has performed under the contract, and if the completion of his work is prevented by his death his executor or administrator can recover the value of the services actually performed by him.

Farm and Garden

WINTER SPRAYING FOR TREES

Dormant Spraying Is the Only Method For Destroying Certain Pests.

There is long list of tree pests, enemies of fruit yields and actual destroyers of the trees, that should be vigorously fought in winter, says a writer in Farm Progress. So far the only method discovered for combating them is by winter spraying.

Late winter is the time for "annual housecleaning" in the orchards. The list of enemies that can be checked or entirely wiped out by winter or dormant spraying is rather long and includes the San Jose scale, anthracnose, aphis, woolly aphis, codling moth, brown mite, red spider and powdery mildew.

When you spray, spray thoroughly. Winter spraying is no exception to the rule, and the spray material should be put on with force enough to reach all the lurking enemies. Thorough spraying brings up the question of proper equipment. All the bark must be wetted. At least 100 pounds of pressure is necessary, and in some cases I have found 150 to 200 pounds of pressure giving the best results. It must be driven into the bark cracks and crevices.

The man who is just beginning to take up the question of winter spraying ought to be able to distinguish the different kinds of enemies found on the trees in winter. He ought to buy a good pocket lens, costing about 75 cents, and carefully study all the parasites, scales and fungi he can find.

In battling with mildew, mites, spiders and moths all infected trees should be pruned and the dead and decaying parts removed. All wounds should be cleaned out and the flaking, scaling bark ought to be scraped away from the trunks. Let this work precede the spraying with lime-sulphur. All rubbish should be burned at once. This will expose all the hibernating pests so the spray will reach them easily. Every part of the tree ought to be bathed in the film of spray even to the tiniest twig. The best time for applying sprays to the pests mentioned is a short time before the buds show signs of swelling.

Bordeaux 6-4-50 is the spray used most in late winter spraying, when the lime-sulphur is deemed inadequate. It is very effective in dealing with anthracnose and incipient cases of peach leaf curl. To be really effective the spray should be put on at a dry time, as a fall of rain will wash off much of the spraying material and lessen its effectiveness.

The one pest that ought to be fought hardest by the winter sprayer is the San Jose scale. Look for the round, grayish and black, button shaped bodies with a pimple-like elevation in the center. This elevation is about the size of a pin head and is often surrounded by a red ring. Lime-sulphur solution properly applied will kill the San Jose scale at any date between the falling of the leaves and the leafing out in spring.

There are three rules that I think every man should apply in going about spraying, whether he is doing the work in winter or in summer. They are:

When you spray, be sure you are doing it at the right time.

If you don't know the reason why you are spraying, don't spray at all.

The only way to know the reasons for spraying is to study up on every insect or fungus that is causing you trouble now or may trouble you in the near future.

Men no longer argue about the value of spraying. That has been settled for all time. The scabless, sound and smooth skinned fruit of the sprayed orchard has settled that question. All that remains for us to know is the when and the how.

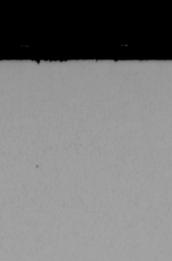
Barnyard Manure.

Barnyard manure is indispensable as a fertilizer on thin and sandy land that is to be farmed. It supplies humus as well as nitrogen, and the effect of the humus is often more desirable than the increase of plant food, though both are usually needed if the land be thin.

REPENTANCE FIRST THEN CONSECRATION

None But the New Creature Can Understand God's Plan.

The Gospel Is For the Broken-Hearted. "The Meek Will He Teach In the Way"—Turning From Sin—Turning to God—The Brotherhood of Christ. Suffering With Christ—Rejoicing In Tribulation—Confessing and Denying Christ—Purpose of Trials and Afflictions—The Glory to Follow.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Asbury Park, N. J., June 28.—Pastor Russell addressed a large convention of Bible Students here today, to whom he set forth the philosophy of the untold sufferings of true Christians throughout the Gospel Dispensation. Part IV. of THE PHOTO-DRAMA OF CREATION on exhibition at home and abroad, depicts the unwritten history of the Church of Christ and shows the cost of "following His steps." The Pastor's text was, "Jehovah hath appointed Me to preach good tidings to the meek, to bind up the broken-hearted."—Isaiah 61:1.

The Gospel Message, the Pastor declared, is for the meek, for the broken-hearted—the only class which God wishes to have now. He is seeking those who desire to be Christ's joint-heirs in the Messianic Kingdom. Therefore the Message is unsuited to the hard-hearted. Only the tender-hearted care to know about God's love and mercy, the forgiveness of sins, the privilege of returning to the Father and of having Jesus as their Savior.

The Pastor believes that it is a mistake to go out into the highways and byways to convert the very wicked—blasphemers, etc.—thinking that these are the ones for whom the Gospel is intended. The Scriptures do not authorize any such idea. Those living in sin unrepented of are not in proper condition to receive God's great Plan of the Ages, the speaker declared. God has said that "none of the wicked shall understand." He does not wish them to do so. God's Message speaks peace to those who are in trouble and who are seeking the righteousness which He provides.

The Gospel is not a sledge hammer with which to break men's hearts, he said. He knows of no Scriptural commission for God's people to break hearts. On the contrary, he thinks that the Devil does most of such work.

The Two Conversions.

Next it was demonstrated that there are two conversions; one a turning away from sin, and the other a turning to God. The latter is the principal conversion. Only those who take the step of full consecration to God receive the Holy Spirit and obtain a clear view of the Divine Plan.

The Pastor showed that those begotten of the Holy Spirit not only belong to the Church, the Brotherhood of Christ on the spiritual plane, but are also reckoned as members of the Body of Christ on the earthly plane. From this viewpoint, he claimed, Christ has suffered in the flesh throughout this Gospel Age. St. Peter declares that the Prophets foretold the sufferings of The Christ and the glory to follow. St. Paul speaks of filling up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ. After these sufferings the glory will follow.

Trials and discipline develop Christian character, preparing the child of God for future service in the Kingdom. Whoever suffers in the flesh because of being Christ's disciple has occasion for rejoicing. Such should continue faithful, that by and by as a polished jewel he may be ready for a glorious setting in the promised immortality.

Confessing or Denying Christ.

The terms of membership in the glorified Body of Christ were next discussed. After one has been spirit-begotten, his name is written in the Lamb's Book of Life as a member of the Body of Christ. Our Lord has promised that if these are faithful to their agreement to sacrifice their little all He will not blot out their names from that Book. But if any such deny Him, He will deny them.

To confess Christ is to live for Him day by day—confessing Him in the use of time, influence, money, talents—in every word and act. Should any consecrated child of God deny Christ by neglecting his Covenant, such would demonstrate his unworthiness of membership in the glorified Church.

Importance of Consecration.

Great stress is laid upon consecration, the Pastor declared, because it is the only way of coming into relationship with God and of approaching the Heavenly Throne with assurance that our petitions will be granted. He illustrated his point by reference to the ancient custom of a host to furnish plain white robes for his guests to wear over their own garments when present at a wedding. All consecrated Christians have accepted God's invitation to the Marriage of the Lamb. Each must wear the Robe of Christ's Righteousness or else forego the feast.

The only way to get rid of sins is through belief in the Lord Jesus Christ and full consecration to do God's will—even unto death.

SINCE the capacicy of Evangelist Sunday's tabernacle is 20,000 and the population of Philadelphia is now put at 1,750,000, and he expects to stay only nine weeks, old Hercules' famous stunt was a snap compared to William's.

WHILE the strictest moralists say it's wrong to play golf on Sunday they think it's all right to shovel snow or push a baby carriage. The man who really wants to take exercise can generally find some lying around loose.

WHILE sensitive Chicagoans have rejected a porcine design for an official badge of their city, they will doubtless continue to lug distinguished visitors out to the stockyards and bid them admire.

SUNSHINE AND CHEERFULNESS.

Keep your face toward the Sunshine, then Shadows fall behind. Cheerfulness pays. It is the most valuable business asset you have. Few of us are born with a cheerful disposition. Most of us either have to cultivate the habit or else go through life handicapped. Therefore if you are not one of the lucky few, by all means cultivate the habit. Learn to look on the bright side of life. Keep the sunny side of your nature toward others. Make cheerfulness your daily companion. Be an Optimist—have a cheerful, smiling face all the time. Songs you sing, Smiles you wear, make Sunshine everywhere. Sing a song of cheerfulness to brighten up in every way. Sing a song of happy cheerfulness every blessed day. Sing a song of cheerfulness against all badness you meet. Those who bring sunshine to other lives will happy be. Blessed are Happiness makers who give gladness to all. Even in ordinary life unselfish people are the happiest, as they forget themselves while working to make others happy. The dissatisfied people are those who are seeking happiness for themselves regardless of their neighbor. Do all the good you can. By all the means you can, in all the ways you can, at all the times you can, to all the people you can as long as ever you can.—Sykesville Herald.

THE CENTENARIES OF 1915.

One centenary of a great man will be "appropriately celebrated" in 1915. That great man was Otto von Bismarck, born April 1, 1815. The roar of guns, the welter of blood, the crash of cities, will be a fitting observance of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of the "man of blood and iron."

Bismarck, as we know now, desired the war between Prussia (aided by all Germany) and France, in 1870. It is known that he kept to himself the knowledge of acts and words which would have tended to prevent that war, and so twisted the words of the maladroit French ambassador Benedetti as to precipitate the conflict. Even Bismarck's master, King William of Prussia, whom unquestionably he loved and reverenced, he deceived to that end—which was the end of the unification of Germany under the aegis of Prussia.

Bismarck, standing before the bar of history was a great man, personally possessed of admirable qualities. His clear-seeing eyes, his searching thought, his words of directness and power, and a certain vast geniality, made him the most commanding figure of his time.

America's two great men of 1815 were both soldiers—George Gordon Meade, born on the very last day of that year (in Spain, but of American parents), and Philip Kearney, born on June 2. Meade, a soldier of unassertive character and quiet mien, came to the command of the Army of the Potomac suddenly, and to his own astonishment, almost on the day before the fight at Gettysburg. He proved himself worthy of the awful responsibility, and struck the blow which saved the Union. Of Phil Kearney this was said by Gen. Winfield Scott: "He was the bravest man I ever knew, and the most perfect soldier." Need more be said of him?

In France a famous artist, not a really great artist, was born on February 21, 1815—Meissonier, the painter of minutiae. His was an art which is now properly abandoned to photography. Another century will see him quite forgotten. Besides Bismarck, Germany produced in 1815 two men worthy to be remembered—Robert Franz, the composer of unforgettable songs of the heart, whose centenary is June 28, and Johann Gottfried Kinkel, the poet of freedom and democracy, who was born August 11. What a contrast to the career of Bismarck was that of the gentle refugee of the cause of liberty, the inspired singer of the rights of men, Gottfried Kinkel!

Not a long list of great men. We shall not be kept busy with celebrating their centenaries. For that matter, the thought of the world, in this year 1915, must rather be with those who die from day to day, than with those who were born long ago.

The Holy Communion.

The Lord's Supper will be celebrated in our church on Sunday, January tenth. Christ says, "This do in remembrrnce of me." On this day so full of His gracious love and forgiveness, let us come to the table He has prepared and partake of the riches of His grace. We are either for Christ or we are against Him. We dare not profess devotion with our lips and proclaim indifference by our lives. How blessed it is to see those who, refusing longer to drift with the spiritually homeless, come into the fellowship of the people of God. We cordially invite all who earnestly so desire to join us in the life of Christian service.

Oakland Collegians Win.

The Oakland Collegian basket ball team defeated Kingwood on the latter's floor last Saturday night in an extremely hard contested game by the score of 39 to 36. The Collegians worked fast and hard from the start and succeeded in securing the lead in the first ten minutes of play. The second half begun with the score standing 17 to 24 in favor of Oakland. Kingwood determined to win at any cost, resorted to all kinds of tactics, both fair and foul, but the Oakland boys proved themselves capable of handling any rough house tactics that the locals were able to put forth. This is the second time this season that the Kingwood team has gone down to defeat before the Collegians. The line-up:

Oakland		Kingwood
Sincell	F	Hanst
Chance	F	White
Sanner	C	K. Hanst
DeBerry	G	Murdock
Reidler	G	Haney

Summary: Field Goals: Sincell, 6; Sanner, 8; DeBerry, 2; K. Hanst, 1; Hanst, 5; White, 9. Fouls; Sanner, 5; Sincell, 2; Hanst, 6.

On Wednesday, January 13th, the Collegians will play the Pittsburgh Silent Five team at the Empire Theatre. Michael Boyle, Jr., formerly of Oakland is a member of this team, and the Collegians expect the hardest game of the season.

KITZMILLER.

Holiday season has come and gone and the world moves on just the same. In bidding good by to 1914 and good morning to 1915 we should not say that we are going to "swear off," but that we are going to "swear on," swear on that we are going to do more for ourselves, more for our friends and more for the world. We should "swear on" that this is going to be the best year of our lives, that we are going to pu more energy, more enthusiasm and love into our lives than we have ever done before, then 1915 will be a happy and prosperous year.

Business men generally are making ready to embrace the wave of prosperity that is predicted by our prophet to reach us early in the year.

Merchants have been busy invoicing and counting up their profit and loss. Prospects for better times here are beginning to bud. Let us all hope they will not be frozen in the bud.

E. J. Hamill, cashier of the First National Bank, spent part of the holiday week in Clarksburg, W. Va., on business and pleasure.

The doctors here are complaining about hard times. This is a good omen, as it means that we are all well.

We understand that the old Kitzmiller stable at the junction of Main and Hill streets is to be razed and a first class garage will be erected.

Mr. Joseph E. Harned accompained his son Harold to Washington, D. William Michaels, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, and Addie Conn, Plaintiffs, vs. William R. Offutt, Administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, and Joseph Metz or his unknown heirs at law, if any, Defendants.

No. 1617 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree directing the distribution of the personal estate of Maria Groves, late of Grrett County Maryland, deceased among the plaintiffs and defendants, Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, according to their respective rights and interests therein.

The amended bill states, that on January 23d, 1914, the plaintiffs, William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel and Sarah Evans, filed their bill of complaint in this cause against William R. Offutt, administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, praying among other things that the personal estate of the said decedent might be brought into equity and administered under the direction of this court, and that the plaintiffs, by the decree of this Court, might be declared the only heirs at law of the said decedent and entitled to her said estate, and that the defendant answered said bill and certain testimony was taken on the part of the plaintiffs, and that the plaintiffs now charge by way of amendment to their original bill of complaint, and the same so appears from the testimony already taken in this cause, that the said Maria Groves had another brother, a certain Harmon Michaels, who departed this life at Wellsville, Ohio, February 17th, 1912, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law, Mary Michaels, his widow and Edward W. Michaels a son, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn, his daughters all of whom are of full age, and that it further appears from said testimoney, that Cathrine Fazenbaker, the mother of the said Maria Groves, prior to her marriage to Luther Butt, spoken of in said testimoney, had either married or cohabited with one Miniam Metz, by whom she had three children, to-wit: Lewis Metz, Susan Metz and Joseph Metz; that the said Lewis Metz and Susan Metz are both dead, without issue, and that the last heard of Joseph Metz, thirty-five or more years ago, he was living in Fisk County, Pennsylvania, and according to the information of some of the witnesses, the said Joseph Metz was then married, and that by an order of this Court upon the petition of the said original plaintiffs, the said Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn have been made parties plaintiff to this cause, and as the only heirs at law of the said Harmon Michaels are entitled to participate in the estate of the said Maria Groves along with her other heirs at law, and that the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, have also been made parties defendant to this cause, and leave has been granted to the plaintiff to publish an order of publication against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, giving them notice of the object and substance of this amended bill of complaint, and that the said Maria Groves departed this life intestate on or about the 23d day of April 1913, in Oakland, Maryland, and that the said William R. Offutt was duly appointed administrator of her personal estate, and qualified as such, but that no distribution of said estate has been made by said administration, and that William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, Addie Conn and Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, are the only heirs at law of the said Maria Groves, deceased, and the only persons legally entitled to participate in the distribution of her estate after the payment of her just debts and funeral expenses by the said administrator, who has denied and repudiated their several claims of heirship to his said decedent, wherefore, it becomes necessary for them to resort to this Court for the purpose of having their said respective claims adjudicated, and their heirship to the said Maria Groves established by its decree.

The bill then prays that the said administrator may answer this amendment, and that an order of publication be granted against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, who are non-residents of this State giving notice to them of the object and substance of this bill and warning them to be and appear in this Court, either in person or by solicitor, on some certain day to be therein named, and to abide by and perform such order or decree as maybe passed in the premises.

It is there upon this 29th day of December, 1914, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county in Equity, that the plaintiffs by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 20th day of January, 1915, give notice to the said absent defendant or defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning him or them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of February next, to show cause, if any, he or they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

FRANKING MAIL MATTER.

At One Time Soldiers In This Country Enjoyed the Privilege.

The postoffice was first established for the principal and in some countries for the exclusive purpose of carrying official correspondence by mail. Later in France, Great Britain and the United States because of the great expansion and commercialization of the postal system the free carriage of mail matter came to be regarded as a privilege and this privilege was claimed by persons in official position.

In England the house of commons claimed the privilege as early as 1660. It was abolished in Great Britain, however, by the passage of Rowland's cheap postage measure in 1839. In the United States the first appearance of the franking privilege is traceable to the action of the Continental congress assuming control of the postoffice in January, 1776. It is interesting to learn that it was then granted to all private soldiers actually in service for all letters they might write or that might be written to them.

In the early years of the United States government the privilege was granted widely, but it soon became necessary to restrict it. An act of March 3, 1845, limited the privilege to the president, the vice president, members and delegates in congress, the third assistant postmaster general and all postmasters. Other offices were directed to keep quarterly accounts of postage.—Argonaut.

COSMOPOLITAN DAMASCUS.

The Oldest City on Earth, It Shows All the World's Peoples.

At last we are set down in the midst of Damascus, a city that can claim life without a break from its founding back in the dim dawn of the world's history. When Abram crossed the desert from Haran 4,000 years ago this city was standing (Genesis xiv, 15, and xv, 2). She dates back to the time of the Pharaohs in Egypt. In fact, she was old when Greece and Rome were striplings in years. Rome may be termed the Eternal City, but Damascus is twice as old, and though her streets have run red with blood of battle and rapine many times, she has not been overthrown.

"Babylon is an heap in the desert, and Tyre a ruin on the shore," but Damascus remains.

Was there ever such a place to see the nations of the earth parading together? Here in the market place are motley crowds of Persians, Moors, Afghans, Indians, Egyptians, Sudanese, Jews, Bedouins, Druses, Turks, Europeans. The streets—so crooked, so narrow, so dirty, so full of life, with that strange spell of the desert upon them! The residences as seen from the street are ugly and disappointing enough, yet like old barns and tumbledown mills at home are fascinating and picturesque.—Christian Herald.

Mystery of a Bridegroom.

The mysterious disappearance of a bridegroom at a wedding is recalled by T. F. Thiselton Dyer in his "Strange Pages From Family Papers." The wedding took place in Lincolnshire about the year 1750. "In this instance the wedding party adjourned after the marriage ceremony to the bridegroom's residence and dispersed, some to ramble in the garden and others to rest in the house till the dinner hour. But the bridegroom was suddenly summoned away by a domestic who said that a stranger wished to speak with him, and henceforward he was never seen again. All kinds of inquiries were made, but to no purpose, and terrible as the dismay was of the poor bride at this inexplicable disappearance of the bridegroom, no trace could be found of him."

A Change of Tune.

"Mamma, I'm tired of going to school."

"What's the matter, Willie?"

"The teacher"—

"Now, don't you say a word against your teacher, Willie. I've no doubt you annoy her dreadfully, and she seems like a very nice sort of person."

"Well, she said this mornin' that she didn't think I had much of a bringin' up at home, an' "—

"Wait! Did she say that? Well, of all the coarse impudence! You shan't go back there another day!"

Exit Willie, grinning.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Do You Know the Answer?

A teacher was giving to her class an exercise in spelling and defining words. "Thomas," she said to a curly haired little boy, "spell 'ibex.'" "I-b-e-x." "Correct. Define it." "An ibex," answered Thomas after a prolonged mental struggle, "is where you look in the back part of the book when you want to find anything that's printed in the front part of the book."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mean Thing!

A New England physician says that if every family would keep a box of mustard in the house one-half of the doctors would starve to death. A mean man suggests that everybody should keep two boxes.—New Orleans Picayune.

"Any member of the family come out?"

"Only the cat."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CANING THE CULPRIT.

The Marks It Leaves Look Worse Than the Whaling Feels.

In a London police court recently a teacher in a public school was prosecuted for assaulting a pupil by caning him. The magistrate decided that he had not used undue violence and therefore discharged the master.

In this case the father of the boy who had been caned took him to a physician on the evening of the day of his castigation and this doctor found about fifteen wheals on the lad's back. This was evidence of severe punishment, but the magistrate considered it was not too severe for the offense which had caused it, and said that parents had formed an exaggerated opinion of the amount of force that had been used.

Commenting on this the London Lancet says:

"A blow from a cane causes at the time an appreciable amount of pain (which, by the way, is what it is intended to do), but it leaves behind a mark quite out of proportion in its formidable character to the amount of suffering which it causes after the first sting has been endured. If any one doubts this, having perhaps avoided the opportunity to observe it in the course of an exemplary boyhood, the experiment is easily made. Any small boy will be willing to do his share by inflicting upon the seeker after truth a sharp cut or two, the results of which will no doubt be distinctly felt for a time, but only for about an hour, while there will be visible on the well protected and tender skin of the back for some days wheals which would harrow the heart of any mother."

In other words, a boy's back after a caning looks far worse than it feels.

HARDY TUSCAN WOMEN.

One Vigorous Old Dame Who Acted as a Mountain Guide.

Illustrative of the hardiness of women in Tuscany, Sir Francis Vane relates in "Walks and People In Tuscany" the experiences of two Englishmen who were traveling in Italy and who appealed to a village innkeeper for a trustworthy guide to conduct them over the pass between the mountains of Rondinajo and Tre Potenze. To their surprise an old woman appeared and announced that she had come to make arrangements for the journey. They concluded she must be the mother of their guide.

"What was our amazement to learn that this elderly dame was our destined leader, and indeed she was got up for the fray in long boots and short skirts.

"On we tramped, she always ahead, walking with a fine military swing which a lifeguardsman might have envied. The path was difficult and could not be used by vehicles. Our guide led us up the steep way which follows a small and rushing stream issuing from out the side of Rondinajo, and up it we ascended for an hour or more until the pass was reached.

"We here had the merciful intention of sending the old woman back, an intention, however, she very strongly opposed. It was only by allowing her to come some few miles farther on that we could induce her to leave us before she had seen us safely to the end of the journey."

Father and His Daughters.

The habits of a lifetime which began a generation or more ago, the habit of being a source of maintenance and the need of keeping in hand the means of maintenance, the habit of power and of keeping hold of the source of power, may make a man less than fair perhaps in dividing his acquisitions with his wife, but when it comes to the daughters whom he is going to leave in the world when he quits it he is all for securing to them as far as he can a full share of all that is worth having. Hardly can sex selfishness squeeze in between him and his girls. As between them and all males, he is for them. He wants them to lose no good thing that may lawfully be coming to them. He wants no man to bully them, no man to impose upon their generosity, no man to bring them to want, to sorrow or a hungry heart.—Edward S. Martin in Atlantic.

A Maker of Cripples.

Dr. Charlton Wallace once investigated with great care 400 cases of hip joint disease—tuberculosis of the hip. He found that of this number 70 per cent came of tuberculous families or had lived in houses where there had been known cases of active tuberculosis within a year. In both cases the explanation was the same—exposure to infection. When the tubercle germ cannot murder a victim it does its best to cripple him. The only safeguard is to make sure personally that your house does not harbor this greatest of human enemies.—Chicago Journal.

Inappreciative Man.

"You say you occasionally smoke one of your wife's birthday cigars?"

"Yes; I dug 'em up the other day, and they are a great help in my present situation."

"What is that?"

"I am trying to quit smoking for good."—Albany Knickerbocker Press.

Real Ability.

QUEST OF EL DORADO.

That Elusive Land of Gold and Jewels in South America.

Guiana is bounded on the north by the great river Orinoco and on the south by the still greater river Amazon. These two grand rivers are connected with one another, the Cisiquiure, a branch from the Orinoco, falling into the Rio Negro, a tributary of the Amazon. Within Guiana itself are many rivers of very considerable size.

The kingdom of El Dorado was reputed to exist somewhere between the Rio Branco and the Essequibo, called by the Indians the Brother of the Orinoco. Manoa, the capital, was said to be somewhere between the Rio Branco and the Rupununi, a tributary of the Essequibo. From the thirties of the sixteenth century some eighteen expeditions had been sent by the Spaniards to Guiana in search of the golden kingdom. Diego de Ordas, one of the captains of Cortes at the conquest of Mexico, led the first attempt in 1531. After him followed many a brave cavalier, but all was in vain, and disasters as well as failure attended nearly all the expeditions.

From a state paper in the public record office, London, it appears that in 1580 persons who traveled in America had reported that there was a place where the women wore great plates of gold, covering their whole bodies like armor. In every cottage pearls were to be found; in some houses a peck. Banqueting houses were built of crystal, with pillars of massive silver, some of gold. Pieces of gold as big as a man's fist were to be found in the heads of some of the rivers. Raleigh read accounts of these expeditions, but their want of success did not deter him from attempting to find the golden region.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A LIGHT IN AN AUTOMOBILE.

Use One of the Spark Plugs When You Have No Matches.

Did you ever while making an automobile tour find yourself on a lonely country road, perhaps miles from the nearest house, and suddenly discover that you had no matches? If you were anxious to light the lamps or eager for a smoke such a discovery would not prove at all conducive to the smoothness of your temper.

There is a simple way in which any one may secure a light without the aid of matches. You may be anxious for a smoke or it may be getting dark and you want to light your lamp, but in any event you can secure the necessary light if you will follow these directions:

Unscrew one of the spark plugs and let it lie on the cylinder head. Wrap a small wisp of waste around the end of any small stick of wood or if there is none handy wrap it around the end of a screwdriver or any other tool. Dip the waste in the gasoline until it is thoroughly soaked. Of course you should have only a very small piece of waste; otherwise the blaze will be too big for you to handle. After dipping this in the gasoline lay it close to the spark plug and turn the engine over until this plug sparks. This will ignite the waste and you will have a little torch sufficient for lighting your lamp. Even if there is a heavy rain or snow, you can secure a light in this manner sufficient for your needs.—Detroit Free Press.

Fear of Old Military Service.

A prisoner's appeal to the court of criminal appeal for a longer sentence, although the first on record before that tribunal, is not altogether unparalleled at the assize, for offenders who have had the advantage of inside knowledge of the working of the prisons acts have been known to ask the judge to give them penal servitude instead of a short period of hard labor. They shrink from the more Spartan diet and severer restrictions that attach to the nominally lighter sentence. A century ago, when capital punishment was inflicted for many trivial crimes, a prisoner was sometimes given a choice—death or service in the army or navy. And the services in those days had such a terror for some criminals that many elected to be hanged instead of serving their country.—London Spectator.

Government of Japan.

The government of Japan is not an absolute monarchy, the mikado being largely responsible to the parliament and, to a degree, to the people back of the parliament. Under the mikado is the house of peers, composed of the princes of the blood and the nobility and the representatives of the vested interests, and the house of representatives, which is made up of some 380 members, representing the masses of the people.—New York Journal.

An Exception.

Little Mary was coloring pictures with her set of paints. She used a tint that failed to please and exclaimed: "Oh, I didn't mean to do that! However, what's done is done and can't be undone—except shoe laces."—Chicago News.

Poor Dora.

"Dora must have suffered some terrible disappointment. One never sees her smile now. What is the matter?"

"She's had two front teeth pulled out."—London Telegraph.

Up In a Balloon.

To remain motionless and watch the earth fall away from you as rapidly as a baseball falls from you when dropped from a window is the sensation of going up in a balloon.

There is only one cure for public distress, and that is public education, directed to make men thoughtful, merciful and just.—Ruskin.

GERMAN ATTACHE INVOLVED

Passport Fraud Points to High Diplomatic Officer In Washington.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The name of an attache of the German embassy here is involved in reports made to Attorney General Gregory by agents of the department of justice who have been investigating the alleged plot to obtain American passports for German reservists.

The department of justice will take no action in regard to this disclosure other than to communicate its information to the state department which already has been done. State department officials as a result of this report from the department of justice are confronted with the unpleasant necessity of deciding whether steps shall be taken to bring about the withdrawal from Washington of the German attache in question.

The situation is regarded officially as one of considerable diplomatic importance and very embarrassing for this government to handle.

An authoritative denial was made of a published statement that thirty more arrests are to be expected in the passports case. It was learned that the investigation by the department practically is complete and that with the arrest already made the attempted fraud is regarded as having been completely frustrated.

FORCE SENT TO SONORA

Villa Starts to Make Good Promise to Drive Out Carranzaists.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 5.—The army that General Villa has been promising for months to send to Sonora to wipe out the Carranzaists has begun to materialize. A considerable Villa army is said to be in the vicinity of Casas Grandes, southwest of Juarez, moving westward and the Juarez garrison is being reinforced against a possible Carranza movement against this border town.

Villa's declaration is that he is sending the troops to Sonora to co-operate with those of Governor Maytorena to wipe out the Carranza garrisons in that state, but in some quarters it is believed Villa wished to be prepared for eventualities in the event of United States guns being turned loose into Mexico at Naco.

General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the American army, is still at Naco negotiating with the two Mexican commanders, Hill and Maytorena. Maytorena remains out of reach of the American guns, but continues to hold his men in such position that Hill cannot evacuate Naco as General Scott suggested and move to Agua Prieta without engagements. Maytorena contends that he cannot allow Hill to move without orders from either Provisional President Gutierrez or General Villa.

WON'T FIGHT MANDATE

Thaw's Next Struggle Will Be In New York State Courts.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 5.—According to an authority which has been close to Thaw personally, there will be no further legal fight made in this state.

It is understood that Thaw's legal advisers have informed him that any further legal action that could be brought here must eventually prove of no avail and would only result in an unnecessary delay in the fight it is proposed to make in New York state. This, according to this authority, is Thaw's present state of mind and unless there is a radical change, which is improbable, he will return to New York without questioning the mandate of the supreme court.

Wedding March Helps Yeggmen.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—As the strains of "Here Comes the Bride," from Lohengrin pealed out two doors away from the United Dairy company's Hermitage avenue office six yeggmen dynamited the company's safe and got away with from $2,000 to $3,000.

EAST OHIO MINES MAY BE NONUNION

Owners Favor Breaking Off Relations With Organization

"OPEN SHOP" POLICY LIKELY

At Today's Session of Operators In Cleveland Decision of Vital Interest to Workers In Big Coal Territory Will Be Made—Union Officials and Mine Owners Unable to Agree on Scale After Repeated Conferences.

Cleveland, Jan. 5.—A meeting of eastern Ohio coal operators will be held today and the session will be watched with keen interest by miners in the coal territory.

It was learned from an authoritative source that at the meeting today the question whether the mines shall be operated with union labor or whether an "open shop" policy will prevail would be decided. It will also be decided about the eviction of striking miners who have paid no rent since last April 1.

An unannounced development in connection with the meeting of the operators was a joint conference with William Green, international secretary of the mine workers' organization, and John Moore, president of the Ohio miners' organization. These two miners' officials first met all the operators and then held a conference with the seven operators who composed the operators' representatives, which resulted in failure to agree on a wage scale.

After this conference it was said no agreement was reached. Both the operators' and miners' officials remained firm in their previous demands.

Mr. Green, who was an Ohio state senator and the author of the Green anti-screen law, said he told the operators that "our honor is at stake because when the miners signed a scale with other districts now operating in central and southern Ohio we told the operators that we would not sign a lower scale with the eastern Ohio operators."

There are 35,000 miners working in central and southern Ohio on the 47 cents a ton anti-screen basis, Mr. Green said. The eastern Ohio operators offer 44.61 cents a ton. This was rejected by 15,000 miners in eastern Ohio the first of last April and they have since been on a strike.

MAY POSTPONE PAGEANT

Gold Hill In Movement and Canal Is Likely to Be Blocked.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Possibility of a postponement of the cruise of the international fleet from Hampton Roads to San Francisco through the Panama canal in connection with the opening of the canal and the exposition was suggested in the course of a conference between Secretary Garrison and Colonel Goethals, governor of the canal.

Though the great earth slides at Cucuracha have apparently been conquered, according to Colonel Goethals' report, the earth movements continue in the neighborhood of Gold hill. At that point the superincumbent masses of earth on the side of the canal by their great pressure are continuously forcing rock and soil in great quantities in the canal prism. The movement is sufficiently extensive to require the continuous employment of dredges to maintain the channel.

While this can be done to meet the needs of the present number and size of vessels that are applying for passage Colonel Goethals reported that he could not guarantee that there would be a channel broad enough and deep enough for the great dreadnaughts which will make up the naval parade by the date they expected to arrive at Cristobal next spring.

BUSY AT HARRISBURG

Pennsylvania State Legislature Begins Its 1915 Sessions.

The voluntary withdrawal of his four Republican opponents left the speakership field clear for Charles A. Ambler of Montgomery county. Charles H. Kline of Pittsburgh was chosen president pro tem of the senate.

The selection of Ambler for speaker, it is believed, will prevent the naming of A. C. Stein as chairman of the law and order committee. Governor Brumbaugh, it is argued, will insist upon Ambler appointing a committee in favor of a local option bill.

Crude Oil Price Rises Five Cents.

COAL MINING IN SOUTHERN STATES

Production In Maryland and Virginia Decreased.

Except in Kentucky and West Virginia, there was a marked decrease in the production of coal in the Southern States during 1914, according to the estimates of Edward W. Parker, statistician, United States Geological Survey. The business depression was felt particularly in Alabama, because of its importance as an iron-making State and the fact that the iron interests more than any other branch of the mining industry suffered from the unsatisfactory conditions in 1914. Estimates of the coal production in Alabama for 1914 varied between 12,500,000 and 15,000,000 short tons, compared with 17,678,522 tons in 1913. In addition to the decrease due to the demoralization in the iron trade, the disturbed situation in Mexico resulted in the loss of some market for Alabama coke. The markets for Alabama coal were affected by the low price of petroleum in the Southwestern States; by increased water-power developments; by the competition of coal from Kentucky and Illinois in the markets of Louisana and Mississippi which are normally supplied by Alabama; and by the smaller bunker trade which suffered because of the cutting off of exports of cotton after the declaration of war in Europe. On account of the keen competition which developed as a result of the decreased demand, prices were demoralized but up to the close of the year there had not been any decrease in wages.

The coal production of Maryland showed a decrease of about 500,000 tons in 1914, and that of Virginia 1,300,000 tons. In the former State the decreased production was due chiefly to the approaching exhaustion of the Big Vein, which has supplied more than 95 per cent of Maryland's total coal production. Many of the mines have already been worked out and abandoned and others are "robbing" pillars and preparing to close permaneatly. Developments, however, are being made upon the Tyson and other lower but thinner beds, and it is expected that within a few years these operations will be sufficiently advanced to bring Maryland's production to its normal amount. In Virginia the decreased demand from the transportation companies and from the cotton mills in North and South Carolina caused the smaller output in 1914.

HOUSE INCREASES PAY OF RURAL CARRIERS

$1200 Yearly For Those Serving 24-Mile Routes.

After a lively debate in the House of Representatives last week, in which Congressman Linthicum of Maryland took an active part, it was voted to definitely fix the salaries of rural carriers under the law so that every carrier serving a route of 24 miles will be paid $1200 a year.

In the preceding appropriation bill passed by Congress provision was made for the promotion of 43,325 rural carriers $100 each, and the necessary amount was authorized for the increase. The Post Office Department so interpreted the law that only a fraction of them received more money. This action aroused much indignation on the part of members of Congress and the statement was freely heard that when the next Post Office appropriation bill came up these promotions of rural carriers would be made mandatory.

Referring to the work of the mail carriers, Congressman Linthicum said:

"These rural letter carriers have considerable expense. They are compelled to provide their means of transportation and to deliver the mail each and every day in the year. While in the summer the work may be light and pleasant, in the winter it becomes onerous and very unpleasant. The roads in the greater part of the country where the mail is delivered by the rural carriers are not only bad in winter but often miserable and almost impassable."

"I received a letter this morning from a rural carrier in my State, who says that during the summer one horse will perform the work on his route, but that during the winter he is compelled to have two horses to do the same service. There are many routes in the State of Maryland, especially those in the mountainous sections, where more than one horse is required almost constantly."

A Correction.

To the Editor of The Republican.

In the last issue of your usually very reliable paper you were in error in stating that my son Ralph was superintending the construction of the Light Street bridge at Baltimore. He is employed on that bridge as an assistant engineer, but is not the superintendent of it. That honor belongs to another Garrett county boy, Mr. Getty Browning, son of our fellow townsman Mr. R. T. Browning. Knowing that you will willingly make this correction, I am,

LEWIS EXPLAINS HIS PHONE BILL

A 100,000-word speech, dealing with all angles of the question of government ownership of telephones, was inserted in Monday's Congressional Record, under the rule of "extension of remarks" by Representative David J. Lewis, of Maryland, who is leading the movement in Congress for Federal control of the wire lines.

The article is an elaborate analysis and defence of the proposition that the telephone be purchased by Congress and turned over to the Postoffice Department to be operated as a part of the postal machinery. It is based upon a year's exhaustive study by Mr. Lewis and experts of the Postoffice Department. Conditions surrounding the telephone and telegraph in every part of the world are presented, together with comparisons with the privately-owned wire lines in America.

In his summary of telephone conditions, Mr. Lewis says in part:

"Telephone development has reached its substantial limits in the United States under private capital with the extension of the service to the very profitable office and well-to-do home traffic. To extend it to the homes of the masses, as the public roads and postal service now are extended, the postal agency is necessary. If the telephone lines are postalized, both the telephone and telegraph business can be done over them as in other countries, where a telegram and a conversation go over the same wire at the same time.

"The telephone rates should be worked out experimentally by the Postoffice Department in a few years, with the assured prospect of ultimately securing telephone and telegraph rates, like our letter rates, as low as those abroad. That is, rates about half those now obtained for the telegraph and local telephone services, and about one-fourth those charged for the long-distance telephone conversation. Our other postal rates, including the highly profitable parcel post rates, have been made as low as in other countries, and the indications are that like results can be obtained for the wire service when postalized.

"The suggestion that the interurban and long-distance lines alone be postalized and the telephone exchanges be left to the municipalities is found to be unsound. The postal system can finance and operate the exchanges more economically and efficiently, and the divorcement of the exchanges from the interurban and long distance lines would necessitate the maintenance of two personnels at substantially increased cost. It would be like divorcing the local postoffices from the Postoffice Department and turn them over to the Mayors to run.

"The telephone subscribers' rates in American cities, compared with Continental cities, are three times as high. For example, Baltimore people pay more than the rates for London and Paris combined. In postal telephone countries the local toll tariffs tend to run about one-half the charge for a letter, while here it runs with the street car fare, and sometimes exceeds it.

A Pig Roast.

Last Friday evening the Youghiogheny Camping Club, and a number of their friends, were very pleasantly entertained at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Naylor on Alder street. The novel feature of the occasion was a pig roast. Those present were Misses—Alma Scherr, Gertrude Skelton, Anna Lowenstein, Jennie Lee, Ruth Michaels and Mary Porter; Messrs.—Allen Justus, Wellington Crane, Ralph Weber, Stanley Mitchell and Arthur Naylor.

James B. Cox, vs. Gertrude Cox.

No. 1956 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a Vinculo Matrimonii.

The bill states that on or about the 14th day of June, 1905, the plaintiff was married to the defendant and took up their residence in Cumberland, Allegany county, Maryland, where they continued to reside until about the 15th day of December of the same year.

The bill further states that on or about the last named date the defendant left plaintiff's home and abandoned him and that he has never seen her from that day to this and does not know where she lives, other than than that he has been informed that she is now within the Panama Canal Zone.

The bill further states that the plaintiff never gave the defendant any reason for abandoning him, but that his conduct toward her had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; and further says that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eight years and he believes is deliberate and final.

Plaintiff further says that he has resided for the last three years in Garrett county, and that no children was born as a result of said marriage.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 4th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of February, 1915, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of February next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 39. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1915. NUMBER 46.

WILL CASE SETTLED.

By Agreement the Oakland Lutheran Church Will Receive About $2700.

A compromise was effected Tuesday in the Groshon will case, pending in Frederick, which involved the distribution of about $30,000 held up for more than six months by reason of litigation, the Oakland Lutheran church being one of the beneficiaries under the will, the amount devised to the local church by Miss Groshon being $3,000.

The heirs contested the will and the case was tried in the Frederick County Circuit Court in September. At the trial the jury disagreed and the case was set for retrial yesterday, witnesses to the number of one hundred having been summoned to appear in Court there yesterday.

By the terms of the agreement entered into by the heirs and the beneficiaries the latter pay to the former the sum of $1500, or about 11 per cent. of the amount bequeathed by Miss Groshon to others outside her family. This deduction will net the local church the sum of nearly $2700.

Motor Law Valid.

The Supreme Court of the United States Tuesday declared valid the Maryland law, which imposes a tax on Washington autoists who enter Maryland territory and use the state roads, and gives to the State authorities power to impose fines for violating the law which requires owners of motor vehicles to tag their cars.

This decision will affect not only Maryland, but other states in which a similar law applying to non-residents is operative. Had the state lost its case autoists in New Jersey and elsewhere would have sought relief. According to Motor Vehicle Commissioner Roe, all owners of automobiles who use the roads of neighboring states were interested in this decision, which means an annual revenue to Maryland from the District of Columbia of anywhere from $50,000 to $65,000.

PRIEST CALM IN FIRE.

Rev. T. J. Stanton Reads Mass While Holly Blazes on St. Vincent's Altar.

The calmness of the Rev. Thomas J. Stanton, assistant pastor of St. Vincen's Catholic church, on North Front street, Baltimore, Sunday morning probably prevented the congregation from becoming panic stricken when holly and smilax decorations on the altar caught fire while he was celebrating mass.

Despite the fact that the blaze was near him, the priest continued reading as though nothing had happened. Altar boys tore the greens down and with the aid of several members of the church stamped out the blaze, which for a few seconds looked threatening.

While lighting candles an altar boy ignited one of the trailing bits of holly, and before he knew it the flames shot upward and spread from one wreath to another.

For a moment or two, those in the church were excited, but when Father Stanton did not indicate any fear they were reassured, and with exceptions, remained in their seats. Those who did leave their pews went to assist the boys in stamping out the fire.

The greens has been in the church since Christmas and were so dry that they burned like paper.

The Rev. Philis B. McGuires the pastor of the church, was pleased with the coolness of his parishoners and he praised them for their presence of mind. The fire discolored a large gilded pillar and the ceiling of an arch over the altar. The damage is estimated at about $75.

A Gigantic Hen's Egg.

A gigantic egg, twenty-four inches in diameter, which Utah Agricultural College has placed in the Utah state exhibit, is one of the most curious displays at the Panama-California Exposition, San Diego, Dr. E. G. Titus, professor of etymology at the college declares that the egg was laid by a hen, but how it came to be so large is a secret which he will not reveal.

SPEECH FAILS OF PURPOSE

No Longer Adheres to High Ideals Expressed in Letter Before Last Election.

President Wilson's purely political speech at Indianapolis, bitterly attacking the Republican party and warning insurgents in his own party not to dare to break the solidarity of Democracy, has simply served to stiffen the backbone of his opposition in the House and Senate.

The President's speech was so plainly and exclusively political that Democrats as well as Republicans, called attention to the pre-election letter written by him to Chairman Doremus of the Democratic campaign committee, wherein he said:

"Every patriotic man ought to stay on his job until the crisis is passed and ought to stay where his job can best be done. We must do whatever is necessary to forego whatever is not necessary to keep us in close and active concert in order to relieve any possible way the stress and strain put upon our people during the continuance of the present extraordinary conditions. My job I know now, can be done only if I devote my whole thought and attention to it and think of nothing but the duties of the hour. I am not at liberty, and shall not be, so far as I can now see to turn away from those duties to undertake any kind of political canvass."

Leading members of the Republican party in Congress said it was so clear the President was so desirous of re-election that he has cast his high-minded resolve to be the chief executive of the whole nation to the winds in order to make an attack upon the Republican party.

The speculation caused by the President's remark that the people would have a chance to judge whether he knew what he was talking about is regarded as being wholly unnecessary by the leaders of both Democratic and Republican parties. It can be stated definitely that Mr. Wilson is a candidate for renomination and re-election. It is not a matter for speculation. He is a candidate, and an active one. His speech at Indianapolis was the opening gun—fired early because of panic over the insurgency in his own party and the reunion of the Republican party.

It was the patronage fight with the members of his own party that caused President Wilson to turn aside from the pledge made in the Doremus letter, just before the last election, in order to throw down the gauntlet at Indianapolis. One of the favorite devices of the President in disputes with his own Senators is to "go to the country with the issue." That is what he did in Indianapolis. He tried to frighten the insurgent Democrats out of their opposition to his patronage demands and at the same time ridicule the Republican party.

The amazing inconsistencies of the President are the chief subject of discussion in Washington tonight. His praise of the Interstate Trade Commission is regarded as particularly significant. In the first place his announcement, as a new thing, that the commission had been endowed with all the powers of a tariff commission is not likely to prove much of a sensation. The tariff board, which was created under the Taft administration, made exhaustive reports on cotton, wool and other schedules, but when the Democrats were revising the tariff they paid no attention to the scientific information submitted by that board and legislated it out of existence by refusing to make further appropriations for the board.

In the second place, Mr. Wilson, as a candidate for the Presidency, said that he objected to the Progressive party's program because it favored a trade or business commission and he did not propose "to have any commission playing province" to him. He was against commissions. Now he is for them. The Democratic party took the currency plan of former Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island and called it the Federal reserve act, and yet the President said in his speech that the Republican party has not had an original idea in 30 years. The President frequently has praised the Sherman anti-trust law, which was made by a Republican Congress, and as a matter of fact the only things which the Democrats themselves have originated have brought distress to business.

All these things especially the attack upon leaders of the Republican party, have served the purpose of stiffening this opposition to the bill providing for government ownership of ships which is now pending in the Senate. This is the bill which President Wilson says he is most anxious to have passed and to which he devoted most attention in his Indianapolis speech.

Democrats as well as Republicans say that the President felt that he was playing his big political card in his Indianapolis speech, but that it proved to be a deuce. Certainly it was known that he was a candidate for re-election, but his speech is considered as making even more unlikely that he will reach the goal of his ambition. He will be renominated, without doubt, but his speech indicates that he realizes that so far as re-election is concerned his situation and the situation of his disgruntled party is desperate.

Missionary Couple Return to India.

Rev. J. M. Pittenger, wife and two children, who had been visitining Mrs. Pittenger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baker of Casselman, says the Meyersdale Republican, sailed on the steamship Arabic for Liverpool last week to go thence by rail to London, where they will board a ship for Bombay, India, probably sailing via the Cape of Good Hope to avoid meeting hostile warships or running into floating mines strewn in the path of British ships by enemies of the Mistress of the Seas.

Rev. and Mrs Pittinger are missionaries of the Church of the Brethren in India. They returned to this country over a year ago on a furlough, intending to return to India last October, but the European war made it unsafe to leave at that time. The general missionary board finally consented to their departure and they are now on their long voyage.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baker accompanied them from their home to Meyersdale to see them off for New York. They remained over night at the home of J. M. Gnagey, and were accompanied back to Maryland Monday afternoon by Rev. W. M. Howe and Rev. H. S. Replogle, of Scalp Level, who were on their way to conduct a bible institute at Maple Grove, three miles south of Grantsville, which opened Tuesday evening and continued until Thursday night. Rev. Replogle took the place of Rev. George E. Yoder of Elk Lick on the program, the latter being quarantined on account of his children having scarlet fever in a mild form.

High School Notes.

Last Friday evening the girl's basket ball team played Kingwood high school at Kingwood, the game resulted in a 11-8 victory for Oakland. The game was one of the fastest and most interesting ever played by Cakland, and there was very little rough playing done by either team. The players on both sides were well matched, and all the players showed good team work.

After the game the Kingwood girls entertained the visitors at an oyster supper at the Jenkins Hotel. The festivities continued until after midnight, when the party retired for the night. The Oakland girls returned home Saturday on No 16.

Maryland Convicts Earn Money.

Convicts in the Maryland Penitentiary for the year ended November 30, says the Democratic Advocate, earned for themselves by performing overtasks $377,975,79, according to a report made to the board of directors of the institution at its annual meeting by Warden John F. Leonard. The earnings of the institution through the prison shops were $149,902.75, while its disbursements for all purposes were $149,002.97, the directors returning to the state treausry $896.76 The amount returned to the state is more than twice that given in 1913.

SLAV KILLED LAST NIGHT.

Road Worker Met Death On Railroad By Being Struck by Train No. 1.

Last night a Slav workman, employed on the State Road leading from Oakland through the Weber farm, was struck by train No. 1 and killed, his body being knocked from the track and thrown into a snow drift alongside the westbound track where it was discovered by the crew of a freight train following No. 1 an hour or two later.

The man had been in town all the evening making purchases of groceries and bread. He left the Lauer Bakery shortly after ten o'clock and started down the railroad track from Second street which was the last seen of him.

LIBERTY BELL CRACK BIGGER.

Lengthening of Break Leads to Fear It Cannot Be Moved in Safety.

[From the Philadelphia Inquirer.]

The crack in the Liberty Bell has been enlarged, and in the fear that the priceless relic may become more seriously damaged, even if it does not actually fall apart, four motor-car jacks have been placed under it in order to relieve, in some measure, the strain on the hanging support at the top. Each jack has a supporting capacity of four tons, and heavy felt pads have been put between the jacks and the bell, so that the metal will not be jarred by the slightest tremor.

City officials are alarmed at the continual enlargment of the crack. Microscopic examinations and mathematical measurements have established the fact that the new crack, extending from the top of the old crack, has increased in length, until it now reaches diagonally around about one-quarter of the bell's circumference. A gradual widening of the new crack also has been noticed.

The authorities say they are convinced that the projected trip of the Liberty Bell to the Panama-Pacific Exposition would be fatal. If the bell goes to the Coast it is certain, they add, that it will be returned in pieces.

In order to get our outstanding accounts in shape for this dissolution we will not do a general credit business during the year 1915. To accommodrte those of our customers, however, who can make prompt settlement at the end of the year, and especially our FARMER customers who want to do a trading business we will issue trade money in amounts of $5.00 and up.

This trade money can be used in the same manner as though you were spending cash, and will remove most of the bookkeeping work and cut out any possibility of mistakes.

Respectfully,

DIXON & KELSO.

PICTURES SENT THROUGH AIR

Only by Prolonged Attention to Minute Detail Has System Been Brought to Perfection.

The announcement that it will soon be possible to transmit pictures by wireless has been received with doubt in some scientific organs. Nevertheless the sending of pictures by air is a legitimate development of the transmission of pictures by the telegraph wire, according to London Engineering. Both processes are no doubt mysterious to the lay mind. To send pictures by wire is the simpler of the two, though in actual operation beset with difficulties. Only by prolonged attention to minute detail and by most skilled effort on the part of instrument makers has the system been brought to a degree of perfection that justifies its commercial exploitation.

A photograph to be sent by wire on what is called the telectrograph is first printed upon a thin sheet of lead. By means of a "screen" and camera such as are in general use in photo-engraving, the image is resolved into a series of lines. These lines are formed in the lead foil by a pigmented glue, which is not a conductor of electricity. Eventually they are pressed down into the foil. This foil, with its image, is then wrapped around a revolving cylinder similar in principle to that of the phonograph. In place of the phonograph needle, however, is an iridum stylus or pen, which travels lightly over the revolving image. As long as the pen traverses the plain tin foil an electric current passes along the wire connected with the pen; but the moment the pen traverses the glue line forming the image the current is broken. Consequently, when the cylinder revolves at high speed a series of momentary currents will be produced in the wire leading from the pen.—Current Literature.

CURRENT FOR MEDICAL USE

Small Electric Transformer Arranged to Fit Any Light Socket and Easily Regulated.

A small electric transformer which may be attached to any light socket, just like a lamp, is made for use with direct or alternating current. This makes a very handy device for transforming the commercial current for medical purposes.

The illustration shows the outfit with the different electrodes furnished.

The current may be regulated in very small variations by the simple movement up or down of the small knob shown in the center of cylindrical part. There are no shocks connected with the use of the device. The resistance wire which regulates the strength of the current is wound on a porcelain base.

With direct current this device supplies a current as strong as derived from thirty to forty cells. With alternating current it gives as much current as the large and expensive outfits.

The device will give on direct current from one to twenty-five milliampers of current either through the metal handles or through the sponges. For ordinary medical treatment only ten to fifteen milliampers are usually required.

As the device is less than five inches long and weighs but ten ounces it can readily be carried in the pocket or traveling bag. It is made of the best grade materials and the case is heavily nickel plated.

ELECTRICAL NOTES

An expert's recent estimate placed the mileage of the world's telephone wires at 29,566,000.

Telephone operators in Egypt are required to speak English, French, Italian, Greek and Arabic.

The British post office has adopted the night-lettergram service for telegraph lines in the British Isles.

The busiest time in all the year in the telephone exchange is the tenth or eleventh day before Christmas.

A wireless station is being built at London which is expected to provide direct communication with New York.

Electric lamps for use in mines were first designed for rescue work, but now they are extensively used by the miners.

Storm warnings are now sent to sea by wireless so that vessels may be prepared for violent changes in the weather.

An electric process will detect accurately minute particles of bichromate of potash in solution. It is of value in chemistry and was discovered by a Parisian.

All business houses and dwellings in the city of Stavanger, Norway, will be heated by electricity derived from a nearby waterfall if present plans are carried out.

A new electric truck of unusual length is equipped with eight wheels, each with a separate motor, and so arranged that the rear four turn automatically with the forward four in steering.

SCIENCE and INVENTION

FOR WRAPPING SMALL COINS

Paper Tube Closed at Bottom and Folding Flaps at Top Intended to Aid Bank Clerks.

A little device which will save bank clerks a great deal of time is the coin package invented by a New York man. With this the clerk will simply drop, say $5 worth of dimes, into the receptacle and close the top. There will be no rolling the coins up in a flat piece of paper and closing both ends. The device here shown consists of a paper tube closed at one end with the open end slightly enlarged and having two projecting wings. The requisite number of coins is dropped into the tube, it is given a sharp tap on the desk to settle them all evenly and the wings are bent inward and the top turned down to close the package. The wings and top flap can be gummed if desired, but this is not necessary.

NEW AID FOR PHOTOGRAPHER

Trouble of Getting Right Exposure of Plate Eliminated by English Manufacturer.

To the amateur photographer the great bugaboo in his work is arriving at the proper exposure of the plate. With most of the snapshot cameras now in use this is impossible, as they are adjusted for an average exposure; but the trouble is experienced when he comes to the point of making time exposures. This trouble has been met by an English manufacturing firm by the addition of certain chemicals to the sensitive emulsion of the plate or film which makes over-exposure impossible. This is particularly valuable in inside work, where the brilliantly illuminated portion of the room near the window calls for a short exposure and the darker parts for much more, and in this case it is impossible to expose for the shadow parts without overdoing the lighter portions. An exposure of forty times that of normal is permissible, and the plates developed in the ordinary manner; but where, for any reason, the exposure has been greater than that, a special developer is recommended.

DATES REVOLVE ON HANDLE

Calendar Pen, Intended Especially for Forgetful Business Man, Recently Put on Market.

An ingenious device, and one that will be useful to the forgetful business man, is the calendar pen, invented by an Illinois man. If the user wants to know the date of the month, all he has to do is to consult the handle of the pen and find it there. The handle has a barrel revolving on it and a calendar in the barrel. Of course, it must be set each day, but that can be done by the office boy, whose memory in some matters, notably the batting average of the big leagues, is marvelous. The dates of the thirty-one days are mounted on a series of rings on the handle of the pen and the barrel has openings trough which the right date can be seen when the calendar is set. By means of a locking device there is no possibility of the barrel turning to show the wrong figures.

Convertible Coat.

Frank P. Matthews of Baltimore has just received a patent for a convertible coat. It can be worn in the daytime as a frock coat or a cutaway and can be changed into an evening coat, or swallowtail in a few moments.

Little Problems of Married Life

By William George Jordan

[Copyright, 1910, by Fleming H. Revell company.]

II.—Respect For Each Other's Individuality.

TRUE marriage is the consecrated comradeship of husband and wife, made permanent by love and mutual respect. It is the harmonizing of two individualities in a common interest, not the sacrifice of one to the other. The suppression of the individuality of either endangers the real happiness of both. With the insistence of either to be first, matrimony ceases to be a team and becomes a tandem.

When the husband constantly plays barometer to his wife's weather, when she is the voice and he the echo, when she is the substance and he the shadow, it is not a true copartnership. He is merely the junior member of the firm, having his name on the sign and holding the post of cashier, but with no voice in the management. He is really suffering from anaemia of the individuality. He needs to develop a few red corpuscles of self respect and protest; he should cease to be merely a minority stockholder in her thinking; he should rebel against the phonographic instinct of speaking only what has been talked into him.

They tell us that husband and wife are one, but it is a parody on unity if either wants to be that one. It would be as foolish as if the hour hand or the minute hand were to claim supreme importance in the matter of telling the time. Their united action is based on perfected individuality in unison; it means harmony, not competition.

If the wife be afraid to give expression to her thoughts, her views or her opinions merely because she never quite knows how he will take them, there is something wrong with both. If she automatically looks up at her husband, reading his emotions in his face, like an engineer with his eye on the steam gauge, to see if her tentative words meet a nod of approval or a storm cloud of protest, she has not the courage of her individuality nor the self respect that compels its recognition. Her attitude reveals a cowardly fear that is beneath the dignity of wifehood. It is unjust to one, therefore unjust to both.

If she has to meet him ever with conscious tact, if she has to look out ever for storm signals of a change in his mood, if she lives in constant terror of offending him at any moment by touching inadvertently the sore thumb of a prejudice, and has to go round ever with an oil can to lubricate the bearings of his self approval, she should heed the warning of the alarm clock of her injured self respect and waken to the realization that she is desecratingly unjust to her own individuality.

Love may survive this disrespect, but it is not fed by it; love may persist for a time in spite of it, but never because of it. It is a mortgage on love that must be removed or that love will finally be wiped out on foreclosure proceedings in the name of the outworn patience of the heart.

Perfect unity on essentials means that on the broad questions of their common life there is unanimity of view, a solid rock foundation of happiness and trust that no minor differences can threaten for a moment. Perfect freedom in nonessentials means that it is not absolutely necessary for husband and wife to like the same book, the same picture, the same play, place or person, if each has the proper respect for the honesty of the other's view, and confidence in the other's willingness to change that view if shown proper reason for so doing.

With two living together in the closeness of day by day companionship there are sometimes little traits of character, little peculiarities of temperament, little phases of disposition, little habits in word or look or act in the one that jar and fret and chafe the nature of the other. They form no part of individuality; they are but acquired eccentricity that it should be a joy to master and control merely because the sweetness and deference implied in the act of changing are tributes to the other. It is love illuminating

Illiteracy in United States Doomed.

Illiteracy in the United States is doomed. Statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Education for use at the Panama-Pacific Exposition show that of children from 10 to 14 years of age there were in 1910 only 22 out of every 1,000 who could neither read nor write. In 1900 there were of the same class 42 per 1,000. If reduction in illiteracy is still proceeding at even the same rate, the illiterate children in this country between the ages of 10 and 14, inclusive, now number not more than 15 out of every 1,000.

From the standpoint of proportional reduction of illiteracy Oklahoma leads all the states of the Union. It 1900 this state had 124 illiterate children of the ages named. In 1910, New Hampshire reduced from four to one; New Jersey from seven to two; Missouri from 35 to 11; Montana from three to one; Oregon from three to one; Vermont from six to two; New Mexico from 182 to 69, and Idaho from five to two.

The following states report only one child in 1,000 between the ages of 10 and 14 as illiterate: Connecticut, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

Some of the states have reduced their illiteracy by one-half or a little more. These states are Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, North Dakota, Tennessee, Utah and West Virginia.

Prospects Rosy For Republicans.

An exhaustive review of the November elections, issued at Republican National Committee headquarters, over the signature of Secretary James B. Reynolds, says, in part:

"The result of the elections of November last proves three very important political facts:

"First, the Republicans carried upon national issues states that would give a clear majority in the electoral college and elect a Republican President.

"Second, the Democratic majority in the next House is only the result of the Progressive vote in certain districts of the country and the Democrats will be a minority party in the House of Representatives.

"Third, two-thirds of the Progressive vote of 1912 has not only ceased to support third party candidates, but has returned to the support of Republican principles and candidates.

"This is the story that is told by the official figures of the last election just compiled by the Republican National Committee."

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 17, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Judg. vi, 11-16, 33-40—Memory Verses, 14-16—Golden Text, Ps. lxv, 4—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

I often read what I copied from one of Dr. Andrew Murray's Bibles in his study in Wellington, South Africa, in August, 1898: "The central thought of this book is God. Its one object is to reveal God—His glory, His will, His love. In reading it our chief desire ought to be to know God." I am reminded of this as I read carefully our lesson chapter and note in these forty verses some name of the Deity forty-four times (LORD or GOD, 27; God, 7; Lord, 2; Spirit, 1; Angel, 7). Thus the sin of Israel draws forth the love and grace of God and this time in connection with a great deliverance through a seemingly very weak man called Gideon.

The chapter opens with the oft repeated saying, "The children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord." This led to great oppression by the Midianites for seven years. Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and He saved them out of their distresses (verses 1, 6; Ps. cvii, 6, 13, 19, 28). In our lesson verses, 7-10, He reminded them by a prophet of how He had brought them out of Egypt and planted them in this good land, warning them against any fellowship with the people of the land, but they disobeyed His voice (chapter ii, 1, 2). He calls us still to separation from this evil age unto Himself, but the god of this age, the devil, who also ruled the inhabitants of the land He gave to Israel, is still blinding and deceiving the people of God and running the so called church for his own ends, and those who are willing to see Jesus only and follow Him fully are comparatively few.

Since Adam sinned God has been patiently and persistently seeking man, and mankind has been as persistently, under the power of the devil, turning away from God. God has myriads of angels who delight to do His will, but He never had but one man wholly and utterly at His disposal and under His control. Many redeemed men and women have been in greater or less degree yielded to Him, but none absolutely except the Son of Mary, the Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ. We have already read in this book of Judges of His selection of Othniel, Ehud, Shamgar, Deborah and Barak, and now His choice falls upon Gideon of the tribe of Manasseh, whom He visits in person and talks with him as a man with his friend.

These appearances of God in human form before He came as the Son of Mary are some of the most fascinating as well as the most profitable of Bible studies. In each instance it is the Son of God whom we see, whose goings forth have been from of old, from the days of eternity (Mic. v, 2, margin), for "no man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son * * * hath declared Him" (John i, 18). The glory of God can be seen only in Christ (II Cor. iv, 6). We are more likely to have special manifestations of God when about our ordinary work rather than when we go aside to seek such. Gideon was thrashing wheat (verse 11); Moses was keeping sheep, as were also the Bethlehem shepherds; Elisha was in the field plowing; Zacharias was ministering as usual, and Mary of Nazareth was probably about her household duties. How beautiful and wonderful the words from the Lord to Gideon: "The Lord is with thee. Go in this thy might, have not I sent thee. Surely I will be with thee."

Gideon's seeming unwillingness and probably his conscious unworthiness (verse 15) remind us of Moses and Jeremiah (Ex. iii, 11; iv, 10; Jer. i, 6) and show us the Lord's difficulty in finding willing instruments. The Lord's encouragements to these three and to others were written for us that we may not hold back as they did. It is never a question of what we are or can do, but only and always, Who is He, and what can He do? The incident of verses 17-24, the Lord tarrying while Gideon prepared the kid and the unleavened cakes, reminds us of the Lord and the two angels waiting for Abraham and Sarah's preparation, but in that case they ate the food; in this it was consumed by fire, while in the incident of Manoah, the father of Samson, the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame which consumed the offering (Gen. xviii, 8; Judg. vi, 6-21; xiii, 19, 20).

Gideon's readiness when encouraged by this sign is seen in his fearless destruction of his father's altar to Baal. It is refreshing to see Joash stand with his son in this matter and to hear him say concerning Baal, "If he be a god let him plead for himself" (verses 25 to 32). If we would be used of God we must break with all idolatry and serve only the living and true God. There must be no conformity unto or compromise with the world lying in the wicked one. As the spirit of the Lord clothed Himself with Gideon (verse 34, margin), so He will use us if we are whole hearted. The three signs granted to Gideon, the two of the fleece (36-40) and the one of the offering, remind us of the three signs granted to Moses (Ex. iv, 1-9). Our one only sign is the crucified and risen Christ (Gal. vi, 14).

Illiteracy in United States Doomed.

Illiteracy in the United States is doomed. Statistics compiled by the United States Bureau of Education for use at the Panama-Pacific Exposition show that of children from 10 to 14 years of age there were in 1910 only 22 out of every 1,000 who could neither read nor write. In 1900 there were of the same class 42 per 1,000. If reduction in illiteracy is still proceeding at even the same rate, the illiterate children in this country between the ages of 10 and 14, inclusive, now number not more than 15 out of every 1,000.

From the standpoint of proportional reduction of illiteracy Oklahoma leads all the states of the Union. It 1900 this state had 124 illiterate children of the ages named. In 1910, New Hampshire reduced from four to one; New Jersey from seven to two; Missouri from 35 to 11; Montana from three to one; Oregon from three to one; Vermont from six to two; New Mexico from 182 to 69, and Idaho from five to two.

The following states report only one child in 1,000 between the ages of 10 and 14 as illiterate: Connecticut, District of Columbia, Massachasetts, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

Some of the states have reduced their illiteracy by one-half or a little more. These states are Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, North Dakota, Tennessee, Utah and West Virginia.

Prospects Rosy For Republicans.

An exhaustive review of the November elections, issued at Republican National Committee headquarters, over the signature of Secretary James B. Reynolds, says, in part:

"The result of the elections of November last proves three very important political facts:

"First, the Republicans carried upon national issues states that would give a clear majority in the electoral college and elect a Republican President.

"Second, the Democratic majority in the next House is only the result of the Progressive vote in certain districts of the country and the Democrats will be a minority party in the House of Representatives.

"Third, two-thirds of the Progressive vote of 1912 has not only ceased to support third party candidates, but has returned to the support of Republican principles and candidates.

"This is the story that is told by the official figures of the last election just compiled by the Republican National Committee."

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 17, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Judg. vi, 11-16, 33-40—Memory Verses, 14-16—Golden Text, Ps. lxv, 4—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

I often read what I copied from one of Dr. Andrew Murray's Bibles in his study in Wellington, South Africa, in August, 1898: "The central thought of this book is God. Its one object is to reveal God—His glory, His will, His love. In reading it our chief desire ought to be to know God." I am reminded of this as I read carefully our lesson chapter and note in these forty verses some name of the Deity forty-four times (LORD or GOD, 27; God, 7; Lord, 2; Spirit, 1; Angel, 7). Thus the sin of Israel draws forth the love and grace of God and this time in connection with a great deliverance through a seemingly very weak man called Gideon.

The chapter opens with the oft repeated saying, "The children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord." This led to great oppression by the Midianites for seven years. Then they cried unto the Lord in their trouble, and He saved them out of their distresses (verses 1, 6; Ps. cvii, 6, 13, 19, 28). In our lesson verses, 7-10, He reminded them by a prophet of how He had brought them out of Egypt and planted them in this good land, warning them against any fellowship with the people of the land, but they disobeyed His voice (chapter ii, 1, 2). He calls us still to separation from this evil age unto Himself, but the god of this age, the devil, who also ruled the inhabitants of the land He gave to Israel, is still blinding and deceiving the people of God and running the so called church for his own ends, and those who are willing to see Jesus only and follow Him fully are comparatively few.

Since Adam sinned God has been patiently and persistently seeking man, and mankind has been as persistently, under the power of the devil, turning away from God. God has myriads of angels who delight to do His will, but He never had but one man wholly and utterly at His disposal and under His control. Many redeemed men and women have been in greater or less degree yielded to Him, but none absolutely except the Son of Mary, the Son of God, the Lord Jesus Christ. We have already read in this book of Judges of His selection of Othniel, Ehud, Shamgar, Deborah and Barak, and now His choice falls upon Gideon of the tribe of Manasseh, whom He visits in person and talks with him as a man with his friend.

These appearances of God in human form before He came as the Son of Mary are some of the most fascinating as well as the most profitable of Bible studies. In each instance it is the Son of God whom we see, whose goings forth have been from of old, from the days of eternity (Mic. v, 2, margin), for "no man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son * * * hath declared Him" (John i, 18). The glory of God can be seen only in Christ (II Cor. iv, 6). We are more likely to have special manifestations of God when about our ordinary work rather than when we go aside to seek such. Gideon was thrashing wheat (verse 11); Moses was keeping sheep, as were also the Bethlehem shepherds; Elisha was in the field plowing; Zacharias was ministering as usual, and Mary of Nazareth was probably about her household duties. How beautiful and wonderful the words from the Lord to Gideon: "The Lord is with thee. Go in this thy might, have not I sent thee. Surely I will be with thee."

Gideon's seeming unwillingness and probably his conscious unworthiness (verse 15) remind us of Moses and Jeremiah (Ex. iii, 11; iv, 10; Jer. i, 6) and show us the Lord's difficulty in finding willing instruments. The Lord's encouragements to these three and to others were written for us that we may not hold back as they did. It is never a question of what we are or can do, but only and always, Who is He, and what can He do? The incident of verses 17-24, the Lord tarrying while Gideon prepared the kid and the unleavened cakes, reminds us of the Lord and the two angels waiting for Abraham and Sarah's preparation, but in that case they ate the food; in this it was consumed by fire, while in the incident of Manoah, the father of Samson, the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame which consumed the offering (Gen. xviii, 8; Judg. vi, 6-21; xiii, 19, 20).

Gideon's readiness when encouraged by this sign is seen in his fearless destruction of his father's altar to Baal. It is refreshing to see Joash stand with his son in this matter and to hear him say concerning Baal, "If he be a god let him plead for himself" (verses 25 to 32). If we would be used of God we must break with all idolatry and serve only the living and true God. There must be no conformity unto or compromise with the world lying in the wicked one. As the spirit of the Lord clothed Himself with Gideon (verse 34, margin), so He will use us if we are whole hearted. The three signs granted to Gideon, the two of the fleece (36-40) and the one of the offering, remind us of the three signs granted to Moses (Ex. iv, 1-9). Our one only sign is the crucified and risen Christ (Gal. vi, 14).

THURSDAY JANUARY 15, 1915.

REPEAL of tariff law, war tax, Federal employment bureau, are samples of Wilson's administration.

THE death rate for last year in the United States was 13.8 to each one thousand of estimated population.

AMERICA: Land of charity and benevolence; all nations in time of trouble and disaster have experienced its heartfelt sympathy, and wondered at the richness of its generous gifts.

NEWSPAAERS induce reading; reading stimulates thought; throught promotes activity; activity creates wealth; wealth brings ease; and ease is a stepping stone to happiness. This is a newspaper. Tell your neighbors about it.

THE Democratic national platform in 1912 pledged economy, yet the Democratic administration spent $100,000,000 more last year than had ever been spent by any previous administration. Was that what the Democratic platform meant?"

EDITOR Cleavor of Somerset Democrat is indignant that "not a preacher, deacon, elder, missionary, good christian (except Isaac Jones) was interested in the salvation of the people in the jail at Somerset last year." He also says, "no one called; no one gave a book, magazine, tract, or a word of encouragement."

THE advertisements of Offutt & Sons and Dixon & Kelso, in this paper last week were the talk of this community. Such advertisements cannot help but attract attention and create business. It is the method pursued by the great mail order houses, but the offer made should hold good for at least ten days after the date given for the sale, so as to give customers at distant points opportunity to avail themselves of the proposition.

THE Cumberland Times is a dyed in the wool Democratic paper. Here is what it says about President Wilson's Labor Employment Bureau:

Much as conservative people may respect the present President of the United States there are many, especially in the Democratic party, who will regard with disgust rather than enthusiasm, this pro-communistic movement. And what good can it do?

With the greatest respect for many things the present Congress and executive of the nation have done, there are many thoughtful citizens who will pray that if they have no better employment for themselves than organizing national bureaus for hunting jobs, they will speedily take a vacation.

A PLEASANT picture to look at and contemplate, is the word picture of James A. McDonald, in the American Review of Reviews. It is "Four Thousand Miles." A thousand miles up the mighty St Lawrence river, a thousand miles along the Great Lakes, a thousand miles across the open prairie, a thousand miles over a sea of mountains—4,000 miles where nation meets nation and sovereignty meets sovereignty, but never a fotress, never a battleship, never a gun, never a sentinel on guard! Four thousand miles of civilized and christianalized internationism—that is North American's greatest achievement. Canada and the United States a beautiful picture of peace and brotherhood. May it always be so.

THE European war is causing American manufacturing plants to become very busy in supplying the demands of war times. The following are just a few items showing the cost of the war.

Orders for 65,000 tons of high-carbonized steel rounds appears in the Pittsburgh district—50,000 tons for France and 15,000 tons for Russia. Recently 29,000 tons of this grade of steel, used in making shrapnel shells, were shipped to Europe.

Orders from the allies for hospital supplies have been pouring in on one Philadelphia manufacturing establishment in such volume—one order for five tons of aseptic cotton, cotton gauze and bandages was received recently.

It is estimated that full $6,000,000 worth of trenching tools, galvanized sheets, wire and projectile steel have been bought in Pittsburgh for the European belligerents in the last two months.

"FOUR kings greeted President Wilson on New Year's day." Couldn't have been a poker game or we would have heard how much the pot amounted to.

HEALTH hints: never sing "The Wearing of The Green" at a Dutch joy feast; never ask for an orange phosphate on St. Patrick's day.

THE electric railways of the United States in the year 1912 carried 12,135,341,716 passengers and gave employment to 252,461 persons at a cost of $200,890,939. There are 1,260 street and electric railways in this country, capitalized at $4,708,568,141.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by General Manager J. B. Hanford, of the Elkins Coal & Coke company that his company has just closed up a contract of twenty year's duration to furnish the Lehigh Coal company, of South Bethlehem, Pa., 600,000 tons of coal each year.

BETTER TIMES VISTA.

The Baltimore American in its issue of last Tuesday has this to say of the business outlook:

As surely as the sun follows the storm the era of better times is dawning for the United States. The great purchases of war materials and food supplies in this country, incident to the strife abroad, has had a vitalizing effect. The field of manufacturing development is being enthusiastically entered. The diverting of products that formerly went to some of the countries now difficult to reach are being directed to other markets. The United States is in a position of adjustment of its industries and the direction of its exports. All this takes time. But it is a part of the tremendous upgrade impulse that is in progress.

Despite Democratic misdemeanors the country feels a better times outlook. It is the vista of the return of the Republican party to power. The country is not interested in the Republican party as such. It is interested in the record of that party and its power to duplicate that record for bringing about prosperity through the logical policies for which it stands.

Hence the better times vista. It is the vista of great crops. It is a vista of new products and new markets. It is a vista of the close of the war and all the rest of the world turning to the United States to bring its powers of rehabitation to bear. America leads the world today. Free from war; free from its calamities, free from its most serious consequences; free to work out its own destinies, to harvest its crops, to promote its business—it will be ready at the close of the war to reap the harvest of phenomenal prosperity from the war-prostrated, but vitally energetic, powers of Europe.

MORE TAXES COMING.

The Philadelphia Inquirer says: In a semi-official statement given out by the administration it appears that there is not money enough at present in sight to warrant doing anything to increase the Army and Navy. But we are asked to perk up, because next year increased taxation will be laid and we can be protected.

This is anything but cheerful news. Here we have in times of profound peace a war tax of $1,000,000,000 or so, and it is intimated that next year the amount must be doubled or trebled, so that we can go to bed and sleep soundly. It is hardly necessary to repeat for the fiftieth time that the alleged war tax is a mere subterfuge to cover the failure of the administration to raise money because of its low tariff duties. There are plenty of ways in which the administration may economize, but nothing of the sort is likely to happen. We shall continue to pay extra taxes when we ought to be living comfortably under sane protective laws.

Of course, we must have national protection at any cost, new taxes or not. But we do not think the people will again submit to an administration which has made such a fist of financial management.

Fire at Deer Park.

Thursday night the barn of Calvin Browning, Deer Park was consumed by fire, with the contents, consisting of feed and grain. He succeeded in getting his horses out. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Browning had $150 insurance.

W. H. Smith has sold his farm in District No. 7 to Nelson I. Custer, and Mr. Custer has rented his own farm and the one purchased for the term of two years.

J. M. Davis & Sons began the new year by painting the interior of their store room and selling a Davis Patent Steel range. This firm is always doing something. They do not wait for something to turn up. They turn something up, and just keep moving on.

Monday night ten inches of snow fell in this city. All day Tuesday many sleighs and sleds were seen on our streets. The B. & O. Railroad Company had one of their big snow plows at work between Terra Alta and Piedmont. About two inches of snow fell Tuesday night.

Little Boys of Mine*

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

Dear little brown-eyed boys of mine, out in God's acre are sleeping,
There side by side, their tiny forms are laid away to rest;
Safe, sheltered from all harm their souls are in their Father's keeping;
He gave, and took away again, because He deemed it best.

One stayed so short a while, his span of life was all too fleeting;
One morn I asked them for my babe; oh, anguished heart, too late!
Another year, and like a bird against it's cage-bars beating,
The other little soul had flown aloft to seek its mate.

How oft I think of my dear boys when thus the past reviewing,
Two sturdy, manly lads they'd be, were they but with me now—
Eager and brave to choose the right in thinking and in doing.
Their hearts filled with faith and trust and God to teach them how.

Be still! be still! sad heart of mine! why are you filled with sorrow?
You know that through green pastures to your dear ones He will lead you—

But oh, dear brown-eyed boys of mine, I need you, how I need you!

William Michaels, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, and Addie Conn, Plaintiffs, vs. William R. Offutt, Administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, and Joseph Metz or his unknown heirs at law, if any, Defendants.

No. 1917 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree directing the distribution of the personal estate of Maria Groves, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased among the plaintiffs and defendants, Jrseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, according to their respective rights and interests therein.

The amended bill states, that on January 22d, 1914, the plaintiffs, William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel and Sarah Evans, filed their bill of complaint in this cause against William R. Offutt, administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, praying among other things that the personal estate of the said decedent might be brought into equity and administered under the direction of this Court, and that the plaintiffs, by the decree of this Court, might be declared the only heirs at law of the said decedent and entitled to her said estate, and that the defendant answered the said bill and certain testimony was taken on the part of the plaintiffs, and that the plaintiffs now charge by way of amendment to their original bill of complaint, and the same so appears from the testimony already taken in this cause, that the said Maria Groves had another brother, a certain Harmon Michaels who departed this life at Wellsville, Ohio, February 17th, 1912, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law, Mary Michaels, his widow and Edward W. Michaels a son, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn, his daughters all of whom are of full age, and that it further appears from said testimony, that Cathrine Fazenbaker, the mother of the said Maria Groves, prior to her marriage to Luther Butt, spoken of in said testimoney, had either married or cohabited with one William Metz, by whom she had three children, to wit: Lewis Metz, Susan Metz and Joseph Metz; that the said Lewis Metz and Susan Metz are both dead, without issue, and that the last heard of Joseph Metz, thirty-five or more years ago, he was living in Elk County, Pennsylvania, and according to the information of some of the witnesses, the said Joseph Metz was then married, and that by an order of this Court upon the petition of the said original plaintiffs, the said Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn have been made parties plaintiff to this cause, and as the only heirs at law of the said Harmon Michaels are entitled to participate in the estate of the said Maria Groves along with her other heirs at law, and that the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, have also been made parties defendant to this cause, and leave has been granted to the plaintiff to publish an order of publication against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, giving them notice of the object and substance of this amended bill of complaint, and that the said Maria Groves departed this life intestate on or about the 23d day of April 1913, in Oakland, Maryland, and that the said William R. Offutt was duly appointed administrator of her personal estate, and qualified as such, but that no distribution of said estate has been made by said administration, and that William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, Addie Conn and Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, are the only heirs at law of the said Maria Groves, deceased, and the only persons legally entitled to participate in the distribution of her estate after the payment of her just debts and funeral expenses by the said administrator, who has denied and repudiated their several claims of heirship to his said decedent, wherefore, it becomes necessary for them to resort to this Court for the purpose of having their said respective claims adjudicated, and their heirship to the said Maria Groves established by its decree.

The bill then prays that the said administrator may answer this amendment, and that an order of publication be granted against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, who are non-residents of this State giving notice to them of the object and substance of this bill and warning them to be and appear in this Court, either in person or by solicitor, on some certain day to be therein named, and to abide by and perform such order or decree as maybe passed in the premises.

It is there upon this 29th day of December, 1914, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiffs by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of January, 1915, give notice to the said absent defendant or defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning him or them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of February next, to show cause, if any, he or they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

What Is True There Is Also True Here.

Criss and Brown have this to say of Terra Alta:

Sun-kissed by the first beams of the Morning and held in the last lingering embrace of the God of Day; fanned by soft zephyrs, laden with life-giving ozone, and again caught by the Wind Spirits of the Mountain Storm; set as a beautiful stone in a setting of surpassing gradeur and magnificent proportions on the very crest of the Alleghenies; with her paved streets, electric lights, gas fuel, a complete waterworks system, furnishing Nature's own nectar in its sparkling purity; her enterprising populace, loyal to their pretty mountain home; her commercial interests well taken care of by her business men, her merchants, bankers and others of diversified occupations; and by reason of her location on the main trunk line of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. with its triple track and fast and frequent trains—this is Terra Alta of today.

Tributary to her success is the surrounding country. Rich, fertile farms, owned and operated by an honest mountain yeomanry who have become awake to the wonderful resources of the soil, producing magnificent crops of cereals, fruits and tubers, and with cattle and horses on a thousand hills.

With climate and soil and transportation; with good roads reaching all sections of the county; with all needed conditions unsurpassed—with years added to the span of life because of the bracing climate, no malaria, no asthma, no tuberculosis, but with these years, added pleasures and profit; with good churches of all denominations, ably cared for by faithful pastors, and good public and high schools; with all these and innumerable other advantages, we ask you to try us and prove us, and we offer the opportunity in city or farm property, in any amounts, suited to the financial circumstances of any, be their means abundant or modest.

Simply fine. Just splendid and it is all right. What's true in this respect is also true of Oakland.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE HAS TEST TODAY

House Will Vote on Resolution Before Adjournment

BILL'S DEFEAT IS PREDICTED

Policy of Progression Is Adopted by Legislators on Matters Pertaining to Navy; Reserve Proposition Passes Committee — Secretary Garrison Would Not Enforce Polygamy Laws Against Non-Christian Peoples.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Before adjournment tonight the house will take a vote on the Mondell resolution for a constitutional amendment making woman suffrage nationwide.

Supporters and opponents flocked into Washington last night and this morning and today's session of the house promises to be as spectacular as was the day recently when the prohibition resolution came to a test vote and was defeated.

Majority Leader Underwood and Chairman Henry of the rules committee, both opposed to suffrage, want the question out of the way so far as the Sixty-third congress is concerned.

As was the case with the Hobson prohibition resolution, they are willing for the Democratic membership of the house to go on record for or against votes for women.

That the resolution is destined to defeat by an almost two-thirds majority is the opinion of anti-suffrage members of the house. Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, who will lead the fight for his resolution, disputed this claim but does not contend that he can win.

Progression In Naval Affairs.

That the house committee on naval affairs is developing a more progressive policy toward the navy is indicated by the action taken at a meeting.

By a unanimous vote the committee incorporated a provision in the naval bill authorizing the creation of a naval reserve to be composed of honorably discharged enlisted men. The committee also adopted an amendment creating two new officers in the fighting line of the service, admiral and vice admiral.

Against these concessions to the demand for a larger navy the committee by a vote of 11 to 3 refused to adopt an amendment proposing an addition of 5,000 men to the personnel of the naval service. It also rejected an alternative proposal for the addition of 2,500 men to the enlisted personnel.

In addition to the authorizations placed in the navy bill the house committee adopted other amendments of great importance to the service as follows:

First—An amendment proposing the repeal of that section of the law that created what is known as the "plucking board."

Second—An amendment authorizing the president to restore to the active list eight officers retired during the past year.

Third—An amendment providing a substantial increase in the number of officers in the marine corps.

Fourth—An amendment creating the rank of brigadier general in the marine corps.

Fifth—An amendment that will enable warrant officers to be advanced to the grade of second lieutenant instead of being halted with the rank of ensign as provided by existing law.

Garrison Sides With Filipinos.

Prompt passage of the bill to extend the scope of self-government enjoyed by the Filipinos was urged by Secretary Garrison of the war department as logically the next step in the long recognized policy of the United States toward the islanders. The secretary explained that the present bill, improperly styled an "independence bill," would provide merely for a further test of the Filipino's capacity for self-government.

Responding to questions, Mr. Garrison said from a military standpoint the Philippine islands were a liability not an asset to the United States.

Senator Hitchcock asked Mr. Garrison if he thought the provision of the bill prohibiting polygamy was a wise one. Speaking as a private citizen, Mr. Garrison replied he did not believe in attempting to force such matters on the non-Christians. Nowhere in Christ's sayings, he asserted, was there any word against plural marriages or about the marriage relation, although the israelites had practiced polygamy during Christ's lifetime and for centuries before.

Miscegenation Prohibited.

By a vote of 228 to 60 the house after a lively debate passed a bill prohibiting the intermarriage of white persons and negroes in the District of Columbia. The bill is drastic in its provisions, imposing both fine and imprisonment upon any white or negro who violates the law and inflicting like punishment on any minister or magistrate who performs such a ceremony.

The bill affects other than those who reside in the district. For example, if a white man entered the city with a negro wife the couple would at once be liable to prosecution. The law recognizes as null and void all such marriages whether performed in Washington or not.

BOMB MARS CEREMONY

Fireworks Explosion In Ohio State House Yard—Colonel Zwerner Hurt.

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—A bomb explosion in which Colonel George P. Zwerner of Maryville, superintendent of the state arsenal, was injured, probably fatally, marred the inauguration as governor of former Congressman Frank B. Willis of Ada.

The explosion occurred prematurely while Colonel Zwerner and his aids were setting off bombs in the state house yard in connection with the daylight fireworks' exhibit. The left side of the colonel's face was burned terribly and surgeons say that his skull is fractured.

The bomb which exploded was the first of six set off and it was exploded just as the inaugural parade came into view.

Zwerner's wife and son were in the reviewing stand and witnessed the accident. The fracture of the skull communicates with the internal ear and the surgeons pronounce the officer's condition as grave.

BRITAIN WON'T GIVE UP MAN

Piepenbrink Not an American, English Ambassador Declares.

New York, Jan. 12.—Great Britain has denied the request of Secretary Bryan for the release of August C. H. Piepenbrink, a German sailor taken from an American vessel by the French cruiser Conde in neutral waters and interned in the British detention camp at Jamaica as a prisoner of war.

According to the cable sent to Secretary Bryan by Ambassador Page, the English government maintains that so long as Piepenbrink has not taken out his final citizenship papers the fact that he was arrested on an American ship did not alter the situation. His release, the English authorities say, under the circumstances is impossible.

Last year he took the farmers' short course at Ohio university and this year is taking the course here.

Miners Offer to Buy Workings.

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 12.—The United Mine Workers of America have offered $200,000 for the holdings of the Bache-Denman Coal company in the Hartford valley of Arkansas, it has been known here. It was believed that the deal would be consummated within a few days and thus bring to an end the troubles in the coal mining region.

Philadelphia Jews Raise $46,000 Fund.

Philadelphia, Jan. 12.—Another $20,000 for the relief of their co-religionists in the war zone of Europe was pledged at a meeting of Jews here under the auspices of the Philadelphia branch of the American Jewish Relief association. More than $46,000 has been pledged since the movement was inaugurated last Thursday.

HISTORY OF MASON AND DIXON'S LINE

Prior to Famous Survey the Boundary of Pennsylvania Was Indefinite.

It was 151 years ago Nov. 15 that Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, who were the originals of the famous phrase: "Mason and Dixon's Line," arrived from England.

The story of the running of this line is right interesting. It seems that the King of England owed to one of his admirals nearly $80,000. This Admiral was the father of William Penn, who on the death of the Admiral inherited the claim. King Charles granted in payment of his claim 40,000 square miles of land in America. William Penn sent a petition to the King in June, 1680, asking for his grant of land, and expressing a desire that he be given the territory that was on the northern boundary of Maryland as far as plantable. It was to be bounded on the east by the Delaware River, and it is said that this was the largest grant of land ever made to one man in America. So very large was the tract and so rather indefinite the boundaries that it became the subject of a long series of disputes, and it was over 100 years before the matter of legal boundaries was quite settled.

The first survey to establish the boundary and settle the dispute was made by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon two English surveyors who were brought to this country by the heirs of both parties for that purpose. They arrived in America 151 years ago (Nov. 15, 1763), and began that year the survey, completing it in 1767.

Lord Baltimore had claimed that the 40th degree fell north of Philadelphia, whereas the King in granting it supposed it would fall at the head of Delaware Bay. Penn insisted that the line be fixed where it was supposed to be.

The charter says that the province granted to Penn was to extend five degrees westward from the Delaware river, and "the said land to be bounded on the north by the beginning of the third and fourth degrees of northern latitude, and on the south by a circle drawn at 12 miles distance from New Castle northward and westward unto the beginning of the fortieth degree northern latitude."

Just what the "beginning of the third and fourth," and the "beginning of the fortieth" degree meant was not clear. Penn, finding that the 40th degree fell too far north to give him a harbor on the Chesapeake, contended that the "beginning" of the 40th degree did not mean the 40th degree and he won in part; but it cost him dearly, for although the charter set the boundary at the "beginning of the forty-third degree," which would have thrown it north of Buffalo, it was finally fixed at the forty-second degree.

In 1732 the heirs of Penn and Baltimore signed an agreement that the line between Pennsylvania and Maryland be run due west from the tangent of the western boundary of Delaware, with the arc 12 miles from New Castle. Mason and Dixon surveyed it west for 244 miles, and at the intervals of a mile cut stones were set in the ground; each stone had a large P on the north side and a B on the south side. Every five miles was placed a larger stone, bearing the Pennsylvania coat-of-arms on one side and that of Lord Baltimore on the other. These stones were cut in England and afterward brought to the colonies.

A few of these stones still stand, but time has crumbled many of them; others have been carried away peace-meal by relic hunters, and a few are doing service as steps before the doors of farm houses along the route. The first revision of the survey was made in 1849, when it was found the original survey was substantially correct, and within a few years the route has been gone over and many of the former historic monuments were recovered and put in their proper places.

"Mason and Dixon's line" became the popular name for the boundary between the free and slave states including those west of Maryland and Pennsylvania. In the debates on slavery, before the admission of Missouri, John Randolph used the phrase as figurative of the division between the two systems of labor. The press and the politicians echoed it, and in that connection it was used until the destruction of slavery by the civil war.

Dixon died in Durham, England, in 1777. Mason returned to this country and died in Philadelphia in February, 1787. The journal kept by him while in America was discovered in 1860 in the cellar of the Government house at Halifax.

A New Year's Blaze.

A slight fire which might easily have become a most serious conflagration occurred at the home of Harry A. Schaefer at Grantsville, on New Year's morning, the roof catching fire from the chimney and burning several yards of shingles before help could arrive. Mr. Schaefer had already gone to work and his sister, Mrs. Dan Lohr, who acts in the capacity of house-keeper since the advent of the new baby, discovered the flames and called the neighbors to her assistance. The young mother knew nothing of the danger she was in, as both she and the baby were sleeping and the flames were soon extinguished. Albert Swauger came to their aid by putting a new roof over their heads before evening.

Accidents in State Mines.

The annual report of William Walters, state mining inspector, for the period from May 1, 1913, to May 1, 1914, has been submitted to Governor Goldsborough. There were 163 accidents, of which 17 were fatal, an increase of two fatal and a decrease of 15 non-fatal. Garrett county had one fatal accident. The total production was 4,239,643 tons during 1913, the report covering the tonnage to the end of that year. Of this Garrett county produced 640,897 tons, the balance of the production belonging to Allegany county. The total number of men employed was 5,559, a decrease of 144.

Inspector Walters embodies in his report a historical sketch of the George's Creek Coal region. There is also a picture with a description of the Miner's Hospital in Frostburg.

BIG FIGHT FOR PERTHES

The Only Engagement of Importance Along Whole Battle Line.

London, Jan. 12.—Official accounts of the fighting in the west from Berlin and Paris show that comparative calm prevails except at a few points. Even in upper Alsace and in the Argonne, where there have been violent encounters recently, activity has slackened. Near Soissons and in the vicinity of Perthes, however, spirited engagements are in progress.

The German war office admits that the French have captured trenches north of Soissons toward the western end of the battle line, but states that further onslaughts were repulsed. The French announcement says two more lines of trenches, covering 500 yards of the front, have been occupied. There is a similar disparity of statement concerning the progress of the fighting near Perthes, which has assumed importance because the prize at stake is control of railroads of high strategic value. The French communication states that 200 yards of German trenches were seized, while the German authorities say that positions won by their opponents were retaken.

Should either side gain possession of Perthes the railroad now held by the other lines of communication would be cut and it would be necessary to evacuate trenches for a considerable distance. The Germans realized that danger when the French captured Perthes and brought up large forces in an attempt to regain the lost terrain.

The British idea that operations up to the present are only preparatory to big events fits in with a bit of gossip now heard here. It is to the effect that Lord Kitchener, when asked concerning the probable duration of the war said:

"I don't know when it will end but I do know when it will begin and that is in the month of May."

POLAND CAMPAIGN MYSTERY

Just What Is Going on Not Known Through Official Channels.

London, Jan. 12.—There is considerable mystery both here and in Petrograd as to the actual conditions of the fighting in central Poland along the Bzura-Ravka line and north of the Vistula on the road from Mlawa through Przenysz toward Novogeorgiewsk, the Russian fortress protecting Warsaw on the right flank.

Apparently, the Germans, besides a movement against the Polish capital from the north, are attempting to cross the stretch of undefended territory between the lower Ravka and Warsaw. They have succeeded in making their way across the river a number of times and there has been violent fighting at Sukha, east of Spierniewice, and no appreciable progress has been made.

Military experts profess to be unable to understand the present trend of German tactics, especially since Marshal von Hindenburg is sacrificing a great number of men for no apparent purpose and certainly with no result as yet.

Girl Again Tries to End Life.

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 12.—Alexina Bartlett, aged nineteen, who attempted suicide in the Fayette county jail last Friday by eating two handfuls of a cleaning preparation and a half cake of yellow soap, tried to end her life in the Uniontown hospital. She was found with a towel twisted tightly about her neck. She probably will survive both attempts. The girl was being held in jail charged with defrauding a boarding house keeper.

Germans Commute Soldier's Sentence.

London, Jan. 12.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Berlin, by way of Amsterdam, says the court of appeals has commuted the death sentence of Private William Lonsdale, the English soldier who was court-martialed for attacking one of his guards at the Doeberitz detention camp, to twenty years' imprisonment.

BRITAIN'S FULL REPLY AWAITED

Washington Interested In Evidence Grey Must Submit

CASE NEEDS STRENGTHENING

England Will Have to Present Facts Not Known by Washington to Make Good Certain Important Contentions Alleged In Its Preliminary Note. Grey's Strong Statements Need Much Support by Evidence.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Officials of the state department are awaiting with great interest the coming of the detailed reply from England to President Wilson's note of protest concerning interference with American shipping.

The preliminary reply sent by Sir Edward Grey contains much that needs considerable explaining from a Washington viewpoint, and state department officials are unanimous that the full supplementary paper must needs go far to cover over seeming inaccuracies in the first note.

The British note maintains that the British authorities have adhered to the rule suggested in the American note and detained cargoes only "where there is real ground for suspecting the presence of contraband." To support this contention in the face of one exactly to the contrary from Washington it is believed the British must adduce specific and complete data about each particular case.

Officials regard it as inconceivable that the British government would make claims of this sort in a preliminary note which it could not support with evidence, but until the evidence is produced doubt will exist here as to the full accuracy of the British statement that there have been no unwarranted detentions.

The British note likewise states that the British have adhered to the rule of not puting cargoes of foodstuffs into prize courts except in cases of presumption that they are intended for the armed forces of the enemy. If Great Britain has evidence against American cargoes to support this statement officials here would be much interested in seeing it.

Another statement contained in the British note exciting interest here is that declaring that "there are four consignments to Sweden at the present time of copper and aluminum which though definitely consigned to Sweden are, according to positive evidence in the possession of his majesty's government, definitely destined for Germany."

Sir Edward Grey must in his second note produce evidence in support of this strong statement, it is believed here, if he hopes to have his argument that attempts to get contraband into Germany through neutral countries warrant the steps Great Britain has taken to prevent it.

Ship Test Case Not Relished.

London, Jan. 12.—The question of the status of the steamship Dacia, formerly a Hamburg-American liner, which was purchased recently by Edward N. Breitung of Michigan and granted American registry, is admittedly causing anxiety in responsible circles in London.

Press dispatches from America say a test case is expected in regard to this ship, which was bought by an American citizen after the outbreak of the war and which is to be manned by an American crew and probably loaded with cotton destined for Bremen.

The dispatches add that the probable seizure of the vessel will raise very important questions. There is every desire here to minimize the number of contentious subjects between England and the United States, but it seems as if it will be very difficult to avoid a conflict on this question.

Originally a Hamburg-American liner, the Dacia has been kept in a neutral harbor since the outbreak of the war to avoid capture. The proposal is to transfer her to the United States flag and send her to Bremen with cotton. This seems like an intention to avoid in every way the international law in regard to the transfer of vessels in time of war.

VILLA ATTACKS MONTEREY

Carranza Forces Reported to Be on Defensive and In Bad Way.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 12.—The attack of the convention troops of General Villa upon the Carranza stronghold of Monterey has commenced.

In Juarez it is stated that the Villa troops under command of General Angeles are actually attacking the city. From other sources it is said that they are near the city and that the inhabitants of Monterey are fleeing, having commenced their hegira when the Carranza troops sent to reinforce Saltillo and to attack Torreon came hurrying back in a sadly demoralized condition.

The Carranza agents in El Paso still claim that their army is holding Monterey, capital of the state of Nuevo Leon, but apparently have no late details. The telegraph companies report that they cannot get wire connections with Monterey.

WHAT FORESTRY HAS DONE IN MARYLAND

A Resume of The Good Effects of the State Board's Supervision.

In 1906 there was organized in Maryland a State Board of Forestry. The Board had for its executive head a State Forester, and it was given him to devise ways and means of handling more wisely and with a greater degree of profit the woodland of the State-woodland which until then had been entirely without that judicious management which improves through use, and which for many years had been deteriorating in quality, while growing appreciably less in area and quantity.

The forests of Maryland now cover, in the aggregate, over two million acres of land, thirty-five per cent of the State. To set about the work of improving so large a tract was not a small task. Studies of the forests in each county were made, a fire protection system organized to cover the State, and such other methods were adopted as might aid in the management and care of the forests of Maryland. A start was made in 1906. At the present time the Maryland State Board of Forestry has reached a permanent and substantial footing. Its work has steadily increased, new responsibilities have been added, and today its importance and usefulness are felt in all parts of the State.

In Western Maryland, the mountain section, the Board is best known for its system of protection from forest fires. Seven observation or lookout stations are now located there in advantageous places, where a view of the surrounding country may be had for many miles. Forest fires, if they spring up, may be easily seen and quickly reported over a large area of wooded country. The State Forest Wardens, thirteen of whom act in conjunction with the U. S. Forest Service as Federal Patrolmen, keep a strict watch over such country throughout the dry seasons of late spring and fall. The State Forest Wardens now comprise a force of 135 men, selected for their ability to perform the required duties of their office. In three years the loss in Maryland from forest fires was reduced from $225,000 to $42,000. Forest Fire Protection in Maryland should be judged by what it has accomplished.

In other fields of endeavor a definite program of work has been arranged and carried out. With any new issue of work it almost always becomes necessary, first of all, to educate the people concerned to a full realization of its importance and real meaning to them. Since the organization of Forestry in Maryland a campaign of popular education has been vigorously carried on in all parts of the State. As an indication of the growth in this one branch of the work, it may be added that in the year just past twelve exhibitions and demonstrations in Forestry were given at as many State and County Fairs; nineteen educational exhibits have been sent to Public Schools; and sixty-two illustrated lectures have been given before the churches, schools, clubs, granges and other organizations of the State.

The State Board of Forestry has acquired through purchase or gift 2,570 acres of State forest. In addition, there are several tracts of woodland, amounting to 1,038 acres, which, by mutual agreement with their owners, are now under the management and supervision of the Board. This land is well distributed over the State, and is being managed with an eye to its improvement through practical, applied Forestry. It is held as a public park, where residents of the State may, free of cost, enjoy the recreation and healthy pastimes of outdoor life.

In 1914 the State Forester examined and prepared plans for the management and improvement of twenty-one separate pieces of woodland, in the aggregate 2,005 acres of forest, which from now on will receive the benefits of improved handling and more economic use. The forests of the State have been mapped and estimated, and complete reports prepared for many of the counties.

In the same length of time a quarter of a million young forest trees have been planted by the Board, 85,000 going toward the reforestation of waste lands within the State, and the remainder for the establishment of a State Forest Nursery at College Park. Here varieties of valuable trees best adapted to local conditions of soil and climate are furnished at cost to land owners who may desire them for the improvement of roads and streets, or reclaiming waste lands with forest trees.

The passage of the Roadside Tree Law (Chapter 824, Acts of 1914) at the last session of the Legislature was instrumental in placing all publicly owned trees under the supervision and care of the State Board of Forestry, at the same time making the unauthorized posting of advertising matter within any right-of-way a misdemeanor. In the six months in which the trimming and cutting of Roadside Trees has been done under the direct supervision of State Forest Wardens, a total of 9,800 trees have been cut or trimmed according to the best methods of tree surgery. Not only those whose property adjoins these trees along the roads, but the pole-line companies who have had to do the work, are ready to agree that the new law is working out for the distinct improvement of highways in the State.

This work, already begun and being carried out, it is planned to enlarge during the coming year. Illustrated lectures and educational exhibits will bring the message of Forestry to those who live in Maryland. Work under the Roadside Tree Law will be extended for the betterment of country highways as well as city streets; waste lands will, so far as possible, be planted up in useful trees; and the work of protecting and improving the State's forest land will be continued for the benefit of its owners and the many industries whose success depends upon the welfare of the forest.

TELLS WHY HE STAYED ON FARM

A Young Man Says His Father Let Him In On Plans of Management.

There has been a good deal of discussion on the subject of boys leaving the farm. I am a farmer's son, nearly 21 years old, and still live on the farm. Of course a great many leave after they are of age, but they would have gone long before if they could have followed their own inclinations. If a boy is interested in farming when he is 20, then he will stick to it, unless circumstances are very unfavorable.

Now that is just the point that many of the writers have been trying to make; anything to get him interested. The method most usually suggested is to give him something to call his own. I do not think that plan as it usually works is worth a rap. To give a boy an idea of stock raising in that way he should be made to pay for all feed and housing and finally to pay back the money invested in the stock, together with interest for the time he used it.

The biggest mistake, however, is not there. The father may furnish the money and work and yet do less harm than he does by furnishing the brains, which is the big thing in the whole scheme. Make him think. I have been acquainted with a good many farmer boys, whose views of farming run all the way from hatred through contentment and up to enthusiasm and the policy of their fathers runs from keeping the boy under his thumb through giving him more or less freedom and up to making him think of himself and for the farm.

Some farmers think their 16-year-old boys can not be trusted with any-thing more valuable than the oldest, slowest horse on the place and can not do any more important work than hoeing weeds or pitching manure. If a boy is 16 years old, and physically normal, and is not hitched to any farm implement, then he is a decided reflection on the father's method of training, and ten chances to one he is already casting longing glances toward the city.

Fortunately for me my father has always followed a different plan. I have been around stock since I can remember. I have handled a team in the field since I was 9. Since I was 12 I have handled all the machinery we used, from the plow to the corn shredder. Some neighbors thought it inhuman to make a small boy work in the fields, but father never said anything about the amount of work I was to do and so I did not work hard enough to hurt myself, but I took such absorbing interest in the quality that I soon was able to compete with the best farmers in neat plowing and straight corn planting.

Of course I made some mistakes, but if they were of such a nature that I could not see them myself father never said anything about them. I was expected to set it right myself, and then see that it did not happen again. When I did anything really noteworthy he would make a complimentary remark about it that pleased me more than yards of gush. If there is anything that I can do better, or know more about, than he does, he admits it and always allows me to do or manage that part of the work.

Some have suggested giving the boy a good horse and rig. Right again. As a matter of fact I would not stay on this farm two weeks if I did not have a horse to drive just about whenever I wish. Any boy over 16 who has not a healthy desire to associate with boys and girls of his own age is abnormal, and so much that he will never make two stalks of alfalfa grow where one ragweed grew before. The farmer does not need to give his boy a horse, but should see that he has the use of one without begging for it. While you are slowly allowing yourself to be wheedled into letting him have the rig, some other fellow gets the girl; and then you should not expect him to take an absorbing interest in the stock judging while the other fellow is teeding Nancy ice cream and whirling her on the merry-go-round.

Do not entangle the finances of the farm with partnerships or profit sharing plans, but just give the boy a chance to get in where the big and important things are done. Give a word of praise when deserved and never try to cut out his social life.—"A Future Farmer" In The Breed's Gazette.

America Must Set House In Order.

The Bel Air Times says: Our country has enjoyed such marvelous prosperity and its resources are so boundless, that there has steadily grown up a tendency to extravagant and luxurious living that sooner or later will sap the manhood of the nation. It is difficult now to tell from outward appearance the rich man from the moderately well-to-do. The poor are very poor, the rich are rich beyond the dreams of our forefathers and the great middle class is striving to keep up with the pace set by those with whom they associate in business and social intercourse. Whether in country or city the tendency is the same. Everyone is striving for comfort. Old and simple and plain things will not do. Modern houses, modern equipment; modern clothes. The old oil lamps and the tallow candles have been as far as possible, made to give way to electric lighting. The old carriage and the old style buggy are not up with the times and one is out of date not to own an automobile. And the automobile must be something worth while! There is even an aristocracy of automobiles and a young fellow would feel ashamed not to have one of proper size! And so we Americans are having a great time in the mad rush for the latest and best and most comfortable. It used to take George Washington many days to go from the Potomac to Philadelphia. We now go in two or three hours but we want to go by the fastest train, and even the day coach is not good enough, we pay an extra fare to ride in the soft cushioned Pullman. Somehow people people get the travel habit. They live in such a whirl, that they must keep going—Somewhere. That's the reason you find almost every train crowded with passengers, many of them going nowhere in particular, just going. It's great to be able to own fine houses, fine automobiles and have everything we want when we want it. The trouble of it all is that the most of us cannot afford it. Even those who have the cash to pay the bill cannot afford it in many instances, because this country cannot afford to have its citizens living up to or beyond their incomes. If we are to develop sturdy, manly, independent, strong self-reliant men and women, we must be thrifty, sober, economical and not an ease loving, substance wasting people.

The hope of America is that from the highest to the lowest, we shall practice the simple, homely virtues and live the beautiful simple life of "high thinking and plain living." But there is another compelling reason. There are hundreds of thousands of very poor people in this land of plenty. In the great cities many families are barely able to keep soul and body together. We are living in times when men are thinking. With more men in battle array across the sea than the world has ever before seen, and with the possibility that the scourage may spread like a raging conflagration, it is imperative that America make ready for stormy weather.

Reformed Church Rededicated.

The redication of the Reformed church at Grantsville took place on Sunday morning, January 3d, and was a most interesting and successful event. For several years the congregation has felt the need of either a new edifice or the remodeling of the old one, and last fall the latter plan was decided upon and work immediately begun.

The interior of the church has been quite changed and is very beautiful. A heating plant has been installed in the cellar; a pretty, bright, new carpet laid on the pulpit platform and in the aisles, the rest of the floor being stained. Dainty new wallpaper covers the walls. Bright gasolene lights take the place of the old oil lamps, and handsome, comfortable pews take the place of the old benches. The improvements are a credit to the congregation and are all completed, save for the painting of the outside of the church which will be done in the near future.

The dedication service consisted of a short and admirable address, by Rev. Ira S. Monn, excellent music, by the choir, and the Dedicatory service, after the requisite amount had been raised to finish paying the indebtedness of the church, which was something less than $1,000, $300 of which remained to be raised on Sunday. Little difficulty was experienced in raising the necessary amount as the people responded readily and liberally according to their means, and shortly after noon the congregation were permitted to leave their old church, new in appearance, and doubly dear because of the toil and labor expended upon it, and wend their way homeward with lighter hearts because their house of worship was free from debt, a place of beauty and sacred associations, and a joy to them for many, many years to come.

Calendars For 1915.

H. J. Speicher & Co. have issued a very attractive 1915 calendar. The old reliable Garrett National Bank presented its customers with a beautiful 1915 calendar. Wade Hinebaugh's annual calendar is being distributed. It is a beauty. J. A. Kelley's calendar is just the thing for the office and store room. George A. Fraley, of the Union Central Life Insurance Co., circulated a large figured calendar and the First National Bank's calendar is also attractive and useful.

THE SWINEHERD.

Keep the pigs warm. They will grow all winter if conditions are right, says the Farm Journal.

With bacon at 25 or 30 cents a pound, it pays to keep pigs and keep them right.

If the hogs are warm and comfortable it takes less food to keep them thrifty.

The breeding sows should have a combination of foods and very little corn.

They must have some succulent foods—roots, vegetables, etc., and clover hay.

The brood sows must have exercise to be healthy. Bad luck with them can always be traced to ignorant or careless handling by the owner.

Separate the breeding sows as they begin to grow heavy.

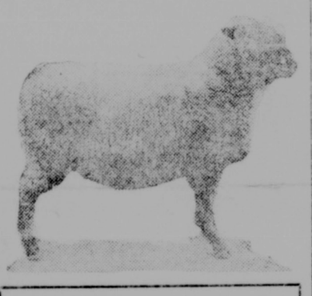
A jam from a boss sow may cause the loss of the pigs and the sow too.

SHEEP ON SMALL FARMS.

Economical Meat Producers and Valuable as Weed Destroyers.

In discussing the future meat supply in a recent government bulletin one of the writers said: "Sheep are not generally profitable to the farmer. Their numbers are slowly decreasing nearly everywhere except on the ranges, and the latter are so fully stocked that not much increase is to be looked for in that direction. There is no probability of any considerable future increase in the number of these animals."

It would seem that this writer is overlooking the possibilities along the line of sheep growing as a small farm industry, says the Kansas Farmer. Properly handled there is no more profitable farm animal. Another writer in this same bulletin seems to give the sheep more consideration as a meat producing animal. This writer takes up in detail the various ways in which the average farm can get into the meat production business. One of the possibilities he mentions is: "By raising sheep more extensively in the corn belt and in the eastern states. The importance of the wool industry causes farmers to overlook the value of sheep for mutton and as weed destroyers. A small flock of sheep of one of the mutton breeds should be kept on every farm to graze the roadways, the stubble fields after grain is cut and the cornfield after the corn is full grown. Both wool and lambs are salable."



The Oxford Down sheep is very popular with those farmers who desire an animal that will produce a good mutton carcass and at the same time give a good account of itself in wool. It is a ready fattening sheep and is seen at its best when crossed with another Down breed. Admirers of the Oxford say that it combines size, weight of fleece and the thickness of flesh of the Cotswold with the compactness and form of the Hampshire, from which it originally descended.

Many a farm would be a more profitable enterprise as a whole if a small flock of sheep was added to the live stock equipment. Sheep reproduce more rapidly than cattle and come to maturity at an early age, rivaling swine in this respect. Being ruminants they handle the same class of feeds as cattle and are far more useful than cattle as gleaners of waste. The meat is very healthful and, as the carcass is small, furnishes possibilities in fresh meat, which would be most acceptable on most farms, especially during the summer season. This alone should give a few sheep a place on every farm. On some farms chicken is the only fresh meat available during the summer season. Even fried chicken becomes monotonous when it is the only fresh meat appearing on the table for days at a stretch.

Tying the Herd Bull.

There are various ways of tying the herd bull. It is not an uncommon practice to keep him in a stanchion, and some tie him to a low manger with one rope around the horns and another tied to the ring in his nose. We have always felt that it is a better practice to keep the herd bull in a box stall open at the sides, arranged so he can see the herd. This makes him feel that he is part of the herd. A stall of this character gives the bull an opportunity to move about, which we believe is to his advantage.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Ringworm In Calves.

Ringworm is very common in calves at this time of the year. Scrub and scrape the spot perfectly free from scales and scabs and then rub in some iodine ointment. Repeat the application each other day and the trouble will soon subside. Isolate the calf, as the disease is contagious. Clean up, disinfect, whitewash, perfectly ventilate and sunlight the stable, as ringworm is due to a vegetable parasite (Trichophyton tonsurans) which lives on damp walls and woodwork in insanitary stables as well as on animals.

REFUSE NOT THE VOICE FROM HEAVEN

Only Those In Harmony Can the Head of Church Use.

Man's Rebellion Against God—To Israel Alone God Spoke—Through the Law and the Prophets—God Now Speaks Through His Son—To the Church Alone—Only the Spirit-Begotten Can Discern Spiritual Things—Proper Attitude of Heart. Consecration a Reasonable Step.

July 12.—The PHOTO-DRAMA OF CREATION is now exhibited daily in more than eighty cities, both here and abroad, illustrating the Bible. From all sides come words of commendation. Today Pastor Russell's text was, "See that ye refuse not Him that speaketh * * * from Heaven."—Hebrews 12:25.

The discourse began with a comment upon the opening verses of the Epistle to the Hebrews. There the Apostle contrasts God's Message sent through our Lord Jesus Christ with those sent through Moses and the Prophets. Elsewhere he tells us that God speaks peace unto us through His Son. This statement reminds us that all mankind were brought into rebellion against God through the disobedience of their father Adam, in whom they were condemned to death.

The Pastor then traced the history of mankind, cut off from Divine fellowship, falling deeper and deeper into sin and death conditions. About two thousand years after man's fall, God gave the Israelites opportunity to come into harmony with Him, speaking to them through Moses. St. Paul reminds us that whoever disobeyed Moses' Law died without mercy. Later, God spoke to Israel through the Prophets, but had no communication with the remainder of the race.

The Apostle's argument, the speaker declared, is this: Brethren, note how disasters came upon Israel because of their neglect of Divine messages sent through Moses and the Prophets. Reflect, then, on what should be the penalty inflicted upon those who refuse to hear Him who speaks from Heaven. If those who rejected Moses' Law died without mercy, of how much severer punishment should those be counted worthy who count the blood of the Covenant wherewith they were sanctified a common thing, and who do despite to God's spirit of favor?

The Pastor inclines to the thought that the Apostle's words have a deeper significance than appears on the surface. The Israelites were a typical people; and when he recalls how many of them died in the wilderness because they rejected the Divine word given through Moses, he wonders how many who now refuse to hear God's Son may perish in the Second Death.

Three Classes In the Church.

Next it was demonstrated that God's consecrated people will finally be found in one of three classes. The Little Flock, to whom it is the Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom, is limited in number—to only 144,000. The Great Company, whose number is not revealed, are unworthy of a place in the Little Flock, yet at heart are loyal to God and the principles of righteousness. Lastly is the class that die the Second Death—that do despite to the Covenant of Grace. Judged by Israel's wilderness experiences, which were typical, this class will be much larger than was once supposed; for many Israelites died because of having rejected the testimony of the Lord.

The Pastor then showed that only those are now on trial for life who have escaped from the Adamic condemnation. Only those have a standing with God who have turned from sin and have fully consecrated themselves to God. Throughout this Gospel Age all consecrated believers have received the Holy Spirit just as soon as the Father has accepted them through the great Advocate. These alone have been on trial for life or death eternal.

It was then explained that only those can reject Christ and go into the Second Death who have come fully into discipleship with the Redeemer. While many have been drawn toward Christ, yet only those who have been begotten of the Holy Spirit have really heard Him who speaks from Heaven. According to Scripture, only those begotten of the Spirit can discern spiritual things.

Those who have never heard of the goodness of God have comparatively little responsibility, said the Pastor. The heathen millions, he asserted, could not present themselves to God in sacrifice; for they have not known Him. Our Lord was cited as having said that those who knew not would receive fewer stripes than those who knew, but did not. Whoever therefore knows the Divine will and the difference between right and wrong has a responsibility, and will receive stripes for disobedience, even if he does not come into a full trial for life eternal.

The proper attitude of heart is that of appreciation of God's mercies. It is only reasonable that those who come to a knowledge of God's goodness should consecrate themselves to Him. Today the Lord's voice sounds throughout the earth. Whoever hears it should heed the Message.

No. 1976 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a copy of the bill of complaint being filed herein.

The bill states that on or about the 14th day of June, 1906, the plaintiff was married to the defendant and took up their residence in Cumberland, Allegany county, Maryland, where they continued to reside until about the 15th day of December of the same year.

The bill further states that on or about the last named date the defendant left plaintiff's home and abandoned him and that he has never seen her from that day to this and does not know where she lives, other than than that he has been informed that she is now within the Panama Canal Zone.

The bill further states that the plaintiff never gave the defendant any reason for abandoning him, but that his conduct toward her had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; and further says that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eight years and he believes is deliberate and final.

Plaintiff further says that he has resided for the last three years in Garrett county, and that no children was born as a result of said marriage.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrionni and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 4th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of February, 1915, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of February next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

No. 1978 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

William M. Thayer plaintiff, vs. John O. Thayer, George B. Thayer, Daniel T. Thayer, Lucy Beckman, Samuel Loughrey, Jessie B. Loughrey, Nellie Enlow, Lipscomb, Nellie Enlow, A. P. Enlow, Matilda M. Enlow, May Shartzer, Nellie Enlow Baker, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S Enlow, Ella Watson, Minnie Enlow, Mary Ellen Ridgely, Charles H. Trent, Parker Trent, Mary O'Brien, Charles Trent, Sadie Paugh, Ralph F. Trent, Ezra Trent and other heirs of Aaron Trent, late of Garrett County, deceased, whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, defendants.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Garrett County, of which Aaron Trent, deceased, died seized and possessed, and out of the proceeds to pay all bills of the decedent, which may be properly proven against the estate, and for a distribution of the balance amongst the heirs at law of the said Aaron Trent.

The bill states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of $26.00, and that the plaintiff paid out the additional sum of $83.85 as funeral expenses of the said Aaron Trent.

That being so indebted, and possessed of some real estate, but of no personal property of any consequence, the said Aaron Trent departed this life about Feb. 14, 1914, intestate, leaving no widow or descendants, but leaving nephews and nieces whose names are above enumerated, together with some other heirs whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, as his only heirs at law.

The bill further states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death possessed of scarcely any personal property and consequently no letters of administration were ever applied for or granted on his said personal estate.

That Samuel Laughrey, May Shartzer, Nelle E. Baker, Minnie Enlow, Parker Trent, Charles Trent, Sadie Paugh, Ralph T. Trent, Wilson H. Trent, Ezra Trent, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S Enlow, Ella Watson, Mary Ellen Ridgely and Charles H. Trent are all non residents of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 11th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 15th day of February, 1915, give notice to said absent defendants, and also to any heirs of the said Aaron Trent, not mentioned above, and whose names are unknown, of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 1st day of March next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

LIQUOR SHIPMENTS STOPPED

By Wells Fargo Express Company to Points in West Virginia.

Yesterday the local express officials were notified by the superintendent of the Wells Fargo Express Company not to received for shipment to any point within the bounds of the State of West Virginia liquor of any description from liquor dealers of manufacturers offering the same for transportation into our neighboring state.

This order on the part of the express company, will in all probability be followed up by a like order from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, being in line with the opinion handed down by the United States Court of Appeals at Richmond on last Wednesday which reversed the opinions of both Federal Judges Rose of Maryland and Maxwell of West Virginia.

Baltimore Auto Show.

King Auto is in the spotlight in Baltimore, beginning Tuesday at the Fifth Regiment Armory, on Hoffman street. The ninth annual auto show, under the auspices of the Baltimore Dealers' Association and the Automobile Club of Maryland, was presented to the public, starting Tuesday night and running until Saturday night inclusive. The event is easily the superior of any show ever held in Baltimore. The decorating scheme of the Armory is a palm garden.

There are 43 different makes of automobiles at the Baltimore event. They include the leading makes of cars of the United States. Twenty-four different commercial cars and trucks are on display. The motor-cycles will be well taken care of, for all of the leading makes in the two wheel line will be there. It is estimated that all the exhibits are worth $2,000,000.

Harry White is clerking in the store of Austin Brown & Son, in the absence of Wallace Brown who is in the hospital.

STATE FACES GREAT DEFICIT.

Revenues For Present Fiscal Year $1,000,000 Less Than The Appropriations.

Comptroller Harrington's report to Governor Goldsborough shows that in the present fiscal year the State's receipts will be approximately $1,000,000 less than the appropriations.

This, the Comptroller says, is due to the evil of "continuing appropriations;" to the expenditures caused by creation of new bureaus and commissions, and to old-fashioned and out-of-date methods of handling finances in the Legislature.

He recommends that "continuing appropriations" be abolished; suggests there possibly is a way to reduce the expense of the new bureaus and commissions by eliminating waste and duplication of effort and cost, and proposes what amounts to a "budget system" for handling State finances in the Legislature.

The shortage will not affect the credit of the State or the security of its bonds. Interest and sinking funds for the bonds are provided by direct tax. That is levied and is sufficient for the purpose.

A New Ford Story.

Here is a new Ford story we saw somewhere, but have forgotten just where. A man in California writes to the Ford company and tells them they should feel very much exalted for the reason that the Ford is the only car mentioned in the Bible and to prove it cites them a passage in Isaiah which says: "He went up into Heaven on high" and askes what other car but a Ford could do that? Ford Treacy says "There is none."

GARRETT COUNTY POTATOES

Result of Three Year Test Shows Seed Grown Here Is Superior.

Success awaits the farmers of Allegany and Garrett counties who are willing to devote the requsite labor and skill, to the production of seed potatoes, true to the name and free from disease.

Officials of the State Agricultural Department have found that local climatic conditions, altitude and soil are similar to those of the famous potato growing section of Maine—notably Aroostook county, where train loads of potatoes are shipped every season to the growers of New Jersey, Eastern Maryland and the South—sections that do not grow their own seed.

The knowledge of this fact led the Maryland State Agricultural Experiment Station to conduct a series of experiments covering a period of three years. Seed potatoes were obtained from Maine and Garrett county, Maryland, and planted side by side. The seed from both sections received the same cultivation and treatment.

The result of this three year test showed that Garrett county seed produced a net average of 23 per cent. better yield than Maine grown seed.

It was also ascertained that many large growers of the Eastern Shore of Maryland preferred Western Maryland seed, not only on account of its superior quality, but because of the fact that freight rates would be reduced one-half.

Let the Garrett county farmers get to work and plan to supply the demand for seed potatoes for this State and Virginia. Why not?

Realizing that this industry should be brought to the attention of farmers and developed, The Citizens National Bank of Frostburg, following its usual progressive policy, in co-operation with the government agent for Allegany county, Mr. John McGill, Jr., sent out over 500 letters last November, to the leading farmers of this section, calling attention to the foregoing facts.

In order to further stimulate an interest in potato growing, The Citizens National Bank of Frostburg, Md., has arranged for a Potato Contest to be held some time next fall.

$15 for the second best peck of Irish Cobbler seed potatoes;

$10 for the best peck of any variety of seed potatoes.

$5 for the second best peck of any variety of seed potatoes.

The response to these letters was highly gratifying, over 100 farmers expressing a desire to enter the contest, and lend their assistance in developing this new industry.

Encouraged by the interest manifested, the bank has arranged through government officials to have a carload of seed potatoes shipped to Frostburg next spring in time for planting.

The varieties selected are the Green Mountain and Irish Cobbler. They are guaranteed to be true to name and free from disease.

The above were chosen because southern growers prefer these two varieties to all others. The bank will sell these potatoes at exact cost. Already over 300 bushels have been engaged.

It is to be hoped that interest in this matter will continue to increase, and that farmers generally will take hold of this industry, and make this section famous for its seed potatoes.

There is always a ready market for pure seed, true to name and free from disease, at an advance in price over cooking potatoes.

The Citizens National Bank of Frostburg will be prepared to lend assistance in growing and disposing of the crop.

Every farmer interested in promoting this industry is cordially invited to communicate with the Citizens National Bank of Frostburg, Md.

THE DEATH RECORD

This city was shocked Tuesday when the death of Mrs. Norman Ream Sanner, at 11:45 Monday night at her home on Third street was announced. But very few people knew that she had been ill. Saturday as usual she looked after the duties of her home. True she had complained of not feeling well for several days and on Sunday Doctors McComas and Broadwater were called in to see her. The very best attention was given Mrs. Sanner, but Monday evening about 7:30 o'clock she became seriously ill and suffered much pain, and from that time no hopes of her recovery were entered.

Mrs. May Sanner was the youngest daughter of Ex Senator and Mrs. R. T. Browning. She is survived by her husband and two sons, George and Richard, her parents and four sisters, Mrs. Garrett, of Deer Park; Miss Nell, of Clevland; Miss Bess, of Philadelphia; and Miss Margaret at home, two brothers, Richard and Getty. The greater part of his life was spent in Garrett county, where he was held in respect and esteem among his neighbors. He is survived by his wife and ten children. The funeral was held on Saturday morning in the Amish church. Rev. E. B. Boyer, of the Lutheran church, at Confluence, Pa., and Rev. Jonas B. Miller, of the Amish church, conducted the services. Dr. Ward Suggests A Means of Preventing War.

To the Editor of The Republican.

War! War! Infamous War! How shall it be prevented? By an international tribunal of all the civilized nations of the earth entering into the compact, with authority to finally decide and power to bind a majority of the nations to uphold the decision and enforce the verdict of the majority against the minority and to inflict a penalty upon such retractory nation or nations, by indeminity, for the breach of the peace and damage to the civilization of the world.

How maintain the Monroe Doctrine? By a like Pan-American agreement by the American republics, which shall be assented to by the European powers, as a part, or division, of the world's international compact.

Let the nations teach in their schools peace, prosperity and progress and not militarism, and the world may have peace and good will.

Piedmont Girls Defeat Oakland High School.

On the Oakland floor Monday night, January 18, the Piedmont High School Girls met the Oakland Girls' Basketball team in a very interesting and exciting contest. The tossing was quite as speedy as that usually presented by the masculine representatives of the game. On account of the hard and close guarding, neither team was able to score more than one point in the first half. In the second half Piedmont took a fair lead, but Oakland ran clear at the end by throwing three successive foul goals. Final scores, Piedmont 6, Oakland 4. The lineup:

Oakland		Piedmont
Hendrickson	F	LaRue
Thrasher	F	Korb
Welch	C	Helferstay
Jones	C	Shapiro
Howell	G	Davis
Ravenscroft	G	Rizer

Field goals, Korb 1, LaRue 1; foul goals, LaRue 2, Hendrickson 4; referee, Coach, Peddicord.

GRAFTON BANK CLOSES.

State Institution Will Reopen In 60 Days, Says Colonel McGraw.

The Grafton Bank, a State institution with capital of $100,000 and deposits of $500,000, failed to open for business Tuesday. Col. J. T. McGraw, Democratic National Committeeman, declared that the closing was temporary and the result of a tight money market and a short run.

The institution will reopen within 60 days, he said, and pay all depositors in full. Charles R. Durbin, a relative of Colonel McGraw, is president of the bank.

Reported That Adrianople Has Been Deserted

BULGARIANS MAY BE IN WAR

London News Agency Receives Dispatch That Garrison Has Been Removed From City Near Bulgarian Frontier—Engagement at Albert In France a Victory For Germans, Berlin War Office Statement Declares.

London, Jan. 19.—According to advices received by Reuter's agency here the Turkish garrison has abandoned Adrianople, the second largest city in European Turkey. This report is believed here to precede the announcement of Bulgaria's entrance into the European war on the side of the allies.

Adrianople, which was the scene of a five months' siege during the last Balkan war, lies only a few miles from the Bulgarian frontier. The city, which is second only to Constantinople in importance, was captured by a combined Bulgar-Serb army last March, after a siege lasting nearly six months. King Ferdinand of Bulgaria entered the city in triumph, but soon the Serbs and Bulgarians quarreled over the possession of the city and the place was recaptured by the Turks, who retained it under the peace treaty of London, which ended the Balkan war.

Bulgaria, however, has since longed to possess this rich prize and the fact that the Turks have been forced to withdraw is believed to indicate that a large Bulgarian army has been thrown across the twenty miles of territory separating the Bulgar frontier from the Turkish city.

The German attack on the western front has shifted northward from Soissons and these was a severe encounter in the region of Albert.

The official Berlin statement says that the Germans, attacking with bayonets, drove the allies from positions northeast of Albert. In the Soissons region there is little activity. Several French trenches in the Argonne are said to have been captured.

The official statement from Paris disputes the German claim of victories in the Argonne, saying that the attacks were repulsed. Several minor victories for the allies are reported mostly in artillery engagements.

The official observer attached to the British army headquarters denies the recent report from St. Onier, France, that the British troops had advanced one mile near La Bassee, capturing German pontoons.

WASHINGTON STAYS WET

Fight to Make Capital Dry Fails In Senate.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The fight for a dry Washington failed in the senate. The Prohibitionists gave up the fight with the refusal of the senate to suspend the rules of the senate to permit the Sheppard prohibition amendment to be attached to an appropriation bill. The vote was 40 to 38. Two-thirds of those present were necessary to carry the motion of the dry resolution, so it failed by fourteen votes. The Prohibitionists were particularly disappointed because they failed to muster even a majority of the senate on this issue and the leaders of the movement acknowledged that the fight was ended for the present.

"The sentiment is very close," said Senator Sheppard. "It is not over two votes either way in my opinion. We will do nothing further at this time. The matter has been given a test. Many senators did not vote. Some of those who voted against suspending the rule told me they would vote to make Washington dry. They simply opposed the proposal to suspend the rules to permit general legislation to go on appropriations as a 'rider' fearing that the precedent might come up later to plague some of their plans."

BILLY SUNDAY IN CAPITAL

Evangelist Has Audience With President—Later Addresses Great Throng.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Folks in Washington who expected Billy Sunday to come here and rake members of congress over the coals and tell others in official life a lot of unpleasant truths about themselves were disappointed. Billy said nothing but compliments for them in the speech which he delivered before a great audience in Convention hall. About forty members of congress were present.

Billy Sunday and Ma Sunday were introduced to President Wilson by Secretary Bryan in the East room of the White House. Following the introduction the president talked with the evangelist for about five minutes, commenting upon the work which he had been doing. It was then that the president, according to the evangelist, made the remark, "God bless you and your work."

Deny German Ship Sunk.

Havana, Jan. 19.—There is no truth in the report, published in the United States, that the German steamer President was sunk off Havana by the British cruiser Berwick. It seems that some blasting work was being done along the shore and that these sounds were taken for cannon fire.

Inaugurated Governor of Pennsylvania Today

MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

BRUMBAUGH INSTALLED

Pennsylvania Seats Its New Governor Today.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 19.—Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh of Philadelphia was today inaugurated governor of the state of Pennsylvania. Extra trains assisted the regular railroad service in bringing to Harrisburg the thousands who came to witness the inaugural ceremonies.

The cabinet named by Governor Brumbaugh follows: Francis Shunk Brown of Philadelphia, attorney general; Cyrus E. Woods of Greensburg, secretary of the commonwealth; James S. Hiatt of Philadelphia, private secretary.

Simple ceremonies featured the induction into office of the new governor. The senate and house met before noon. After Frank B. McClain took the oath of office as lieutenant governor the two houses adjourned to the capitol front, where the inauguration ceremonies took place. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice J. Hay Brown of the state supreme court. The new governor then read his inaugural address and the retiring governor took his leave. A parade of political clubs, firemen and other organizations followed the ceremony at the capitol.

MEX CO CITY NERVOUS

Few Soldiers Left In Capital—Garza Doing Best He Can.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The flight of General Gutierrez from Mexico City has created a situation concerning which there is great uneasiness in the capital, according to state department advices.

General Garza, made provisional president by the convention after the flight of Gutierrez, is reported to be doing all he can to preserve order and a number of persons already have been executed in the capital for alleged infractions of martial law.

Business has been suspended and the populace is said to be exhibiting the greatest nervousness over the prospects. The chief anxiety is due to the uncertainty as to which faction will succeed to the control of affairs there.

The fact that thousands of troops are believed to have accompanied Gutierrez and three members of his cabinet in their flight adds to the uneasiness, as only a small garrison is left for the defense of the capital in case General Obregon should attack.

Officials here regard as very discouraging the reported plan of the Villa-Zapata convention to constitute itself as the active ruling power in Mexico. Under this program it is believed it will be impossible to get a strong man for the presidency and a weak man cannot fail to lead to more chaotic conditions than now exist.

Legislation to Regulate Saloons.

Columbus, O., Jan. 19.—At the instance of dry leaders of Cincinnati a bill was offered in the legislature requiring every saloon in Ohio to close at 10 p. m. Bartenders who now work seventeen hours a day are expected to give their support to the measure. The Anti-Saloon league will support it. Another Hamilton county dry measure would place a tax of $1,000 on every wagon delivering beer to private consumers, on the theory that these wagons compete with saloons.

Germans Demand Old Wine.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The Germans have just demanded from the people of Bruges, Belgium, 300,000 bottles of wine which are to be supplied in January and February. The Burgundy, Bordeaux and champagne must be old and the bottles sealed. The Germans threaten that if the wine is not up to the standard they will rifle all the wine cellars in the town.

Steamer Breaks In Two.

London, Jan. 19.—The steamer George Royle broke in two off Cromer. The lifeboat which went to the rescue has been driven out to sea and has not yet returned. Seven bodies have been washed ashore and five sailors have been saved badly hurt. It is feared that not less than seventeen of the Royle's crew have been lost.

PROSPERITY AT HOME.

THERE IS NOTHING OF GREATER IMPORTANCE TO US THAN THE PROSPERITY OF OUR COMMUNITY.

PROSPERITY AT HOME IS BASED ON LOCAL BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

It our local merchants and storekeepers transact a large volume of business their prosperity is communicated to every person in the entire community.

The values of our real estate increase. Wages are increased. There is more money in circulation and it is more readily obtained for purposes of expansion, paying for improvements, buying luxuries, etc.

In every way we can discover better conditions on all sides when our business men are busy.

There is every reason in the world why we should spend our cash at home instead of sending it to the big cities. By keeping it in circulation in our home community we profit in many ways.

But if we send our money to the mail order houses, that is the last we hear of it. If enough money is sent to the mail order houses from our community we may easily put our local merchants out of business. By diverting our trade from our local storekeepers we can make it impossible for them to maintain their stores.

Every dollar sent out of our town to the mail order houses detracts just so much from our own individual prosperity, as well as from the prosperity of the storekeepers and from the community in general.

Think of the consequences if we should all send to the mail order houses for our necessities and our luxuries. How long would it be before our local merchants would have the "closing out sale" signs on their doors, to be followed by the "for sale" signs on the stores themselves?

AND WHEN THE BUSINESS HOUSES ARE ALL ADVERTISED FOR SALE WHAT WILL BE THE VALUE OF OUR OWN HOUSE AND LOTS?

Such conditions have actually prevailed in some communities. It has happened that the citizens became "mail-order-mad" and sent to the big cities for the greater part of their merchandise. The local merchants abandoned the field, because there was no business there for them. The burden of taxation fell on the various property owners, because there were no business concerns to bear the big proportion which generally falls to their share. Property values decreased until there were no bidders for undesirable real estate. The town became dead.

In the meantime the head of a big mail order house in Chicago was drawing an income of over a million and a quarter dollars, made possible by the business received by his concern, by mail, from such communities as the one above described and from our own community, as well as from others all over the United States.

Every dollar of this enormous income was diverted from storekeepers in small communities. Every dollar sent in to that great mail order concern, amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars annually, detracted from the prosperity of some community, struggling to become a center of population, but retarded by the short-sightedness of the citizens who sent their money out of town in preference to helping towards the prosperity of their own community.

Of course, it was done unthinkingly. Those who sent their dollars to the mail order house did not stop to consider that these same dollars would add to the prosperity of the home community if expended at home. They did not stop to reason that by helping those in their own community they would be best advancing their own interests.

THIS COMMUNITY NEEDS YOUR HELP. YOU NEED THE HELP OF EVERY DOLLAR IN ORDER TO MAKE A BETTER COMMUNITY IN WHICH TO LIVE. YOU NEED THE PROSPERITY OF THIS COMMUNITY TO MAKE YOUR PROPERTY OF GREATER VALUE AND TO GIVE YOU THE BENEFITS OF A BETTER COMMUNITY IN WHICH TO MAKE YOUR HOME BRIGHTER, MORE DESIRABLE AND WORTH MORE IN DOLLARS AND CENTS.

We must all consider these matters. We must stop and think, before sending our dollars to the mail order houses, that our co-operation is necessary to the upbuilding of our community and that, for our own selfish advantages, even with no other motive, we must patronize home institutions and keep our dollars at home so that they can work for the advancement of our own prosperity.

We will all find that it is a fact when we consider the question from every view point, that we can buy as cheaply and as profitably from our local merchants as from a mail order house, and we then know what we are buying, instead of buying a "pig in a poke."

Letter Boxes Now Have Protection.

An amendment to the postal laws which affects every apartment house and every householder who has placed a letter box at his residence, is now in effect. This amendment provides that any letter box or other receptacle intended or used for the receipt or delivery of mail matter on any city delivery route is designated as letter box. This act provided that whoever shall wilfully injure, tear down, or destroy any letter box, or injure, deface, destroy any mail matter deposited in such box, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

Heretofore, when mail has been placed in a letter box or other receptacle provided by the addressee the control of the postoffice department over the mail has ceased. Under this last amendment the department will retain control of the mail until it is received by the addressee. Apartment house boxes in many instances have been the sport of mischievous boys and in other instances have been robbed for the purpose of gain. The same is true of boxes fastened on doors or on the sides of buildings. These boxes are becoming a part of the postoffice department equipment and any interference with them in any manner, or the placing in them of anything not mail matter is a violation of the federal laws and will be treated accordingly.

PRAYERS FOR PEACE

Pope Benedict Orders Catholics of World to Attend Special Services.

Rome, Jan. 19.—The most extensive spiritual movement to restore peace to the warring nations that the Catholic church has undertaken since hostilities began is outlined in a decree issued by Pope Benedict XV.

In the decree the pope sets two days to be devoted by Catholic clergy and laity throughout Christendom to special services and prayers for the restoration of peace. Sunday, Feb. 7, is the day set by Pope Benedict on which the services are to be held in every Catholic church in Europe. Sunday, March 21, will be the day for special services in churches in all parts of the world except in Europe.

The pope's decree exhorts clergymen and their flocks on these dates not only to attend the special services of the day, but by prayer and acts of self-denial invoke God to restore tranquillity to a world now suffering expiation for its sins. With the decree is a special prayer composed by Pope Benedict himself to be said at the peace mass.

German Aeroplanists Drop Leaflets Containing Dire Warnings.

Petrograd (Via Paris), Jan. 19.—German aeroplanes have been dropping leaflets on the Russian lines, one of which reads as follows:

"Russian Soldiers: God has abandoned your standard. The sacrifices you have made are useless. Hundreds of thousands of the best and most valiant of your comrades have fallen on the battlefield and a new enemy, the most powerful and most dangerous of all, has appeared against the czar. A holy war has been declared against you and your allies and you have lost the game. Four hundred millions of men, followers of the law of Mahomet, located in three-quarters of the world, are uniting to fight against you.

"Russian Soldiers and Friends: Demand peace while there is yet time."

FEAR EPIDEMIC IN RUINED ZONE

Italian Authorities Menaced by Grave Problems

RELIEF NEEDS ARE GREATER

Rescuers Are Still Kept at Top Speed by Cries From Under Debris—Estimates Made of Property Loss Go as High as $100,000,000—Marvelous Tales of Rescue Come From the Wrecked Towns.

Rome, Jan. 19.—The task of relieving the earthquake survivors and of guarding against epidemics which are threatened because of interrupted water supplies is the great problem that is now confronting the government authorities and the thousands of volunteers who have volunteered for the work.

The king, the pope and the civil and clerical dignitaries have given up for the time being their efforts to raise funds to maintain the sufferers and, impelled by the cries for help which are heard in almost every quarter of the ruined towns and villages, the rescuers are digging frantically to save those who may still be alive.

Before the temporary abandonment of the efforts to raise relief funds the people throughout Italy had responded nobly to the needs of the situation. The pope has received $4,000,000 and the government has acknowledged as much again.

A great deal of this money will be employed in the work of rehabilitating small business men and farmers whose possessions have been destroyed and whose futures will be hopeless without means to re-establish themselves.

Conservative estimates place the damage to property in the ruined area at close to $100,000,000, with every report causing the necessity of an upward revision. Thus far nearly 10,000 refugees have reached Rome.

Further reports coming from Sora picture the situation there as desperate. An after shock shook the remnants of the city and caused still more terror among the survivors. A telegram from Caserta says that sixty bodies have been recovered there and that 150 injured are being cared for by the soldiery.

Two thousand military tents and a large quantity of supplies conveyed by a force of soldiers has reached Balsorano and parties have been detached to relieve the conditions in other towns.

Dispatches from the provinces continue to come in giving reports of damage in places that had thus far not been heard from. At Citta de Cale in the region of Cingelano 150 persons were killed and the town of Conistro was wiped out. In the latter place sixty persons were at mass when the quake came and fifty are still buried in the ruins of the church.

The technical commission has found that the fifth block of the famous column of Marcus Aurelius Antoninus on the Plaza Colonna was displaced four inches by the shock. The stability of the monument was not disturbed and sightseers will not be barred. The Rome observatory reports that the seismic disturbances are clearly diminishing.

The damage done to important industries in Avezzano was enormous. The sugar works were destroyed with a loss of about $1,500,000. Other factories were ruined and the loss in these places alone will reach $3,000,000.

Among the titled women who have been aiding in the Avezzano relief is the Marchesa di Sestegne of Florence, who is working as a nurse in one of the newly established military hospitals.

A remarkable story of a rescue in Avezzano has reached here. Cerri Erville, a lieutenant of engineers, located the residence of his mother there. He worked for some time digging at the ruins and finally got the aid of some soldiers. After a while he found his mother alive and only slightly hurt. She had been in bed and a falling wall had arched over her and saved her life.

Women are being allowed to take part in the rescue work in some parts of Avezzano. One woman who escaped thought her daughter must be alive in the ruins of her home. She formed a party of women and after working for many hours they at last heard a faint voice underneath where they were digging. They reached the girl and found her alive and unhurt except that one foot was held under a block of stone. She had been four days and nights without food or drink and was nearly suffocated by pulverized mortar, but will recover.

Men Offered Cut In Wages.

Canton, O., Jan. 19.—Employees of the Carnahan Tinplate company, an independent plant, were told that the plant could not continue to operate under the wage scale and the men were asked to discuss among themselves the question of lowering the scale. Officials said this step was necessary to meet prices of the American Sheet and Tinplate company, several of whose plants, it was said, were opened recently with the men at reduced wages.

WILSON ANNOYED BY BRYAN EXPOSURE

President Differs with Secretary of State As to Rewarding Democrats.

Rarely has the radical difference between President Wilson and his democratic followers at the Capital been as strikingly exhibited as in the difference of opinion that has followed the publication of Secretary Bryan's letter to Mr. Vick, asking for a list of possible jobs for "deserving Democrats" who were to be foister by Mr. Bryan upon the helpless republic of Santo Domingo and to be paid generous salaries out of the feeble treasury of that unhappy republic. Mr. Bryan's cynical statement that the letter shows he was doing his best to provide places for good Democrats, while received with contempt and disgust in diplomatic circles, was universally approved by the Democrats in Congress. President Wilson, however, is distressed at both the letter and at Mr. Bryan's evident lack of appreciation of the dignity of his high office.

Mr. Bryan's letter is regarded here as proof of the general belief that when he entered the Cabinet it was agreed between him and President Wilson that the patronage of the Department of State would be divided between them. Mr. Bryan to take all of South America, and the President to take the rest. Certain it is that the amazing appoinments of gentlemen to "envoys extraordinary" to the South American republics bear out this general belief that the letter to Mr. Vick now furnishes the documentary proof. All of the South American "envoys extraordinary" are Bryan men.

It was because John W. Garrett, of Blatimore, was not a Bryan man, although a man thoroughly qualified for diplomatic duties, that the President's determation to retain him as the American ambassador at Buenos Ayres had to be changed and a Bryan man was sent to fill the place.

Never in the hisitory of America has there been a greater demand that the American diplomatic offices in South America should be held by men of the highest capacity than now, when capable men could divert the millions of South American trade from Europe to the United States, and it is singularly interesting that at this very moment the evidence is made public that Mr. Bryan has had the appointing of the American representatives to South America. The Santo Dominican scandal, for it is nothing less than a scandal, indicates the influence that govern Mr. Bryan in making his appointments. He has made personal loyalty to his political fortunes a test of the fitness of the men whom he has named to represent this country abroad and present disgraceful revelations are the first proof of his selfish policy.

Democrats in Congress, however, have read his letter with delight and his explanation with approval. They find themselves supplied with a splendid excuse to give their constituents, who have been demanding the spoils and growing daily more disgusted because the spoils have not been divided. Mr. Bryan's letter will furnisd the text of many a reply to importunate constituents.

At the White House, however, neither Mr. Bryan's letter nor his explanation has met approval. President Wilson very correctly realizes the influence of the letter and the explanation upon that great class of indepenent men in this country without whose support Mr. Wilson realizes the uselessness of Democratic hopes in 1916. In his Indianapolis speech Mr. Wilson made a strong appeal to the independent voters of the country, for he realizes that in 1912 he was elected as the minority candidate owing to the unhappy breach in Republican ranks, and that in 1916 he cannot depend for his re-election upon Colonel Roosevelt, and that he must have in addition to the Democratic votes a great numberof independent voters.

To these independents Mr. Wilson will continue to make his appeal until election day in November in 1916. Mr. Bryan's conduct will come as a shock to all independent men, who will resent his public confession of his misuse of his high office in becoming a petty office broker. There has naturally been no statement of an official character emanating from the White House to indicate Mr. Wilson's annoyance. Any such statement would be useless, for it would not accomplish its only purpose, namely, Mr. Bryan's resignation. Mr. Bryan will not resign, and President Wilson must continue to accept his share of the responsibility for the actions of his Secretary of State, however much he may regret them.

BIG SMASH UP NEAR BLOOMINGTON

Twelve Cars and Engine Derailed Tying Up Traffic for 13 Hours.

Twelve loaded cars of coal in a train being hauled east by engine No. 6021, one of the latest type and heaviest locomotives used on this division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, were wrecked at Bloomington about four o'clock Saturday morning, which effectually closed all traffic over the B. & O. tracks for more than thirteen hours.

All three tracks leading down the mountain were torn up for a considerable distance and not until the tracks were rebuilt did trains resume moving.

Passenger trains Nos. 2 and 3 were detoured by way of Connellsville, Pa. Train No. 55. due at Oakland at 3.30 o'clock, did not arrived until 5.30 o'clock, bringing the first and only mail from the east to the patrons of the Oakland post office.

The wreck was caused by the derailment of the engine and the cars piled up after it, many of them being thrown from the right-of-way over the embankment. No one was injured as a result of the wreck.

NOTICE OF STOCKHOLDERS MEETING.

The regular annual meeting of the Stockholders of THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND, will be held at its Banking House on from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of any other business that may be brought before them.

R. E. SLIGER, Cashier.

SHEPHERD AND FLOCK.

Be sure that the flock is not exposed to storms. Exposure means a poor ewe, a light fleece and a weak lamb.

Keep the sheep quarters well littered with dry straw. Scatter land plaster over the pen to absorb the ammonia and keep the odors down.

Ewes that are successful breeders should be kept as long as possible.

Do not let the sheep drink from a trough half full of ice. Give water regularly and keep the trough clean.

If you want strong lambs give the ewes wheat bran in the grain ration.

If a lamb is chilled dip it in water as hot as you can bear your hand in and wrap it in a warm blanket until it is dry.

"A little farm, well tilled," should contain a few sheep well taken care of.

KEEP EWES HEALTHY.

Bowels Must Be Looked After Before Lambs Begin to Come.

This is a critical time of the year as regards the health and welfare of the ewes, which soon will be dropping their lambs and indeed have commenced to lamb in some parts of the country, says Dr. A. S. Alexander in the Farm Journal.

It must now be the aim of the shepherd to counteract the tendency to constipation, which is shown by every animal well along in pregnancy. Plenty of fresh water should be supplied and bran and oilmeal added to the other ration, for corn, if used, does not open the bowels, nor does it lead to a full flow of milk at lambing time. Salt should be used for pregnant ewes in small quantities and not in the shape of salted hay.

When the lambs commence to arrive the ewes may be brought into a comfortable, sheltered place where there are a number of small pens in which to put each ewe in turn as soon as she drops her lambs. On taking her into the small pen she should be turned up and the locks of wool removed from her udder, so that the lambs will be able to suck without getting wool into their mouths. This done, the ewe may be left for awhile to lick her lambs dry, and when this has been done they should be assisted to stand and take their first drink, if weak, after which they will usually get along all right.

WINTERING THE HORSE.

Idle Animals Need Exercise and a Fair Amount of Feed.

The horse in winter should not be stall tied all day, but should have plenty of exercise. Turned into the well fenced paddock, the horse's exercise will take care of itself. He should be fed and watered at regular times. The feed need not be large. It is worse to founder a horse than to underfeed him. Oats, corn and hay, an occasional bran mash and the horse should winter in excellent shape. The currying should not be forgotten. The proverb says that it is worth good oats to curry. When hitched in the cold they should be blanketed. Horses are susceptible to colds and pneumonia and veterinarian's bills, but they may all be prevented if the proper precautions are taken.

If one has work for his horses in winter, so much the better. The most common mistake is underfeeding them at this season and a consequent resumption of hard work in spring in ill conditions. It does not pay to have dull tools nor inefficient horses. One cannot afford to put up with either. Just exercise a little horse sense in feeding and caring for the horses this winter and see if it does not pay both in efficiency of the horses and satisfaction of the owner.

Relief For Itching Pigs.

Itchiness of the skin of pigs may be due to dirty bedding, to irritating objects in the bedding, to lice or to mange or eczema. On general principles spray and scrub the pigs with a 1-100 solution of coal tar dip and rub in sulphur on the worst spots while the skin is damp. Provide clean bedding. Let the pigs run out daily. Physic each pig and then give medicine for worms. A suitable treatment is to mix one dram of copperas in the slop for five consecutive days for each 100 pounds of body weight of pigs. Repeat the application of coal tar dip solution as often as found necessary.

Live Stock Profitable.

Live stock raising in connection with general farming conserves fertility elements and makes it possible to produce more food on a given area of land. Growing crops and breeding animals should be practiced on every farm of any considerable size if possible, as this kind of farming is surer as a general plan and it saves the farm for future crops.

The Ailing Cow.

Empty stomachs will make "hollow horn." If a cow's coat loses its gloss and is rough and staring give her from one-half to one pound of epsom salts, a cupful of molasses and a tablespoonful of ginger dissolved in a quart of water. Keep her warm and increase her feed, adding roots and linseed meal.

Tonic For Horses.

A handful of linseed meal fed to the horses about three times a week will aid to regulate the system, promote health and a glossy coat.

Lack of Tact.

"Why did you jilt Percy?"

"He is lacking in tact."

"Why, I thought he always said nice things?"

"He does—but not always the right things. He was protesting his love yesterday when we passed an old woman. I saw my cue and said:

"Will you love me when I get old and look like that woman?"

"'Of course I will, darling!' he cried.

"So I dismissed him. The idea of his consenting to think that I could ever get to look like that horrid old thing!"

Women are so particular.

Not at an End, However.

"So our engagement is all over?" he said moodily.

"I am afraid it is, darling."

There was a note of triumph in her voice.

"You see," she explained, "I told it to my dearest girl friend as a great secret."

Then, indeed, did he realize that it was all over.—Lippincott's.

"What are you carrying that lantern around for?"

"I am looking for an honest man," replied Diogenes.

"But why the lantern?"

"No, siree, nothin' so fancy as that about me. I sent him back a gold-headed cane."

POINTS THAT DENOTE A GOOD DAIRY COW

For the man who must buy cows it is difficult, even after years of experience and with a thorough knowledge of the good points of a prime milker, to pick the good ones every time without some sort of what you might call "personal acquaintance" with the beast, writes a correspondent of the Farm Journal.

We all know that form goes with function in large degree, and unless the owner is willing to sell the cow on a guarantee or you have a chance to see her milked once or twice the only way to judge of her qualities and consequently her value is to look her over critically from the standpoint of the judge who assumes that points of outward appearance indicate the inward characteristics.

A dairy cow of fine promise is the pure bred Holstein here pictured. She comes from a family of great milk producers and is named Lindenwood Nadine Johanna. At the age of one year, ten months and seventeen days this cow produced 8580 pounds of butter in seven days, a great record for a senior yearling. Her owner is G. W. Rising of Fayette, O. As the photograph shows, she is a well formed animal of the dairy type, with an udder of exceptional development for so young a cow.

Here are the main points in a good milker from the point of view of a stranger, who must use his eyes solely: Head small and clean cut; muzzle large; forehead straight or concave; neck long and thin, but not scrawny; horns somewhat small; eyes bright and prominent; shoulders thin; loin broad, but not thickly fleshed, as in beef cattle; thighs thin; hind quarters long, deep and strong; flank high; legs short and wide apart; tail long, slim and loosely jointed; frame markedly wedge shaped from all directions; udder set broadly, high up behind, square and high up on abdomen, not loose, pendulous or fleshy; milk veins large and prominent; chest deep and with well sprung ribs; belly large and deep; teats medium sized, evenly placed and wide apart. A fleshy udder, fine to touch when empty and retaining the size and form after milking, indicates a tendency to inflammatory troubles. The skin should be clean and thin, free from the ribs and with a fresh color; hair fine, thick and short; temperament active and docile; large feeder.

The main points in selecting good dairy cows are the large, well balanced udders, that are not fleshy; the large, roomy bodies, showing in the first case an ample laboratory for the formation of milk and in the latter case a capacity for taking care of large amounts of feed.

Such are not always profitable cows, but they usually are. Cows are seldom profitable that give less than 250 pounds of butter in twelve months.

Age of Cattle.

The calf when born has two pairs of incisors; the other two pairs appear during the first month, says Professor G. E. Morton of the Colorado experiment station. When a calf is eighteen months old it loses the middle pair of milk incisors and grows a permanent pair. The next pair, one on each side, is replaced at twenty-seven months of age, the third pair at thirty-six months of age, the fourth or outside pair at forty-five months. The time of appearance of these incisors varies within rather narrow limits, so that we are able to tell the age of young cattle fairly accurately. The calf also has a temporary set of molars which are later replaced with permanent ones, but they are not considered in estimating the age of the animal.

Spoiling Calves' Udders.

A common bad result of sucking among calves is spoiling of udders later on from garget and similar troubles, says Dr. A. S. Alexander. Milk fed calves confined to a pen often learn the vicious habit of sucking one another's udders. Where this takes place it almost invaribly happens that the udder will in time secrete milk, and such milk sours, clots and leads to garget (inflammation of the udder or mammitis or mastitis). This will be news to many a man who has not been a close observer, but we know it to be a fact.

Cholera a Filth Disease.

If it were not for hog cholera pork raisers would be living in the lap of luxury. The time will come when there will be no more expensive hog cholera than for the human cholera that until a century ago ravaged Europe periodically devastated England and America. Both are essentially filth diseases.

Warm the Frosty Bits.

These are the days when the humane driver always warms the bridle before he harnesses his horse. A little warm water should always be poured over the bit before it is placed in the horse's mouth.

Little Problems of Married Life

By William George Jordan

[Copyright, 1910, by Fleming H. Revell company.]

X.—Pulling Together Through a Crisis.

HAVE you ever thought how war or a great common calamity, awful as it is, unifies a nation? Petty differences between political parties fade into nothingness as they face together a common danger or a common grief. The courage, strength and reserve power of the people are focused in a supreme united effort. The artificial walls of class distinction fall as too trifling to be considered for a moment.

When the nation is passing through a crisis it is only by loyally working together that the people emerge again into the sunlight of peace and prosperity. What is true of the nation is true of the family. A crisis in the affairs of a household, if met in the proper spirit, means a new benediction of love, a new restfulness of the deepened sense of mutual dependence, sweet, silent, sincere sympathy, tenderness grown more subtle and a feeling of protection that underneath every sorrow are the supporting arms of love.

There is a soul tonic in the pervading consciousness of a last resource in each other's devotion, no matter how high the waves of sorrow may roll or how threatening their invasion.

It is not our days of greatest joy that we look back upon with most pleasure. It is our time of struggle and effort, of conquered hardships, of pain outlived, of sorrow survived, of failure and of grief transmuted into something higher, truer, uplifting. It is when all these have grown fainter in the perspective of time, with their sharp angles dulled, that we recall them when we are in better condition and can then review them with even a peaceful sense of calm.

Have you ever noted how successful men of business delight to tell the stories of their early struggles? When gathered together in frank, easy talk if one of them speaks of the days when stomach and purse were both empty it will start a series of hard luck stories around the table. Each man seems to take a diver's pride in relating how far down he went and how long he stayed under the waters of oblivion before coming to the surface when the landlord's call for the unpaid rent was a matter of serious import. There is in these stories no note of bitterness or pessimism. They sing the inspiring, triumphant music of optimism, telling man's victory over obstacles, opposition, trial and poverty.

We must all face trouble, care, sorrow, grief. It is how we face them, how we battle, how we stand the strain that really counts. If we have a loved and loving one to stand bravely by us, for whom and with whom we can battle, heart to heart, made nearer and dearer by the united conflict, then we should feel we have been more than blessed. It is the lonely fight that is hardest. When no heart inspires us with the sympathy that is an atmosphere needing no words, when no hand reaches instinctively out to ours in the stillness and darkness and meets ours in a clasp of inspiration and new strength, then the battle is hard.

Plants grow most in the darkest hours preceding dawn; so do human souls. Nature always pays for a brave fight. Sometimes she pays in strengthened moral muscle, sometimes in deepened spiritual insight, sometimes in a broadening, mellowing, sweetening of the fibers of character, but she always pays.

Into every home come days when the clouds of trouble hang low, when sorrow shadows the doorway, when the hand of affliction tightens the heart-strings, when the light of hope dims, flickers and darkens into despair, when sickness comes and its master, death, holds the trembling scale of life; when our very soul seems heavy with an untold grief.

These are but some of the crises that husband and wife must meet—somehow. How they meet them rests solely with the two who must solve the problem. It cannot be met by others. Sorrow never recognizes a proxy vote. We must ourselves elect how we will meet our problems.

THURSDAY JANUARY 21, 1915.

CHINA last year imported 3,000 sew ing machines. That spells progress.

DEMOCRACY apologizing for Secretary Bryan is a spectacle to make gods and mortals laugh.

THE Democratic party always preaches economy when out of office but when in office it can manage to create a deficit in short order.

BRYAN has no peace treaty in his pigeon holes that will fit the hostile situation between the Democrats in the Senate and White House.

THE Democrats in the House are showing bad judgment in accusing each other of being subject to "outside influence," when they have been so submissive to White House dictation.

SELLING wheat to Europe at war prices is good for our farmers. But selling flour at high prices to American workmen confirms the lesson that others besides Europeans must pay the prices.

SENATOR Lee of Maryland, Monday appealed from a decision of the president of the Senate. The president was sustained by a vote of 60 to 1. Senator Lee was that one. A pretty severe call down.

"THERE may come a time," says President Wilson, "when the American people will have to judge whether I know what I am talking about or not." The Boston Transcript replies, "Too late, that time has passed."

ONE cent letter postage will be the theme of a determined campaign to be waged this winter wherein business men of the United States will seek to chrystalize into law the rapidly increasing sentiment for a lower postage rate.

THE gross receipts into the treasury of Maryland during the year, including those from the sales of State bonds were $12,600,566.59. The cash balance on hand October 1, 1913 was $1,475,956.78. The disbursements during the year were $12,999,561.18.

OPINION differs as to the cause of the sudden rise in the price of wheat. On the one hand there is the theory that the extraordinary demand in Europe is responsible for the inflated condition of the wheat market. On the other hand it is believed that the food speculators are to blame.

THAT strong, old Democratic paper, the New York World, commenting upon Mr. Bryan's folly in writing his Santo Domingo letter says: "By his tolly and foolishness Mr. Bryan has given the Republicans a legitimate issue that the country will not hear the last of for many a day."

VERY truthfully does the Louisville, Ky., Courier Journal say. "When we reach the state of enlightment at which we shall boast of made-in-America purchases as proudly as an American woman now brags about imported wearing apparel, American securities will be the soundest value in the world.

"MADE in America," is the slogan of manufactures. Let the farmers adopt this, "Raised in America." Did you know that China exports peanuts directly to the United States and also to France whence a good many of the highest grade are reshipped to this country. "Made in America, raised in America," would be a good trade mark.

THE Senate defeated, 46 to 38, the motion to suspend its rules for consideration of a prohibition rider to the District of Columbia appropriation bill. A two-thirds majority was necessary to suspend the rules prohibiting general legislation in appropriation bills, and the motion failed to receive even a majority. Debate lasted five days.

ON the eve of a severance of official connection with the federal government, Collector Stone has crowned his administration by unearthing a gigantic conspiracy to defraud the government and securing the evidence that will go far toward securing the conviction of the principals. Through his efforts and those of his associates there were seized last Sunday night on the steamship Vedamore 296 cans of opium, valued at $31,080.

WHEN one tries to think over the loss in life and the cost of the war in Europe, he is lost in amazement. The figures are almost beyond the grasp of human mind. For instance, when we read, "that to date the war bills actually paid have averaged $1,060,000,000 a month," and that for five months, and that they are mounting up at a rate of $2,000,000 an hour day and night, Sundays and holidays, the mind is almost paralyzed. If this is the beginning, what will the end be? Can you comprehend the immensity of these figures?

THE most important feature of the coming legislative campaign in the State of Maryland, from the standpoint of the anti-liquor forces, is the selection for candidates for the legislature of men who are resolutely clean and straight.

The history of this warfare against the liquor traffic is full of incidents illustrating the foolishness of placing dependence upon political tricksters. The time has come when we must know a man's attitude on this question. It is all well enough for a man to talk about his record and standing in the community; but, in a matter of this sort, while these count, they are not sufficient, as has been proven in numerous cases, to give us the assurance that when the acid test is applied the man will stand hitched.

LAST Wednesday Senator Borah, of Idaho, delivered a strong speech in the Senate at Washington. It was a general broadside against the administration of President Wilson, with special reference to the President's Indianapolis speech. He reached a climax when he refered to the President's warring to "men who should dare to break the solidarity of the Democratic team for any purpose or from any motive."

The Idaho Senator denounces this statement, comparing it with "the sole and central principle upon which any corrupt political machine was ever organized or put into existence." He declared it was like the utterance of "Tom Taggart, of Indiana, to his followers, eighty of whom pleaded guilty yesterday to the crime of political corruption," and "the orders issued by Murphy to his satellites in Tammany Hall to follow the dictate of the captain regardless of the dictates of conscience or judgment.

It is a remarkable speech, Senator Borah continued. "Its purpose and purport cannot be mistaken or misunderstood. It is a most virulent attack upon one of the great political parties of this country by the Chief Magistrate of the nation, a party in whose traditions millions of his countrymen take to devoutly and patriotically belive. It not only challenges the wisdom of its leaders, but it assails the rank and file. All this is done at a time when our country has sore need of united wisdom and patriotism; when the American people, regardless of party, have long shown patience and forbearance and have long tendered support in order that a situation most delicate because of foreign complicatians might not be aggravated. The people were not prepared for such a speech at such a time.

Senator Robinson, Democrat, asked what he would do with Mexico if charged with executive responsibility, or "when you get to be president." Senator Borah replied: "If I were president I would say to the Mexican people, 'We want you to settle your own internal affairs and we will never interfere for the purpose of acquiring territority.' Secondly, I would say to them, 'You will respect Americrn lives and property or the United States will see to it that they are protected."

CUTTING DOWN THE PORK.

The House of Representatives in the discussion on the present Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Bill has been showing a commendable spirit in cutting out as much as possible unnecessary expenditures and "pork" appropriations.

This has been accomplished by direct objections as well as caustic irony and ridicule. Some of it is playfully baiting as, for example, this of Mr. Goodwin in regard to two streams in the Tarheel State:

"Mr. Chairman, I think I have an eye for the attractive, for the majestic. I am not very poetic, but sir, with my limited acquaintance, I know of no two streams so very attractive as the French Broad and the beautiful Swannanoa. Sir, should these streams be improved, as they should be, from pit to dome, from Alpha to Omego, from top to bottom, from center to circumference, from stem to stern, I dare say, sir, that a great and untold amount of commerce would flow from the topmost mountains of the great Blue Ridge Range gradually down to the sea.

"Sir, if these rivers should be improved and the great and untold products in the Blue Ridge Mountains should be gathered, I can see now in my mind's eye many thousands of pickaninnies gathered up from all over the Mississippi Valley and brought there in double-decked cars; see them detrain with glistening eye, with rubbering necks, with teeth a-grinning, with stomachs distending, and navels protruding, to gather the plentitude of wealth that grows spontaneously and indigenously on the tops of the Blue Ridge Mountains. (Laughter).

"What, sir, are some of these great inexhaustible products? I have just had occasion to look up the census returns, and these are the principal ones, namely, the pomegranate, the chinkapin, the hazelnut, the possum grape, the touch-me not, the squirrel's bark, the owl's hoot, and the wolf's howl."

Open the batteries of ridicule, if by that means "pork" can be eliminated and economy observed.

DEMOCRATIC EXTRAVAGANCE

"This Administration," charges Republican Leader Mann, "is guilty of the greatest extravagance; there is no idea anywhere within it of saving the public money." The worst of that charge is that it cannot be well denied. This administration has some exceptional virtues, but economy is not one of them.—Louisville Courier Journal.

The above from the Louisville Courier-Journal a Democratic paper, is a frank admission of the most serious charges against the Democratic administration. At a time when business depression rules throughout the land; when hundreds of thousands of men are idle, and the profits of industry have been greatly reduced; when incomes have been cut in two, and earning capacities enormously lessened, a Democratic President has increased national expenditures over $100,000,000.00, and has imposed the most vexatious, the most inquisitorial, and the most burdensome taxes ever imposed on the American people.

Extravagance has run riot. Waste instead of economy has been the rule. New and needless offices have been created. Every state in the Union has seen the addition of some federal sinecures, made to be filled by a Democratic politician, and the country is paying the bill amid stress and amid suffering.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mr. H. V. Leighton has sold his interest in the firm of Leighton & Harvey, to Benjamin W. Harvey. The new firm will be known as Harvey & Brother and will be in charge of Charles Harvey. Mr. Leighton will take a good vacation this winter and in the spring take an active part in the completion of the Oakland-Gortner State aid road, he being a member of the firm of Echard, Landon & Co.

William Edgar has purchased the 17½ acre piece of ground adjoining his property known as the Dennet tract. This gives Mr. Edgar one of the best properties on the Oakland-Park road.

Miss Virginia Sperry spent last week at Westernport, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. E. Dellinger.

Mrs. Wm. Edgar who has been quite ill for some time, is slowly improving.

The special meetings in the Methodist church have closed.

Leighton & Harvey in closing up their books for 1914 found that their business had reached the snug sum of $75,000. We congratulate them upon their success.

Tuesday and Tuesday night another snow storm visited the Park, making good sleighing.

Some few enquiries are being received for catalogues for the coming summer.

Miss Cora Weimer, of the Park, was principal of the Oakland Grammar school during the absence of Prof. Sanner.

We are sorry to report the illness of Judge Cuppett, one of our wide awake citizens. Last Friday the Judge had a slight stroke and the next day was helpless in bed. We all hope for his speedy recovery. The Judge is a useful citizen and a good neighbor.

Thomas Callis is assessing the unassessed property of the 7th District, including automobile. Also collecting the dog tax. Get your money ready.

Leighton & Harvey will hold a general auction January 30 at their store room. Read their adv. in another column.

From Small Towns.

It is curious to note that of those prominent in social, political, and literary life today the great percentage come from the country or small country towns. This statement holds true in regard to the past, also. World-figures such as Napoleon, Wordsworth and Goethe spent their early days in seclusion and contemplation.—Towson Journal.

Don't Be Irregular Attending Church; Be a Consistent Performer; Go Every Sunday

GO TO CHURCH!

Reports from all over the country show that the GO TO CHURCH movement is exceeding all expectations. Pittsburgh was one of the cities that made a record. Religious fervor there attained a high pitch when thousands of people who had been remiss in their spiritual duties for years responded to the invitation to make GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY a success. Practically every church benefited by the innovation and some to such an extent that they were at a loss to care for the large crowds assembled.

WHILE NO ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO TABULATE THE PERCENTAGE OF INCREASED ATTENDANCE ON THE PART OF THE EVANGELISTIC COMMITTEE WHICH ORIGINATED THE MOVEMENT, SUFFICIENT IS KNOWN TO SAY THAT IT EXCEEDED ALL EXPECTATIONS BY MANY FOLD AND GIVES WARRANT FOR THE BELIEF THAT AT LAST THE TIDE HAS TURNED IN THE CHURCHES' FAVOR. TAKEN ALL IN ALL, IT WAS THE OCCASION FOR THE RECEPTION OF HUNDREDS WHO WERE LIFELONG STRANGERS TO CHURCH AND THE WELCOMING BACK INTO THE FOLD OF MANY WHO HAD STRAYED INTO OTHER PATHS.

Featured by a special MESSAGE OF APPROVAL FROM PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON to churches in the Allegheny valley, Pennsylvania, GO TO CHURCH day was observed there. Advertising in newspapers, by posters, cards and personal calls was largely responsible for an unusually large turnout. The observance was under the auspices of the Allegheny Valley Ministerial association. Each church member endeavored to take with him five friends, who were urged to invite five more. The services were made attractive by special sermons and music.

Now that the GO TO CHURCH movement has been fairly launched throughout the country, don't let it lag. KEEP PLUGGING. Those who have returned to the church should not be spasmodic in their attendance. BE CONSISTENT. BE STEADY.

GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!

William Michaels, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, and Addie Conn, Plaintiffs, vs. William R. Offutt, Administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, and Joseph Metz or his unknown heirs at law, if any, Defendants.

No. 1017 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree directing the distribution of the personal estate of Maria Groves, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased among the plaintiffs and defendants, Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, according to their respective rights and interests therein.

The amended bill states, that on January 22d, 1914, the plaintiffs, William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel and Sarah Evans, filed their bill of complaint in this cause against William R. Offutt, administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, praying among other things that the personal estate of the said decedent might be brought into equity and administered under the direction of this Court, and that the plaintiffs, by the decree of this Court, might be declared the only heirs at law of the said decedent and entitled to her said estate, and that the defendant answered said bill and certain testimony was taken on the part of the plaintiffs, and that the plaintiffs now charge by way of amendment to their original bill of complaint, and the same so appears from the testimony already taken in this cause, that the said Maria Groves had another brother, a certain Harmon Michaels who departed this life at Wellsville, Ohio, February 17th, 1912, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law, Mary Michaels, his widow and Edward W. Michaels a son, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn, his daughters all of whom are of full age, and that it further appears from said testimony, that Cathrine Fazenbaker, the mother of the said Maria Groves, prior to her marriage to Luther Butt, spoken of in said testimoney, had either married or cohabited with one William Metz, by whom she had three children, to-wit: Lewis Metz, Susan Metz and Joseph Metz; that the said Lewis Metz and Susan Metz are both dead, without issue, and that the last heard of Joseph Metz, thirty-five or more years ago, he was living in Elk County, Pennsylvania, and according to the information of some of the witnesses, the said Joseph Metz was then married, and that by an order of this Court upon the petition of the said original plaintiffs, the said Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn have been made parties plaintiff to this cause, and as the only heirs at law of the said Harmon Michaels are entitled to participate in the estate of the said Maria Groves along with her other heirs at law, and that the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, have also been made parties defendant to this cause, and leave has been granted to the plaintiff to publish an order of publication against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, giving them notice of the object and substance of this amended bill of complaint, and that the said Maria Groves departed this life intestate on or about the 23d day of April 1913, in Oakland, Maryland, and that the said William R. Offutt was duly appointed administrator of her personal estate, and qualified as such, but that no distribution of said estate has been made by said administration, and that William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, Addie Conn and Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, are the only heirs at law of the said Maria Groves, deceased, and the only persons legally entitled to participate in the distribution of her estate after the payment of her just debts and funeral expenses by the said administrator, who has denied and repudiated their several claims of heirship to his said decedent, wherefore, it becomes necessary for them to resort to this Court for the purpose of having their said respective claims adjudicated, and their heirship to the said Maria Groves established by its decree.

The bill then prays that the said administrator may answer this amendment, and that an order of publication be granted against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, who are non-residents of this State giving notice to them of the object and substance of this bill and warning them to be and appear in this Court, either in person or by solicitor, on some certain day to be therein named, and to abide by and perform such order or decree as maybe passed in the premises.

It is there upon this 29th day of December, 1914, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county in Equity, that the plaintiffs by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of January, 1915, give notice to the said absent defendant or defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning him or them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of February next, to show cause, if any, he or they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

An Ohio woman never rode on a railroad train or street car, never saw a moving picture, ballon or aeroplane, dying in the same room she was born in 69 years ago, declared before death that God's greatest blessings were her magazines, newspapers, the family rocking chair and a log fire. And there can be no doubt that she was happier than those who saw and used the things she never knew, for contentment beats indulgence always.

New Way to Collect.

The Toronto Republican contends that Ol Little, of the Alma Enterprise, ought to rent his collector, Bill Hiner, to other editors by the month. Briefly, Bill Hiner is Ol's collector of bad subscription accounts. One time, in the primeval days, when Harve Parsons was a boy and hoped to get into the newspaper game, Ol made a deal with Harve to collect back subscriptions.

Harve was out two days and collected $2.60, which Ol split even with him. Ol counted the $1.30 the same as found. But when he sent out Bill Hiner Bill came in with results. Ol sent Bill out to a little town to collect $10 back subscriptions from one man. Bill found his man, and, of course the man refused to pay. Bill peeled off his coat.

"Watchu going to do?" asked the man.

"Goin' to lick the carnation out of y'u," replied on," said the man; "I c'n get the money."

And he did. Which is why Ol should corporate Bill, or something, and rent his service to other editors.—Kansas City Star.

In these days of wars and rumors of wars, the farm resident has reason to congratulate himself on the comparative security of his lot. The thousands of factory operatives and other toilers thrown out of work by the loss of markets for their productions, would be more than glad of the security of a farm home in these times of uncertainty and unemployment. Nothing like Mother Earth for a good old stand-by!

DAVID WON A WIFE

Encounter With a Burglar Lucky Stroke for Plucky Young Salesman.

By AUGUSTUS GOODRICH SHERWIN.

There was only one ray of light visible about the plant of the Interstate Manufacturing company. That was in a corner of the main office, where David Harris sat poring over an account book. Once in a while he lifted his eyes and stared dreamily at the wall. It was not from weariness or distaste for the extra work he was doing. It was when the picture of his fiance, pretty Mary Lee, came floating into his mind, and the air castles concerning her formed a perfect vista of magical creations.

As to the extra work, David welcomed that heartily. It meant extra money, and ready cash was a large element in his prospects just now. The company employing him did not pay princely salaries. Practical, hard-fisted old Silas Lee, Mary's father, had set the figure David must earn before he would consent to a marriage with his daughter. What worried David was that an advance in salary seemed a long ways off. Worse than that, he believed old Lee capable of encouraging the advances of suitors more desirable in a money way.

"Mary loves me, that's sure," soliloquized John, "so I can only keep plugging away. Perhaps a new opening may come along. Anyhow, I'll go at the work with the best that's in me. Hello!"

David was suddenly startled. The office door went open with a crash, and Mr. Morse, president of the company, plunged into view. He held an open telegram in his hand, and he looked anxious and flustered.

"Nobody here but you," he spoke in a disappointed tone, David fancied.

No, sir, I had some extra work—"

"Yes, yes— I know all about that; but where is Simmons, the head salesman?" asked the manufacturer.

"He started on his vacation this afternoon."

Mr. Morse sank into a chair, mopping his brow and acting pretty well disgusted. Then he fell to looking David over.

"See here," he said finally, "did you ever sell our goods?"

"Except to calling customers and through correspondence, no sir," admitted David, rather reluctantly.

"Do you think you could?"

"I'd try mighty hard, given a chance," replied David, wondering if the "new opening" was coming his way.

"Very well, I'm going to test you out," declared Mr. Morse with sudden determination. "Now, listen carefully. You know Borden, our traveling salesman? From the office we worked up a ten thousand dollar order for four machines from a Mr. William Henry of Acton. There were other bids, but our goods seemed to please Henry."

"I remember the case," said David.

"Three days ago Borden started for Acton. The next day we forwarded to his address at the American hotel there the specifications and contracts. Today we learned that he had gone off on one of his irregular bouts. I have just received a telegram from the American hotel, stating that he has not shown up there. You know Borden throws everything to the winds when his drinking fit takes him. I believe that some business rivals are in a plot to sidetrack him, and probably have his shut up somewhere, dazed or drugged."

"That is a pretty bad state of affairs," suggested David.

"Now for the remedy," said Mr. Morse sharply. "The contract is to be let tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. If you think yourself strong enough to undertake the job—start out. If you succeed it will mean a good deal for you, I can tell you that. A train leaves in half an hour."

"I shall be a passenger on that train," said David simply, and put on his coat.

At five o'clock the next morning David was camping on the front porch of the home of Mr. William Henry. He had reached Acton at midnight, had got the forwarded specifications and contract at the hotel, and had learned that Mr. Henry lived at a suburb ten miles out of the city. He had hired a taxicab, had arrived, and now—David was waiting for daylight and for his prospective customer to wake up.

He sat on the top step of the porch rather drowsily, but figuring out what he would say to Henry, and thinking of Mary. He had been there an hour. Suddenly the front door was pushed open. Quite as suddenly a man came out. He carried a bundle done up in a sheet so big that he could not see over it, ran against David, and before the latter could get out of the way, both tumbled head over heels to the bottom of the steps.

The bundle burst open. With a clatter, silverware, jewelry and clothing spread all over the steps. David grabbed at the man. The latter nearly stunned him by kicking out, made a dive for some near shrubbery, and disappeared.

"What's all that racket?" demanded a stentorian voice, and a man in pajamas appeared at an upper balcony out of a room opening upon it.

"Burglary, I guess," replied David.

"I'll be down in a minute," shouted the man aloft "The mischief!" he added as he reappeared below.

"The thief got away," explained David. "You see, he stumbled over me."

"Yes, but how came you to be on my porch at this unearthly hour of the morning?" inquired the disturbed house owner suspiciously.

"That will be easy to explain," assured David with a smile. "I am not a trespasser with evil designs."

"I should say not!" exclaimed Mr. William Henry. "You've saved me a heap. Hello, all the silver! My watch and chain! My fur winter overcoat! Why, the robber must have been ransacking the house for hours."

Mr. Henry went inside the hallway and sounded a gong. Two servants appeared. He directed the wonder-stricken pair to gather up the scattered plunder.

"You come in," he directed David. "Just wait till I get dressed. You must have something of a story to tell."

David was soon rejoined by his host in the library, into which he had been ushered.

"Now, then," spoke Mr. Henry, "let's hear all about it."

He looked pretty serious as David described the sudden appearance and wild flight of the burglar. Then his fat, jolly face creased into smiles, and he chuckled when David explained why he was an early caller.

"See here," said Mr. Henry, "you'll stay to breakfast with me. Then I've got something to say to you."

If David had been drowsy from his long vigil, the encounter with the burglar had roused him up pretty thoroughly. The ample meal to which he was invited by a most agreeable host encouraged him in the belief that Mr. Henry fully appreciated his accidental helpfulness in his behalf.

"Well," spoke Mr. Henry, when the repast was concluded, "let us get down to business."

"Yes, sir," said David expectantly.

"You produce that contract, and we'll just sign up. If you don't deserve that and better for what you've saved me, I'm mistaken. I'd do it, anyway, for I think your business rivals have played a trick on you."

David Harris went proudly back to his employer with his big ten thousand dollar order. A raise in salary and position came within a week, a happy marriage within a month, and one of the pleasantest surprises of the event was a wedding present from Mr. William Henry of Acton of the best piano money could buy.

ACCOUNTING FOR GRAY HAIRS

Possibly Here Is Explanation of Why Some Men Seem to Be Prematurely Aged.

It is this kind of a wife that makes some men old and gray before their time.

"William," she says, after William is curled snugly up under the blankets for the night, "did you lock the front door?"

"Yes," says William briefly.

"You're sure you did?"

"Yes, sure."

"And you slipped the bolt, too?"

"Yes."

"You know you forgot it once, and it gave me such a turn when I found it out in the morning, I didn't get over it for a week. We haven't much that anybody'd want to steal, I know; but I don't want the little we have taken, for I—"

"I tell you I attended to the doors."

"Well, I hope so, for goodness sake. You attended to the basement door?"

"Yes, I tell you."

"Because if you hadn't, you or I, one or the other, would have to get up and attend to it now. I read today of—"

"Don't care what you read!"

"It said that a man forgot to—"

"I don't care if he did!"

"And in the night a burglar walked right in and—"

"I don't believe it."

"I've a good mind to get up and see if you have locked that door. You're sure?"

"How many times have I got to tell you what I did?"

"Well, you thought you locked it that time you left it unlocked."

Driven to desperation, the poor man crawls out of the warm bed and makes his way down the stairs to see if he locked the basement door, and when he comes back the wife opens her eyes long enough to say:

"Are you sure that it was not locked when you went down?"—Pittsburg Leader.

Unusual.

"He has a very magnetic personality."

"He has, indeed. Why that man keeps his friends even after they get automobiles."

Little Problems of Married Life

By William George Jordan

[Copyright, 1910, by Fleming H. Revell company.]

IX.—Providing For the Future Is a Real Duty.

Two Great Safeguards.

THERE is one problem that dominates the home, an obtrusive, pervasive problem that ofttimes fills the whole horizon of life, one that, like Banquo's ghost, "will not down;" it is the ever present question of home financing. When we have mastered the "to have" the problem of the "to hold" confronts us. It is the question of providing for the home which can never be properly answered until we realize that "provide" is a verb we must learn to conjugate in two tenses—present and future.

There is in our American life too often a blind optimism in living up to an income, in assuming that because the sun of prosperity shines warmly today there is no need of providing umbrellas for a possibly rainy tomorrow. Those who wisely live within an income rarely have to face the problem of trying to live without one. There are two simple guarantees against future poverty and dependence on others, two great safeguards for home and family—a bank book and an insurance policy. They represent the material defense of the home, a bulwark of love's forethought standing strong and firm in the hour of need.

Providing for those nearest and dearest to us is no special virtue for which we should receive a gold medal and a halo. It should not be construed as just a duty. It is greater and bigger and sweeter than duty. It is a privilege that is ours alone.

Financial independence can be secured by most men only by hard, careful saving. It means preparing in times of peace for the hour when fate may wage war against us, being ready for any sudden storm of sorrow, trial, affliction, accident or adversity and holding poverty for a time at bay in trying hours when the individual is unable to stand bravely between his loved ones and the world.

Saving means wise economy, careful planning, thoughtful management and prudent forethought in handling the home funds, be they large or small. If met in the proper spirit it brings husband and wife into closer harmony, more loving co-operation and deeper recognition of mutual helpfulness.

The wife, too, then becomes a money earner, but in the sweet atmosphere of her home, where she belongs. She is practically earning money by her wise economy and her wise saving. The savings bank is the best and most practical way of keeping together small amounts of money, for it is safe, conservative, pays interest and is available when it becomes necessary to call on this reserve.

Systematic thrift will accomplish more than spurts and spasms of saving. If the members of the home finance committee decide that they can afford to set aside monthly or weekly a regular stated sum from the family income it should be reserved religiously. This surplus should be considered as not really belonging to them at the time, but merely as part of a little fortune they are preparing to come into at a later date.

Saving does not imply penuriousness in the home life, but just wise watchfulness against the tyranny of the unnecessary, guarding against the little leakages in home expenses and pitching the key of living in proper harmony with the incoming funds.

No amount of money spent on little luxuries for the wife, no unbroken record for Saturday boxes of candy, no loyal observance of birthdays and other red letter days on the calendar of love, no acts of thoughtfulness nor graceful attentions nor easy going liberality in household expenses, can ever compensate for the treason to love implied in forsaking the duty of insurance.

The husband's square, inevitable duty is to insure his life if he can possibly meet his premiums. The amount of his policy should be as large as he can afford, with due recognition of his resources and his other responsibilities. Many men who carry $25,000 fire insurance policies on their stores or factories have only $3,000 or $5,000 policies on their lives.

Wives are often afflicted with a strange hesitancy, an oversensitive delicacy in broaching the subject of insurance to their unspeaking husbands. They fear that the suggestion might be misinterpreted, that they might be deemed mercenary or some other wildly improbable thing, so in a really cowardly way, that throws into eclipse their own rights and their duty to what children, they suffer in silence [illegible] deration. feel is a slight of love's con- on the subject their simplest expression [illegible] alarm clock on that have acted as an [illegible]ning conscience

A TRIP TO NEW YORK CITY.

A Garrett Countian's Impression of Richmond Borough on Staten Island, New York City.

Greater New York City is composed of five boroughs, Manhattan, Brooklyn, The Bronx, Staten Island (the Borough of Richmond) and Queens. In this letter I want to speak more particularly of Staten Island. The Island contains about 60 square miles or 38,000 acres. Of the Island George William Curtis, wrote: "God might have made a more beautiful place than Staten Island, but he never did." It is certainly "beautiful for situation." It has the highest hills on the Atlantic coast. It is a city of hills largely covered with trees and is an ideal location for a home.

It was first settled in 1639, but its settlers were greatly troubled by Indians. In 1655 the last of the settlers were either killed, captured or driven from the island by the red men of the woods. Six years later nineteen Dutch and French settlers established homes on the island. Some of the early buildings are yet standing. The old court house and church and its grave yard are historic spots, as are also a number of dwelling houses of the ancient days. The Ferry from St. George to Manhattan island,—(New York), the Battery—is conducted by the municipality. It is five miles across the bay and the ride calls for a nickle. It may be interesting to know that this ferry in one year carried 15,000,000 persons and 325,000 vehicles.

In crossing the ferry one sees the Statue of Liberty; Ellis Island, the Government Immigration station; Governor's Island, headquarters of the United States Army for the east, and Long Island and Brooklyn. He also sees the outgoing vessels, sailing to all parts of the world, Uncle Sam's war ships and torpedo boats. The splendid public school building, with large, well kept play grounds; the handsome public buildings, the Carnegie library, the Bay View hospitals, the Home farm, the many beautiful homes speak of the wealth and prosperity of Staten Island.

Midland, South and New Drop beaches where the wild waves are playing and where you get a good salt breeze are attractive places in summer time. The pier at Midland Beach which extends 2000 feet out into the ocean, is one of the longest on the Atlantic coast. Large handsome hotels and club houses are to be found at these resorts. Every thing to please and amuse are found at these delightful places.

Proctor & Gamble the great soap manufacturers have an extensive plant on the island, known as Port Ivory. Their property covers 85 acres of ground. Their employees would make a small sized army. It is a model plant.

The Richmond Light & Power Company, a $9,000,000 electric company furnishes all the electric services for the island, lighting the streets and country roads with tens of thousands of arc and tungsten lamps, furnishing electricity for home, store and factory, lighting and power for the many uses to which electricity can be adopted. This company also operates the street car service on the island and the ferry to Elizabethport, New Jersey. The street car system covers the island and connects St. George Ferry with Elizabeth Ferry. The chief electrical engineer of this company is Wesley H. Rudisill, a Garrett county boy, from Mountain Lake Park.

There are many places to visit with profit and pleasure. The burial ground, where it is said the last of the Hoguenots are buried, St. Andrews' church dating back before the Revolutionary war, the Moravian cemetery, where the tomb of the Vanderbilt's is located, Sailors' Snug Harbor, Fort Wadsworth, the Lilley Pond, Grymes Hill.

The streets and highways of the island cover over 318 miles and are excellent driveways. Many of the country roads are beautiful and full of interest, affording a most charming ride by automobile or carriage, many of them through heavily wooded sections of the island, and along the waterways. We enjoyed a most delightful ride and thought if such beauty is to be enjoyed in winter, what must the summer ride be. We cannot imagine.

The ferry from St. George to the Battery makes trips practically every five minutes, with an all night service. Many of the residents of the island are engaged in businesss in Manhattan Island, where the big stores, big hotels and big places of amusements are. Of Manhattan Island we will write again.

We attended a meeting of the Borough council chamber, called to provide for the needy people of the island. Several short speeches had been made as how to best meet the demand of the hour. Finally a business man arose and said, "What we want, is not a plan to provide for tomorrow, but a plan to meet the demands of today. I will give so much for three months for this purpose." Others caught the inspiration of the moment and followed and in a very short time several hundred dollars were subscribed and committees appointed to go to work and feed the hungry, clothe the needy and provide wood and coal to keep them warm.

The B. & O. Railroad Company have their large freight terminal on Staten Island, and operate a passenger train service, which practically covers the island. By use of this service and the electric lines the visitor is able to see the beauty of the island and a majority of the public buildings, elegant homes and ocean beach.

In the near future the island will be supplied with water from the Catskill aqueduct, 127 miles distant. The county fair grounds occupy thirty acres of ground. The fair continues through five days. It has departments of domestic science, fine arts, culture and industry, and a great horse show. The fair is largely patronized.

Barrett, Nephews & Co., an old Staten Island dyeing establishment is the oldest in America, dating back to 1819. The buildings cover 13½ acres of ground and employ 500 hands. Every kind and class of goods, from the most delicately constructed lace to the heaviest Wilton or velvet floor covering is either cleaned or dyed at this great plant. The company operates 38 stores and has over 1000 agents in the principal cities east of the Allegany mountains.

A large brick plant is operated on the island which makes over thirty millions of brick annually. There are other large mannfacturing industries located on the island. At Tompkinsville is located the American Dock Terminal.

Grow Sunflowers For Feed.

We would suggest to Garrett county farmers the advisability of growing sunflowers. In the past they have been considered a pest. Now there are hundreds of acres being used to produce it. Recent experiments have shown that the seed of the plant, when mixed with certain other seeds, makes an excellent poultry and hog feed. Poultry raisers find it especially valuable.

The sunflower will thrive on land that will not grow other crops. Soil that is too poor to produce good corn will produce a big crop of sunflowers, and land that is too broken for wheat and crops requiring the use of power machinery, may also be utilized for this crop.

In preparation for planting, about the same amount of work is required as for corn. The fields are plowed deeply, and a good seed-bed is made. The sunflower seed is then drilled in like corn, the planter being adjusted so that the plants will be about fifteen inches apart. Planting takes place in that climate the first week in July, and the plants are ready to harvest by the first of October.

The plants grow from fifteen to eighteen feet high and produce heads from sixteen to eighteen inches in diameter. To harvest the crop, wagons are driven along the rows, the heads are cut off and piled in the wagon boxes. The seed is then thrashed by flailing.

An average yield of sunflower seed per acre is 1,400 pounds, although as high as 1,600 or 1,700 pounds have been secured, and as low as 1,200 pounds is produced in some seasons. The price in St. Louis is $3 per hundred for the seed. To raise the crop cost about $6 per acre. Most of this is labor. It takes about four pounds of seed to plant an acre of land, and the seed costs on an average five cents per pound. This makes the net return to the grower about $35 or $36 per acre.

Don't Blame The Editor.

We presume there never was a newspaper in any locality that gave all the local happenings. It is often that somone comes or goes that the reporter did not see. It happens that the family is missed several times. They get the impression that the editor does not care to mention them. This is a mistake. In most country towns the local work is the hardest work connected with a news paper. A man may be a good editorial writer, but a flat failure in local work and vice versa. Editorial material is obtained by reading newspapers, sometimes by using scissors. Personal and local happenings can't be read and clipped from newspapers, not by a jugfull. It takes physical exertion as well as mental to get out four or six columns of local news in a town of this size. Don't be afraid to tell the editor or reporter that you have friends visiting you. There are lots of people who are interested in your friends. You owe it as a duty to them to let your friends know of their doings. Perhaps you think the paper shows partiality, but just see if the paper does not treat you right if you give it a chance.—Exchange.

Eclipses This Year.

The least number of eclipses possible in one year is two, and the greatest number seven. The moon cannot be eclipsed more than twice in one year and may escape entirely as will be the case this year, hence when but two eclipses occur in any one year they must both be of the sun, and when seven occur five of them must be of the sun. There will be only two eclipses this year as follows: annular of the Sun Feb. 14, invisible in America; visible in the Indian and Southern Pacific Oceans and annular of the Sun Aug. 10, invisible in America, visible in the Pacific Ocean and Eastern Asia.

HOGS SWEPT AWAY BY ICY TORRENTS

Much Damage Caused by Ice Gorges Near Grantsville.

The recent heavy rain of Wednesday, Jan. 6, and breaking up of the ice on the river, did considerable damage around in different places in this vicinity, numerous cellars being flooded and other damage done. On Wednesday night the Casselman river began overflowing shortly after midnight to such an extent that the destruction to surrounding property was great. At Little Crossings, about a mile east of town, the water rose with an angry roar, imperilling the mill and other buildings near the river. Wm. Miller, W. E. Stanton and others began blasting with dynamite in order to change the current of the water, by disgorging some of the ice. Their efforts were not entirely effectual as the water rose swiftly and steadily, filling the engine room of the mill to a depth of five or six feet and carrying away a number of outbuildings near the river.

Four large hogs, just ready to be slaughtered, were carried from their sty near the mill and swept off in the rushing torrent of the water, ice and derbis. All efforts to rescue them were futile at the time, and not until long after daylight could they be traced, and then three of the beasts were found lodged among the ice along the river bank, shivering, frightened, but otherwise safe except that one of them had lost his tail in the struggle among the icy waters. The fourth pig has not yet been found and is doubtless dead. It, however, was the smallest of the four and was valued at about twenty dollars. Several hundred dollars worth of damage was done to the surrounding property.

At Davis, about three miles south of here, the water rose to an alarming depth and the fire whistles were sounded as signals to bring men to the rescue of the big saw mill and other places where destruction threatened. Dynamite was used here, also, to avert disaster from the flood. The damage to property is considerable.—Republican Meyersdale.

UNCLE SAM TO OPEN AN EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

Postmasters, Rural Carriers and Other Government Employes to Find Jobs for the Jobless.

A National Employment Bureau reaching into every section of the United States will be put in operation by the Department of Labor this week, carrying out the suggestion of President Wilson in the Indianapolis speech for "a systematic method of helping the workingmen of America." Preliminary work for the bureau has been completed. It was announced tonight by Commissioner Caminetti of the Immigration Bureau, and instructions sent to the postmasters and rural mail carriers throughout the country and to nearly 200,000 field agents of the Department of Agriculture who will co-operate with the Labor Department to bring the jobless men and the manless job together.

The general plan of the Employment Bureau was outlined by Mr. Caminetti as follows:

Notices will be posted in all postoffices announcing that applications for work or workers will be received by the postmaster who will be supplied with forms to be filled out and forwarded to the Labor Department agent in charge of the zone in which the office is located. The distribution branch of the immigration service will handle this part of the work and to them also will go the reports of the Department of Agriculture agents as to sections where help is needed in harvesting or other work. Applicants will then be informed of the place where they can obtain work of the kind they seek and at the nearest point to them, the postal service acting as the distributing and collection agency for applications and replies throughout the transactions.

Maryland Has 43,370 Farm Homes.

There are now 274,824 homes in Maryland, according to a report issusd by the Census Burea, while ten years ago the number was 242,331, compared with 202,179 homes in 1890. Seventeen per cent of the Maryland homes are farm homes, compared with 19 per cent in 1900 and 21 per cent in 1890. The number of homes in this state free of incumberance at the present time is 77,814, while 37,202 are encumbered and 149,201 are rented.

In the entire nation there are 20,255,555 homes. Of this number 6,123,610 are farm and 14,131,945 are surban homes.

Jailed For Stealing Tree.

John Denygan, aged 30, of Roslyn, Long Island, was sent to the Nassau county jail at Mineola for one month by Justice of the Peace Seaman for stealing a cedar tree from the front lawn of the country place of Clarence H. Mackay at Roslyn. Denygan was anxious that his children should have a Christmas tree, and being unable to buy one, he crept up on the Mackay lawn and helped himself to one of the best trees in sight.

BITTINGER.

At the annual meeting of the Mutual Telephone Company, held here last Saturday afternoon, almost all the old officers of the company were reelected.

Messrs. Noah and Samuel D. Brenneman are opening a lime stone quarry near this village, and will probably install a crusher and grinder with which to prepare the stone for agricultural purposes.

Last week's rain fall caused considerable rise in the waters of the Casselman river, and as a result drift ice was piled in the roads along the banks of the stream, blocking travel for a day or two.

Much of the snow has been taken away by the recent rains, but the roads are still very icy and dangerous for man and beast.

Mahlon Baker, who recently spent some time looking at conditions in Delaware, returned to this place last Sunday afternoon.

At a conference of the officers and teachers of the Lutheran Sunday school, on last Sunday morning, it was decided to continue the regular sessions of the school throughout the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Buckle and children were guests at Mr. Buckle's parental home, last Sunday.

Farmers are busy hauling coal, preparatory to an active sugar season.

William Stanton, of Grantsville, was a business visitor to this place recently.

GRANTSVLLE.

The statement of the condition of the First National bank at the close of business on December 31st, 1914, shows that the institution on that date had individual deposits of $96,825.96. All of the departments of the bank, the report shows are in a healthy condition.

Grantsville has the only state bank in Garrett county. It is in a prosperous condition, as will be seen from their latest statement. The resources are $192,173.37. Deposits, subject to check, $152,094.36.

Little Clyde, the 15 months old baby of Mrs. J. J. Bender, has been quite ill for over a month with a most obstinate gathering in the head, which as yet, has refused to yield to treatment. The little fellow suffers greatly from loss of sleep and the intense pain, and Mrs. Bender is quite worn out with her long vigils. Her son Harry, who had his leg broken before Christmas is convalescing nicely with his limb in a plaster paris cast, and is as cheerful as an invalid can possibly be.

QUARANTINE RAISED.

Maryland Counties Relieved By Federal Authorities.

Announcement has been made by the Department of Agriculture that the federal quarantine proclaimed on account of the prevalence of the foot-and-mouth disease among cattle had been completely raised from the following Maryland counties: Allegany, Anne Arundel, Charles, Dorchester, Garrett, Kent, Prince Georges, St. Marys, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico and Worcester.

All traces of the infection, if any existed in these counties, have been removed, and the lifting of the quarantine means that shipments in and out of all cattle, hay, straw, etc., can proceed without hindrance of any kind.

From Small Towns.

It is curious to note that of those prominent in social, political, and literary life today the great percentage come from the country or small country towns. This statement holds true in regard to the past, also. World figures such as Napoleon, Wordsworth, Goethe spent their early days in seclusion and contemplation [illegible] Journal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson IV.—First Quarter, For Jan. 24, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Judg. vii, 1-8, 16-23—Memory Verse, 7—Golden Text, Zech. iv, 6—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The call of Gideon to be the Lord's representative in the deliverance of Israel at this time was made very plain in our last lesson. Today's lesson and the chapter following tell of the actual deliverance and that under Gideon the country was in quietness forty years (chapter viii, 28). In these three chapters Gideon's name is mentioned thirty-nine times, but some name of God is used sixty times. In all things He must be pre-eminent. It is God who worketh; we are only instruments. Interesting references to this great deliverance, with an onward look to a greater deliverance by a greater Deliverer, are found in Isa. ix, 4-7; x, 26, 27; Ps. lxxxiii, 9.

When the Spirit of the Lord clothed Himself with Gideon and he blew the trumpet 32,000 from several of the tribes were gathered unto him, which seemed a very small number to go against an army which was without number and as grasshoppers for multitude (chapter vi, 5, 33-35). According to Deut. xxxii, 30, they would, however, be equal to 32,000,000 of the enemy or even 100,000,000, but the Lord said to Gideon, "The people that are with thee are too many for Me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel vaunt themselves against Me," and so all the fearful and afraid ones were requested to return home (verses 2, 3). This was according to the law in Deut. xx, 8, and reduced Gideon's army to 10,000.

I am interested to know what Gideon thought when the Lord said "The people are yet too many" or if he made any remarks when he saw the 10,000 dwindle down to only 300, but I shall have to wait. The lesson of II Chron. xiv, 11, is strongly impressed upon me—"Lord, it is nothing with Thee to help, whether with many or with them that have no power." As then, so now. God is seeking the whole hearted ones whom He can use. He is ready to save all who will come to Him and not willing that any should perish (John vi, 37; II Pet. iii, 9), but for service it is still true that of the many who are called few are willing to be His choice ones. The cost of discipleship seems too great (Luke xiv, 33). If all the fearful ones and the ease loving ones in our churches were turned down would there be only one in a hundred ready to deny self utterly?

An interesting incident of encouragement for Gideon is found in verses 9-14, for, though listeners are not supposed to hear any good of themselves, this was certainly an exception, for it was of the Lord, both the dream and the interpretation and the time of telling it. Now, try to imagine Gideon's advance—three companies of 100 each and each man with a trumpet in one hand and a concealed lamp in the other. Was there ever anything so seemingly ridiculous in the annals of warfare? But He did it who uses things that are not to bring to naught things that are. He filled with food thousands of hungry people by means of a few loaves and fishes which a little boy had. He overthrew an army of 185,000 by one angel. His name is "Wonderful." "Look on Me and do likewise. As I do so shall ye do" (verse 17). These are the Captain's orders, and to us today the word is "Follow Thou Me!"

Not worldly ways nor schemes of any kind to draw or hold the people, young or old, but just the clear note of the gospel trumpet and the lamp of a consistent Christian life, for the life is the light. When the 300 lights shone forth, and the trumpets sounded, and the cry arose on the midnight air "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon," and every man stood in his place roundabout the camp, then the host of the enemy ran and cried and fled and slew each other, and the Lord wrought the victory (verses 19-23). It is still true that the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds (II Cor. x, 4).

There will always be faultfinders like the men of Ephraim, and we are apt to forget that a soft answer turneth away wrath (chapter viii, 1-3; Prov. xv, 1). There are often ungrateful scoffers who need to be taught by thorns and briers (chapter viii, 6-9, 16, 17), and there is rarely an Abigail to plead for the fools who act thus foolishly (I Sam. xxv, 10, 11, 23-31). The wisdom of Gideon is seen in his saying to those who desired him to rule over them, "I will not rule over you; * * * the Lord shall rule over you" (viii, 22, 23). The folly of Gideon is seen in his leading Israel to worship an ephod instead of the Living God, who had spoken to Israel by the Urim and Thummim in the breastplate on the ephod (viii, 24-27; Ex. xxviii, 6-15, 30).

Oh, the weakness and sinfulness of our poor humanity, and how necessary the admonition, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall!" (I Cor. x, 12.) So with of human nature there is no perfect Jesus, no perfect ture but in her but Himself, no perdeliverer for Israel or the nations till he shall reign in righteousness, and men, and not till then, shall the work of righteousness be peace and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance forever (Isa. xxxii, 1, 17).

CHURCH OF CHRIST A LIVING TEMPLE

Solomon's Temple a Type of the Temple of God.

The Quarry Underneath the Site. Every Stone Fitted to Its Place—Put Together Without Sound of Hammer or Chisel—Foundation of the Temple. Dedication — Glorification — Future Use of the Temple—The Royal Priesthood—The Great High Priest.

Clinton, Ia., July 5.—The Photo-Drama of Creation depicts Solomon's Temple in various stages of preparation, showing the quarries under Jerusalem, the forests of Lebanon, etc. This edifice is the basis of several New Testament descriptions of the Church. The Temple, both type and antitype, was Pastor Russell's theme today. His text was, "The Temple of God is holy, which Temple ye are."—1 Cor. 3:17.

The Pastor began with the declaration that both St. Peter and St. Paul teach that the Church of Christ is God's Temple. He gave Scriptural proofs that only through this great Temple can mankind return to harmony with God; for the Almighty has declared that He will have no fellowship with sinners. St. Paul was quoted as saying of this antitypical Temple, "Other foundation can no man lay than is laid, which is Jesus Christ." St. Peter also was quoted as declaring to the Church, "Ye also, as living stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy Priesthood."

Solomon's Temple, the speaker maintained, was a type of this Temple of God. He then briefly described this Temple, and called attention to two striking peculiarities connected with its construction; first, that the stones were taken from underneath its site; and second, that neither hammer nor any tool of iron was heard in the house during its erection. These two features he holds are typical.

The Living Stones of the Greater Temple.

Next the antitype of Solomon's Temple was discussed—the Church of Christ. The living stones of this antitypical structure are taken from the world, but are chiseled and polished in that antitypical quarry. After they have been prepared, they are removed from the quarry. For more than 1,800 years this work has been in progress.

The process of cutting, chiseling and polishing these living stones was explained. Each has been separated in spirit from the world. While it was difficult to block out character and to become separated from one's surroundings, it was still more difficult to endure the necessary chiselings—experience after experience, trial after trial—to prepare each stone for a place in the glorious Temple yet to be constructed. Meantime the polishing process continues. Each living stone polishes others.

Here the Pastor showed that while severe trials and tests may come from the world, yet the finest polish results from contact with the brethren. Whoever learns to love the brethren, and to endure all their weaknesses and imperfections in the right spirit, will receive a high degree of polish, otherwise termed fruitage. "The fruits of the Spirit are manifest, which are these: meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, brotherly-kindness, love."

Construction of Antitypical Temple.

The construction of the antitypical Temple was then shown. Eighteen hundred years ago the Foundation Stone was laid—in Heaven—the Top Stone, into whom all other stones must be fitted, as St. Paul declares. Throughout this Gospel Age the great Master Workman has been supervising the preparation of the living stones under strict rules as to size, shape, etc. Not until the full number is ready will the construction of that glorious Temple begin. That work will be accomplished in the First Resurrection.

The Pastor holds that we are living in the end of this Age, and that therefore the work of construction has probably begun. This does not imply, he declared, that the final polish has been given to all stones. Those long since prepared could be placed while the last are being finished. The Scriptures so intimate which say that "the dead in Christ shall rise first"—beforehand—and that "we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord."

The Glorification of the Temple.

After every living stone has been placed, the glorification of the Temple will follow. In the type, after Solomon, type of our Lord, had offered the sacrifice, God accepted it. Then glory filled the Temple. In the antitype, when our Lord has constructed the Temple, He will await the Father's acceptance, after which the glory of God will fill this living Temple.

God will be in this glorious Temple of the future—the glorified Christ. Divine Power will operate through it, and all nations will draw near to God. But they must approach Him through The Christ.

The Priests of this Temple will be Jesus, the great High Priest, and His Church, the under priests. As yet there is no Royal Priesthood; for only those found worthy to share our Redeemer's Throne will constitute that Priesthood.

THE MAN'S LOVE.

Upon the sands, the shifting sands,
Beside the cruel, sorrow laden sea,
The woman came to me.

Her gown of foam, of airy foam,
Above the spreading hush of endless waves,
Was mist of secret caves.

Her voice of dream, of echoing dream,
Murmured the timeless passion of the wild,
Tender and mother mild.

Her brooding eyes, desiring all,
Enslaved me on the balmy breast of life,
So I took her to wife.

Yet through the night, the infinite night,
Beyond the woman—and beyond the sea—
My fleeing soul is free.

James B. Cox, vs. Gertrude Cox.
No. 1976 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii.

The bill states that on or about the 17th day of June, 1906, the plaintiff was married to the defendant and took up their residence in Cumberland, Allegany county, Maryland, where they continued to reside until about the 15th day of December of the same year.

The bill further states that on or about the last named date the defendant left plaintiff's home and abandoned him and that he has never seen her from that day to this and does not know where she lives, other than than that he has been informed that she is now within the Panama Canal Zone.

The bill further states that the plaintiff never gave the defendant any reason for abandoning him, but that his conduct toward her had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; and further says that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eight years and he believes is deliberate and final.

Plaintiff further says that he has resided for the last three years in Garrett county, and that no children was born as a result of said marriage.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrioimni and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 4th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of February, 1915, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of February next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

That being so indebted, and possessed of some real estate, but of no personal property of any consequence, the said Aaron Trent departed this life about Feb. 14, 1914, intestate, leaving no widow or descendants, but leaving nephews and nieces whose names are above enumerated, together with some other heirs whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, as his only heirs at law.

NO BOOZE BY FREIGHT.

Yesterday, as was predicted in these columns last week, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company issued orders to its agents and employees all over the system not to accept for transportation into the State of West Virginia anything of an alcoholic nature except packages consigned to regularly certified druggists or for the use of ministers for sacramental purposes.

This order of the B. & O. Company seals West Virginia against non-residents shipping intoxicants into it and there remains but two ways to transport it into the State—take it in yourself or establish an air line.

EDITOR C. A. DEFFINBAUGH LANDS OAKLAND POSTOFFICE

Recommendation That He Be Appointed Made Thursday

On Thursday last Congressman David J. Lewis recommended the appointment of Mr. Charles A. Deffinbaugh to be postmaster in Oakland, succeeding Postmaster James C. Peddicord, whose term of office expires on February 1st and who has occupied the office for the period of eight years.

There were a number of applicants for the position of postmaster in Oakland, but the fight was waged as between Mr. Deffinbaugh, who had the backing of the old line Democrats, and Mr. Thomas Little, who was endorsed by the entire Democratic County Committe, members of the Seventh and Fourteenth District Committees and by several business and professional men. To strengthen Mr. Little's claims for the appointment County Chairman Thomas J. Browning made no less than three trips east to intercede with Mr. Lewis in Mr. Little's behalf, the last visit being made upon last Thursday, the same day Mr. Deffinbaugh was recommended for the appointment.

Mr. Deffinbaugh is the editor and publisher of the Mountain Democrat and as such he has always stood for the party and its principles. His appointment was hailed with delight by his personal friends, among them being many Republicans. He is well fitted for the position and The Republican extends its hearty congratulations and best wishes to the incoming public official, at the same time acknowledging the fact that the outgoing postmaster has been painstaking, loyal and efficient in the conduct of the office.

In Memory of Mrs. N. R. Sanner.

The death of Mrs. N. R. Sanner, which occurred at her home last Monday at 11.45 p. m., after an illness of less than twenty-four hours, was a great shock to her many friends, and it cast a gloom over the entire community. Mrs. Sanner was the daughter of former Senator and Mrs. R. T. Browning, and was born at the old Browning homestead at Sang Run on the 31st day of March, 1882, in the house in which her great grandfather Meshack Browning lived and died. She was married to Mr. N. R. Sanner June 26, 1900, by Rev. Father Connell. She is survived by her father and mother and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. P. J. Garrett, of Deer Park; Elizabeth A. (Sister Maria Teresa), of Philadelphia; Miss Ellen Jane, Superintendent of the St. Clair Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio; Richard S., of Spokane, Washington; Miss Margaret, at home with her parents; and Wm. R. Getty, in the employ of the State Roads Commission, in Baltimore. She is also survived by her husband and two sons, George Lamar and Richard Thomas, aged thirteen and eleven years, respectively, just the age at which they most need the care of a loving mother. All of the above named relatives were present at the funeral, which took place from St. Peter's Catholic church last Thursday morning at nine o'clock, except Richard S., who could not reach here in time.

Mrs. Sanner was a faithful, consistent Christian, and it may truly be said of her that every trait that adorns the female character shone brightly in her. She was a dutiful child, a most exemplary mother, a faithful and devoted wife, and a true friend. Although the summons came so suddenly and unexpectedly, yet I am sure she was well prepared for the great change, being sustained by the last rites of the Catholic Church of which she had been a faithful member all her life. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved ones who have received such a shocking blow. All we can now say is "God's will be done," and when we are called to follow after her may our good Lord grant us the grace of a happy death, that we may all be reunited with her in that other and better world. May she rest in peace.

A FRIEND.

Resolution of Respect.

At a meeting of Olive Branch Castle No. 9, Knights of the Golden Eagle, held at Mountain Lake Park on last Friday night the following resolutions were presented and adopted:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has visited the home of our brother, Norman R. Sanner, and taken therefrom his beloved wife and companion, leaving a sorrow, deep and pungent; therefore, it is Resolved, By the members of Olive Branch Castle No. 9, Knights of the Golden Eagle, Mountain Lake Park, Md., that we tender our sincere sympathy to Brother Sanner in his deepest sorrow and affliction; and may the Heavenly Father send the Comforter to Brother Sanner in his bereavement and by faith in Jesus Christ at last reach the evergreen shores of eternal life where there are reunions and no partings nor sorrows, is the sincerest desire of the members of this Castle.

One Billion Dollars Lost and Nothing Accomplished.

To the Editor of The Republican:

I think the enclosed might be of interest to the readers of your paper.

R. E. S.

During the five months just passed, it is probable that every man from the greatest captain of industry to the humblest worker has devoted some minutes each day during ordinary business or working hours to a discussion of the war and its consequences. Taking the average value of the time of these men and the average time so wasted by them which might have been devoted to their respective occupations, the loss to the world through such discussions, which probably accomplish nothing, has been in excess of one billion dollars. If during the year ahead of us, we devote those few minutes each day to energetic effort, the benefit to our country from a strictly financial standpoint will be fully that sum.

Freight Car Wrecked.

Tuesday evening about half past eight o'clock a wheel of a freight car loaded with coke, broke in two as the train was nearing the station and as a result the car was thrown over the embankment into the Oakland Hotel grounds. The car almost completely demolished. Traffic was not interfered with to any appreciable extent.

In Memory of S. P. Specht.

In loving remembrance of Mr. S. P. Specht, who departed this life at his home in Deer Park, January 10, 1915, at the age of 59 years and 22 days after he had been a patient suffer bnt four weeks. He leaves to mourn the loss of a dear husband, a wife, one daughter, five sisters and many relatives, who have the assurance that they can met him in the glorious realms above.

During his illness he received every care and attention that a loving wife, relatives and friends could bestow upon a dear husband who was to be taken from them.

After a brief services held at his home in Deer Park, he was taken to McHenry, where his funeral was preached in the Union church by his pastor, Rev. Bremer, assisted by Rev. McCamic of Deer Park. His remains were laid to rest in the Flat-Woods cemetery. Undertaker Bolden had charge of the funeral arnngements.

The pall bearers consisted ot the Deer Park Cornet Band, of which he also was a member. The flowers were many and beautiful.

For when the morn came dim and sad,
And chilled with early showers,
His quiet evelids closed he said,
Another morn than ours.

All is dark within our dwelling,
Lonley are our hearts to-day,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever gone away.

Call not back the dear departed
Anchored safe where storms are o'er,
On the border land we left them,
Soon to meet and part no more.

Though cast down we're not forsaken,
Though afflicted not alone.
Thou didst give and Thou hast taken,
Blessed Lord thy will be done.

THE DEATH RECORD

JACOB S. MILLER.

In the death of Mr. Jacob S. Miller, which occurred at John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, on Monday, of pneumonia, Garrett county and especially the community surrounding Grantsville, has lost one of its highest esteemed and best beloved citizens—one whose place it will be hard to fill in church, social and business matters, for Mr. Miller was looked upon as a leader among the people of his section of the county.

Mr. Miller had been an inmate of the hospital for over three weeks owing to a severe organic affection and was improving under the treatment when pneumonia developed, to which he succumbed in a few days.

He was born in Garrett county on August 12, 1855, and spent all his life here, and he was a faithful member and pastor of the Amish Church from which place the funeral took place yesterday afternoon. A widow and eight children are bereaved, Mrs. C. J. Yoder, Mrs. Alvin Schrock, Elizabeth, Lucy, John D. and Menno J. the former a prominent lumberman, and the latter proprietor of the Miller garage in Grantsville, also two sons Simon and Noah at home. Interment was made in the Amish cemetery.

Mr. Miller was the owner of Strawberry Hills Farm, near Grantsville, which he conducted for many years.

MR. HARRY WHITMORE.

The remains of Mr. Harry Whitmore, son of Mr. Charles Whitmore, deceased, who was some years a foreman at the Crellin saw mill, were brought to Oakland Tuesday for interment in the Oakland cemetery. Mr. Whitmore died at Connellsville, Pa., after three days illness from pnenumonia. He was 33 years of age.

MRS. JASPER GUARD.

Mrs. Jasper Guard died at her home in Friendsville, Tuesday at 6 o'clock p. m., after a long illness, aged 40 years. She is survived by her husband and three step children, Mildred, Clarence and Daisy, all married. Mrs. Guard was a danghter of John W. Savage.

By Rail From Somerset to Grantsville.

"Just a question of financing the proposition now" was about the only information that was given out following a visit to Johnstown, Pa., of A. J. Vandergrift of New York City and G. C. Winslow of Somerset, who are among the projectors of a trolly line to connect Johnstown with Somerset.

If the project materializes, it was stated last evening, the time will not be far distant when the Pennsylvania & Maryland Street Railway Company, now chartered between Grantsville, Md., and Meversdale and Garrett Somerset county, will be extend and the latter point to Rock eventually to Somerset

GRANTSVILLE BECOMING A SUMMER RESORT

Many Allegany County People Will Spend Months There.

Grantsville, the metropolis of the eastern section of Garrett county, lying 14 miles west of Frostburg, is not only a wideawake rural town but is, every summer, becoming the "Mecca" for throngs of summer visitors who find rest and delight in the mountain ozone and pure air to be found in the favored spots of the Allegheny Mountains.

The coming summer will find Grantsville more popular than ever. Having the Castleman river almost within a stones's throw aquatic sports are being developed. Along the banks of the Castleman river 400 yards from the Castleman bridge on the National Pike a commodious cottage has been erected by W. E. G. Hitchins and I. L. Ritter at a cost of $4,000. It is of original rustic architecture, containing 3 bed rooms, a kitchen and a large dining hall, the latter having polished maple floor and a huge old time fire place.

H. G. Evans, an enterprising Frostburger, is now having plans drafted for a bungalow rivaling in size and beauty the one just completed. It will occupy a pretty spot near the Castleman bridge but invisible from the pike.

The rustic cottage built by Messrs. Hitchins and Ritter has been christened Castleman Cabin. It is, however, far from a cabin. With its stately colonial ch. ney and its wide verandas it has the appearance of a pretentious roadside inn.

Mr. Evans, it is said, will name his cottage "The Lonesome Pine Cottage."

It is expected that several new cottages of a very substantial nature will be erected on the opposite bank of the river this summer by local people. There are already a large number of boat houses and private bathing houses which are used by summer visitors at Grantsville.

The Castleman river at the point where these new cottages are being erected is wide and placid, varying in depth from 3 to 8 feet, making canoeing and bathing safe for children as well as grown folks.

Being but 25 miles from Cumberland and 38 miles from Uniontown on the National Pike, Grantsville, with its fine new hotels and its suburban summer resort seems to be on a sure road to popularity with people searching for health and rest in the hot months of the summer.

"Castleman Cabin" will be formally opened at an early date when its owners will entertain a number of their friends with a big luncheon and dance.

Music for the occasion will be from a large Victrola and refreshments will be made at the cabin and served in old time portions without formality.

This opening of Garrett county's newest summer resort promises to be a big affair and it is said that the guests will include persons from every town in Garrett and Allegany counties.

A TPIP TO NEW YORK CITY

A Garrett Countian's Impression of the Nation's Greatest City.

In mv letter last week I spoke of beautiful Staten Island. Before writing about Manhattan Island, New York City proper, I want to add a few words about New York's great hospital, Sea View hospital located on Staten Island, most beautifully and delightfully located, as well as the finest, best appointed and most up-to-date hospital in the wide, wide world. A person who has never looked upon the cluster of magnificent buildings that compose the instiution, cannot form a proper idea of their extent, their appearance nor their importance.

The property covers about twenty five acres of ground. There are fourteen buildings, other buildings are to be added. The total cost of this property was $3,460,000. The past year 2,370 patients were accomodated in the institution, and 200 deaths occurred. The Seaview hospital receives primarily complicated cases of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Adjoining this property is the one hundred and twenty-five acre Farm Colony and its splendidly arranged and equipped plant for caring for the city's poor and worthy citizens. It was my privilege to visit these two modern plants and pass through their delightful grounds, and as I looked upon this gift of the state and city to the needy and suffering I could not help but feel that it was a glorious privilege to live in a Christian land.

Leaving Staten Island by ferry we land at the Battery, one of the delightful and most enjoyable spots, in summer time, on Manhattan Island. A few minutes walk and you are at the aquarium, where hour after hour can be pleasantly and profitably employed in seeing the fish of stream, lake and ocean, sea lions, alligators, turtles, etc. The afternooon we spent in the building was greatly enjoyed and will long be remembered.

At the Battery you may take your choice of getting up town. The subway, the elevated or the surface street car line. The subway is the underground route, with its local and express trains of from three to seven large passenger coaches; every five blocks is a station for local trains, the express train stopping at stations 15 or more blocks apart. At these stations are stairways leading to the streets above. Some of the stations are on a level with the cellar floors of great business houses and have an entrance to the building, with its splendid line of merchandise.

The elevated roads are built over the streets on steel tressels, and have stations as the subway, which are reached by stairs. A ride over the elevated is greatly enjoyed by sight seers. The outlook being much finer than that of the surface line, being above the street. You have a fine view up or down the cross streets. The trains like those under ground are composed of three or more coaches. New York City boasts of its one old time horse street car line, a sort of reminder of ye olden days—a remarkable contrast between the past and the present.

New York City boasts of the greatest railroad stations in the world. That of the New York Central for years was marvelous in the eyes of the traveling public, but on the completion of the great Pennsylvania depot it became a wonder of the past. The underground portion of the Pennsylvania station is a wonderful revelation a small city in the boweis of the earth—with its stores, restaurants, newsstands and other places of business. The Pennsylvania trains pass under the water in mammoth tubes. One takes his seat in a Pennsylvania train in the station and retains it until the journey is completdd. On the B. & O. you must use the ferry to Jersey City.

True, the ride on the splendid ferry boats is enjoyed, for you have a fine view of the bay, the Statue of Liberty and other points of interest, as well as of the great ships that travel the ocean to foreign lands.

It would be useless to try to describe the buildings of this greatest city of the Western Hemisphere, buildings of granite, of marble, of steel, buildings of many, many stories in heighth, whose floor space would cover acre after acre of ground, showing the wonderful conception of the human mind, buildings of architectural beauty and grandeur, great business houses with a yearly business running up into millions of dollars each year.

Its beautiful public buildings, the creation of a genius and costing millions of dollars of money, the description of which is beyond the possibility of the human mind. Beautiful! Magnificent! Grand! exclaims the onlookers, same words, but the best obtainable.

Its splendid, magnificent hotel buildings, with all the modern improvements and conveniences imaginable are attreactive places, and in keeping with the surroundings and demands of the public.

Its houses of worship are in harmony with the general architecture of the city and what might be expected of a refined, cultured and wealthy people. Here is to be found temples of worship builded in the beginning of the city and the nation, when the foundation of the great American Republic was begun. Old Trinity, John Street and other churches of the early settlers, still attract worshippers of the true and living God.

The residences of the city will not disappoint you. The homes of the millionaires are all that money can produce—palaces of beauty. There are hovels as well, but there are great comfortable tenement houses for the people of moderate means.

The business center of New York City at night is a magnificent sight. Its well lighted sky-scrapers, its thousands of brilliantly illuminated electric signs, of many designs attracts thousands who enjoy the constant changing scene before and above them. It is an exhibition of the power of the brain of mankind.

The population of the world. Thev are here. People from almost every where. It is a great consmopolitan city. The streets are alive with people, moving like a marching army. One wonders, "where do they all come from? Where are they all going?" From morning until night and from night until morning it is tramp, tramp, tramp.

What shall I say abont the great stores of the city. Immense buildings filled with all the requisites of the human family, with handsome show windows of the most attractive character. You may enter one of these stores and purchase everything you need to furnish your house, from cellar to garret, ready to keep house; provide every stitch of clothing needed for each member of the family, from head to foot; purchase the supplies for the table, from a lunch to a royal dinner; where you may purchase a square meal or sandwich, or buy a cup of tea or coffee; read the morning paper or a popular magazine, where you may write a letter or rest your weary limbs—had they bed rooms to let, one might enter one of these stores and live the days of their lives without going out doors, buy everything they need except a coffin and place to burry it.

The large clock on the Colgate & Son's building is one of the attractive features of the city, by day and by night. At night it is lighted up. The face of the clock is 38 feet.

When one considers the greatness of New York City, he becomes somewhat like the young man who had never been away from home. One day his father took him to the county seat, a town of 10,000 or more. It was 15 miles distant from the farm. It was a day of days for the boy. One day while plowing the old gentleman noticed his boy when at the end of a furrow, looking all around with interest. So he said, "Son, what are you looking at?" The boy replied, "Dad, is the world as broad as it is long?" "Yes," repled the father. "Then," said the boy," "its a whopper." He had traveled, he thought, the length of the world. New York City is a whopper.

Anniversary of Baltimore City.

Monday, January 25th, was the one hundred and eighty-fifth anniversary of the surveying of a tract of land composed of about 60 acres and which afterward developed into the present Baltimore. The price of the land which was purchased from Charles Carroll was about 90 cents an acre. On January 12, 1730, the town commissioners met the county surveyors of Baltimore county and ordered him to run out the town beginning at a locust post which was set up in middle of the territory.

In 1752 the Gegorian calendar was introduced into England and her colonies, at which time equinox had retrograded 13 days since the Council of Nice in A. D, 325. Thus September 74 1752, would become under the new calendar September 20. As a result of this change in time the anniversaries are celebrated 13 days later than the originial date.

Not His Style.

Andrew Carnegie, celebrating his seventy-ninth birthday in New York, said to a reporter:

"I impute my good health to my activity. I have always kept active. Nothing ages you, you know, like shiftlessness—like the shiftlessness that is found in certain parts of Florida.

"A Florida cracker and his wife were sitting on their stoop one day. The man was chewing tobacco and the woman was dipping snuff. Suddenly a loud blare of music was heard and a political procession passed by.

"'Wall,' said the man, 'consarned ef thet thar ain't the finest political parade I've seen since our winter in Jacksonville.'

"'Fine parade is she Bill?' said his wife.

"'You bet!'

"'Then I'd sartinly like to see her,' said the woman. 'Pity I ain't facin that way!'"—Washington Star.

STATEDEMOCRATSWORRIED OVER THE GOVERNORSHIP

Linthicum, Lee and Harrington Are Three Aspirants Mentioned.

Notwithstanding the state election will not take place until nine months hence, politicians throughout the state are already grooming candidates for the leading offices, or more properly speaking, the candidates are testing public sentiment through their friends. The activity in this direction is confined almost wholly to the Democratic side, the Republicans, especially those in Baltimore city, being more interested at this time in the municipal campaign.

Just now three aspirants are being mentioned. These are Congressman Linthicum, Senator Lee and Comptroller Harrington. Linthicum shield his castor some time ago and then subsided. This does not indicate that he has dropped out of the race. Those who know the political game believe he acted wisely. He came out early to keep his friends in line and then to prevent his candidacy becoming stale, he fell back ready, however to come again when called upon. As to his chances, that is a different proposition. The counties are opposed to a city man, just as they always have been, and under the primary system, which allows the city only 28 votes, a candidate may have a plurality of all the votes cast and yet be beaten out of the nomination.

Senator Lee who is the father of this unique plan, as well as Senator Smith, who had it adopted when he was a candidate for the Senate, had in mind the advantage given a county candidate when they got behind it. Smith has already profited thereby. Now Lee, who failed four years ago because his opponent was also a county man, may try again. It is understood he does not care to try to succeed himself in the Senate his ambition being to manage the affairs of the state. If he goes into the fight it will be to his interest to keep both Linthicum and Harrington in the fight, so as to provide the organization forces. He may then slip in as the second choice.

If the local organization unites on Linthicum he will undoubtably carry the city, and he may have a chance. If it does not, the congressman will find the sledding rough. Harrington could probably rely on most of the Eastern Shore counties and may be the city's second choice, but an Eastern Shore man would not be the strongest candidate before the people. The nine counties across the Bay have had the Governor in two successive administrations and those on this side believe it about time they had an inning.

At long range it looks as if this fight would be one of the liveliest the Democrats have had in years.

WILLIAM PENN'S PHILOSOPHY.

Lend not beyond thy ability nor refuse to lend out of thy ability, especially when it will help others more than it can hurt thee.

Frugality is good, if liberality be joined with it. The first is leaving off superfluous expenses; the last is bestowing them to the benefit of others that need. The first without the last begins covetousness; the last without the first begins prodigality; both together make an excellent temper.

Love labor, for if thou dost not want it for food thou mayst for physic.

Be reserved, but not sour; grave, but not formal; bold, but not rash; humble, but not servile; patient, not insensible; constant, not obstinate; cheerful, not light; rather sweet, than familiar; familiar than intimate; and intimate with very few, and upon very few grounds.

If thou hast done an injury to another rather own it than defend it. One way thou gainest forgiveness, the other thou doublest the wrong and reckoning.

If thou thinkest twice before thou speakest once then wilt thou speak twice the better for it.

FARMERS AND THEIR NAGS.

Their Teams Should Be Well Fed And Groomed.

The Breeders' Gazette says: The farmer's team is an advertisement of his farm, whether he would or not. The advertising value of a pair of well-kept, vigorous farm mares with quality is not enough appreciated.

On the road or in the furrow work horses are constantly leaving impressions—not only of their own intrinsic merits or demerits, but of their owner's rank as a good farmer and horseman. Some farmers never did have a horse but that one could count every rib a rod away.

They do not seem to know the first principle of proper feeding or growing, and the fact is they never care very much about horses anyway. Others are always driving horses which command admiration; they are sleek, flashy and always forward in the collar, champing the bit impatiently at times as if they would be off and pulling at the tugs in order to pays for their oats.

Every community is full of examples of the value of the farm team advertisement. The forehanded farmer must accord the matter his careful attention. He will have things to think about in attempting to put his best foot forward in this regard. He must decide on the breed and colors which would suit him best, as well as on the harness and trappings. His reward is full to overflowing when he passes folks on the road and they pause and turn around in order to get a full effect of an equine moving picture. The effect has not esthetic value alone; there is money in it.

Last Thursday a team of horses stood all day long in the fierce weather that prevailed that day, without blankets or feed. This action created much talk, and ended in talk. It was a case for the Humane Society.

LIQUOR LAW UPHELD.

Judge Rose Reverses Decision He Had Preiously Rendered.

Judge Rose yesterday reversed his decision under which he held that railways were, under the law, obliged to accept intoxicants for delivery inside the State of West Virginia. Under the ruling yesterday, which was based upon a decision of the United States Court of Appeals, railroads will not be able under the law to deliver alcoholic liquors in West Virginia. The only exception uneer the West Virginia law is wine for sacramental purposes and liquor for medicinal purposes. The case will be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The decisions were given in the case of the James Clark Distilling Company in their bills against the Western Maryland Railway Company of the American Express Company.

Counsel for the distilling company objected to the vacation and setting aside of the decree of December 24, 1914. The distilling company contended that the application of such a law would be a violation of the Federal Constitution, and it is also contended by it that if the law applies to interstate commerce, such as was at issue in this case, and is authorized by the Act of Congress of March 1, 1913, entitled, An Act Divesting Intoxicating Liquors of the Interstate Character in Certain Cases, then that this Act of Congress is itself unconstitutional.

The decree of Judge Rose sets forth that his former decree is vacated and set aside following the decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in the case of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in the case of West Virginia against the Adams Express Company. The bills of the distilling company are dismissed and the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States is granted.

The Idaho Senate passed the Hart resolution providing for the submission to the voters of the state at the next general election of an amendment to the constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor after May 1, 1917. Only one vote was cast against the resolution.

The state legislature of Washington, rushed through both houses a resolution declaring against holding a special election in 1915 on the liquor or any other question. This means that Washington will go "dry" in January, 1916, under the initiative bill passed last November by the voters.

The liquor interests sought to take the prohibition issue before the voters again this year in the form of initative measures intended to nullify the new law before it became operative.

Not only has there been a large decrease in the amount of beer consumed during the last year, but spirits also have been on the toboggan. The reports of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the fiscal year 1915 shows the amount collected on the distillation of spirits $4,781,165 less than in 1913. When it is remembered that an immense quantity of liquor was taken from bond in order to escape the payment of the additional war internal revenue tax, we have every reason to feel that temperance at least is making progress.

The German War Department has written another paragraph into the history of the use of alcoholics in this war. It says:

"At first alcohol supplies a certain liveliness, but with the consumption of larger quantities it causes somnolence. Experience teaches that abstinent soldiers can best resist the fatigues of war. Besides, the use of alcohol leads to excess and dissoluteness. Alcohol, therefore, is to be used with the greatest care, and is to be absolutely avoided on the march. For giving warmth it is not to be recommended. The warmth which it conveys is entirely deceptive. All in authority are requested to pay strict attention to the necessity of limiting its use.

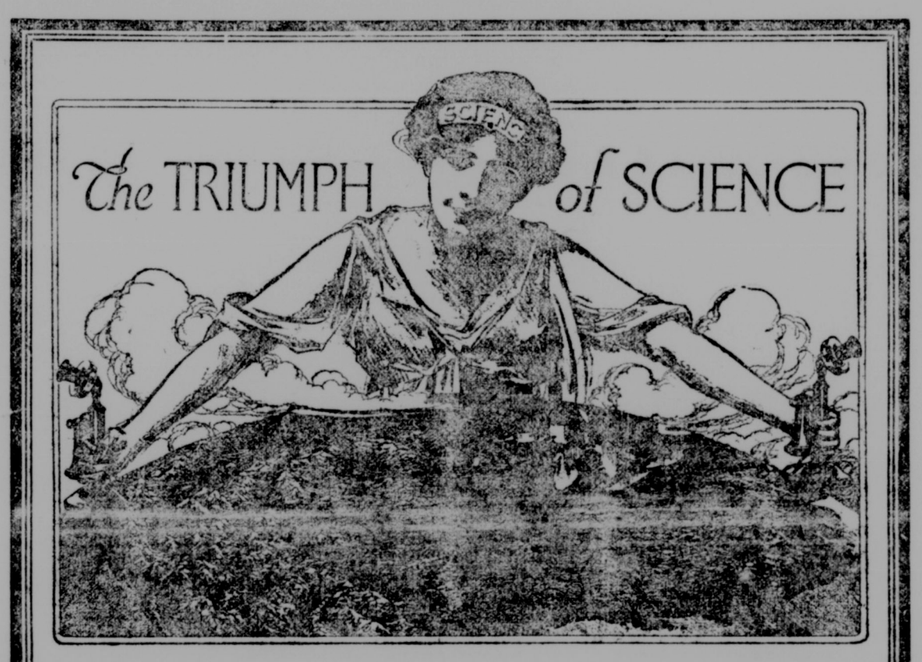
—Chicago



THIS busy, progressive nation is today at the dawn of a new era of commercial and social development. The means by which the human voice, with its slightest inflections and indications of personality, can be carried across the continent instantly, have been provided. Talking by telephone from New York to San Francisco is now an accomplished fact.

The celebration of this latest and greatest triumph in the art of telephony has just taken place. Within a short time the public will have, ready for its use, the product of American brains, American initiative and American scientific and technical skill, a transcontinental telephone service, the equal of which is not even approached in all the other nations of the world.

It is a splendid scientific achievement of the very highest character. The power that sends the human voice out over the telephone is scarcely greater than that of a breath, yet the means have been provided by which this tiny, almost imaginary impulse, made up of as many as 2,000 separate vibrations a second, can be picked up by a delicate instrument, conserved over a distance of 3,400 miles, and reproduced perfectly and instantly across the continent. The human voice has been made to travel as fast as light, faster than sound unaided by technical apparatus; indeed, it rivals THOUGHT even, in the swiftness of its flight.

The imagination can but feebly grasp, much less attempt to measure, the far-reaching significance of such a tremendous accomplishment. One hundred million people will have for their daily use a system of communication that knows no East, no West, no North, no South. Dialects, provincialisms, sectional prejudices, must eventually yield to the closer union, the better understanding, the more intimate comradeship that the human voice establishes. The neighborliness of a whole nation is advanced by the brushing away of the physical restraints of centuries.

This contribution to the future happiness and prosperity of a more closely united people has not been brought about, however, by the overcoming of a few isolated, concrete difficulties. Its success has depended upon the exercise of the highest engineering and technical skill and the solution was found only in the cumulative effect of improvements great and small, in telephone, transmitter, line, cable, switchboard, and every other piece of apparatus or plant required in the transmission of speech.

In this work the experimental and research department of the Bell System of which this Company is a part, has been engaged ever since the telephone became a commercial possibility, less than 40 years ago. With no traditions to follow and no experience to guide, this department, which is now directed by a staff of over 550 engineers and scientists, including former professors, post graduate students, scientific investigators—the graduates of 140 universities—has created an entirely new art—the art of telephony, and has given to the people of this country a telephone service that has no equal.

It has required vast expenditures of money and immense concentration of effort, but these have been justified by results of immeasurable benefit to the public. The transcontinental telephone line, 3,400 miles long, joining the Atlantic and Pacific, is part of the Bell System of $1,000,000 miles of wire connecting 9,000,000 telephone stations, located everywhere throughout the United States. Composing this system are the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Associated Companies and connecting companies, giving universal service to 100,000,000 people.

Truly, This is The Triumph of Science

Little Problems of Married Life

By William Geoge Jordan

[Copyright, 1915, by Wilshire H. Beard company.]

I.—The Springtime of Married Life.

Springtime.

THIS air is balmy and glowing and inspiring in the springtime of married life. There is the joy of a new beginning when two face a new world together, like Adam and Eve in that Eden of old. Life with infinite possibilities, and sibilities and new habits, determining a harvest of good or ill for both, put forth their first tender buds of promise and prophecy.

Dual living means the harmonizing of two lives in unity. It requires conscious consecrated effort toward attainment. In this period of becoming used to each other, of learning, experiment, compromise and adjustment mistakes are inevitable. This springtime should be taken seriously, but not too seriously. Little inharmonies are dangerous, not in themselves, but in the bitter memories they may leave.

Those married people who tell you ten or fifteen years after the wedding that there never has been one cross word spoken between them, never a moment of even irritation, never a single shadowing cloud of disagreement, belong to one of three classes: They have been mercifully endowed with a talent for forgetting, they handle truth with a certain shyness, or one of them is the silent, overawed victim of the other's personality.

Have you ever heard an old sea captain boast that in all his experience he had never seen a squally sea, never a dull, heavy, storm laden sky, never heard the tempest shriek through the rigging and threaten to tear away the masts? His pride is in his skill, not in his luck. The matrimonial sea never remains absolutely serene and calm, with no ruffling waves, for years at a time. The vital point is that the storms have all been weathered in safety and the love and trust, purified by time, remain undaunted.

In the days of courtship two may feel that they thoroughly understand each other, and that no matter how many marriages may fall their happiness together is absolutely assured. Yet courtship is only the kindergarten class of matrimony. Courtship is the preliminary canter, not the real race. It is the matrimonial shopping; marriage is the acceptance of the unreturnable delivered goods. Courtship is the joyous, sunshine launching of the craft of hope; marriage is the long cruise across uncharted seas.

Happiness in married life means the happiness of two, made by two; neither can do all. No individual can sing a duet. They should feel glad to bear anything and everything that fate may bring them for each other, but not from each other. With union toward opposing conditions and unity between themselves they can command happiness. Their attitude is of supreme importance; everything else is secondary. It is not what comes to them, but the spirit in which they meet it, that really counts.

In love, loyalty, comradeship and mutual dependence, even trial, sorrow, sickness and poverty, may bring them only nearer and dearer, soul serene and heart glad that they still have each other. This condition never comes through drifting, by letting things take their course, by just hoping that somehow it will all turn out right. Merely wishing it and wanting it will neither create nor keep this harmony; they must will to make it, determine, by living individually at their best, to unite in the finest unity. The responsibility rests on both; the failure may be due to either.

There will come a time in this springtide when they awaken to the consciousness of unpleasant traits in each other. The wife may find that what she deemed his fine firmness of character is simple, unadulterated obstinacy. His reverence for money in small denominations is not the prudence and wise economy she once believed it, but a chronic tender heartedness that makes it hard for him to say goodby to a dollar.

He, too, may suddenly find himself conscious of unnoted imperfections in her and they loom large before him. There are, at times, a sharpness and a shrillness in the upper register of her speaking voice that almost suggest irritability. She would never win a gold medal as a housekeeper and one has to be fiercely hungry to enjoy her cooking. Her conversational charm seems to have become rather commonplace when subjected to the test of continuous performance. Her[illegible] into not always rigorously but seem to orthodoxy, and she dommaculateness worry much about the house. of her attire arthe catalogue of pro-

The itercelation vary; their impor-gressisepends largely on the spirit of tanterpretation. They are a bit disillusioning, it is true, but they are not fatal. We all are human and have faults, failings and foibles. We have no right to expect perfection unless we can give it in return. Perfect people, too, would be awfully tiresome to live with; their stained glass view of things would seem a constant sermon without intermission, a continuous moral snub of superiority to our self respect.

Let us not consign the Venus de Milo to the rubbish heap because she has no arms; she is greater without them than any other marble lady, fully armed, in all the world's history. Let us accept the little failings of those we love as we do a mortgage on a valuable property: If we cannot remove it or decrease it, pay the interest cheerfully and then forget it.

When the young wife asks her husband to point out all her little faults so that she can correct them, any little thing that does not come quite up to his ideal, for she "loves him so much that she wants to be absolutely perfect in his eyes," let him realize the sacred sweetness, the instinctive fineness, the tender, wistful longing of its consecration and show himself worthy of it. This cry of the emotions, this high tide of a mood of genuineness, is a crucial moment. Conscious that he is nearing the thin ice of heart diplomacy, let him tenderly assure her with a caress that she is flawless as the Kohinoor and gently smile away the possibility of even perfection itself being as perfect as she.

The first storm usually arises from a trifle, and in a few moments a gentle zephyr of misunderstanding becomes a whirlwind. There are only three or four moves on each side, and in surveying the emotional wreckage both may be dazed and unable to say how it started. Each may say more than is meant; each may take the other's words too seriously; each oversensitive and hugging a petty pride may feel aggrieved and too hurt to think of instant attempt at restoring peace and sunshine. There may be sobs, protests and wounded dignity on the part of one, while the other may become coldly, stolidly calm, as if carved in mahogany.

A slight misunderstanding may be invaluable to both as a warning, as a revelation of tendencies, of a characteristic of one that the other must recognize, as a small blaze may inspire a realizing sense of needed precautions in a home that may make a conflagration later hardly possible. The two should mark the trait that caused the trouble as a rock in the channel, a dangerous reef that should be removed if possible. If not removable it should have a bell and a light so that it may be recognized and avoided.

When the air of a discussion suddenly grows sultry and the temptation comes to cap one sarcasm with another more sarcastic there should be a pause. Orators facing an audience and feeling a twinge of stage fright take a moment to get their bearings to pull themselves together and conquer the invading nervousness; then they speak their first few words in a low voice slowly, gently and deliberately. The orator's pause taken in the early stages of a breakfast table discussion often guarantees peace. When a first misunderstanding is permitted to degenerate into harsh and bitter words of contempt they leave a stain. They soil the ermine of delicacy and fineness in the relation of two that only the bigness of a great love can ever quite restore; they make repetition easier and reparation harder.

The First Storm.

When it is all past and the sun shines bright again, talking it over and holding rehearsals and postmortems is unwise. It should be buried from memory forever as a body is committed to the depths of the ocean in a funeral at sea. Let us forgive and forget. If we hold a hurt feeling and adopt a martyr pose we show we forget that we have forgiven.

It is what follows misunderstanding that really counts. Does it leave a train of bitter words and recrimination that becomes tattooed into memory, a pit of sulks, tears and indifferences that no sunshine of loving words can banish, closed Bluebeard chambers of remembrance whose doors we shut with a slam if in later years memory opens them inadvertently? Is the pettiness of either or both to permit this to eclipse the sun of life's happiness? Is it thus that the discords of a moment affect us, or do they bring sweeter music in the days after because they are now understood and vanquished, or, unconquered, do they recur more frequently and with greater intensity? Little misunderstandings may be summer thunder showers that clear the air of the home, leaving it sweet, pure and balmy, or cold, drizzly November rains that depress and deaden.

There may be none of this little discord when the individuality of either is suppressed, when one personality absolutely dominates the other, when she always meekly echoes what the other says, when one meekly walks the matrimonial chalk line, when the husband or wife has been "trained."

Where love has faded into cold indifference, where a tacit truce of tolerance is established between two to whom marriage has become but a mirage fading away into the perspective of memory, there may be no moments of misunderstanding or inharmony because they are in the dangerous mood of "don't care" when emotion seems paralyzed.

THURSDAY JANUARY 28, 1915.

THE advance in the price of cotton means $120,000,000 more to the South.

THE American dollar is now worth $1.05 in Switzerland. To think of Europe's admitting that she values the dollar more than we.

WHILE the Government is trying to find jobs for the unemployed Secretary Bryan will take care of deserving Democratic workers.

SECRETARY Bryan at a peace lecture last week declared the nations are "closer together than ever before." They are too close together—they're clinched.

RUSSIA is the only country in the world beside the United States that has more than one city of one million population. There are only ten such cities in the world.

AN exchange says the Democratic party ought to hold up the President's hands. It ought to do that. It has most surely shown its self a past master at holding up the business of the country in the past eighteen months.

TUESDAY by a vote of 80 to 6 in the House, and by a vote of 29 to 1 in the Senate, the West Virginia legislature decided to refer to the people at the next general election the question whether women over the age of 21 years shall vote.

IT is stated with apparent authority that former United States Senator William P. Jackson will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor if satisfied that there is a demand for his nomination, and also if satisfied that the party will support him solidly.

NOTWITHSTANDING the state election will not take place until nine months hence, politicians throughout the state are already grooming candidates for the leading offices, or more properly speaking, the candidates are testing public sentiment through their friends. The activity in this direction is confined almost wholly to the Democratic side, the Republicans, especially those in Baltimore city, being more interested at this time in the municipal campaign.

ACCORDING to the Baltimore newspaper and the talk of politicians of that city and elsewhere throughout the state, the next week will probably bring forth some development in Democratic state politics looking to the shaping of candidates for state offices, notably that of Governor.

Comptroller Harrington's candidacy will be announced very shortly according to his friends, and unless there is a sharp change, Senator Lee will take the field, either publicly or by sending word to his friends pending a public announcement. The fight will be on! Meantime Congressman Linthicum is vigorously prosecuting his publicity campaign, and preparing to get out among the voters as soon as Congress adjourns.

NOW THAT the postmaster for Oakland has been appointed it may be well to consider the influence that brought it about. It is pretty generally understood that could former Senator R. T. Browning called back a few years he would have received this appointment, but he refused to enter the contest and gave his influence to another the result was no longer in doubt; therefore Mr. Deffinbaugh's appointment is a recognition of Mr. Browning's long and faithful service to his party and thus secured for Oakland a first-class postmaster. Mr. Deffinbaugh is a deserving party adherent possessing rare qualities as a capable business man and can give general satisfaction to the patrons of the office, and his appointment will reflect credit upon Congressman Lewis, who has thus honored him.

GOOD morning, Postmaster Diffenbaugh. "Here's to you and yours. May you live long and prosper." The heartiest congratulations of THE REPUBLICAN. We congratulate Congressman David J. Lewis on the recognition he gave the press, in the appointment of Mr. Deffinbaugh. The editor of The Democrat deserved this recognition of the faithful work performed by his paper for the party. We have nothing to say against the other aspirants for the office, but do approve the recognition given the public press by Mr. Lewis. We predict in Mr. Diffenbaugh that Oakland will have a courteous and efficient postmaster, and know that his appointment has given general satisfaction to the patrons of the office. His appointment is a just recognition of his service in the past years to the Democratic party, of which he was a loyal and persistent servant, in a county where the party is largely in the minority. The press does not receive the support it deserves from the leaders of the party when the time of distribution of public offices occur.

TURN IN FOREIGN TRADE.

Statements given out from the Department of Commerce last week indicate that the export trade of the two last months of last year was of extraordinary proportions, totaling in money value $206,000,000 for November and $246,000.000 for December. While wheat, flour and food materials constitute a very large percentage of the shipmints sent out during November and December, numerous other commodities figure in the records in million-dollar apportionments.

During November automobiles were shipped abroad to the value of $2,250,000, manufactured cotton goods valued at $5,500,000, refined sugars were sold abroad to the extent of $2,386,000 and woolen goods to the value of $3,048,000. Among the food commodities sold to Europe during November there were refrigerated eggs to the value of $1,250,000 and frozen beef valued at $2,400,000. A large proportion of the exports here mentioned as well as of many commodities not mentioned were war materials.

It is apparent beyond the possibility of refutation that the big war and that only saved this country from a disastrous reversal in its foreign trade transactions. During the five months following the inauguration of the new tariff, but which were prior to the outbreak of the war, imports of foreign-manufactured goods had increased in enormous ratio, and there had been a large falling off in export demand, even for our food products. The war has saved the Democratic tariff from a showing up on its demerits.

PERNICIOUS SHIPPING BILL.

No more insiduous and pernicious measure has been betore the country during the past decade than the shipping bill that is now fathered as an administration scheme ostensibly to supply the nation with a merchant marine. It is pernicious because it will not provide a merchant marine, but it will create government ownership of merchant ships; it will not promote the trade of the country but it will tend to cripple the trade already existing; it will not be an American but an un-American undertaking.

The facts as to the measures pending are simply and readily grasped. In the first place there are ample ships now trading with South and Central American points to care for all the traffic with this country and to care for all possible cargoes that might be engendered through trade-promoting activities. In the next place the United States already stands second in the rating of trade with the Latin-American republics instead of being a negligible factor as is often stated. The trade that this country seeks is the trade that the countries at war can no longer handle. It should be set forth in letters so big that even the administration could see them that individual enterprise can fully and adequately care for existing and all future traffic, given one thing. This desideratum is the revision of the navigation laws. At present the ships of American registry labor under a handicap of 30 per cent. greater cost for building over European ships. American bottoms can never compete with foreign bottoms upon this showing. Again let it be said that the wages of the crews of the ships of foreign registry are very much lower and the grade of living of the men such as no American seaman would tolerate.

Yet the government is asked to enter blindly upon shipping business. It is asked to invest up to forty millions of dollars—a mere bagateile of such an undertaking. It is proposed to offer the stock of its corporation up to 49 per cent. to the public. This would leave the corporation an absolute government monopoly. The bill says in effect the ships would be operated without profit until they had developed profit-making powers and then they would be sold into private ownership. Thus investors in the 49 per cent. of stock have nothing offered them as a return upon their money. In the meantime the competition of the government destroy the enterprises would tend to panies in wh legitimate shipping controls. The gov merican money conships and these would would buy whose ownership is so tied man ships German government that the paid for them would be so much contribution to the war chest of a belligerent. At least this would be charged.

The United States would not operate its ships a month before finding the impossibility of doing other than make the enterprise a permanent drain upon the American taxpayer. Then in an effort to effectively compete with foreign shipping it would revise the navigation laws—after it had dealt a thrust at existing shipping which represents American enterprise, money and brains. Whatever the view the shipping people take, this is the plain A. B. C. of the situation from the point of view of the average American citizen and only a fraction of the objections to the pending bill are set forth at that. Develop American initiative, do not combat it; give encouragement to American capital, do not hamper it; keep out of the track of private American enterprise and avoid doubtful novelties, this is the word of the people to the administration. Then let a commission be appointed seriously to consider the subject of merchant marine in all its bearings.

A number of Garrett county farmers have spoken to us about the potato contest announced in this paper last week. Some of them will enter the contest. The offer of the bank to furnish seed is one that every potato grower should avail himself of. The best seed and marketable potato is the Irish Cobbler and Green Mountain variety, of these varieties there were but very few exhibited at the fair last fall. The Republican would suggest that the Oakland merchants raise a purse and duplicate the offer of the Citizens National bank of Frostburg, open to Garrett and Allegany county farmers only.

Talk Over Phone From Ocean To Ocean.

President Wilson Monday inaugurated the first transcontinental telephone system by speaking directly to President Moore, of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, in San Francisco. With Mr. Moore, Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, and President Vail, of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, on the wire at different points, the President extended congratulations on the achievement.

"It appeals to the imagination to speak across the continent," said the President to Mr. Moore. "It is a fine thing for the exposition that the first thing it has done is to send its voice over from sea to sea. I congratulate you on the fine prospects for a successful exposition. I am confidently hoping to take part in it after the adjournment of Congress. May I not send my greetings to the management and to all whose work has made it possible and made it the great event it promises to be, and convey my personal congratulations to you?"

With Dr. Bell listening in on the line at New York, the President then spoke to Thomas A. Watson, in San Francisco. Mr. Watson was Dr. Bell's electrician at the time of the invention of the telephone, and was the first person to hear a word spoken over a telephone.

The President said that he could hear Mr. Moore in San Francisco very distinctly.

Employers Right to Require Employes to Leave Union.

The constitutional right of employers to require employes to renounce their union affiliations as a condition of employment was sustained Monday by the Supreme Court, in a decision far reaching to organized labor, in which the Kansas so-called coercion statute was declared unconstitutional. Associate Justice Day, joining a dissenting opinion with Justice Hughes and Holmes, declared he believed similar laws in 13 other states and in Porto Rico fell by the decision.

Under the Kansas statute it was unlawful for any individual or corporation to coerce or influence any person to enter into an agreement not to join or remain a member of a labor organization as a condition of securing or continuing employment. The case arose from the conviction of T. B. Coppage, a division superintendent of the Frisco Railway system, for threatening A. R. Hedge, a switchman, with dismissal if he did not withdraw from the Switchmen's Union of North America.

William Michaels, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, and Addie Conn, Plaintiffs, vs. William R. Offutt, Administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, and Joseph Metz or his unknown heirs at law, if any, Defendants.

No. 1917 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree directing the distribution of the personal estate of Maria Groves, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased among the plaintiffs and defendants, Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, according to their respective rights and interests therein.

The amended bill states, that on January 22d, 1914, the plaintiffs, William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel and Sarah Evans, filed their bill of complaint in this cause against William R. Offutt, administrator of Maria Groves, deceased, praying among other things that the personal estate of the said decedent might be brought into equity and administered under the direction of this Court, and that the plaintiffs, by the decree of this Court, might be declared the only heirs at law of the said decedent and entitled to her said estate, and that the defendant answered said bill and certain testimony was taken on the part of the plaintiffs, and that the plaintiffs now charge by way of amendment to their original bill of complaint, and the same so appears from the testimony already taken in this cause, that the said Maria Groves had another brother, a certain Harmon Michaels who departed this life at Wellsville, Ohio, February 17th, 1912, leaving surviving him as his only heirs at law, Mary Michaels, his widow and Edward W. Michaels a son, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn, his daughters all of whom are of full age, and that it further appears from said testimoney, that Cathrine Fazenbaker, the mother of the said Maria Groves, prior to her marriage to Luther Butt, spoken of in said testimoney, had either married or cohabited with one William Metz, by whom she had three children, to-wit: Lewis Metz, Susan Metz and Joseph Metz; that the said Lewis Metz and Susan Metz are both dead, without issue, and that the last heard of Joseph Metz, thirty-five or more years ago, he was living in Elk County, Pennsylvania, and according to the information of some of the witnesses, the said Joseph Metz was then married, and that by an order of this Court upon the petition of the said original plaintiffs, the said Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby and Addie Conn have been made parties plaintiff to this cause, and as the only heirs at law of the said Harmon Michaels are entitled to participate in the estate of the said Maria Groves along with her other heirs at law, and that the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, have also been made parties defendant to this cause, and it has been granted to the plaintiff to publish an order of publication against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, giving them notice of the object and substance of this amended bill of complaint, and that the said Maria Groves departed this life intestate on or about the 22d day of April 1913, in Oakland, Maryland, and that the said William R. Offutt was duly appointed administrator of her personal estate, and qualified as such, but that no distribution of said estate has been made by said administrator, and that William Michael, Luther Butt, Mary Ansel, Sarah Evans, Mary Michaels, Edward W. Michaels, Minnie Apple, Ocie Selby, Addie Conn and Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, are the only heirs at law of the said Maria Groves, deceased, and the only persons legally entitled to participate in the distribution of her estate after the payment of her just debts and funeral expenses by the said administrator, who has denied and repudiated their several claims of heirship to his said decedent, wherefore, it becomes necessary for them to resort to this Court for the purpose of having their said respective claims adjudicated, and their heirship to the said Maria Groves established to its decree.

The bill then prays that the said administrator may answer this amendment, and that an order of publication be granted against the said Joseph Metz, or his unknown heirs at law, if any, who are non-residents of this State giving notice to them of the object and substance of this bill and warning them to be and appear in this Court, either in person or by solicitor, on some certain day to be therein named, and to abide by and perform such order or decree as maybe passed in the premises.

It is there upon this 29th day of December 1914, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county in Equity, that the plaintiffs by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper, published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 30th day of January, 1915, give notice to the said absent defendant or defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning him or them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 16th day of February next, to show cause, if any, he or they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Oakland Collegians Break Winning Streak of K. O. G.

Monday's Cumberland News says:

Thirteen proved an unlucky number sure enough for the K. O. G. team, for after winning thirteen consecutive contests and acquiring the city basketball title, they met defeat in the Central Gym Saturday night at the hands of the Oakland Collegians by the score of 30 to 26. Luck was the biggest factor in the victory, too, or rather ill luck, for with any kind of breaks the K. O. G. quint would have come out victorious,

All through the first half the local champions outplayed the visitors in every phase of the game. Johnson was able to get the jump on his opponent and the K. O. G. five worked like a machine, executing evey play with precision, but had horrible luck in shooting. Shot after shot made under the basket would roll around the ring and drop off. The first half ended with the home team having a comfortable lead. Three baskets were the best the Oakland five ring out. Eight attempts from the foul lines were for naught. Score 15-6.

Oakland fought desperately in the second half, but still the K. O. G. boys seemed to have a shade the better of it, Nicholson, Johnson and Kellar putting up a wonderfnl defensive fight. Slowly the Collegians crept up on their opponents however, Sincell, Sanner and Graham each contributing splendid shots.

With but three minutes of play the K. O. G. team led by but one point, and during the next two minutes the teams alternated in making baskets and pitching fouls, causing the spectators to go wild with enthusiasm. A snap shot by Sincell gave the Collegians the lead, and a systematic effort to "stall for time" ensued until Graham dropped the ball through from a long range, clinching the contest.

The Oakland quintet far outweighed the locals and used their avoirdupois to good advantage. The last half showed them to be a collection of tossers above the average. Fumbling on both sides marred the contest, and numerous fouls were called for holding and hurdling.

Too much praise cannot be given Holly Kellar, who tossed five consecutive fouls in the second half, besides caging three field goals. Johnson led his team in tossing, having five goals to his credit. Johnson is proving himself somewhat of a star on long range shots, seldom missing when he can get free.

The lineup:

Oakland		K. O. G.
Sincell	F	Kellar
Sanner	F	Landis
Graham	C	Johnson
DeBerry	G	Ward
Reidler	G	Nicholson

Substitute, Frantz; goals from field, Sincell 5, Sanner 3, Graham 4, Reidler 2, Kellar 3, Johnson 5, Ward 1; goals from foul, Sanner 1, Kellar 8; referee, Hoffman; timekeeper, Gould; scorer, A. Fuller.

Davis C. & C. Co. To Build Twenty-Six Houses At Henry.

The work of re-opening the six foot vein of coal at Henry, W. Va., of the Davis Coal & Coke Company is now well in hands. It is a shaft opening and for several years the shaft has been closed up on account of water, which is now about pumped out. The coal will be mined more extensively at Henry than at any other point along the line of the Western Maryland Railway.

There will also be built at that town this spring, 26 houses to be occupied by miners and other employees.

The works and mine at Henry are located in Garrett county and also a portion of the town.

Three Days At The Maryland

In securing the Angell Stock Company to play here three days next week the management of the Maryland Theatre have made strong efforts in getting a company that will please the most fastidious of their patrons. There is a vast difference with these socalled stock or repertoire companies that are playing throughout the country today. A company that plays the best in Drama and has a company of real artists to play them with is what the Angell Stock Company has. Every member is sure to make themselves a solid favorite. Miss Alice Bowdish, the clever leading lady, is sure to give her best efforts so as to live up to her reputation, that she is on par with the best in stock today. Mr. Joe Angell, her leading man, is sure to place himself in immediate favor in Monday nights play. He having been with some of the best New York attractions, is sure to prove all we say for him. They are supported by the strongest company that could be put together for traveling stock.

Here is a newspaper criticism of Tyrone Herald, of Dec. 11.

A good sized audience witnessed the opening production of the Angell Stock Company at the Wilson on Thursday evening. On account of the demand for this up-to-date repertoire company the week was divided between a western city and Tyrone. Last evening "The Call of the Woods" was presented presented in a most able manner by the well balanced company. The play was well produced and was thoroughly appreciated by everyone present. Adv.

ADMITS KNOWING LITTLE OF LABOR

Rockefeller, Jr., However, Believes in Unions

QUESTIONED ABOUT COLORADO

Witness at Industrial Commission Hearing Says If Information Concerning Alleged Abuses In Coal Fields Were Supplied Him He Would See That Conditions Are Changed.

New York, Jan. 26.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., active head of the interests acquired or built up by his father, occupied the witness stand for five hours at the inquiry being conducted here by the United States commission on industrial relations into the great philanthropic foundations and the cause of industrial unrest.

Mr. Rockefeller freely admitted that he had no knowledge concerning labor questions, but declared he was in favor of labor organizing and taking action, provided it kept within the law.

It was seldom that he answered "Yes" or "No." Almost without exception he gave much more information than was asked for, however remote such information might be from the actual point of the question. He was always in command of himself and suave and unruffled.

One of the points made in his statement and to which in his testimony Mr. Rockefeller frequently reverted was that his father would have saved money if he had put it in a savings bank and had never had anything to do with the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. He declared all the surplus earnings of the company were being devoted to the improvement of the property, raising wages and alleviating the conditions of the workingmen.

Another idea to which he constantly came back was that in the conduct of large enterprises responsibility must be divided and delegated and that having once selected an executive officer in whom they believe the directors cannot be expected to discharge him the moment some irresponsible person criticises him.

He said he believed that labor should have a voice in determining the conditions of employment, but he declared emphatically that neither he nor any other business man would permit workmen to dictate how that business was to be run.

As for the conditions which are said to obtain in the mining camps of Colorado, Mr. Rockefeller told the commission that if a description of the alleged abuses were supplied to him he would take personal charge of the matter and would see to it that they were remedied.

Mr. Rockefeller answered a series of questions as to the manner in which his father decides upon making an investment by saying that he controlled these investments, but left the details of investigations to men in the office.

He said that the executive officers in Colorado were primarily responsible for the labor policy. The scope given to them, he said, to maintain proper labor conditions was the same as is usually given to men in their position.

"Do you believe that labor unions should be maintained democratically?" asked Mr. Walsh.

"I believe fully in democracy and in freedom," replied the witness, "where that freedom doesn't infringe upon the rights of others."

Mr. Rockefeller answered next many questions respecting labor unions by saying that he would not express an opinion because he had never studied the matters involved. As for his responsibility as a director to know about these matters he said that he felt it, but had neither the time nor the ability to study them, wherefore that task had been delegated to the trained men of the Rockefeller foundation.

"Do you believe the workers are entitled to a voice in determining labor conditions?"

"I believe that labor should have every access to those who as directors or executives have the management of the business. But I do not think that the owner of a property should be expected to turn over the management of it to anyone who wants to assume that responsibility. I think organization is necessary and that the prosperity of the country is being best preserved thereby."

He admitted in reply to a question that to work seven days a week for any length of time was a hardship. He could not say, however, what proportion of a year's pay would consider it sufficient to make seven days a week a hardship to labor. He had worked seven days a week himself for a considerable period of time.

Dry Russia Shows Gain In Savings.

London, Jan. 26.—A dispatch from Petrograd says M. Kharitonoff, comptroller of the Russian treasury, declared that owing to the great increase in the national savings due to prohibition the extraordinary outlay occasioned by the war had caused no great suffering as yet in Russia. He said the national savings in December, 1913, which amounted to $350,000, had increased to $14,550,000 in December, 1914.

GERMANY NOT RECOGNIZED

Bryan Passes Up Belgium Sovereignty Question In Consular Case.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Secretary Bryan made public the text of the note from Germany annulling the exequaturs or certificates of authority of neutral consuls in Belgium and issued a paraphrase of the American government's reply.

While the German note considers the exequaturs of neutral consuls to have "expired," the American government takes the view that they merely have been "suspended." In this way the United States avoided committing itself to the question of whether or not the sovereignty of Belgium had expired with the German military occupation.

At the same time the government indicates a willingness to make arrangements for the continuance of consuls personally not objectionable to the German authorities.

American Consul General Diederich at Antwerp has been recognized by the German government, and the American note makes inquiry whether the consuls at Liege and Brussels, the only two other places where neutral consuls are now permitted by the German military authorities to do business, are personally satisfactory to the local authorities.

BRYAN'S REPLY PLEASING

England Reads With Satisfaction Our Government's Neutrality Attitude.

London, Jan. 26.—The letter of Secretary Bryan to Senator Stone on America's view of the duties of neutrality is regarded in official circles as eminently satisfactory and frankly it may be said that the letter helped to clear the atmosphere.

The speech by Senator Lodge on the ship purchase bill is welcomed, as he is believed to be pointing out a real danger to the good relations between the United States and the belligerent countries as he drew attention to the fact that, in the case of the Dacia, if she had been a government owned ship engaged in trade with an enemy's country the situation might have developed awkwardly.

The attitude which the British government will adopt toward the cargo of the American steamship Wilhelmina, which sailed from New York for Hamburg last Friday with foodstuffs for Germany, has not yet been decided. The Wilhelmina, originally the British steamer Newborough, is the first food laden vessel to leave an American port for Germany since the opening of the war and the question of foodstuffs as conditional contraband will come up for the first time.

RELIEF FOR THOMPSON

Cash In Abundance Promised Embarrassed Coal Operator, It is Said.

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 26.—That Josiah V. Thompson is in better position to withstand the assaults on his finances now than a week ago is the belief of his associates.

Financial relief is promised, it is said, by prominent bankers to save Thompson's coal lands. Instead of being forced to sell, it is claimed, the relief is of such character that he will be able to pay a big bonus, keeping his coal lands intact and forcing big corporations to pay a higher price for the coal than is offered at present.

Judge Umbel appointed receivers for William M. Thompson, a brother of Josiah V. Thompson. His assets are given at $1,250,000 and his liabilities $500,000. In his assets coal and other real estate is listed at $575,000 and personal property at $275,000.

THE CALL THAT COUNTS.

Nothing better illustrates the state of religion today than the things that enter into the call of a minister by a church to be its pastor. A decade or so ago the curl of the candidate's mustache, his mannerisms—usually effeminate—in the pulpit, or his addiction to foreign missions, or his ability to console those who suffer the misfortunes common to the lot of humanity, governed the call to a pastorate. The main demand was for a minister who could please the young people. Thus there was ushered in an era of sensational and mostly vapid preaching—at the night services, at least. This era of superficialism and pulpit vanity broke down the night attendance, until today it is the hardest work of a conscientious clergyman to get a generous hearing at night—the time when he has most to say to the persons who are not habitual attendants upon the morning worship.

Today the call to a church is something different than it was some time ago. The call that counts is the call to a man who has the brains and the disposition to think and to work. The churches are not looking for posers or for trimmers or for cushers. They are looking for men who have their veins and who are organized about the big propositions of religion in relation to the times. The churches today are mostly what their ministers make them, provided the churches are not so rigid that they take all the elasticity out of the spirit of the pastor. The call to the man who has the power to mold and to fashion and to construct is the kind of call that counts for the progress of the church organization. Young people are of no more importance than their elders in this matter of selecting the right kind of religious leader for the congregation. Relieved of purely frivolous considerations, the call today is to the man that takes account of the necessities of the church as such. These necessities are today serious and fundamental. There are few churches where any kind of a man in the pulpit can draw. There are few churches of which it can be said, as formerly was said of some, that they are so finely organized and supported that they could run a decade without a settled pastor.

The man who handles the Word of God in the pulpit today must be a man who can make the life of God vivid in the streets tomorrow. The highways of life, where trade and competition, where care and responsibility, where sin and suffering are found; where the battle between human interest and human destiny is waged; the highway of frivolty, and of ambition, and of avarice and of philanthropy, of quiet, simple service—this is the place where the minister with the right kind of call counts.

Advocates there are many, and they are needed; reformers there are many, and they are not to be despised; evangelists there are many, and they have a mission; but the world today demands that the churches shall have an average of Christian manhood in the pulpit that will illumine the practical and servicable ends of religion in all the affairs of human life. Influence, this is the demand; potency, this is the requirement; vitality, this is the great asset sought. Spiritual vitality in the life of the pastors of the city churches is imperatively demanded. It may be said that the average of ministerial ability has never been higher. The man with the kind of call that counts today is the man who is intelligent touch with his times, its pulses, its aspirations, its needs and thoughts. With such men in the h men directing the there is no possibility of the evils of society gaining the mastery over the operations of God through the medium of the church.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF GARRETT COUNTY.

Of more import to the people of this community than the latest war dispatches, is the news published in the Cumberland Press to the effect that Allegany and Garrett counties are ideally suited to the growing of seed potatoes, even surpassing the famous soil of Maine. After three years of careful investigation, the State Agricultural Department finds that the climatic conditions, altitude and soil of our two western-most counties are very similar to the sections of Maine and and Michigan which have for a long time lead in this field. In fact the Garrett county seed produced a net average of 23 per cent more than the Maine seed.

To encourage the undertaking of this new feature in this section the Citizens National Bank of Frostburg, has offered prizes to be awarded at a potato show next fall.

A car load of seed potatoes will be [illegible] by the government [illegible] in time for planting.

The next step is in the hands of the farmers, says the Press. The state has established the existence of ideal conditions for the growing of seed potatoes, the government has agreed to furnish the potatoes to be planted, and a bank has agreed to award substantial prizes for those who obtain the best results. Now it is up to the farmer to devote a part, at least, of his land to the cultivation of potatoes. Who knows—in five years this section of Maryland may rank first in the country as a producer of high grade seed potatoes! The end is one worth striving for. Who will establish himself as the leader in this new industry?

Editing the State Department.

The Secretary of State at Washington has from time to time met with some difficulty in separating his private and official documents sentiments he has an undoubted right to hold individually, but which do not voice the people of the United States. For this reason, the Senate has appointed a committee to confer with Mr. Bryan, especially dealing with the payment to Colombia of $25,000,000 for the Canal strip, and the language of the message that goes with it.

The obsequiousness of our diplomatic dealings with Colombia clearly transcend the requirements of polite intercourse between nations. The secretary was very likely led into his extravagance of apology through a partisan desire to discredit a former Republican president. This is not the only example of ill-advised correspondence emanating from the Department of State during the present administration. When Pancho Villa rides on his raids through Mexico he carries with him a note signed by Mr. Bryan, expressing appreciation for the "restoration of peace" and other "services."

Admiration may be indulged for the efforts of the administration to maintain itself on a democratic footing; but the people have a right to expect more of dignity than has been exhibited in our relations with the smaller countries of the world.

SUMMARY OF WAR EVENTS

News From Several Capitals as to Doings In Different Zones.

London, Jan. 26. Petrograd has news of a successful advance of Russians in south Poland. It is reported the Germans have been forced back thirty miles to the river Plitza and have been driven from Opoczno and Kielce. The Russian movement in northwest Poland has reached Kaikot, twenty-five miles southeast of Thorn.

Russian reports are that the Germans are held powerless on the defense lines west of Warsaw. A new Austrian offensive is said to be developing in Galicia.

The German war office reports artillery fighting near the head of the Mazurian lakes region. Russian attacks were repulsed north of Gumbinnen and the Russians were driven from several positions to the southeast of that town. There have been no important changes in the situation in northern Poland or southern Poland.

The French government announces that a detachment of Bavarian troops was surprised and captured in Lorraine; that French artillery destroyed the German bridges over the Meuse at St. Mihiel; that German artillery was subdued in the Argonne and that German field works were demolished in the Champagne district. A counter attack at Berry-au-Bac was repulsed.

The German official reports state that all French attacks against Hartmanswiler Kopf in Alsace were repulsed with heavy losses, 400 chasseurs being killed and many prisoners taken.

It is admitted in Berlin that one of the seven Zeppelins which bombarded Yarmouth, Kings Lynn and other Norfolk coast towns failed to return. It had been previously reported that a Zeppelin was brought down in the North sea and destroyed or captured.

GUN FIRES ACROSS CHANNEL

Germans Perfect New Weapon of Great Power.

Berlin (Via London), Jan. 26.—Remarkable figures regarding a new German naval gun are given by a German artillery expert.

In discussing an assertion by the London Times that the German navy possesses a gun which carries three miles further than the best British weapon, the writer admits that the Krupps are manufacturing a gun whose projectile weighs 920 kilograms (about a ton) and which develops muzzle velocity of 940 meters (about 3,700 feet) a second.

The expert reckons from these figures that the gun has 58 per cent more muzzle force than the British navy's best weapon and has a range of about forty-two kilometers (about twenty-eight miles) while the channel at Dover is only thirty-three kilometers (about twenty-two miles) wide. He says the figures given, if correct, will permit the Germans eventually to command the English coast from Calais for a distance of nine kilometers (about six miles) inland with the new gun.

Gets Twenty-six Years' Back Pay.

Canton, O., Jan. 26.—George F. Brown, who has been employed on a farm near Massillon for a quarter of a century by Frank F. Yingling, was awarded $16,167 by Judge Ake, this sum representing wages unpaid since 1889 and interest. Brown worked for years without collecting money, the two men living by themselves on a farm near here. Yingling made no defense, admitting the money was due Brown.

Aeroplane to Deliver Intoxicants.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 26.—Liquor is to be delivered to this city from Ohio by aeroplane. This determination is said to have been reached by a dealer of Dillonvale, O., whose company has been doing a land office business here since the Yost prohibition law went into effect.

Armored Merchantman Viknor Sinks Off Irish Coast

DETAILS NOT YET GIVEN OUT

England Denies German Report of Battle In North Sea Which Stated That English Cruiser Had Been Sunk—British Acclaim Admiral Beatty As Hero—German Reports That Bluecher Was Lost.

London, Jan. 26. — The steamship Viknor, recently armed by the government and added to the scout and commerce protector units of the navy, has been lost off the Irish coast.

Undoubtedly all of her company met death. She carried a crew of probably 300 men.

Details of the disaster are not yet obtainable and the amount of lives lost has not been ascertained.

The news caused a suppression of much of the joy in evidence since the news of the naval engagement Sunday when the German cruiser Bluecher was sunk.

The latest British ship counted among the missing is reported to have struck a mine or foundered.

The German version of the North sea battle saying that one of the British battle cruisers was sunk is absolutely controverted by the report sent to the British admiralty by Vice Admiral Beatty immediately after the conclusion of the battle.

Admiral Beatty wirelessed "No British ships have been lost." It is not considered possible that the commander of the victorious fleet resorted to a useless subterfuge in phraseology or that he used the words "ships" to conceal the fact that a single ship was lost. Furthermore the vice admiral's report that the casualties were slight is sufficient proof that the British fleet came out of the fight intact.

The report from the Frisian islands that a four-funneled German cruiser was seen making her way slowly eastward, apparently crippled, is of keen interest, as the island of Schiermonnik-Oog, off the north coast of Holland, is about the distance from Helgoland that the fight ended. This cruiser, with her battered companions, succeeded, however, in regaining a home port according to the German admiralty.

The joy and satisfaction felt by the British public has not abated. The victory is taken to mean that the Germans cannot raid coast towns with impunity and that they will be beaten every time they are detected at the raiding. Admiral Beatty is the naval hero of the hour.

Germans Claim English Boat Sunk.

Berlin, Jan. 26.—The following official announcement on the naval engagement in the North sea was given out in Berlin:

"During the advance of our armored cruisers Seydlitz, Derfflinger, Moltke and Bluecher, which, accompanied by four smaller cruisers and two flotillas of torpedo boats, were steaming in the North sea, these vessels became engaged with a British detachment composed of five battle cruisers, several smaller cruisers and twenty-six torpedo boat destroyers.

"The enemy discontinued the engagement after three hours' time at a point seventy miles west northwest of Helgoland and retreated.

"According to the information available one British battle cruiser and one of our armored cruisers, the Bluecher, were sunk. All the other German ships returned to port."

The news of the sea fight in the North sea to the west of Helgoland was received in Germany with much satisfaction, despite the loss of the German cruiser Bluecher. The Berlin newspapers assume, pending receipt of the English report, that the British battle cruiser reported sunk in the engagement was a vessel considerably larger than the Bluecher.

The motto of 1912, "Win With Wilson" has changed to "Lose with Wilson," as Bryan seems to be the only man holding a winning hand.

Judge Harvey and G. W. Moon were among the North Gladers who attended the sale Saturday.

John I. O'Brien evidently expects a long winter or a short hay crop, judging from the purchases made at the sale. It would seem that he intended to get a "corner" on a round hay-stack.

Mrs. S. H. Kimmel is spending sometime with her sister, Mrs. Groves, at Bretz, W. Va.

Major Edward Y. Goldsborough died at his home in Frederick, Md., on the 19th inst., aged 76 years. The Major organized the Grand Army of the Republic in this State and in 1870 was made Department Commander. In 1870 President Grant appointed him United States Marshall for the district of Maryland, he served until 1892.

One hundred thousand Chicagoans are out of work this winter, according to the report of the Public Welfare Commission of that city.

Five times as much wheat and six times as much corn were exported from the United States in December as in the same month of 1913. Flour exports increased more than 68 per cent., and generally the exports of breadstuffs increased five times. These figures were disclosed in a preliminary statement from the Department of Commerce, issued in response to many inquiries as to what extent foodstuffs were going abroad with resulting abnormal prices at home.

In an important test case before the State Industrial Accident Commission this week, it was decided that chauffeurs in private employ were not entitled to compensation for disabilities incurred while in discharge of their duties. The claim disallowed was that of a chauffeur in the employ of a citizen, who suffered an injury while cranking an automobile. The section of the law under which the Commission reached its decision is as follows: "Employment" includes employment only in a trade, business or occupation carried on by the employer for pecuniary gain.

Seventeen motor cars, several of which were driven by their owners, entered into competition today with street cars in Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., hauling passengers for a five-cent fare. The cars ran from all parts of the city to a central station in the downtown district. The motor-car owners declare they are in the transportation business today. Most of them reported a heavy day's business.

Charles E. Littlefield, of New York, the special master appointed by the United States Supreme Court to determine the question of the debt between Virginia and West Virginia, made his report to the court. He declined, however, to make an estimate of the amount of the interest due under this liability, as the amount, he declared, is dependent upon the amount of the debt. Under an old ruling of the Supreme Court, it was held that Virginia must bear 76½ per cent. and West Virginia 22½ per cent. of the debt at the separation of the states.

TALKING FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

DIRECT TELEPHONE LINE COMPLETED FROM NEW YORK TO "FRISCO"

The Inventor of the Telephone and His Associate Converse Across Continent

Less than forty years ago, Alexander Graham Bell, standing in a little attic at No. 5 Exeter Place, Boston, sent through a crude telephone, his own invention, the first spoken words ever carried over a wire, and the words were heard and understood by his associate Thomas A. Watson, who was at the receiver in an adjacent room. On that day March 10th, 1876, the telephone was born and the first message went over the only telephone line in the world—a line less than a hundred feet long. The world moves a long way ahead in the span of one man's life. On Monday afternoon January 25th, this same Alexander Graham Bell, sitting in the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, at New York, talked to this same Thomas A. Watson in San Francisco over a wire stretching 3,400 miles across the continent and part of a system that includes 9,000,000 telephones, connected by 21,000,000 miles of wires.

DR. ALEXANDER G. BELL
Inventor of the Telephone

In that same memorable year of 1876 Dom Pedro de Alcantara, Emperor of Brazil, visiting the first telephone exhibition at our first great national show the Philadelphia Centennial, picked up the receiver, listened as Professor Bell talked at the other end of the room, and amazed at the wonder of the thing, cried out: "My God—it speaks." Had Dom Pedro lived to see the Pan-American Exposition he could have heard Professor Bell talking to him, not merely from the other end of a room, but from the other side of a continent.

The Pan-American Exposition itself planned to celebrate the completion of the Panama Canal and the joining of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, will mark a still closer welding of the East and West. When its gates are thrown open on February 20th, San Francisco will not only be nearer to New York through a shortening of its water ways, but will be in constant and instantaneous touch with it through the medium of speech. It is a curious fact, too, that this second great feat of engineering, this other canal, this even more intimate connection between the two seaboards, has been completed in the same year. Quietly, almost unnoticed but steadily and bravely, while the gigantic steam shovels were cutting their way through the earth in the South, the engineers of sound and electricity were weaving their magic webs through the air and pushing on toward the Golden Gate. Their work has been less spectacular, it has excited little attention but these men have met obstacles as hard to overcome as the Culebra slide, and they have conquered them. The long dreamed-of Transcontinental Line is no longer a dream. New York can talk to San Francisco.

The Transatlantic Line Open

Monday, January 25, 1915, has taken its place among the momentous dates in the annals of science and human progress. On that day, in the presence of groups of prominent men on either coast the Transcontinental telephone wires were given their first public test, and the completion of the line was formally celebrated. Distinguished men in the offices of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company in San Francisco conversed freely with distinguished men on the Atlantic seaboard, and one more great chapter in the history of telephony was finished as Bell, sitting in the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in New York, talked to Watson across a continent.

There was no hitch in the programme or any doubt as to the immediate success and practicability of the new line. Those who talked over the telephone did not raise their voices above the usual conversational pitch and the replies came back from across the continent clear and instantaneous. There was no more effort, delay or indistinctness than in talking across a table. Professor Bell says that he thought out the telephone in Salem. A fitting place for its conception—there is witchcraft in it, and the most blase of business men in the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company on Monday felt something akin to uncanniness at the thought that his voice had gone across thirteen States, shot over prairies and through forests, hurtled through cities, climbed the Rockies, skimmed across the desert and reached the Pacific coast, and the answer had come back to him in an eye-wink.

A Dramatic Moment

There have been few more dramatic moments in the history of science than when the venerable Professor Bell lifted the receiver from its hook and called to Watson, the friend and fellow-workman of his youth, in far away San Francisco. There was a wonderful story in that first "Hello," a marvelous tale of miracle-working, of heroic struggle and sublime achievement. Few men have seen so great a dream come true, probably no two men before, in all the history of the world's discoveries and inventions, ever lived to see such magnificent results from work in which they had been the pioneers. Hardened telephone users as all of those present were, and accustomed to big events as most of them were, a hush that was tinged with awe, an almost solemn silence, fell on the assemblage as the great inventor talked to his associate. Every one felt that he was taking part in an epoch-making event, that, in the future, school children would be made to learn January twenty-fifth as one of the big dates in the world's scientific, commercial and political history, one that ranked with that other day when "What wonders hath God wrought" was flashed over Morse's wire.

In the Space of a Lifetime

Most wonderful of all, perhaps in the minds of those present at the opening of the new line was the fact that this achievement, the crowning glory of so vast and complex a system, had taken place within the space of a man's lifetime. On March 10th, 1876, Professor Bell, working away at the simple telephone he had invented, called to his comrade, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you," and Watson heard that first of all telephone messages over the wire. In New York on January 25th, 1915, the same voice was talking and, in San Francisco, the same ear was listening, as on that spring day thirty-eight years ago, but under what different conditions! Then the struggling young inventor and his associate had just succeeded in producing the only telephone in the world and in talking over a few feet of wire. Ahead of them were years of ridicule for their invention, indifference to their plans and opposition to their efforts. On this other great day they saw their simple contrivance as part of a vast system joining together the country's greatest and most distant cities and serving the uses of 100,000,000 people. Not many men have seen so great a fulfillment of their early ambitions, no other invention has ever taken so great a stride in so brief a time.

It has been a tremendous stride, for when Bell invented that first feeble receiver, it was the beginning of telephones. There had been nothing like it or anywhere near like it in all the ages. It was a creation—as far as scientific apparatus was concerned, it was made out of nothing. More than that, this crude instrument—just capable of transmitting speech the length of a room—was all Bell gave to the art of telephony, but it was enough. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its associated companies have done the rest.

The Real Problem

Just what this "rest" means can be fully appreciated by those only who know the difficulties to be overcome by the telephonic engineer and the subtlety and delicacy of the forces with which he has to deal. The very minuteness of things makes his task herculean. Instead of having to figure on immense weights and masses, he is baffled by infinitesimally small fractions. His energies are devoted to conservation, and conservation of the most intense kind.

THEO. N. VAIL
President American Telephone and Telegraph Company

It was, perhaps, little more difficult to string wires from Denver to San Francisco than from New York to Denver, but the actual construction of the line was the least of the engineers troubles. His real problem was to make the line "talk," to send something 3,000 miles with a breath as the motive power. In effect the voyage of the voice across the continent is instantaneous; if its speed could be accurately measured, a fifteenth of a second would probably be nearly exact. In other words a message flying across the continent on the new Transcontinental Line, travels, not at the rate of 1,160 feet per second, which is the old stage coach speed of sound, but at 56,000 miles per second. If it were possible for sound to carry that far, a "Hello" uttered in New York and traveling through the air without the aid of wires and electricity, would not reach San Francisco until four hours later. The telephone not only transmits speech, but transmits it thousands of times faster than its own natural speed.

But, while the telephone is breaking speed records, it must also guarantee safe delivery to these millions of little passengers it carries every few minutes in the way of sound waves created at the rate of 2,100 a second. There must be no jostling or crowding. These tiny waves, thousands and thousands of varying shapes, which are made by the human voice, and each as irregular and as different from the other as the waves of the sea, must not tumble over each other or get into each other's way, but must break upon the Pacific coast just as they started at the Atlantic, or all the line fails and the millions of dollars spent upon it have been thrown away. And in all this line, if just one pin-point of construction is not as it should be, if there is one iota of imperfection, the miles of line are useless, and the currents and waves and sounds and words do not reach the end as they should. It is such tremendous obstacles, not the climbing of mountains or the bridging of chasms, that the Transcontinental Line may cannot in ever. A breath of the ages.

The engineer crease his against a metal disk changes air waves into electrical currents and these electrical currents, millions of which are required for a single conversation, must be carried across the continent and produce the same sound waves in San Francisco as were made in New York. Here is a task so fine as to be gigantic. In his "History of the Telephone," Herbert N. Casson says that the energy set free by cooling one spoonful of water just one degree, would operate a telephone for ten thousand years. It was to nurse and coax this baby current of electricity three thousand miles across the continent, under rivers and over mountains, through the blistering heat of the alkali plains and the cold of snow-capped peaks, that has taken the time and thought and labor of the brightest minds of the scientific world.

Solving the Problem

Never has been such a skilful and patient lot of trained nurses, though, as this invalid of a current has had. Beginning with that first timid step in Boston, thirty-eight years ago, they have led the weakling on, mile after mile, to city after city, till it has reached the other coast.

Who did it? Who made this wonderful achievement possible? Ten thousand men, beginning with Bell and Watson tinkering away at that first crude telephone in an attic, forty years ago. It has taken an army of thoughtful, conscientious, patient men, keen of brain and skilled of hand, striving day and night for the one great end—the perfection of a system and the conquering of time and space. In office, laboratory and shop, under the earth, high up in the air, they have thought and experimented and toiled, always aiming toward this idea of universal service.

THOS. A. WATSON
Dr. Bell's associate in inventing the Telephone

There has been no isolated problem, literally as well as figuratively the development and perfection of the system has been "all along the line." The fight, this new "Winning of the West," has not been a duel, to be won by a single inventor struggling for the solution of some one big problem, but a battle, a campaign in which thousands have helped to overcome a thousand hindrances and imperfections and difficulties.

When the telephone left the hands of Bell and Watson, it was "an essentially perfected instrument" in the eyes of the law, that is, it did what was claimed for it—it talked—but that was all. The diaphragm was simply an animal membrane tied around a piece of wood and in touch with a magnet. From this acorn the oak of the Bell System, nation wide, has grown. From this small beginning, the Transcontinental Line has been evolved, and it has been an evolution. In the words of President Theo. N. Vail, it is "the cumulative effect of improvements great and small, in telephone, transmitter, line, cable, switchboard, and every other piece of apparatus or plant required in the transmission of speech." In all the 3,400 miles of the line there is no one spot where a man may point his finger and say, "Here is the secret of the Transcontinental Line; here is what makes it possible to telephone from New York to San Francisco." Rather, it is the perfection at every point that has brought this about. It is the development of the transmitter at New York that makes the receiver at San Francisco do its work so well; it is the improvements in the receiver at San Francisco that causes the transmitter at New York to perform its functions so admirably; it is the perfecting of every inch of line and every bit of mechanism between them that enables the instrument at New York to talk and that at San Francisco to hear.

The Magnitude of the Task

In spite, however, of the fact that, compared with the electrical problems, the mere engineering task of constructing the line may appear simple to the scientist no one can run his finger over the route of the new line on the map without being impressed with the magnitude of the undertaking. The data and figures are tremendous. The line crosses thirteen States, it is carried on 130,000 poles. Four hard-drawn copper wires, .165 inch in diameter, run side by side over the entire distance, establishing two physical and one phantom circuit. One mile of a single wire weighs 435 pounds, the weight of the wires in the entire line being 5,920,000 pounds or 2,960 tons. This, of course, is the transmission wires alone. In addition to these, each physical circuit uses some 13,000 miles of fine hair-like insulated wire, 4-1,000 of an inch in diameter, for its loading coils.

Simply to string this immense amount of wire across the continent, to set the poles and insure insulation, to conquer the innumerable difficulties offered by land and water, forests, mountains, deserts, rivers and lakes, was in itself a task of no mean magnitude. The Panama Canal is hailed as one of the greatest of the achievements of the world's engineers as it is, but the almost like a monumental Bell System, con has begun nine years ago achievement $310,000,000; within the space of time the Bell Company has put twice that amount in its engineering construction work alone.

Two Leaders in the Work

The building of the Transcontinental Line depended on the solution of no one isolated problem nor will the glory of

be given to any one isolated individual, but there are a few names that will always stand out above the rest in connection with it. There must be great generals for armies that win such victories.

For many years this line from ocean to ocean has been the dream of Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the goal toward which he has pushed and toward which he has steadily led his associates and the army of his employees. Not the dream of a dreamer, but the prophetic vision of a practical, forceful, capable man, a man of unlimited business energy and knowledge, who could see anything in telephony except impossibilities. He not only cannot see them, but will not admit that they exist; he does not find the word "impossible" in his dictionary of engineering terms. Almost from the beginning of the telephone, his energy and enthusiasm, his dauntless optimism and ambition in everything relating to its perfection and promotion, and his idea of "universal service," have dominated the company and made enthusiasts of every one connected with it in great things or in little.

At his side through most of these years has been a slightly built, lithe, keen-eyed man, who never has to be told but once when a great thing is to be done. A nod, and a line goes to Denver; a word, and it stretches to the Pacific coast. That is John J. Carty, Chief Engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. A leader among the scientific men of all nations and honored by their rulers for his distinguished services in engineering accomplishment, his wide knowledge, his keen judgment and his indomitable energy have combined to make him one of the great factors in telephone achievement and advancement. He is a wizard of the wires. Long ago he said this great thing could and should be done, and through the great banks of silence that separated the East from the West, this Goethals of electricity has been cutting his way, year by year, until the great canal of human speech is done.

Others have played big parts in this drama of human endeavor and achievement, and thousands have given their share of thought and labor, but, whoever is forgotten or remembered, the names of Vail and Carty will be linked with this new triumph of science as long as man talks to man.

There has been no greater achievement in the history of the Bell Company, none in the history of telephony, few in the history of the world. The gain to science is great. Immeasurably more precious, however, is that to the nation, and incalculably greater are the benefits to commerce and society. What the Transcontinental means to the future of the country, what it will bring about by drawing the East and West closer together, how much of increased prosperity and happiness these thousands of miles of wire will insure, no man can gauge.

What It Means to the Country

One of the most prominent of the guests who talked over the longest of long distance telephones at the celebration said:

"I thought I had gotten over wondering at the miracle of the telephone, but what I have just done amazes me as much as the first words I heard over the wires many years ago. Even now I can hardly conceive that it is possible. I have talked over long distances many a time before, but this is far beyond the limit. Chicago I am used to, even Denver; but this talking from the Atlantic to the Pacific gives one a thrill. It appeals to the imagination—it is a theme for poets.

"What it means to the country, it is impossible to estimate. For one thing, it is a final blow to sectionalism—it has put a seal on the fact there is no longer East and West, North and South. Not even the railroads or the new canal have done or can do so much toward bringing the States closer together and uniting them more firmly, not only in commerce, but in thought and language. Provincialism will become rarer and rarer, localisms, dialects—all such things that depend on isolation—are getting to be an impossibility in the United States, and the telephone has been the greatest agent in bringing about this desirable condition. It is hard for people to get very far apart when they are in such constant touch with each other, and I know of nothing which is doing more to strengthen the bonds between individuals and communities than the network of wires the American Telephone & Telegraph Company is spreading over the country. So much importance do I attach to this idea, that, extreme as the statement may seem, I believe quite firmly that, had the telephone system reached its present perfection previous to 1861, the Civil War would not have occurred. The wires would not have let the North and South drift so far apart."

Universal Service

The new Transcontinental Line is a concrete exemplification of the possibilities of universal service and a justification of the arguments for a single system. Under no other plan would such a line be possible. This line, 3,400 miles long, and joining the Atlantic and Pacific, is part of the great Bell System of 21,000,000 miles of wire, connecting 9,000,000 telephone stations located everywhere throughout the United States. Comprising this system are the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its associated and connecting companies, thousands of them, giving instant and perfect communication among 100,000,000 people.

The opening of this line is the culmination of the Bell idea of universal service—in presenting it for the use and convenience of the public, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company renders an account of its stewardship. It has fulfilled its promise not only in itself, but as an example of what is to follow in future that it is the intention of the Association wide line plan Telephone & Telegraph Company can talk, to talk over the telephone to every man who can hear.

The telephone was born here and it has reached its greatest perfection here; under no other conditions, except such as exist in the United States, could it have come to its highest development. With its dozens of telephone systems, Europe has no long-distance line to compare with this. The Transcontinental Line is a culmination of an art that was born in the United States, the high water mark of a science that was created and has been developed entirely by American genius and enterprise. It is the highest achievement of practical science up to today—no other nation has produced anything like it, nor could any other nation. It is sui generis, it is gigantic—and it is essentially American.

GRANTSVLLE.

A jolly crowd of young folks, chiefly employes of the Hitchins Bros. Co., of Frostburg, enjoyed a sleighing party to Grantsville this week and took supper at the National Hotel.

Rev. L. P. Young of the Salisbury charge of the Lutheran church, embracing the Salisbury, Greenville, St. Paul and Grantsville congregations, preached his farewell sermon at the two last named places. Rev. Young has been appointed Missionary Superintendent of the Allegheny Synod and will enter upon his new duties February 1st

Sleighing parties have helped make time pass merrily the past week, the sleighing having been excellent. A crowd of men and ladies from Davis took supper at the National Hotel and on Friday night a party of twenty-three from Addison drove down and had a chicken supper at the same hotel. Friday night a party of young folks from Salisbury drove over and spent the evening at the Victoria, with dancing and music as a pastime. Refreshments were ordered for the crowd. Another party of nineteen, from Frostburg, took supper at the National Hotel on Sunday evening, coming up in a four-horse sled.

Nicholas Murphy, ex-constable, met with a bad mishap by falling on the ice and breaking one rib near the heart. Mr. Murphy has been given medical attendance and the broken rib is healing nicely.

The annual election of shareholders of the First State Bank of Grantsville, resulted in the election of the following directors and officers: Directors. G. C. Keller, Peter Nathan, C. H. Bill, Ralph Engle, C. H. Younkin, C. E. Ellithorp, J. A. Beachy, S. S. Miller, J. J. Bender, J. S. Miller and J. O. Getty. Officers, G. C. Keller, president; J. J. Bender, vice-president; J. O. Getty, cashier; and H. H. Baker, assistant cashier. The shareholders had a resolution of sympathy entered in the minutes of the meeting, accompanied with a hope of speedy recovery, for their absent member, J. S. Miller, who is now undergoing treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

Rev. L. P. Young, of Elk Lick, Pa., and pastor of the Lutheran church at Grantsville, has tendered his resignation to the charge and will on February 1st begin his new duties as missionary superintendent of the Allegany Synod. Rev. Young is also editor of the "Young Lutheran" and is president of the Somerset county convention. As pastor of the charge in Grantsville he has been greatly beloved and will be sadly missed both as pastor and worker. He has been in his present charge more than eight years and has helped build a a parsonage at Salisbury, a church at Greenville and one at Grantsville, all of which are paid for and stand as lasting and beautiful memorials to pastor and people. He has a very charming wife who is popular as himself, and three beautiful children. Rev. Young will remain at the parsonage in Elk Lick until spring. Rev. Oney, of Bittinger, will fill the pulpit at Grantsville on Sunday afternoon at two thirty.

The stork brought a new baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bowser of Bittinger, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Yutzy of Pocahontas, are spending the winter at the National Hotel with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bender, whose home has been made so comfortable by recent improvements that their parents will imagine themselves back in Florida again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schrock, of Meadow Mountain, spent last week with their brother, Irvin Schrock, of Niverton.

Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Miller and children, of Springs, Pa., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Steward Rodamer and Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. Bender.

William Bonig and Dr. Carney had business in Salisbury, Pa., last week.

Mr. S. M. Yoder, of Sugar Grove farm, Grantsville, was a recent visitor at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Good Farmer.

The good farmer is one who attends to his business and maks it a success without becoming a slave to it. He does not aspire to outside responsibilities as his services are worth more at home than if placed elsewhere. He works with both head and hands always using the former first. He appreciates the fact that he is his own master. He does not spend his spare time in promiscuous loafing, but stays on the job until a time when he can loaf right and then quite properly calls it a vacation. He has a life plan of his own formation and at all times can see to his satisfaction just how his affairs are to terminate. He is willing to co-operate with his neighbors in worthy measures of community improvement but is not given to wasting time and effort in promulgating matters that while commendable are practically futile; in other words he is progressive but cannot afford to pose as a philanthropist. He finds his chief pleasure in home life surrounded by his family, his employes, his live stock and his daily obligations. Every day brings to him its pleasure as he sees the result of his widely bestowed efforts. He is happy because he is living the natural life of man in man's habitat, compared with which all other lives are more or less unnatural. —H. E Tweed,

A Farm Boy Arrives.

Until he was 18 Charles H. Sabin was a farm boy at Williamstown, Mass. Meantime, when 17, he was graduated from Graylock Institute. At 19 he went into a bank at Albany, N. Y., and for 20 years he was identified with various financial institutions in the Empire State capital, the last five years as vice president of the National Commercial. Then, in 1907, he went to New York as president of the National Copper Bank. Last Wednesday Mr. Sabin, being now 46 years of age, was elected president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, the largest trust company in the world, at a salary said to be $50,000 a year. Thus in 28 years the farm boy has gone to the head of a concern that in 1914 did a foreign exchange business alone of $4,000,000,000 and for the same period in its trust department had a turn-over of $2,000,000,000.

20,000 Mile Ride Near End.

George W. Beck and J. B. Ransom, two of the four overland Westerners who began their famous State House ride at Olympia, Wash., May 1, 1912, have reached Medicine Lodge on their way from Oklahoma City to Denver. The party of four began their journey in Washington, and by June 1, 1915, they must have traveled through every State in the Union and entered San Francisco with at least one of the original starting horses. For accomplishing this record-breaking feat they will receive a large purse from the Northwestern Stockmen's Association. They have already traveled 17,000 miles and have one of the starting horses.

These parties were in Oakland 18 months ago.

GOOD AND FAIR.

How near to good is what is fair,
Which we no sooner see.
But with the lines and outward air
Our senses taken be.
We wish to see it still and prove
What ways we may deserve;
We court, we praise, we more than love.
We are not grieved to serve.

No. 1978 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

William M. Thayer plaintiff, vs. John O. Thayer, George B. Thayer, Daniel T. Thayer, Lucy Beckman, Samuel L. Laughrey, James Laughrey, Phoebe Friend, Mary Lipscomb, Reuben Enlow, A. F. Enlow, Matilda M. Enlow, May Shartzer, Nellie Enlow Baker, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S Enlow, Ella Watson, Minnie Enlow, Mary Ellen Ridgely, Charles H. Trent, Parker Trent, Mary O'Brien, Charles Trent, Sadie Pugh, Ralph F. Trent, Ezra Trent and other heirs of Aaron Trent, late of Garrett County, deceased, whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, defendants.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Garrett County, of which Aaron Trent, deceased, died seized and possessed, and out of the proceeds to pay all bills of the decedent, which may be properly proven against the estate, and for a distribution of the balance amongst the heirs at law of the said Aaron Trent.

The bill states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of $36.88, and that the plaintiff paid out the additional sum of $53.85 as funeral expenses of the said Aaron Trent.

That being so indebted, and possessed of some real estate, but of no personal property of any consequence, the said Aaron Trent departed this life about Feb. 14, 1914, intestate, leaving no widow or descendants, but leaving nephews and nieces whose names are above enumerated, together with some other heirs whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, as his only heirs at law.

The bill further states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death possessed of scarcely any personal property and consequently no letters of administration were ever applied for or granted on his said personal estate.

That Samuel Laughrey, May Shartzer, Nellie E. Baker, Minnie Enlow, Parker Trent, Charles Trent, Sadie Paugh, Ralph T. Trent, Wilson H. Trent, Ezra Trent, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S Enlow, Ella Watson, Mary Ellen Ridgely and Charles H. Trent are all non-residents of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 11th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 12th day of February, 1915, give notice to said absent defendants, and also to any heirs of the said Aaron Trent, not mentioned above, and whose names are unknown, of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 1st day of March next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

James B. Cox, vs. Gertrude Cox.

No. 1976 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii.

The bill states that on or about the 15th day of June, 1906, the plaintiff was married to the defendant and took up their residence in Cumberland, Allegany county, Maryland, where they continued to reside until about the 15th day of December of the same year.

The bill further states that on or about the last named date the defendant left plantiff's home and abandoned him and that he has never seen them that day to this and does not know where she lives, other than that he has been informed that she is now within the Panama Canal Zone.

The bill further states that the plaintiff never gave the defendant any reason for abandoning him, but that his conduct toward her had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; and further says that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eight years and he believes is deliberate and final.

Plaintiff further says that he has resided for the last three years in Garrett county, and that no children was born as a result of said marriage.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimoni and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 4th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of February, 1915, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of February next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

January 19th, 1915.

Mr. R. E. Sliger, Agent,
Sun Life Assurance Company,
Oakland, Md.

Dear Sir:—I have received notice from your company that the dividend on my policy this year is $18.50; and I feel that it is my duty to write you just how much I am pleased with this result. My first premium was $105.00 on a five thousand dollar policy, and by using the dividend this year as part payment, it makes the second premium $86.50.

I have had the protection of $5000.00 for death, and if I had been totally disabled the company would have paid the premiums in the future and matured the policy, or would have paid me an income of $250.00 per year for twenty years if I desired.

I feel that the first thing to be considered in an insurance policy is the protection; but if it also combines a good investment with the protection, and the money paid for premiums is saved for old age, it then becomes the ideal way to save money.

Very truly yours,
JOHN W. HOLMAN.

AFTER THIRTEEN YEARS' SERVICE HE RETIRES

Dr. Robert A. Ravenscroft Will Return to Garrett County To Reside.

On Monday Dr. Robert A. Ravenscroft, appointed thirteen years ago by President McKinley as Surveyor of the Port of Baltimore, retired from that position, being succeeded by Mr. Guy W. Steele, who was appointed to succeed Dr. Ravenscroft several weeks ago by President Wilson.

Upon retiring from the office Dr. Ravenscroft was presented with a set of resolutions by the Customs force in which the men expressed their gratitude for the kind and courteous treatment accorded them in the years that are past and extended their best wishes for the years that are to come. Dr. Ravenscroft was also presented with a very handsome gold watch, suitably engraved, with the names of the donors and the occasion.

Following the presentation of the resolutions and the watch, Dr. Ravenscroft addressed the men assembled and presented his successor in office, by saying:

After being associated with you since June 17, 1902, a period of almost thirteen years, we are about to separate. It does not often fall to the lot of one man to serve as Surveyor for so long a time; none, I believe, have so served at the Port of Baltimore, and at few, if any, of the larger ports of the country has my record been equalled. Hence it is pardonable in me to feel proud of the distinguished honor that has been conferred upon me by our Government. It is not my purpose in these few parting words to dwell upon this phase of the occasion that brings us together. But what I do particularly want to say at this time concerns you gentlemen of the service. I feel proud to have had the direction of such a body of faithful and conscientious government officers, and I take pleasure in commending you to the Honorable Guy W. Steele, who has just qualified as my successor. He will find in you an intelligent and reliable force of men, upon whom as the field or working force, actually and directly devolves the protection of the port's revenue. The success of my administration depended upon you, as will that of my successor. Your efficiency makes you the peers of any customs force in the country. You have always manifested a quick understanding of orders issued and a promptness in their execution. You have shown good judgment and tact in your dealings with the representatives of the transportation companies and the importers, both at the Custom House and on the piers. There has always been a good fellowship among the units of the force, all showing a disposition to work together for the general good and a mutual desire to help each other fulfill your obligations to the Government, to your immediate superiors, and to one another. Such a combination of qualifications makes the work comparatively easy for the man who sits in this office.

The Classified Civil Service protects you, adds to your efficiency and insures better service to the Government. During the more than three terms since I have been Surveyor a number of the men in the lower grades have advanded to higher positions. I see among you men who have started as messengers and laborers who are now Night Inspectors, Assistant Weighers or Clerks, and I see men who were in the last named positions serving on the Day Inspectors' force.

Many changes in the personnel have occured in these more than twelve years of my service at this port. When I was inducted into office in 1902 a force of 90 men was under my direction and today this force numbers 94. The original roll of 90 has been depleted by 20 or more deaths, many have resigned to accept other positions and quite a number have been transferred to other branches of the Government service.

I shall highly prize this token of your regard. You could give me nothing that would be more appreciated, and I shall always hold a warm place in my heart for the men of the Baltimore Customs Service.

Now, Mr. Surveyor, let me on behalf of the men present, who now become your subordinates, and also speaking for those whose duties on the piers prevent them from being here, extends to you their best wishes for a successful administration. They have themselves very fittingly voiced their sentiments through these beautiful flowers which they have placed upon your desk. They ask me to assure you of their determination, through their loyalty and fidelity to the Government's interests, to win your approval, and they hope under your wise direction to make the service at the Port of Baltimore a credit to you and an honor to themselves.

Now, gentlemen, again thanking you, and wishing you health, happiness and prosperity in the years to come, I have the honor to present you to Mr. Steele.

Dr. Ravenscroft will return to Garrett county sometime during the latter days of this week and will again take up his residence, and make this his future home, giving his business interests his personal attention.

Both these men stand in the very front rank as theologians in this country and it will be a real privilege to hear them.

Brewers To Sue W. Va. For Loss Of Profit.

Charleston, W. Va. Feburary 2.—The brewery interests of the state have employed connsel to file suit against the state of West Virginia for damages aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars for the loss of their profits for the year since prohibition put them out of business. The brewery interests have abandoned their project to introduce a bill in the Legislature to have the state reimburse them to the extent of $300,000 for the loss of profits.

The suits will be based on the allegation that the Yost prohibition law put the breweries out of business when the state authorized them in their charter, to continue business. The breweries, it is said, continue to take back their kegs and cases of bottles, carrying on that portion of their business that is not in violation of the Yost law, in order to make their case as strong as possible.

OAKLAND COLLEGIANS WIN.

From Grafton Y. M. C. A. in Fastest Game of the Season.

The Oakland Collegians defeated the Grafton Y. M. C. A. basketball team last Saturday night, in one of the fastest games of the season, by the score of 28 to 21. The score throughout the entire game was very close, usually a point or two in favor of the visitors. But the Collegians took a spurt and secured a good lead in time to win the most brilliant victory of the season before an unusually large crowd of spectators.

The ball was not in play two minutes when it was plainly seen that the teams were an equal match. The first half ended 11 to 12 in favor of the visitors. The Grafton boys came back in the second half and scored the first two field goals. It was then that the Collegians put up that desperate struggle which won the game by a good margin.

The pass work of the Y. M. C. A. boys was the best seen on our floor for some time and was only overcome by the most strenuous efforts of the strong Oakland defense.

Sinsel aud Loar excelled in shooting for the visitors, each succeeded in making two sensational shots from the middle of the floor.

Sanner starred for the locals by scoring 24 out of the 28 points.

Too much paise cannot be given Rev. Bremer for the excellent manner in which the game was refereed.

YOUNG MINER DIES FROM INJURIES

Albert McCrobie of Kitzmiller Succumbed in Cumberland Yesterday.

Albert McRobie, aged 28 years, died at the Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning from the result of injuries sustained last Friday while at work in a mine at Blaine, W. Va. The young man was taken to Cumberland Tuesday afternoon. The body was removed to the Butler morgue, where it was prepared for burial, and yesterday afternoon was taken to Blaine over the Western Maryland at 4:00 o'clock. The funeral will take place Friday afternoon.

Mr. McRobie was in the act of mining the coal when a rock, weighing several tons, fell from the roof, striking him a terrific blow and knocking him to the ground. He was under the rock forty minutes before he was extricated by fellow workmen. During the time he was pinned under the heavy boulder he never lost consciousness. After taking him from the mine he was removed to his home and for two days he suffered intense pain. It was decided upon the advice of the attending physician to take him to a hospital. Upon examination at the Cumberland hospital it was found that he was injured internally.

He is survived by his sister, Miss Bertha and a brother, Daniel, of Blaine. His father and mother are both dead. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, Lodge No. 77, and Aerie No. 18, Fraternal Order of Eagles, all of Blaine, W. Va. His uncle, Arch McRobie, of Blaine, accompanied the deceased to Cumberland Tuesday.

TO REDUCE FIRE LOSS.

Insurance Underwriters To Co-operate With State Fire Marshal.

State Fire Marshal Geo. Edw. Myers announced yesterday that the insurance underwriters of the State have agreed to co-operate with him in his campaign to stamp out fires oftimes started through carelessness and neglect, and which have been numerous, he says, in the recent past.

The marshal has evolved a plan of investigation which includes inspection of shops and manufactories, frequently, around the closing hours. Whenever fire breeding conditions are found Mr. Myers will give the responsible parties proper warning, and then if the conditions are not bettered, he will recommend cancellation of the insurances policies. An entirely unnessary number of fires have occurred in Baltimore and throughout the State of late, according to the State official, for which no explanation could be obtained or where gross negligence has been found to be a contributory cause.

MORE LIVE STOCK NOW THAN A YEAR AGO

Government Statistics Contradicts Reports That Prices Will Reach Unprecedented Figures.

For the first time in many years, information collected by the department shows that all classes of live stock in the United States are increasing in numbers. Thus the real facts contradict, absolutely, sensational reports that prices for meat and shoes would rise to unprecedented figures in the immediate future. It has even been said that a Government statistician predicted meat at 50 cents a pound and shoes at $10 a pair within the next two years. Such a prediction, the real Government statisticians say, is quite unwarranted.

On January 1, for example, the number of beef cattle showed an increase of 3.4 per cent. over the number a year ago, and an actual increase of 1,212,000 head. Hitherto the number of beef cattle in the United States has declined steadily since 1910. There are also more milch cows in the country than last year, the increase being 2.5 per cent, or in numbers 525,000. Swine, however, showed the greatest increase of all classes—9.6 per cent. On January 1, 1914, there were only 58,933,000 swine in the country; on January 1, 1915, 64,618,000. This is accounted for by the fact that the production of swine can be increased more rapidly than that of other classes of live stock and consequently an enlarged demand can be met more rapidly.

The prediction of 50-cent meat and $10 shoes was accompanied by the declaration that France alone has taken from America nearly 300,000 horses within the last five months and that the other countries at war have drawn upon our resources in the same proportion. The facts are that more horses were on the farms of the United States on January 1, 1915, than there were a year before, the increase being 233,000 head, or 1.1 per cent. So far from France alone having taken 300,000 horses from us, the total exports since the war began have certainly been much less than 100,000 and very likely not over 75,000. Since there are approximately 25,000,000 horses altogether in the United States, the drain on account of the war is scarcely alarming.

It is, in fact, pointed out by Government statisticians that the market value of farm horses has actually declined to such an extent that the average is now about $6 a head less than a year ago. This decline is most noticeable in the cotton States and in those States which make a business of breed-horses for sale in other sections. Mules have declined even more than horses, their value being now $11.50 per head less than a year ago. The explanation is to be found in the depression on account of the cotton situation in the South, which is the great market for mules. An improvement in this respect will do much to restore the demand for horses, so that Government specialists, while ridiculing the nation of a horse famine, are convinced that farmers will find it profitable to use good work mares for breeding more stock.

As for hides, the situation is not quite so clear, but even here there has been much gross exaggeration. From two-fifths to less than one-half of the leather used in this country is imported, about 25 per cent of the foreign hides coming from Argentina, 15 per cent from Canada, 11 per cent from Mexico, 8½ per cent from European Russia, and 7½ per cent from France. Since the outbreak of the war importations have showed a certain falling off, those for September, 1914, for example, being only 34,000,000 pounds, instead of 45,000,000 pounds the year previous. There is, however, little reason to suppose that this decrease will be permanent or of sufficient importance to create any real scarcity. Since the great bulk of the imported hides comes from countries that are not at war, shipments are not interferred with in any way, and the only new factor to be considered is the possibility of an increased demand by the warring countries.

It is believed, however, that the United States is now in a better condition to face such a situation than for years past. The tide, it seems, has turned. Instead of live stock steadily decreasing year after year, this year for the first time, as has been said, all classes show an appreciable increase. Including horses, mules, milch cows, beef cattle, sheep and swine, there were on January 1, 1915, 7,712,000 more farm animals in the United States than on January 1, 1914. The increase in the total value was $78,024,000, or 1.3 per cent. It is quite true that this increase in population, which is approximately 2 per cent; but the fact that there is an increase, that the tide seems definitely to have turned, is regarded as sufficient answer to alarming exaggerations and misleading figures.

SAVINGS BANKS FOR SCHOOLS

National Board of Education Advises Inculcation Of Habit of Thrift.

A million and a quarter dollars is on deposit in school savings banks in the United States, according to a bulletin just issued by the Bureau of Education. This money is distributed among 217,000 pupils, who thereby learn lessons of thrift for use in later life.

Belgium has the honor of originating the school savings bank system, according to the bulletin. Prof. Laurent, of Ghent, Belgium, in 1873, began the work among school children "for amelioration of poverty and the improvement of individual and national life." His work soon attracted the attention of the leaders of education in other countries.

A native of Belgium, John Henry Thirty, put the school savings banks on a permanent footing in the United States. Mr. Thirty established banks in Long Island City, N. Y., and the New York schools, under Supt. Maxwell, have been among the most successful advocates of the system. Mr. Thirty's efforts in behalf of school savings banks have been continued since his death in 1911, by Mrs. Sara Louisa Oberholtzer, of Philadelphia, who has aided in the compilation of the Bureau's bulletin on the subject.

Several methods in vogue for collecting and banking the savings of the children are described. Usually the co-operation of a well established savings bank in the school community is first secured. Forms and blanks are provided by the banks. When the amount reaches one dollar, the child is given a bank book and becomes, through the school, a regular patron of the bank. When the deposit reaches $3 or $5 (as the banks elect) it draws interst at 3 or more per cent.

Among the cities where the school savings banks have done notable work are Pittsburgh, Pa., where over $600,000 has been deposited since the introduction of the system. Chester, Pa., has now on deposit over $44,000. Toledo, Ohio, established the system in 1911, and has deposited since then over $252,000, with $70,000 reported as still on deposit. Atlantic City, N. J., has on deposit over $33,000. Pupils in Grand Rapids, Mich., deposited $75,000 in the several years since establishing the bank and have drawn out in that time only $10,000.

The bulletin suggests that there can be a stimulating relation between the U. S. postal saving system and the school saving banks. The postal saving banks receive deposits from all over 10 years of age. "Children who have spent their pennies and nickels in candy shops and moving pictures shows until they are 10 years old," declares the bulletin, "are not likely to hold their cards until they accumulate the $1, to be exchanged for a certificate of deposit. Schools savings banks are needed to prepare young people to profit by the postal saving banks."

Clipped From Exchanges.

A well known minister who had been preaching a begging sermon concluded it as follows:

"I don't want any to contribute who have not paid their subscription to the home paper, for country papers need money a great deal more than do the heathen." That minister knew what he was talking about.—Montgomery News.

He gets up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock; buttons his Chicago suspenders to Detroit overalls; washes his face with Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania pan; sits down to a Grand Rapids table; eats Chicago meat and Tennessee flour, cooked with Kansas lard on a St. Louis stove; puts a New York bridle on Kentucky mule fed with Iowa corn; ploughs a farm covered by an Ohio mortgage, with a Chattanooga plow; when bed time comes he reads a chapter from a Bible printed in Boston, says a prayer written in Jerusalem, crawls under a blanket made in New Jersey, only to be kept awake by an Arkansas dog, the only home product on his place. —Arkansas Democrat.

More than half a million dollars were paid to aged and infirm former employes in the steel indnstry during 1914, according to the fourth annual report of the United States Steel and Carnegie Pension Fund, which was made public. The total disbursements for the year in actual figures is $511,967.90, an increase over 1913 of $89,152.76. The fund was started January 1, 1911, since which time there has been a total distribution of pensions to retired employes of the Steel Corporation amounting to $1,575,021.33.

There's a Sparrow, the present Mrs. Quale's sister, and two young robins, one sparrow and two young quales in the family. One of the little robins was a Swan and another a Jay-feather dead now and a bird of Paradise. LEWIS HURTS HIS POLITICAL CHANCES

Vote on Immigration Bill and Prohibition Make Him Impossible Candidate.

The Baltimore American is a dispatch from its Washington bureau says:

"Representative Lewis of the Sixth Maryland district, was at the White House and made a belated appeal to the President to sign the Immigration bill. Mr. Wilson told Mr. Lewis that he came too late, because the veto message was then on his desk ready to be sent to the House of Representatives as soon as that body met.

"Political friends of Mr. Lewis deeply regret his warm championship of the Immigration bill with its literacy test. Those of his friends who have sought to encourage in Mr. Lewis an ambition to succeed Senator Blair Lee in the Senate or to follow Governor Goldsborough in the Executive Mansion at Annapolis, have now abandoned all their efforts, for it is conceded on every hand that by his recent votes in the House on the Immigration bill and on the prohibition question, Mr. Lewis has made himself impossible as a candidate for any office at which the people of Maryland as a whole and not merely those of the Sixth district may vote.

Expenditure For Farm Labor.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23—Sixty-five per cent, or 31,982 of the farmers of Maryland employ hired help, and their annual expenditure for this item is approximately $8,802,000, according to a report which has just been issued by the Bureau of Census. Ten years ago the yearly expenditures for labor by farmers of this state amounted to $5,716,000 and the increase within a decade has been 54 per cent. Seventy-seven per cent of the amount paid for labor by Maryland farmers is cash.

For continental United States the yearly labor expenditure is more than $651,000,000 and 46 per cent of the farmers hire labor. There are nearly 3,000,000 farmers in the country that employ hired hands.

Maryland Live Stock Reaches Million Mark.

According to the live stock report sent out by the United States Department of Agriculture, there are 1,062,000 head of live stock in Maryland, showing an increase of 29,000 over the year 1914. This number is distributed as follows: Horses, 167,000; mules, 25,000; milch cows, 177,000; other cattle, 121,000; sheep, 223,000; swine, 349,000. The value of this stock per head in Maryland is: Horses, $113.00; mules, $138.00; milch cows, $54.50; other cattle, $29.50; sheep, $5.20, and swine, $9.70.

In the United States there are 21,195,000 horses valued at $103.33 per head; 4,479,000 mules, valued at $112,36 per head; 21,262,000 milch cows, valued at $55.33 per head; 37,067 other cattle, valued at $33.38 per head; 49,956 sheep, valued at $4.50 per head and 64,618,000 swine valued at $9.87 per head. These figures were compiled January 1, 1915.

UNIVERSAL LIBERTY.

So, now, in this crisis of the fate of liberty, if any of the renowned men of this nation should betray her cause, it were better that he had been unknown to fame. It need not be hoped that the brightness of their past glory will dazzle the eyes of posterity, or illumine the pages of impartial history. A few of its rays may still linger on a fading sky, but they will very soon be whelmed in darkness, for unless progressive civilization and the increasing love of freedom throughout the Christian and civilized world are fallacies the sun of liberty, of universal liberty, is already above the horizon and fast coursing to his meridian splendor, where no advocate of slavery, no apologist of slavery, can look upon his face and live.—Thaddeus Stevens in Congress, 1850.

Little Problems of Married Life

By William George Jordan

[Copyright, 1913, by Fleming H. Revell company.]

XII.—When the Children Come to Bless the Home.

DO you remember the spirited argument between the two Irish laborers on the subject of mortar, one asserting that the mortar held the bricks together, the other contending that it kept them apart? Children play this doubtful mortar role in the home. They may bring husband and wife into closer unity or they may gradually force them apart. With the advent of the children a new element enters the home. It is a new transforming power for better or for worse, but a factor that never leaves conditions unchanged.

When the anticipated joy of parenthood has become a reality and it brings to husband and wife only greater peace, truer companionship, only sweeter love and more delicate consideration as the weeks grow into months, strengthening with the flight of time, it is a home benediction, an ideal far above even the thought of problems. But this is truly rare, because every privilege in life carries with it a responsibility, every right a duty, every power a danger, every light a shadow, every gain a loss. It is the element of change, the enforced readjustment of the mutual dependence of husband and wife on each other, that must be recognized.

The old freedom and finality of their whims and fancies are gone because every decision may now be overruled by the baby's veto. The pleasure of a little railway journey together, a night at the theater, a proposed social call, the comfort and comradeship of a read and a talk under the library lamp, the loving counsel and confidence after dinner, may all be sacrificed in a moment by the opposing cry of protest from the autocrat of the nursery.

The husband may begin to grow restless under the new regime. The novelty of paternity may begin to lose a little of its charm and his heart hunger for the old singleness of companionship. He may begin to feel he is being gradually pushed aside and supplanted, and a latent rebellious feeling of jealousy stirs him. He cannot quite put it into words even if he would.

He may thoughtlessly accept an invitation for some evening entertainment and later find that his baby forbids his wife to accompany him. This first time he may loyally forego the pleasure rather than go alone. But subsequent invitations put his resistance to sleep, and finally he surrenders, perhaps saying he can do no real good by staying at home.

Then he may remember that he has not been to his club or the theater for a long time, and this opens to him a change of scene. He may in his heart and speech honestly revolt at the enslavement of the mother to her child and feel helpless in facing a condition he cannot change.

He may even grow irritated at the crying of the child and feel that the mother should somehow manage to keep it quiet, as if the child were a mechanical music box, where you merely had to touch a certain spring to shut off the sound. He may find that his rest at night is disturbed and selfishly go off to another room to sleep, forgetting that the tired mother may then be left with the sole burden of soothing the fretful little one to dreamland.

The mother, absorbed and concentrated in the loving care of her child, which has become so nearly all her world, may let motherhood eclipse the tenderness of wifehood. She may some day wake to realize with a strange, sudden tightening of her heart that she is missing certain customary graceful attentions and caresses—the small coin of love—that the goodby kiss in the morning is forgotten or become perfunctory and finds many other little beads of attention missing that but a short time ago made bright spots on the golden thread of her daily living.

She may miss the old conferences and confidences and feel in a vague way that it is all his fault, thoroughly unconscious that, on repeated recent occasions when he had told her little cares and worries as of old, tried to win her enthusiasm to some new plan of his or some new dream of ambition, she had only half heard, her interest was slight, her sympathy unexpressed. Her thought wandered as she waited for a pause and sidetracked his confidence with the latest instance of the marvelous intellectuality of the baby. She may not realize that the child that began as a real reason for dropping familiar customs and sweet habits is now but an excuse.

If their past life together were not always roses and sunshine they may have made up their little misunderstandings, smoothed over difficulties and let new love and kindness take out the pain of a memory. But now the child may become a refuge to the mother. Concentrating upon it all her love, she bears stolidly a coldness that otherwise she would seek to remove, sits in the shadow of her dignity when but a word would bring peace and sweetness, while the husband, playing his poor counter role, draws more closely around him his robes of sackcloth and ashes. And they both think things about each other not edited for publication, and they just become sullenly reticent and selfish with speech, and they will not talk.

When the child begins to escape from babyhood and the mother begins her siege of morning talks on the necessity of moving away from the city so they can get good country air for the child, though he may murmur something about there "being cases on record where children were actually brought up in the city and lived through it," he may finally capitulate. But there is a resentment that cannot be stifled that his comfort and ease might have at least standing room on the floor of discussion. He hates the suburbs. He does not relish an hour's railroad ride night and morning, but at last, finding opposition wearying, he succumbs.

When the children come these problems have to be met and worked out by both. Neither can do all. The husband must make "allowances," manifest new tenderness, watchfulness, consideration, thoughtfulness, forbearance and self denial. He should not take himself and his grievances too seriously.

He must take broader views and throw away the microscope with which he is studying the wounds of neglect inflicted on his vanity. If he wishes the home life to move along as it did of old, despite the temporary shadow the light of the new joy may cast, he should do more than his share toward keeping up all the traditions of the old sentiments.

He should, so far as he possibly can, relieve the mother of the mere drudgery and added care of her new responsibilities, so that the close lines of the old comradeship may never be broken. A rose or some trifling gift that means nothing but the thought it messages may bring instinctively the smile, the glad look, the love light in the eyes, which he so misses, and in the rewinning he may find new happiness that will never come to his sulky demanding as a right.

To the wife may come the need of care to prevent the child even temporarily eclipsing the husband. As her mind glows under the inspiring dreams of the child's future and in fancy a twenty years' panorama of its growth and progress unrolls before her, she must watch that she does not lose that close, telepathic kinship of mind and heart with her husband, so much more easily lost than regained. It merely requires a wise sense of values, seeing life and its relations in true perspective, a little sterling common sense united with love—then the coming of the children will mean only new joy and truer companionship to both.

In the true spirit of acceptance of changed conditions they will waken to the completeness and consecration of the larger life with the children, the new inspiration, the new, sweeter dependence on each other, the new, broader vision of united usefulness, and they will be dearer and nearer to each other because the children are dearer to them, and the rooms echoing with the laughter and romping of the little ones will seem to them filled only with music.

When two friends start out for a long walk together they seem instinctively to adjust their steps so that they walk side by side within touching distance of each other. If one gradually quickens his pace until he is yards ahead of the other and in his self absorption increasingly widens the distance between them they cease to be two walking together and become two walking alone. Marriage is a lifelong walk together of two who have selected each other from all the world. It is community of thought, ideals, aims, needs and sentiments that tends to keep them in step. It does not mean a sacrifice of individuality, nor does it demand unanimity of opinion, but there should ever be progressive harmony on essentials and progressive sympathy on nonessentials.

It is so easy to keep together if both realize the vital importance of all that is sweetest in life in keeping in step, in true comradeship. Talking over the affairs of their individual lives and their life in common, the hopes, the longings, the doubts, the joys and the problems, gives each the basis of knowledge from which most truly to understand and advise each other. Reading the same books, discussing the same current events, hearing the same music, seeing the same plays, criticising the same pictures, having dearest friends in common, agreeing on the same spiritual and ethical attitude toward life and sharing in thoughts and plans will do much toward making a growing apart mentally an impossibility.

The ELECTRICAL WORLD

WIRE THROUGH FLOOR JOISTS

Awkward Job of Wiring Made Comparatively Easy by Use of the Standard Boring Machine.

Here is a job in electrical wiring that often comes up; that is, to run wires parallel with a ceiling and through the floor joists, says the Popular Electricity. Anyone who has ever tried knows that this is about the most awkward place to bore holes imaginable, yet with the standard boring machine now on the market the boring becomes a simple matter.

A rigid standard, which may be lengthened or shortened as desired, carries the auger or bit in a position at right angles at the upper end. The bit is driven by a little pulley which in turn is revolved by the rope belt which the man has in his hands. Over and over, down one side and up the other, goes the belt and the hole is bored quickly and no step ladder needed.

BIG DREDGE ON YUKON RIVER

One of Greatest Machines Ever Built Has Been Installed in That Inaccessible Country.

The old miner who went into the Klondike fifteen years ago to bring out gold with no more elaborate outfit than a tin pan would have scoffed at the suggestion that in a comparatively few years one of the greatest river dredges in the world would be taken into that inaccessible country to scour the river bottoms for the settlings of the ages. The Canadian Klondike company has just installed a dredge at Dawson, on the Yukon, which is a monster, and at work taking up the bottom gravel and shifting it at the rate of 10,000 cubic yards a day. The construction was begun in August and completed in November and the boat is 130 feet long by 91 feet wide. The machinery of the dredge is operated by electrical power, and while the investment was of course enormous, the craft is now moored in one of the richest spots in the world and it is expected that a vast amount of gold will be recovered.

CHECK UP TELEPHONE CALLS

Registering Device Invented by Arkansas Man Especially Adapted for Use on Toll Lines.

The Scientific American describes a registering device for telephone systems, invented by E. M. Northum of Stephens, Ark., as follows:

This invention has for an object the facilitating of posting books and the checking up of telephone calls, especially those calls received on toll lines. A further object is to provide a device for registering calls which is operated by disks, each of which constitutes in itself a record of the call so recorded. Another object is to provide a device in which the registering of the call is not only made, but the notification of such record may be transmitted to a distant operator, such as a monitor. Finally, an object is to provide a device comprising a dial having two hands therefor, one of which may be in use during the day and another during the night, these hands being shown in a face view herewith of the registering device, a portion of latter in section.

Lesson VI.—First Quarter, For Feb. 7, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Ruth i, 6-18. Memory Verses, 16, 17—Golden Text, Ruth i, 16—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We have just one lesson in this beautiful story of Ruth, but we will seek to gather many things from the whole story. The first and last names in the book, Bethlehem and David, are two of the most suggestive in the Bible. No man's name is mentioned so often as David, and his is the first and last name of a mere man in the New Testament. Bethlehem, besides all the other interesting facts connected with it, will always be of special interest as the birthplace of the firstborn son of Mary, Jesus Christ our Lord. Ruth is one of the four women mentioned in Matt. i among the ancestors of the son of David. Some one has said that the four chapters of this book might be entitled Ruth deciding—gleaning—resting—rewarded.

The devotion of Ruth is an example of the devotion to Jesus Christ, which is expected of all believers. Her patient gleaning in the field of Boaz has in it an example of the patience and faithfulness which should be seen in every Christian. Her quiet expectation of some great result at the suggestion of her mother-in-law makes us think of the assurance that the meek shall inherit the earth. When we see her as the wife of Boaz, the owner of the field in which she had so patiently gleaned, we cannot but think of the time when the church, the body of Christ, the company of all the faithful gleaners of this present age, shall become the bride of our mighty man of wealth, the owner of the field, which is the world, and then we shall inherit all things with Him and reign with Him on the earth (Rev. xxi, 7; v, 10).

That Naomi and her husband and sons should leave Bethlehem because of a famine and go to sojourn in Moab seems like the misstep which Abram made when he left Canaan because of a famine and went down to Egypt, for he only got into trouble there, and we read of no altar unto the Lord until he returned again to Bethel (Gen. xii, 10; xiii, 1-4). Poor Naomi found trouble enough in Moab in the loss of her husband and two sons, but she seems to acknowledge that the going to Moab was her affair, while it was her gracious Lord who brought her back to Bethlehem, "I went out full and the Lord hath brought me home again empty" (chapter i, 21). She turned her steps homeward because she heard that the Lord had given bread to Bethlehem (verse 6).

The wandering boy of Luke xv turned homeward when he thought of the bread in his father's house. It seems as if we should be ever telling to the perishing of the bread, and to spare, in our Father's house, for how can they hear unless some one tells? Naomi knew the God of Israel. These women of Moab must have learned of Him through her, and Ruth had learned to know Him well enough to forsake all for Him, to esteem Him more than her own people and her father's house. Orpah had not so learned to know him. If our testimony is what it should be and our life He will use us to gather some to Himself. The devotion of Ruth in the ever memorable words of verses 16, 17, are in a measure repeated by Ittai to David in II Sam. xv, 21. The words in verse 19, "So they two went," are found in II Kings ii, 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 11, and there again we see a steadfast purpose on the part of Elisha which brought to him that which his soul desired. This is the steadfastness which we so greatly need (I Cor. xv, 58).

The friendliness and thoughtful kindness of Boaz in chapter ii are but a faint type of the loving kindness of our Lord Jesus, who can truly say, "I know thy works," etc. (ii, 11, 12; Rev. ii, 2, 9, 13, 19).

If, as His redeemed ones, we have not recognized many "handfuls of purpose" as we have gleaned in the part of the field He has assigned us, we must be blind indeed (chapter ii, 16). The words of Boaz in Ruth iii, 11, "Fear not, my daughter; I will do to thee all that thou requirest," made a great impression upon my wife, as we saw them in a motto in the Y. W. C. A. at Cape Town, South Africa, in 1898, and we have often passed them on to others since then. There is also much comfort in the words of Naomi in chapter iii, 18, "Sit still, my daughter, * * * for the man will not be in rest until he have finished the thing this day."

In chapter iv Boaz as the kinsman redeemer, having the right to redeem and accomplishing the same, is wonderfully suggestive of our Redeemer, who not only redeems us, but also our inheritance, the earth, and seals us with the Holy Spirit, the earnest of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession (Eph. i, 13, 14). When Naomi became nurse for little Obed (chapter iv, 16, 21) she no doubt forgot in a measure the emptiness of chapter i, 21. Ruth also forgot the weary days of her poverty when she gleaned in the field of Boaz. So we shall forget all our misery and remember it as waters that pass away (Job 15, 16).

Let us be certain that we are redeemed by the precious blood of Christ and then patiently the glory riedly fill the place ... appearing. assigned us, re... which shall ...

DAIRY WISDOM.

With the cows on dry feed it is a good plan to add warm water to the milk before it is strained in the creamery or separator.

The selection of the bull to head the herd is of the greatest importance. He is half of the herd from the breeding standpoint, as his influence will stamp every calf and make it better or poorer than its dam.

Don't churn in a cold room if you expect satisfactory results from the butter.

Better cows mean a lessened cost of production.

Good butter can not be made unless conditions are right. If you have trouble with the cream find out what is wrong and remedy it.

SAVE THE RUNT PIG.

With a Little Care It May Develop Into a Valuable Animal.

There are some farmers who recommend killing all the runt pigs. This might be a good plan when hundreds of pigs are farrowed every year on the farm. However, if the pig crop is small and the price of pork continues on the ascending scale it will pay to give the runts extra care and develop them into good hogs.

If the runt is left with the herd he will no doubt always be a runt, but if separated and given extra care he may make as good a hog as most any of the herd. Often a runt has good qualities that will show themselves if given a chance.

It is best to put the runts together in a pen and give them the slops that are rich in milk. It will be well to put some bran and shorts in their slop and to soak the corn given them so that it will be easily digested.

I tried this plan of feeding with a runt pig a neighbor gave to my boy, says a correspondent of the Farm and Ranch. When marketed he was fat and fine. It was not long until he showed but little evidences of being a runt.

AVOID SORE SHOULDERS.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Thus, at this season, before the press of spring work begins there is opportunity to fit collars and harness so as to avoid troublesome shoulder and other sores. Among the most important causes of shoulder sores, says C. L. Barnes of the Colorado Agricultural college, are improperly fitted collars, too large collars, loose harness, too wide collars at the top and not cleaning the collars and the horses' shoulders after a day's work. The first thing one will notice is that the skin over the affected part is hot, dry and painful. Then the horse will show pain when put to severe pulling. As time goes on a swelling appears just above the point of the shoul-

Splendid draft colts can be raised without oats regardless of what the average farmer believes if the careful experiments of the Kansas station may be believed. Alfalfa, corn fodder and pasturage, with a combination feed of corn, 70 per cent; bran, 25 per cent, and oilmeal, 5 per cent, have seemingly made colts grow better than oats, and at a cost of 20 per cent less. A pound of the grain mixture contains the same digestible elements as a pound of oats, and as an energy producer the two are alike, pound for pound. A day's ration of oats costs 10.5 cents against 8.5 for the mixture.

der; it later fills with serum and if it is not opened becomes infected, and an abscess is the result.

In the first place, have the collars fit the horse snugly (too loose collars are worse than tight ones), keep the harness tight, clean the collar every night and wash the shoulders of the horse with cold water.

If one can treat the sore shoulder before it fills with serum, bathe it with a liniment that will not blister, and do not work the horse. If the serum has formed, then open the cavity freely and treat with mild disinfectants until healing takes place and the skin has haired over. Oftentimes after pus has formed and the horse has not been put to work for some time the pus becomes cheesy and later dries into a hard bunch. CHURCH OF CHRIST A SECRET ORDER

Mystery Kept Secret From Foundation of World.

Free and Accepted In Christ—Candidates For Membership In the Order. Initiatory Degree—Second and Third Degrees—Higher Degrees—Highest Degree Limited In Number—"Riding the Goat"—Grips and Pass-Words. Founder of the Order—Master Mason Slain—Waiting For His Return.

July 19.—THE PHOTO-DRAMA OF CREATION not only opens the Scriptures to those who see it, but sheds light upon the esoteric teachings of the ancients. Many who have seen it declare that it has greatly blessed them by revealing the lengths, breadths, heights and depths of the Love of God for humanity.

Pastor Russell's discourse today was unique. The text was, "Whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the Mystery of Christ."—Ephesians 3:4.

The Scriptures clearly teach that during this Gospel Age our God is preparing a great Temple class, said the Pastor. After this class shall have been glorified, Divine Power will operate through this Temple, through which all nations will draw near to God. The Priests in this Temple will be Jesus, the great High Priest, and the Church, the under priests. This High Priest will also be King—"a Priest upon His Throne," after the Order of Melchizedek.

The Church of Christ, the speaker claimed, is the most wonderful Secret Order ever known. The Mystery of God, kept secret from before the foundation of the world, is not yet finished, he declared, and will not be until the seventh trumpet sounds. Members of Christ's mystical Body are in the world, but the world knows them not, even as it knew Him not.

The Degrees of the Order.

It was then shown that membership in this order requires compliance with the most stringent conditions ever known—the giving up to the Lord all that the candidate possesses, himself included. The first degree is the recognition of Jesus Christ as our Savior and faith in His redeeming blood. Some never progress beyond this initiatory step, and therefore know practically very little about the Order.

The second degree is consecration, which is immediately followed by spirit-begetting. Those who have progressed thus far have become New Creatures in Christ. As these grow in grace and the knowledge of our Lord Jesus, they are privileged to advance to higher degrees. In due time they may become Knights of the Temple, a very honorable degree—leaders.

As members of the Order advance, they learn more about the Mystery of Christ. The Apostle urges all Knights of the Temple to grow—in grace, in knowledge, in character-likeness to the Grand Commander of the Order, High Priest of our Profession, who died for us and gave us opportunity to become members of this fraternity. Those who attain the highest degree shall be His joint-heirs in His Messianic Kingdom. This highest degree, however, is limited in number to 144,000 members.

Free and Accepted In Christ Jesus.

The Pastor explained that members of this Order are free from the domination of sin, free from fear of death, free from that condition of alienation from God brought upon mankind through Adam's disobedience. But they are not free to commit sin; their very desire for close relationship with God indicates that they hate sin.

Then the speaker showed that in Scripture the human nature of New Creatures in Christ is pictured by a goat. Thus on Israel's Atonement Day the high priest sacrificed the Lord's goat—depicting God's acceptance of the consecration of the class so represented. Other Scriptures intimate that each New Creature daily "rules the goat" in his own flesh.

Since the mysteries of this Order are spiritually discerned, only those can understand them who belong to the Order. God alone knows the approved members of His great Secret Order; for He alone knows who are loyal at heart. Others may wear the uniform, learn grips and pass-words; but the Lord knows who ... His.

The o... The Great Master Crafts... discuss the foundation and made all ...rangements. He is the Grand Master, and no other is recognized by members of the organization. He Himself has said, "One is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren."

The Pastor then set forth the facts relative to our Lord's life here on earth. Jesus alone had the secret plans for the Temple which God desired to have constructed. When He was crucified, more or less of the Mystery was lost sight of; and the Scriptures intimate that certain features of that Mystery were not to be completed until His return. So this Secret Society await the return of the Grand Master, who gave His life in relation to the Mystery.

PSYCHOLOGICAL prosperity and war tax go hand in hand.

PRESIDENT Wilson may see prosperity, but he is not making it.

THE total value of American farm products in 1914 was almost $10,000,000,000.

NEXT Thursday will be the anniversary of President Lincoln's birthday. The day will be appropriately observed in many places.

A BOMB was thrown among the saloonkeepers of Allegany county by an interpretation of the Liquor law by which the dealers, in addition to paying the special license of $100 a year, of which one-half goes to the State, will also be obliged to pay the additional $60 for the oyster-house license. This will mean many dollars additional revenue.

THE enforcement of law is governed by public sentiment. This is an indisputable fact. Moral: Cultivate public sentiment in the strictest sense against "boot legging" in the whiskey traffic Garrett county will become dry May 1, it must be kept dry. There must be no violation of the law permitted. The strictest enforcement of the law will be attained by public sentiment.

WORD comes from Martinsburg, W. Va., that twenty-nine brakemen were furloughed by the B. & O. Monday and ten freight conductors, some of whom have been acting in this capacity for five years and more, were reduced to braking. Some firemen are expecting to be furloughed. Since last October 69 fireman have been furloughed along the division, and yet the Democratic President says business matters are improving.

THE Baltimore and Ohio statement for December shows a gross loss in revenue compared with the same month in 1913 of $1,378,898. and the net loss for the month was $238,065. As in the previous months the saving in the net was made through a reduction in the operating expenses, which were $1,140,833 less than in December, 1913. The net for the six months of the last year fell off $1,274,681. With such facts staring us in the face the Democrats say, prosperity is here.

PRESIDENT WILSON finds the most important duty now before him is that of enforcing economy and he also finds this the most difficult task that he has to take up. New methods of raising revenue won't do. Economy must be enforced. "Pork Barrel Bills" quickly dispose of all the revenue possible from changes in the income tax law and everywhere additional expenditures more than eat up additional revenue from new systems of taxation. The administration finds immediate action absolutly necessary, at this time.

A DEMOCRATIC woman asks the following question in the Maryland Suffrage News:

Do you remember that the President's excuse to a former delegation was "that he was the spokesman of his party, he must not go against the Democratic caucus, etc?" Now it is a personal conviction which restrains him.

Is it not a fact that when the actions of the President of an entire nation are directed by mere personal opinion it is about time for him to be superseded by someone who will consult the opinions and convictions of the masses?

ACCORDING to a recent report of the Bureau of Education, school children in the United States have put one million and two hundred and fifty thousaed dollars in the school savings banks of the country. This is a remarkably good showing, and the economical training the practice gives the children with its encouragement of thrifty habits will be of incalcuable benefit to the whole system of education. It is not alone the money saved which is valuable in this way, but the habits enforced by self-sacrifice and self control in saving which have much more than a money value in their help to the formation of character.

THE government has received $99.40 settlement for a single sugar pine tree which was cut in trespass in the Stanislaus National Forest, in California, and which yielded more than enough actual lumber to build a good-sized surburban frame house. The tree scaled 18,933 board feet and was valued at $5.25 per thousand feet. Not many trees contain enough lumber to build a two-foot board walk nearly two miles long, and this is believed to be the first case on record in which a single tree felled in a National Forest was valued at almost $100 on the stump, although National Forest timber is frequently sold at considerably higher rates. A few such trees would be a great help to Garrett county farmers.

THE COUNTY FAIR

The farmer gets more out of the fair than anyone else. The fair to a city man is an entertainment; to a farmer it is education. Let us take a stroll through the fair grounds and linger a moment at a few of the points of greatest interest. We will first visit the mechanical department and hold communion with the world's greatest thinkers.

You are now attending a congress of the mental giants in mechanical science of all ages. They are addressing you in tongues of iron and steel and in language mute and powerful tell an eloquent story of the world's progress. The inventive geniuses are the most valuable farm hands we have and they perform an enduring service to mankind. We can all help others for a brief period while we live, but it takes a master mind to tower into the realm of science and light a torch of progress that will illuminate the pathway of civilization for future generations. The men who gave us the sickle, the binder, the cotton gin and hundreds of other valuable inventions work in every field on earth and will continue their labors as long as time. Their bright intellects have conquered death and they will live and serve mankind on and on forever, without money and without price. They have shown us how grand and noble it is to work for others; they have also taught us lessons in economy and efficiency, how to make one hour do the work of two or more; have lengthened our lives multiplied our opportunities and taken toil off the back of humanity.

They are the most practical men the world ever produced. Their inventions have stood the acid test of utility and efficiency. Like all useful men, they do not seek publicity, yet millions of machines sing their praises from every harvest field on earth and as many plows turn the soil in mute applause of their marvelous achievements.

AMERICA AMONG THE NATIONS.

That America commands the respect and confidence of the world is a fact of which we may well feel proud in the present crisis. Much of this respect has been attained through a policy of fairness and generosity that has uniformly actuated this country in its international dealings.

This matter was well set forth by Congressman Richasd P. Hobson in a speech on the Naval Appropriation Bill, in the House on Friday. We quote:

"When Great Britian, France the Netherlands, and the United States jointly bombarded Shiminosiki and exacted $3,000,000 indemnity from the Japenese Government for having closed the straits at that point, the other nations took their equal shares and expended them. America's share was duly received, but ere long, by a unanimous vote of the American Congress, every dollar was returned to the Japanese Government.

"In the Boxer disturbances, when the allied nations invading China levied huge indemnities against America's pleading and allotted America $12,000,000, by a unanimous vote of our Congress we returned the last dollar to the Chinese Government.

"When our blood and treasure had been freely poured out in Cuba and the world expected us to retain and hold Cuba as a fruit of conquest and a source of revenue, America astonished the whole world by voluntarily giving Cuba her independence. What nation on earth would have been so patient, so long suffering in Mexico as have been the American people?

"America is the one great Nation that covets no territory of any other nation. America is the one great Nation that would recoil at the very thought of becoming a "governing" nation. In America Jews and Gentile have become reconciled with Protestants and Catholics. America is a blood kinsman of the Anglo-Saxons, of the Germans, of the Frenchmen, of the Austro-Hungarian, of the Italian, of the Russian, the common friend of Celt, Slav, Teuton, Latin. America opened up Japan with the blessing of an elder brother. America today is the one disinterested friend of China in all the world. Shall this great Nation of destiny be impotent when it raises its voice for the establishment of such policies as the Monroe doctrine, the open-door policy, such principles as justice and equal opportunity and rights of the weak? Shall America be impotent when she seeks to restrain the cruel march of org and permit the operation of great try, of forces of commerce and indus- gious force tion, the moral and reli- the overthrow e world, to work out establishment of and the ultimate earth, good will to m of peace on While of course, in the of armaments a strong Navy stage able, it must be remembered reputation for justice in internation relations is one of the greatest bulwarks a nation can possess.

Maternity.

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

To Thee, O God, do I lift up my eyes,
And from the gratitude that fills my heart
Voice this sweet exaltation that doth rise
Within my soul, because Thou did'st impart
To me this knowledge, wondrous sweet, that fills
Me with a longing to be oh! so good—
Which permeates my very soul, and thrills
Me with the holy joy of motherhood.

God, help me guard this little life, so dear,
That lies so near my throbbing heart, and lend
Me grace and strength, that I may have no fear
Of this sweet mystery which Thou dost send,
Keep me from unchaste thoughts that might defile
This precious life that is a part of me;
Help me guard every act and thought the while,
Lord, make me worthy of this gift from Thee.

TREASURY FACES A BIG DEFICIT.

Expenditures Increasing at a Great Rate, While the Government Receipts Are Dwindling.

The governmet is threatened with a tremendous deficit and has been forced to adopt definite and decisive plans to remedy the situation. This alarming situation over the condition of federal finances brought about a conference at the Treasury Department of all the members of President Wilson's cabinet now in the city.

The disquieting fact was emphasized that the government's revenues are decreasing, while expenditures are increasing at a rate that should cause serious concern. It was decided that the quickest and most effective way of meeting this condition was to scale the estimates of appropriations for expenditures made to the House of Representatives by the Secretray of the Treasury on the day that Congress convened last month.

The regular treasury statement tells, in part, the story of the problem that has given rise to alarm among the high officials of the administration. For the six months and 26 days of the current fiscal year up to the close of business Wednesday the disbursements of the government were $449,069,505,96, or an excess of $87,855,282.15 over the receipts for the same period. Last year the expenditures for the same period were $437,616,234.24, but the receipts were more than thirty-five million dollars higher than they were in the corresponding period this fiscal year, leaving an excess of expenditures over receipts of $39,667,833.42.

Members of the cabinet who attended the conference were reticent in regard to its purpose, but it was evident that a review of the situation had produced considerable alarm and had resulted in a determination to enter on a policy of retrenchment immediately. The conference was held in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury. Those who attended it were Secretary Bryan, Secretary McAdo, Attorney General Gregory, Postmaster General Burleson, Secretary Daniels, Secretary Lane, Secretary Houston and Secretary Wilson. Mr. Garrison, the Secretary of War, and Secretary of Commerce Redfield are out of the city.

Treasury Department officials profess to be little disturbed at the shrinkage in revenues from customs duties, in view of the help which the national finances will receive from the emergency taxes. It is expected that $54,000,000 will be received from this source in the first seven months of the tax, ending with June 30 next. To date, customs receipts have shown a loss of $56,000,000, but in recent weeks the losses have been less pronounced. Substantially all of the corporation and income tax is paid in June, and it is expected that between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000 will be received from this source.

JACOB S. MILLER.

Jacob S. Miller was born near what is now Springs, Pa., August 12, 1855. Died in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., Jan. 25, 1915, at the age of 59 years, 5 months and 13 days. He was married to Anna, daughter of the widely known and well beloved Bishop Joel Beachy, Dec. 13, 1877.

Of the immediate family one son preceded the father into the great beyond in infancy. The widow, four sons and four daughters survive. The sons are: John D., living near Springs, Pa.; Menno J., at Grantsville, Md.; Simon J.; on the home farm and Noah J., also at home at present. The daughters are: Mrs. C. J. Yoder, near Grantsville, Md.; Mrs. Alvin J. Schrock, near Springs, Pa. and Lizzie and Lucy also at home. Mennonite youth with the Christian ally his unw communion of the Amish testified continu- herence and confidence in his accepted and profess ed faith. On May 16, 1886, he was ordained to the ministry of the gospel at the Miller or Maple Glen meeting house, near Grantsville, Md., by Bishop Joel Beachy, thus for over twenty-eight years he served the people among whom he was reared in the gospel's ministry in word and in deed. He was a large man physically and as much so intellectually and spiritually. He was endowed with a mental poise such as comparatively few persons possess. He was of an eminent practical turn of mind and he repeatedly volunteered the services of a "helping hand," not figuratively only, but in the most literal sense, as many and one having had past experiences of distress and need can testify. In conduct he was unassuming and unpretentious. Hypocrisy was by him abhorred and outspokenly denounced, in person and in public utterances. Flattery was repellent to him. In the temporal affairs of the community he was enterprising and did probably more than any other individual to promote its fruit growing interests, and was well versed in fruit culture. As a preacher he was resourceful, his sermons were expository and very practical, his delivery frank, free, spontaneous and bore the stamp of sincerity and was eloquent because of its unaffectedness, its realness, its address to the common conflicts and needs of humanity. He was one of the pioneer promoters of the Home for Orphaned and Dependent Children idea. Briefly, the home, the community and the church may well say in the words of Jonathan to David "Thou shall be missed, because thy seat will be empty." On the brighter side Paul declared "We are confident, I say and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord." 2 Cor 5-8.

Funeral service were held at the Miller or Maple Glen house of worship, near Grantsville, Md., Wednesday, Jan. 27, at 2 p. m. Addresses by Samuel Yoder and Jonas D. Yoder of Belleville, Pa., in German, and by Noah J. Brenneman of Accident, Md., and Jonas B. Miller in English. The large concourse of friends who came to this service testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Surely a great man hath fallen in Israel.

A FRIEND.

The American Girl.

We are proud of the American girl and justly so. She has not her equal in all the wide, wide world. She has grace of mind as well as of face. She is vivacious and piquant, yet with a reserve of dignity that is a shield and buckler.

She is abreast of the times, and rejoices in the period that is here. She is a genuine optimist, not one for mere advertising purposes. She reads much and sensibly. She is fond of romance but detests silly sentimentalism. She does not wish to be a worshiped as such. She wishes respect and companionships and opportunity for rational freedom and self-development.

She has independence without obstinacy, ambition without fanaticism. She thinks for herself, and her opinions are her own, not manufactured for her by interested persons. With equal facility she can wield the fan, the golf stick, the cooking utensil and even the ballot.

Lloyd Broadwaters, of this place, has purchased a general merchandise business in Hagerstown, Md., where he will shortly move his family. Mr. Broadwaters has been a resident of Lonaconing for a number of years, coming here from Garrett county. He has been a good citizen, and the departure of himself and family from Lonaconing will be felt keenly in many circles. He carries with him the best wishes of the people of Lonaconing for success in the new world.—Advocate, Lonaconing.

CHAIRMAN O. E. WELLER IS MENTIONED FOR GOVERNOR

State Roads Commissioner Regarded As Ideal Candidate.

The Baltimore Star says:

Though he is in no sense a candidate, the name of O. E. Weller, chairman of the State Roads Commission, is frequently mentioned as a strong possibility for the Republican governatorial nomination. This passing about of Mr. Weller's name is entirely without his consent. Indeed, the prominent Republicans responsible for the Weller boomlet frankly admit that their choice would probably laugh aside the mention of his name, and they add the main difficulty would be to win his consent to accept the nomination.

The talk concerning the man largely responsible for the creation of Maryland's good roads system does not come from Republicans allied with either of the two prominent factions of the party in the state. Instead they are men largely independent in their views, friendly to all factions and who do not hesitate to take their position regardless of the views of others. Mr. Weller, they say, looms up today as the strongest man the Republicans can nominate and at a time when the G. O. P. will have to select an unusually strong nominee to again overcome the Democratic majority in the state.

Among the qualifications and strong points they attribute to the state roads chairman are that he is of independent views, fearless and of a type that would appeal to independents and those Democrats willing to scratch their ticket; that in his former and present business careers Mr. Weller has demonstrated his ability to handle big problems and that he has further demonstrated this ability in the handling of the millions of dollars appropriated to build the state's highway system; that he is a man of independent means, largely able to finance his own campaign and financially able to fill an office regardless of the amount of remuneration the latter carried. This latter fact, they say, has been demonstrated by Mr. Weller, while identified with the State Roads Commission for three years at an annual salary of $2,500, and during which he has devoted the bulk of his time and brains to the state's work.

With all these strong points taken into consideration it is claimed that the roads chairman would make an ideal candidate provided he could be induced to accept the nomination. Still another argument used is that Mr. Weller, while identified with the state administration, is not so strongly partisan as to be offensive to those members of the party who have had differenees with the Governor.

While he is a resident of Baltimore county, Mr. Weller in his business connections is largely indentified with the city and has frequently shown his interest and pride in the civic advance of Baltimore. From the standpoint of education to handle public matters, it is also pointed out that Mr. Weller is ideally equipped. He is a graduate of the Naval Academy, where he went through with high honors.

Following his service under the government he became identified with the banking and brokerage firm of Hornblower & Weeks, of Boston, of which he later became a member. This connection he retained for years until forced to drop active business by ill health. After recovering his health he looked about for some important work with which to occupy his mind, and it was at this time that he was offered and accepted the chairmanship of the roads commission. Mr. Weller throughout his business life has been prominently identified with big men. He was a classmate and later a business partner of United States Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, who is now being mentioned as possible presidential timber for 1916. The two men have retained their close friendship and frequently visit each other.

Mr. Weller is now on his way to Florida to take a long-delayed vacation. It is known that the possibility of his being a candidate for the governorship has never been broached to him, but the matter will be suggested when he returns home some weeks hence. Then it is said a concrete demand will have been worked up and clear evidence will be presented to Mr. Weller that he is really being sought for permission to permit the use of his name.

There are a number of other substantial Republicans whose names are also being mentioned. But it would not be amiss to say that there is small possibilty of former Senator William P. Jackson consenting to be a candidate despite reports to the contrary. It is known that Mr. Jackson prefers the Federal Senate to the governorship and it is most improbable that he would be a candidate for the latter office under any conditions. William T. Warburton, of Cecil county; Gen. W. Bladen Lowndes, Dr. J. McPherson Scott and Col. J. C. Roulette of Hagerstown, are regarded as among those who would not be averse to heading the G. O. P. state ticket this fall.

Constable Theopolis George, of Swanton killed his Shepherd dog a few days ago, because of indications of hydrophobia. He sent the head to Dr. Stokes, of the bureau of Barteriology, Baltimore, who pronounced it a fully developed case of hydrophobia and said all animals bitten by the dog should be killed, which will be done at once.

TWO FULL MOONS IN MONTH.

An Unusual Lunar Record Established Last Friday Night.

Two full moons in one month is the unusual record that was established when the moon became full last Friday night. Such lunar phenomena can occur, according to officials at the naval observatory, only when the moon reaches the full the first day of the month.

The moon attained that stage early New Year morning. Twenty-nine and a half days elapsed Friday night, and the moon, therefore, became full again, for the second time in a single calendar month, that being the length of time between two full moons.

Warns Potato Growers.

In announcing that unusually large stocks of potatoes were held on January 1 in the large potato-producing States, the Department of Agriculture warns Southern growers, who usually sell their spring crops in competition with the stocks carried over in the Northern States, to take notice of the situation.

"Prices are unusually low and therefore, may not decline further," the derartment's statement said, "but material advances in the next few months cannot be forecasted from present supplies. The United States seldom imports or exports relatively a large quantity of potatoes. Therefore, the European war has no material direct bearing upon the potato market of the United States."

Of the marketable supply of potatoes of the 1914 crop 52.8 per cent. remained in the hands of producers or dealers on January 1. This is estimated to be 166,846,000 bushels in States which produced 78 per cent. of the United States crop.

LONDON SCARED BY FAKE RUMOR

City Awaits Dreaded Zeppelins Which Do Not Appear

LIGHTS OUT AND FORCES READY

German Submarine Raid on English Shipping In Irish Sea Has Caused Britain as Much Consternation as Anything of the War—Vessels Tied Up In Ports—Raider Again Reported Seen In Supposedly Safe Waters.

London, Feb. 2.—London was again thrown into great consternation last evening by rumors that German Zeppelins were on their way to bombard the capital. It was shown later that the reports were false.

While efforts were being made to confirm the reports steps were taken at once to meet an attack from the air. Extra guards were placed about Buckingham palace, the houses of parliament, Westminster abbey, St. Paul's and other public buildings.

Scotland Yard took preliminary precautions, advising the officials of the railroads that the lights in terminals should be lowered as much as possible, summoning the special constables to headquarters and preparing to fight possible fires. Firemen off duty were called to their stations.

It soon was established, however, that there was no foundation of the rumors. The report probably emanated from Dover when harbor batteries roared because a steamship tried to enter without complying with the regulations.

Sailing of Ships Suspended.

London, Feb. 2.—What is regarded here as the new German policy of a submarine blockade of British ports is temporarily effectual at least in the case of Belfast, where sailings have been suspended. The Liverpool authorities, however, announce that no interruption in the trade of that port is contemplated.

A message received from Southport says that a German submarine, supposedly the U-21, was seen off there. Southport is a seaside resort of England in the Irish sea, eighteen miles north of Liverpool.

The two British merchant steamers torpedoed by the Germans off Havre are the largest commercial vessels that have as yet fallen victims to German submarines; the three ships sunk in the Irish sea were all small coasters.

The belief that the raider could not remain for more than a few hours in waters so far removed from his base has been exploded by the news that the mail steamer Leinster encountered a German submarine off Dublin on Sunday, twenty-four hours after the sinking of the three coasters. Therefore it would seem probable that the raider renewed his supplies of food and fuel from the coaster Linda Blanche before sending her to the bottom.

Ships Do Not Take Chance.

Belfast, Feb. 2.—The reports of the German submarine activity in the Irish sea followed by the sinking last Saturday of three British merchant steamers by the German undersea boat U-21 has created a deep impression in shipping circles in Belfast. Nine steamers which ply across the north channel have been held in port and fourteen colliers are remaining at anchor.

Germans to Keep It Up.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The German admiralty admitted through the government press bureau that it was the submarine U-21 which sank several British merchant ships in the Irish sea.

"Germany has inaugurated a serious campaign of submarine warfare against British shipping and more developments may be expected," said an announcement.

KARLSRUHE IN GULF?

Captain of Russian Steamer Claims to Have Spied German Ship.

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 2.—The captain of a Russian steamship, who refuses the use of his name, said that he saw a German cruiser in the gulf two weeks ago and that her lines resembled those of the Karlsruhe.

It is thought possible that the presence of the cruiser may have some connection with the sailing of the Dacia, which is now on her way to Rotterdam, though it is understood she will call at Norfolk.

WANTS DACIA, NOT CARGO

English Government Will Send Cotton Promptly to Rotterdam.

London, Feb. 2.—The announcement that the former Hamburg-American line steamship Dacia had sailed from Galveston with a cargo of cotton for Germany caused much comment in London, where it was generally believed that the Dacia incident had been closed.

Granting that the Dacia tries to reach Rotterdam, she unquestionably will be taken by British warships into an English port where her cargo of cotton immediately will be reloaded on a waiting vessel. It will then be sent promptly to Rotterdam at the expense of the British government, thus preventing loss to her owners.

It is the general impression here that the Dacia is certain to go into a prize court to test the validity of her transfer from German to American registry.

GERMANS REPULSED

So Claims French Statement—Berlin Says Nothing to Report.

London, Feb. 2.—The official French report states that the Germans were repulsed with heavy losses to them in attacks between La Bassee and Bethune, that the Germans were defeated near Albert and in the wood of La Grurie, northeast of Pont-a-Mousson, and that the French artillery won advantages along the Aisne.

The German government states that there is nothing to report from the western theater.

The German war office announces further gains west of Warsaw, a renewal of attacks against the Russian front in southern Poland, and the eviction of Russian forces from recently occupied towns in northern Poland. No news is given as regards operations in East Prussia.

SENTRY KILLS GENERAL

German Commander Dies of Bayonet Wound Made by French Soldier.

Paris (By Mail Because of Censor), Jan. 21.—A dispatch from Marseilles says that the German General von Freisne, who was a prisoner in Corsica, has died as the result of a bayonet wound received from a French sentry.

The general was going out of bounds, according to the dispatch, when the sentry warned him, and, the general paying no attention, repeated the warning. Thereupon the general is said to have struck the sentry in the face. The sentry replied with the bayonet and the general died soon afterward.

Ministers Want Cheap Rail Rate.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2.—After a discussion, in the course of which Rev. Dr. C. R. Zahniser asserted that self-respect would not permit ministers to ask the legislature to make possible the restoration of half-fare railroad rates for clergymen, the Ministerial union decided to memorialize the state lawmakers to annul the law that forbids the railroads from granting the rate concession.

A TRIP TO NEW YORK CITY

A Garrett Countian's Impression of the Nation's Greatest City.

FOURTH LETTER.

New York City is a great city in every respect. A city of big things. Plans have been made for a great market terminal costing $1,000,000, the first of a dozen or more planned for receiving and delivering foodstuffs in New York city and thereby reducing the cost of living, will be erected by the New York Central Railroad Company. The project has been announced by John J. Dillon, commissioner of the new State Department of Foods and Markets.

Under Commission Dillon's plan this and other similar market terminals will be leased by co-operative companies organized and conducted under rules laid down by his department. The profits of these companies will be limited to 6 per cent. a year.

This first terminal will cover a whole city block bounded by Eleventh and Twelfth avenues and Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets. Train loads of perishable farm products will enter there and discharge their loads directly into distributing wagons.

Commissioner Dillon said that New York city spends for food between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 a year, but that only 35 cents on each dollar spent for food finds its way to the farmer. He attributed much of the waste to inadequate systems of handling and predicted that under the market terminal plan the cost of foodstuffs would be cut more than 10 per cent. When this market is completed Garrett county farmers may find it a good place to sell their products.

New York City has the largest, safest, handsomest, costliest playhouse in the world. The building covers a city block and cost $2,750,000. It has comfortable seating accomodations for 5200 persons. The stage is 200 feet wide between walls and 110 feet deep. This remarkable building of steel, marble and brick is known as The Hippodrome. It is the only one of the kind in the world. People from all parts of the world have traveled to New York City to see the wonderful plays produced on the stage of The Hippodrome. Two performances are given daily, at a cost of $6,000. The attendance at these performances is estimated at 12,000 persons.

To give the reader an idea of the vastness of this play house, I give the following facts. During the season 1000 persons are employed behind the curtain and in the front part of the building. There are 75 property men to insure the lighting changes and effects and 78 electricians and 22 engineers are constantly on duty. There are 195 members in the ballet, and a chorus of 400 girls and 100 men. There are 5,000 32 candle power incandescent and 53 calcium lights.

Beneath the apron of the stage is a tank of water fourteen feet deep. The entire front of the stage can be submerged to the bottom, making a lake of real water capable of taking the heavy plunges of rushing horses, the attacks of mimei, warfare and every aquiatic representation of great size.

For the past six months daily, except Sunday, an extraordinary play has been conducted on the stage, entitled, "War of the Worlds," attracting crowded [illegible]s, oftentimes every available seat gan [illegible] before the performance beaway. [illegible]dreds of people turned first effort to s[illegible] experience at my

Had we not engag[illegible]eat play. the second effort, the s[illegible] would have been ours. W[illegible]ahead at [illegible]rience [illegible]m-fortable and well located seats. What a pleasure it would be to describe this play to the readers of The Republican. We cannot do it. The remarkable stage effect, the various scenes and description of the several countries, of the plot, of the costumes worn, the reality of the scene represented, the perfect harmony prevailing all through the play, must be seen to realize the greatness, grandeur and wonder of the play. During the play cannons and muskets are shot off by the artillery men and soldiers; bands play, soldiers march, cavalry parade, elephants, camels and trick mules join the procession. It is simply marvelous. To see this play is well worth the expense of a trip to New York. It is one of the greatest sights of the great Metropolis. There was nothing offensive, it was a clean enjoyment and educational as well as entertaining.

There were two acts in the play. The first act opened with: The War for Existence and conquest—when the earth was young; dawn of civilization; the Jungle people, tree and cave people, Romans and Barbarians; Rome Mistres of the World. 2. Wars for Religion; an Abbey in the forest; the Crusaders. 3 War of Mars against Class; Gardens of Versailles; period of French Revolution. 4. War of brother against brother; the South, typical southern mansion and scenes. 5. The price of War; after the battle. 6. The War of Sport; the road to Henley, showing an English road side fair, with its characteristic life and attractions, Henley, the famous scene of English and international regrettas. 7. War of races; an oasis; Camp of Arab's caravan. 8. War of pleasure, Italian village in the Rivera.

Act 2 — 1. The elements, nobles, warriors, priests, elephant men; flame and veil effect. 2. War for equal rights, street scene in Mexico; Poens, Mexican soldiers, U. S. sailors, Vanqueros. 3. War for humanity, the American fleet, attack on Vera Cruz; Soldiers, artillery, parade of conquering army, raising of the Stars and Stripes. 4. Terrace of Fountains.

This play occupies about three hours. The fact that it has run for six months and attracts thousands of people twice a day is evidence that it is a remarkable performance.

Of course there are scores and scores of play houses of all kinds, good, bad and indifferent. The moving picture shows attract multitudes. The nickle houses are numerous. There are real interesting, enjoyable and entertaining moving pictures. I attended one or two remarkable movies. So real that one could almost imagine the actors were live people. The singers, in their expression, movemnts, and accompanied by the phonograph caused one to imagine the music as the voice of the men and women of the picture.

It Was Her Afternoon Out.

One day Mrs. Jones rushed into her husband's presence with hasty steps and a wild look of excitement.

"Oh John! Oh John!" she exclaimed "Norah made a mistake and tried to light the kitchen fire with gasoline!"

"Gasoline, eh?" calmly responded John. "Did she get it started?"

"Did she get it started?" cried the amazed Mrs. Jones. "It blew her out the kitchen window?"

"That's all right, my dear," returned the philosophic Jones. "It was her afternoon out, anyway."

BREWERIES TO SUE STATE

Will Seek Reimbursement From West Virginia For Ruined Business.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 2.—The brewery interests of the state have employed counsel to file suit against the state of West Virginia for damages that will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars for the loss of their profits for a year as a result of prohibition putting them out of business. The brewery interests have abandoned their project to introduce a bill into the legislature to have the state reimburse them to the extent of $300,000 for lost profits.

The suits will be based on the fact that the Yost prohibition law suit put the breweries out of business when the state authorized them in their charters to continue business. The breweries, it is said, continue to take back their kegs and cases of bottles, carrying on that portion of their business that is not in violation of the Yost law, in order to make their case as strong as possible.

WATER HIGH AT PITTSBURGH

Rivers Go Three Feet Above Flood Stage—Business Interests Warned.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2.—Close to twenty-five feet was the high water mark registered by the swollen rivers here this noon. This is three feet above flood stage.

Baltimore and Ohio railroad trains abandoned the Allegheny station because of the high water and all of lower Allegheny is under water.

The wharfs presented a busy scene this morning. Towboats plied here and there, signaling in the fog that rose from the water, and making coal fleets ready to ride south on the crest of the flood.

The flood warning started great activity among the business houses near the river fronts. Employees were busy removing merchandise and other goods from basements as many of the downtown buildings adjacent to the rivers become filled with water through the sewers at twenty-two feet.

PROTEST AGAINST FIGHT

El Paso Ministers Align Themselves Against Johnson-Willard Match.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 2.—El Paso ministers protested against the coming championship battle in Juarez between Jack Johnson and Jesse Willard, saying:

"We are surprised that vice should be so bold. Already the infamy of the thing rests upon the fair name of El Paso and the more so because one of the principals is training on this side of the river."

Willard went through some hard work at his training quarters today. His wind still seems far from perfect and he boxes a good deal with open mouth.

AUSTRIANS LOSE 12,000 IN TRAP

Russians Lure Enemy Into Overwhelming Disaster

SLAUGHTER IS NEAR CRACOW

Slavs Reinforce Lines In Western Galicia Unknown to Their Enemy. Czar's Generals Then Play Favorite Game of Withdrawing Skirmishers and Austrians Follow Right Into the Jaws of Death.

London, Feb. 2.—According to a report from Cracow to the Tribune of Geneva the Austrian forces in western Galicia have met with an overwhelming reverse.

Lured into a Russian trap sixty miles from Cracow the Austrians lost 12,000 men in killed, wounded and captured. The Austrians abandoned positions they had held for a long time and fled toward Cracow, the retreat ending at a point less than thirty-five miles from the forts.

For six weeks the Russians occupying Tarnow and the lower Dunajec were content to wage defensive warfare, lacking troops and artillery sufficient to risk a general engagement. They succeeded in the past week in heavily reinforcing their lines.

Fresh corps arrived without the Austrian intelligence service being aware of a large movement of troops. Ignorant of the actual numbers of the Russians defending Tarnow, the Austrian commander decided to launch a general attack.

Employing a form of strategy which has often brought success to their arms, the Russians withdrew skirmish lines until the Austrian infantry divisions were within range of batteries posted and concealed for the purpose of a surprise. Suddenly the Austrian columns were devastated by shrapnel which came from three directions. As they fled from a field covered with their dead and wounded they were ridden down by Cossacks. A general movement of the Russian infantry completed the rout and crowned a decisive victory.

If the Tribune's information is accurate, the Austrians have again failed to hold a position assigned them by the German general staff, nullified General von Hindenburg's terrific exertions in Poland and left the southern road to Cracow open to the Russian invaders.

The Russian general staff reports that the Germans have energized their attack on the Warsaw front and are beginning to use large bodies of infantry, instead of small detachments, in their day and night onslaughts against the Russian positions.

Their increased offensive movement began on Jan. 26, when they threw 16,000 men against the Russian front at Borjimow. After the successive charges were repelled the Russians questioned prisoners and learned that four regiments had participated in the drive against Borjimow.

The fighting was as desperate as has taken place in this bitterly contested region. Charge after charge was delivered by the Germans on Jan. 30 and the Russians, holding firm until the coming of night, made several counter attacks in the darkness, bayoneting the Germans from all trenches that had been taken, except one line.

The Russian military authorities assume on the basis of these operations that Marshal von Hindenburg is not yet contemplating a retirement from the Rawka and Bzura positions, but is determined to make still another effort to smash the Russian defense and seize Warsaw for the kaiser. The activities of the past few days are taken to be a development of a new drive.

The news that the Russians in East Prussia are advancing on Insterburg from the north and west and are threatening Tilsit with its storehouses of grain, as well as driving the Germans across the Inster, reveals the extent of Russian activity in the most northerly area of fighting.

Work For 8,000 Men at Homestead.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2.—The Homestead steel works of the Carnegie Steel company resumed operations almost in full, affording employment to approximately 8,000 men. It was announced that the company has an order for 32,000 tons of skelp iron, which will give employment to the workers five days a week for five weeks. The plant has been doing very little since last October.

GRANTSVLLE.

Mrs. G. C. Keller, of Grantsville, is spending some time in Winchester as the guest of her son, Mr B. F. Keller, at the home of Mrs. Coble on West Water street.

The revival in the Methodist church has been full of interest and profit to this community. The pastor is assisted in these meetings by Rev. Kimball, of Canton, Ohio. The meetings have attracted people from all parts of the surrounding country.

Mrs. J. J. Bender, who was ill with plurisy for several days, is now better. Master Raymond, who was ill for several days, also is well again and baby Clyde is improving.

A number of Salisbury people attended services in the Methodist church Sunday afternoon.

Misses Fannie and Lulu Shaw entertained most elaborately on Thursday at a chicken and waffle dinner at their home on Hill Dale Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Loechel planned a nice little surprise for their brother, C. E. Gnagey, at their pretty new home near town. A very delightful evening was spent until midnight when after a delicious supper of stewed oysters and accompanying delicacies, the party returned home through the fast falling show. Mr. Gnagey, who is recuperating after a severe attack of rheumatism, is much improved in health and will return to Washington, Pa., in a few weeks.

Rev. Young's report of his work on this circuit was full of interest. From it we glean the following: Rev. Young has been peculiarly fortunate in his relations with his people, the utmost harmony being at all times maintained among them, even under averse circumstances.

Since his coming, a beautiful parsonage at Salisbury, a handsome church at Greenville and another at Grantsville have been built and paid for. In spite of financial difficulties the people have responded nobly to all calls and these, with the erection of the afore-mentioned buildings, were naturally large. During these eight years the Salisbury charge has paid $10,670.70, Greenville $12,048 85, Grantsville $10,833.00, St. Paul $2,678.65 toward building funds, missions, benevolence, pastor's salary and all church extension work.

During his stay the pastor has received into the different churches by confirmation and certificate of dismissal 253 members, by baptism 248 members. He has laid to rest in Gad's acre 93 of his people, and 40 couples were joined by him in wedlock.

He has preached 1117 sermons, the distance traveled in that time to the different charges being no less than 13,000 miles. Surely a splendid record for any pastor to look back upon!

As a pastor his role has been preeminently that of the shepherd seeking to guide his flock at all times through pleasant and peaceful pastures into the fold of Christ. In his business relations with his people he has sought always to help them to the best, working for their own good and leading them to higher and nobler achievements.

THE FORGOTTEN PARTY

By J. J. M'CARTNEY.

All Tuesday morning young Plunkett was tormented by some vague idea in the back of his brain of something left undone. Struggle as he might, he could not get it into concrete form. Yet trying to forget it only irritated him the more.

In the midst of his luncheon a lightning flash cleared his head and with a sickening chill he knew what he hadn't done. He had forgotten to go to the dinner party which Celia Bell had given the evening before.

He had not the ghost of an excuse, because he had not been dead at the time, which would have been the only valid excuse in the eyes of a hostess. He had simply absented himself from the affair because of an inexplicable lapse of memory. For an instant he wished that he dared telephone the explanation that he had been knocked down and rendered unconscious by an automobile and had just come to. Manifestly it was totally impossible to call up Celia and airily say; "Excuse me for thinking so little of your invitation that it slipped my mind!"

The fact was that he thought a lot of Celia's invitation. Indeed, he was beginning to realize that he was going to think a lot of Celia. He had scarcely begun to do so as yet, because their acquaintance had hardly advanced beyond the formal stages, but he realized that his captivity was inevitable and he was more than resigned to the prospect. This made the scrape in which he now found himself all the more tragic.

He had heard of men who had forgotten dinner parties and had been restored to human society and toleration only after weary years of contrition. This tedious process did not appeal to him. He was afraid that in the meantime some one else would run away with Celia. He racked his brain for a more speedy solution of the difficulty.

Celia was no weak, gentle, doormat variety of girl. He could imagine just how her wonder at his nonappearance had grown to surprise, then to wrath, and how her wrath was growing hour by hour.

It was without doubt a most difficult situation.

The average man would have tried to placate the injured hostess by a bushel of roses or ten pounds of candy, a contrite note or a desperate call in person. Young Plunkett showed his really superior intellect by the fact that he did not do any of these things. For a few days he did absolutely nothing. This required self-restraint, for every hour that Celia hated him was a blight. But when the next Monday evening came around he attired himself carefully in the prescribed society raiment and sallied forth.

On his way he ran into Smith. "Hello," said Smith, "are we going out among them tonight?"

"Yes," said young Plunkett, cheerfully. "I am going to a dinner party at Celia Bell's."

'Oh," said Smith, "is she entertaining again? I went to a dinner at her home last Monday night—"

"Did you?' murmured young Plunkett, interestedly, and passed on.

With a firm step he mounted the steps to the home of Celia and the vigorous peal of the bell sounded not like the summons of one in terror. Admitted to the reception hall, he waited in all his immaculate splendor. After a while Celia came in. She advanced with the outraged dignity of an offended stage princess and when she said "Good evening" in a questioning tone young Plunkett felt like an unwelcome book agent. Yet he clung grimly to the purpose with which he had started out.

'Am I the first one?" he asked, cheerily.

Miss Bell was puzzled enough to relax her frown a bit. "First one for what? I don't understand!" she said.

Young Plunkett's face was a picture of ingenuous amazement. "Why, aren't you giving a dinner party this evening?" he demanded.

Miss Bell sat down limply. "I am not!" she informed him. "I gave one last Monday night, however—and I don't believe you have seen fit to explain why you were not present."

"Last Monday night!" cried young Plunkett. "Why, you've made an awful mistake of some sort. When you invited me you said distinctly 'a week from next Monday night!' Do you think for an instant I could have misunderstood an invitation from you? Why, I've counted on this evening for days—and now you tell me that you had the party a week ago! I don't understand, really!"

For a moment Celia stared at him. If ever there was a disappointed and reproachful individual on earth it was young Plunkett at that instant.

Celia wavered—then she fell.

"I—I never did such a thing before in my life!" she cried. 'And here I've been blaming you! Oh, I'm so sorry, Mr. Plunkett! Now, you simply have got to stay and dine with us informally tonight. How I ever came to make such a slip of the tongue I can't imagine! You'll stay?"

"Why, thank you," said young Plunkett with noble forgiveness. "Now, you mustn't worry about this another instant. It's all right, I assure you."

Valuable Elk Tooth Dress.

An elk tooth dress, estimated to be worth $3,000, was one of the oddities recently exhibited in the new "dress and ornament" exhibit at the Museum of Anthropology at the Affiliated Colleges in San Francisco. The elk tooth dress was decorated with more than 500 teeth, and was worn by an Indian woman.

HENRY'S SYSTEM.

Among the employes of an apartment house in Washington is a dusky elevator conductor, who would appear to have a "system" similar to that of the maid who announced to the guest at the door that she didn't hear her until she had rung three times.

"If anyone calls, Henry, while I am out, tell him to wait. I shall be right back," said a woman to the boy in question.

No answer from the boy.

"Didn't you hear me? Why don't you answer?" demanded the woman angrily.

"I never answers, ma'am," explained Henry, "unless I doesn't hear, and then I says 'What?'"—Judge.

Easy.

A New Yorker had occasion to 'phone from one suburb to another while visiting in a western city. Upon asking what the charge was, he was told 50 cents.

"Fifty cents! For that distance? Great Scott! In New York you can call hell up for 50 cents."

"Possibly," coolly answered the operator. "It's in the city limits."—Argonaut.

THE REASON.

George—Have you ever observed that a woman always objects to any public demonstration of affection before marriage?

Arthur—Yes; also that it is the man who always objects afterward.

How About This?

Let the doctors decide
On this troublesome question.
If you swallow your pride
Will you get indigestion?

Did He Fill It?

"What caused the coolness between you and that young doctor? I thought you were engaged."

"His writing is rather illegible. He sent me a note calling for 10,000 kisses."

"Well?"

"I thought it was a prescription and took it to the druggist to be filled."

A Value on Applause.

"Why don't you go into politics?"

"How can I?" rejoined Mr. Dustin Stax. "If I were to ask the enormous corps of employees I control to get out and cheer for me they'd send a committee demanding extra compensation for working overtime."

Fresh Country Vegetables.

"I saw you digging in the garden at daybreak."

"Yes," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I have to be up bright and early so as to get the tomato cans hid from the summer boarders."

Its Proof.

"The burglar business proves one paradox."

"What is that?"

"A safe opening is likely to be a dangerous finish."

QUICKEST WAY TO THE STREET.

Staylaight—Oh! Miss Nerviss, how can I leave you?

Miss Nerviss—Try the window; it's not over 20 feet from the pavement.

Nibble at It.

You may enjoy your corn on cob,
But let discretion guide your course.
Be dainty with the eating job,
And don't approach it like a horse.

His Scruples.

Ninnycus—Dr. Killemkwik is a conscientious fellow.

Cynicus—Yes. As soon as his bill reaches the family's limit, he puts the patient out of his misery.—Life.

So Unexpected.

"Is Plunkers a confirmed pessimist?"

"One of the worst you ever saw. If a happy thought should strike him he would be stunned for a week."

'GOOD THING' REMOVED

"GRAND YOUNG BOOB" OF BROADWAY PASSES AWAY.

Death of Irving W. Childs, Who Spent Several Fortunes on the "Great White Way," Brings Real Sorrow to Many.

New York.—There is real sorrow in the night living colony of Broadway for the death of Irving W. Childs, who died the other day at the age of 26. It is not the grief which Broadway feels when bankruptcy or parental intervention, or even death, takes away a "good thing." Childs would have been beloved on Broadway if he had not inherited $700,000 from his millionaire father, William Henry Harrison Childs of Brooklyn, and even had he not thrown the money away with both hands. With the age of a man and his great fortune, he combined a clownish youthfulness, a gay recklessness, a baby-like faith in adventure, mystery and romance and an Aladdin-like luck which gave Broadway a good healthy laugh every time he appeared on the jaded, sensation-weary street.

Young Childs died of pneumonia. He fell an easy prey to the disease because his search for pleasure and excitement had completely exhausted his nerves and vitality.

Broadway called Childs—more in affection than in ridicule—the "Grand Young Boob." By which Broadway meant that anybody could get money from him at any time and have fun in doing it.

The youth had a great ambition to be a detective. When the benevolent sheriff, Harburger, gave innocent pleasure to many imaginative millionaires by appointing them his deputies, Childs was one of the very first in the line of applicants. As soon as he was appointed he had a gold badge studded with diamonds made at Tiffany's and a pair of solid gold handcuffs. The outfit cost him $2,400 and he displayed it on the slightest excuse.

Policemen and detectives, of whom he knew scores, made harmless spending money by permitting him to make arrests for them, after they had marked down men for whom they had warrants. Childs would pay from $100 to $500 any moment for the privilege of laying his hand on a criminal's shoulder and saying: "I arrest you in the name of the state of New York," snapping the gold handcuffs over his prisoner's wrists.

When no criminal was available it was necessary to resort to indirection by introducting him to somebody as "Mr. Irving Childs, formerly of Scotland Yard and one of our keenest amateur detectives—does stunts that make Sherlock Holmes look like a flour-flusher."

The new made acquaintance could always borrow all the money Childs had about him and he seldom started the evening with less than $500.

His spendthrift ways would long ago have broken him had it not been for his luck in speculation. He would bull or bear the stock market in brokers' offices in the uptown hotels with spectacular success. Wall street was too far downtown for him to go to the market, he used to say, so he made it come to him; and it did. He usually determined his trades by the toss of a coin.

Another under-surface indication of a system behind Childs' playfulness was his refusal to sign checks except inside the doors of a bank. He had running accounts at a hundred hotels and restaurants.

"Put my name where fifty people would have a chance to study my signature and forge it," he said, "and me a detective! Not on your life!"

So he would have a waiter or a clerk sign his name for him; everybody knew him and knew he was responsible for his debts.

A woman wearing handsome furs could borrow any amount of money from Childs on two minutes' acquaintance. This idiosyncracy more than once caused speculative friends to dress a waitress or a chorus girl in hired furs and introduce her to the young man in order to share with her the price of a champagne dinner.

The "Grand Young Boob's" favorite indoor sport was giving chop suey contests. He would frequently take six, ten or all the members of a chorus to a Chinese restaurant and give a prize of $100 to the damsel who stowed away the greatest quantity of the stuff.

Childs was separtaed from his wife, who was Gertrude Westfall of Brooklyn. They have one child. Childs eloped with his wife, although there was no opposition to their marriage. Recently after she obtained a legal separation he won her back, but lost her again when he drifted into his old ways.

Wives Sold in Hungary.

Vienna.—Judging from a story coming from Szinervaralja, wives are still bought and sold in Hungary. A house painter there named Marton sold his wife to a comrade for $40. After the contract for the sale had been duly signed the three repaired to a restaurant, parties adjourned to a festive repast where they enjoyed [illegible] as the selling costing half as much. After the feast the price of the wife the home of her new woman [illegible] husband.

COLLECTION OF CURIOS

By BARBARA BOYD.

They had just returned from Europe; and like all returning tourists, they had a lot of what their friends privately called junk, but which they enthusiastically referred to as a valuable collection of rare curios.

"Aren't these the quaintest things?" said Anne, exhibiting some brass hooks picked up in Holland.

"She would have brought a whole hardware shop of them, if I hadn't stopped her," laughed her husband.

"But just imagine how stunning they'll look on the hall to hang hats on, or—or—in the bathroom for towels."

"I don't believe the flat owner will let you put up hooks," objected a friend.

"Goodness! I never thought of that," replied Anne. She put the hooks away thoughtfully. Then she dived into another box.

"Did you ever see anything so horridly charming as these?' she rapturously exclaimed, producing several specimens of leering gargoyles. "They are so ugly they are fascinating."

"What are you going to do with them?" asked a friend.

"Well, of course, they aren't intended so much for houses. That is, I don't think so. Are they?" she asked her husband.

"Oh, I don't know. They'll look all-fired queer, no matter where you put them."

"Tom really hasn't much taste for quaint things," explained Anne. "But I thought they would look delightful sort of peeping over the eaves of the house, like they do at the tops of churches; or maybe—sort of sitting up alongside the water spout."

"But there aren't any eaves to a flat," objected the practical friend.

"Nor water spouts, either," chimed in another.

"I never thought of that," replied Anne still more thoughtfully. "But I just couldn't resist getting them."

"If you only had a chicken house," said a cynical friend, "you might set them up there. I think they would be right on the job of keeping thieves away."

Anne ignored such irrelevancy, and very carefully brought out a huge box which she opened and tenderly drew forth therefrom one by one some door hinges, knockers, latches, locks and bolts, nail heads and a bunch of enormous keys.

"Aren't they just dear?" she said, looking at them with kindly eyes.

"But what in the world will you do with a lot of scrap iron like that?" obtruded the practical friend.

"Fix up the doors and make them look old-timy. Just imagine how distinguished a door will look with a latch like that," she said, picking up a piece of bent and rusty iron. "Most of these are Spanish. Some are German. But aren't they delicious?"

"But if you are taking the hardware off the doors of your apartment," chorused her friends, "you'll get a call-down from the janitor."

"I suppose I would," admitted Anne. "I guess the only thing for us to do is to build."

So now, she and her husband are hunting a location that will be a proper setting for a house sufficiently medieval in design to bear up under French gargoyles, Spanish locks, German latches, Florentine nail heads and Dutch hooks. They feel there must be a deep, dark ravine, and embattled crags, and some melancholy trees such as artists put in Italian landscapes, and a church with chimes. And snuggled out of sight, so as not to interfere with this artistic harmony, they would like a well-oiled stone road, a good trolley and a town with a good show or two.

And while they are hunting this location an architect is having brainstorms trying to design a house that will be harmoniously French, Spanish, German, Florentine and Dutch, all at one and the same time.

Analysis of Hailstones.

The infrequency of their occurrence and the difficulty of keeping them for examination, have stood in the way of any careful investigation of the character of hailstones, but Prof. Boris Weinberg of Tomsk, Siberia, has just perfected an apparatus which is expected to obviate these difficulties. He will gather the hailstones as opportunity offers and preserve them by plunging them in a liquid of about the same density contained in a double-walled receptacle like a superior ice cream freezer, but "packed" with a mixture of ice and sulphate of copper. As needed for study the stones can be removed, sliced in extremely thin sections and photographed by a polarizing microscope or autochromatic plates, as is done with anatomical preparations.

Rather Gave Herself Away.

Parson White's precautionary measure of protecting his chicken coops with [illegible] steel bars was futile, for every night four more of his choice Leghorns disappeared, leaving the severed bars as the only visible evidence of the theft. However, his suspicions pointed toward his next-door neighbor, whom he had seen prowling around his yard that day, and accordingly he had this suspect up in the police court next morning.

"If the prisoner can file an alibi I'll let him off with a suspended sentence," announced the judge at the end of the evidence. "Can you file an alibi, Ham?"

"I guess I can," eagerly replied the suspect, "if it ain't any harder den Pahson White's chicken coop bars."—San Francisco Star.

Half Entire Population of St. Paul at Service on Go to Church Sunday

GO TO CHURCH!

In every village, hamlet, town and city in the United States the cry is heard. Many have had their GO TO CHURCH Sundays already. The reports are very encouraging. About half of St. Paul went to service on one particular Sunday. The pastors unreservedly pronounced the results BEYOND THEIR EXPECTATIONS. As one pastor described the scene at his church, every man, woman and child in his congregation seemed to have made a special effort to get to church. Other pastors told of enthusiastic responses of persons who had not attended church in years at the end of the service, declaring that "this doesn't mean only once. I'll be here next Sunday too."

WITH FEW EXCEPTIONS THE CHURCHES THROUGHOUT THE CITY WERE FILLED TO CAPACITY, AND MANY WERE OVERCROWDED. SUNDAY SCHOOL ROOMS LONG UNUSED AT SUCH A TIME WERE THROWN OPEN TO CARE FOR THE OVERFLOW IN MANY CHURCHES. THE LARGEST ATTENDANCES WERE AT THE MORNING SERVICES. AT THE KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH THREE MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH WERE UNABLE TO FIND SEATS. THEY RETIRED TO THE BASEMENT, WHERE, SEATED ON THE EDGE OF THE COAL BIN AND BOXES, THEY HEARD THE SERMON BY THE REV. B. S. BATES.

Grandma Seymour, ninety-five years old, probably was one of the oldest persons who answered the appeal. She attended the morning service at the First Baptist church. She lives at the Home of the Friendless, 469 Collins street. When the GO TO CHURCH call was first issued Mrs. Seymour grieved because she thought she could not be one of the thousands. The Quest Bible class of women of the First Baptist church Sunday school, learning her desire, sent a carriage for her. Accompanied by Mrs. Parr, eighty-four years old, she made the trip without difficulty and was happy.

Trent, Parker Trent, Mary O'Brien, Charles Trent, Sadie Pugh, Ralph T. Trent, Ezra Trent and other heirs of Aaron Trent, late of Garrett County, deceased, whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, defendants.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Garrett County, of which Aaron Trent, deceased, died seized and possessed, and out of the proceeds to pay all bills of the decedent, which may be properly proven against the estate, and for a distribution of the balance amongst the heirs at law of the said Aaron Trent.

The bill states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of $256.88, and that the plaintiff paid out the additional sum of $53.55 as funeral expenses of the said Aaron Trent.

That being so indebted, and possessed of some real estate, but of no personal property of any consequence, the said Aaron Trent departed this life about Feb. 14, 1914, intestate, leaving no widow or descendants, but leaving nephews and nieces whose names are above enumerated, together with some other heirs whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, as his only heirs at law.

The bill further states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death possessed of scarcely any personal property and consequently no letters of administration were ever applied for or granted on his said personal estate.

That Samuel Laughrey, May Shartzer, Nellie E. Baker, Minnie Enlow, Parker Trent, Charles Trent, Sadie Paugh, Ralph T. Trent, Wilson H. Trent, Ezra Trent, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S. Enlow, Ella Watson, Mary Ellen Ridgely and Charles H. Trent are all non-residents of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 11th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 12th day of February, 1915, give notice to said absent defendants, and also to any heirs of the said Aaron Trent, not mentioned above, and whose names are unknown, of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 1st day of March next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

James B. Cox, vs. Gertrude Cox.

No. 1956 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii.

The bill states that on or about the 15th day of June, 1906, the plaintiff was married to the defendant and took up their residence in Cumberland, Allegany county, Maryland, where they continued to reside until about the 15th day of December of the same year.

The bill further states that on or about the last named date the defendant left plaintiff's home and abandoned him and that he has never seen her from that day to this and does not know where she lives, other than that he has been informed that she is now within the Panama Canal Zone.

The bill further states that the plaintiff never gave the defendant any reason for abandoning him, but that his conduct toward her had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; and further says that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eight years and he believes is deliberate and final.

Plaintiff further says that he has resided for the last three years in Garrett county, and that no children was born as a result of said marriage.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 4th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of February, 1915, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of February next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

THE DEATH OF MR. H. J. FREAR

Particulars of His Demise Contained In an Oregon Newspaper.

Last Thursday The Republican announced the death of Former Mayor Harry J. Frear, which occurred at Roseburg, Oregon, on Tuesday, the 2nd inst., but at the time particulars were lacking. Since then, however, a copy of the Evening News, published at Roseburg, has been received in Oakland, from which the following particulars concerning the death of Mr. Frear is taken:

H. J. Frear, one of Roseburg's best known citizens, passed away at his home on West Mosher street this afternoon at one o'clock, after an illness which had been of but a few days' duration. But few of his friends knew that he had been ill at all and the news of his death came as a shock to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintanceship.

Mr Frear was a native of Pennsylvania, having been born in Factoryville, Wyoming county, on January 29, 1864. Mr. Frear graduated from Aaston Academy, an educational institution founded by his father and later on entered Lehigh univervity where he took a course in civil engineering. After leaving the university he spent a few years in California where he engaged in the work of his chosen profession. In 1894 he entered the employ of the old Preston Lumber and Coal Co., which afterwards was taken over by the Kendall Lumber Co. In 1906 Mr. Frear came to Roseburg to make a report for his company on the lumber which was on certain pieces of property the company was considering purchasing. After these purchases had been made the Kendall Brothers purchased the waterworks plant and Mr. Frear was placed in charge of the company's properties in this county.

During the past four years Mr. Frear has made three trips east on important missions for his employers, buying timber and planning railroads into the timber lands which were purchased.

Mr. Frear was a member of the Masonic and I. O. O. F. lodges in his native town in Pennsylvania. He leaves a widow and one son, Floyd, of this city, and a sister in Panama. The funeral arrangements have not been made, but it will be held from the home.

William Wilson, of this city, will open headquarters in the Naylor Building, for painting automobiles.

OAKLAND COLLEGIANS NOSE OUT MT. SAVAGE

In a Fast And Exciting Game By a Score of 24 to 22.

The Oakland Collegian basket ball team defeated the fast Mt. Savage quint here Saturday night by a score of 24 to 22. The game was fast, though somewhat rough. This was due, however, to the closeness of the score, each team playing an exceptional game on the defense. The first half ended 14 to 6 in favor of the Mt. Savage five. The second period was close, the Collegians tying their opponents, by sensational playing, in the first five minutes. For the rest of the period the score was close, ending in a tie, each team having made 22 points. The captains then agreed to play until one team was two points ahead of the other. The two teams then fought furiously for six minutes when Sanner, for the Collegians, succeeded in caging the sphere in a most setsational shot from the court. The sensational goal throwing of C. Graham for Mt. Savage and the team work of Sincell and Sanner for the locals, featured the game. Reidler, of the home team, was at his best and put up an excellent game.

Manager Koonts of Mt. Savage repeatedly objected to the decisions of the referee, he being the first manager to be displeased by the decisions of Rev. Bremer, who is noted for his fairness and unbiased work on the floor.

Giessman, who played center for the Collegians in the first half, made a good showing and promises to add strength to the team in the future.

REV. O. A. BREMER INSTALLED

As Pastor of the Lutheran Church By Revs. Drs. Sigmund and Bauslin.

St. Mark's Ev. Lutheran church was very comfortably filled on last Sunday morning, the occasion being the installation as pastor of the congregation Rev. Otto A. Bremer, who has filled the pulpit of the local church as well as that of the Deer Park church, acceptably and with ability for several months past.

Dr. Frederick L. Sigmund, superintendent of the publication interests of the church, with headquarters in Philadelphia, and Rev. Dr. Bauslin, dean of Wittenberg Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ohio, conducted the service, the charge to the pastor being delivered by Dr. Sigmund and that to the congregation by Dr. Bauslin. Both sermons were practical and contained excellent advice.

In the evening Dr. Sigmund again preached and was assisted by Dr. Bauslin and the pastor of the congregation.

A School Teacher Vindicated.

The good citizens of Springdale district gathered in Squire Rudisill's office last Saturday, filling it to its utmost capacity and many persons standing outside. The occasion which had brought this crowd of men, women and children together was a suit against the teacher of the public school for illtreating one of the scholars. Attorney William R. Offutt defended the teacher, a wide awake, good natured young lady. The State was represented by States Attorney Renninger. Twenty-four witnesses were present, County Superintendent Rathbun, Profs. Bender, Loraditch and Miss Long of the Oakland High School were also on hand. At the suggestion of Mr. Renninger, Squire Rudisill dismissed the case as there was no evidence to sustain the charge. This action met with the most hearty approval of those present, for the teacher is loved by her pupils and respected by nineteen-twentieths of the patrons of the school.

It is believed that the result of this charge will be a decided improvement in the public school condition in that vicinity and the yearly complaint against the teacher will end. The community is to be congratulated for standing by the teacher of their school.

Learning to Know One Another

In the schoolhouse in Belleville, Wis., recently upon motion of the Catholic priest, the Methodist minister was elected president of the community's social center for this year. Then three basket-ball teams were formed, including the priest, the minister, the blacksmith, the editor, a farmer, the keeper of the village restaurant, a dentist, a clothier, a teamster, a druggist, a garage owner, a banker, a hardware merchant, and a house painter.

They differ in religion, in politics, in incomes, in most other things, about as widely as men ever differ, but in the common school building, in the free democracy of the social center, they agreed to lay aside their differences for the purpose of discovering how much good fellowship there was in meeting together now and then as equals, as brothers.

Committed to Insane Asylum.

Last Saturday morning Sheriff Scott took to the State Asylum at Sykesville, near Baltimore, Grant Lipscomb of Oakland, and Hester Glotfelty, of near Accident, who had beeen examined by physicians and pronounced insane. The sheriff was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Virginia. Before returning to Oakland they will visit Baltimore and Washington. At the latter city they will be the guests of Mr. Scott's brother.

Some Record.

The newspaper has made presidents, killed poets; made bustles for beauties and punished genius with criticism. It has curtailed the power of kings, converted bankers into paupers and graced pantry shelves. It has made paupers college presidents, it has educated the poor and robbed the philosopher of his reason; it smiles, cries, dies, but it can't be run to suit everybody, and the man will be crazy who tries.

Pet Bites Child.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

At the William White Homestead on Last Friday.

On Friday, the 5th of February, the friends and relatives of Mr. R. G. and Annie White, by arrangement made by their son Wesley White and wife and daughter and their sister Mrs. Durst, met at the homestead on the White farm, to celebrate the thirty-seventh anniversary of the marriage of R. G. White and Annie Lawton, their father and mother. The matter was kept secret, neighbors and friends were invited, and at about 10 o'clock a. m. the invited guests began to come in which numbered a little more than one-half a hundred. A very sumpntous dinner was prepared and certainly was greatly enjoyed. The day was passed in social conversation and in reminicence of the past, especially is this true when the conversation was taken up by father William White and Rev. J. M. Davis. Reference being made to the fact that Mr. Davis married the couple thirty-seven years ago, the anniversary of which they are now celebrating.

Father White has passed his ninetieth year, and is remarkably well preserved. During all these years he scarcely has ever been sick or had need of calling a physician. He was born and raised in the locality where he now lives and more than sixty years ago with his good wife began in the woods to open up a farm, build a cabin and commense life in earnest; raised an interesting family, and is highly esteemed as a worthy citizen.

Father White in his young days was a member of the Sunday school organized by Col. McCarty, April, 1829. The organization of this school took place at the home of Mr. G orge Loar in the large double log house in which he lived. But three of the scholars who attended the McCarty Sunday school are living today, namely: Abraham Wilson, Nicholas Merrill and William White. The moral effect and influence of that school and the lives of these early settlers is still felt by the generations that have followed. Mr. Wm. White was converted and joined the M. E. church as a result of a camp meeting held in a grove between Oakland and Mountain Lake Park in the summer of 1853. Rev. M. M. Eaton was the pastor. The late S. L. Townshend joined the church at the same time and the preacher, Dr. Eaton was his brother-in law. Mr. White is the oldest member of the M. E. church living, Rev. J. M. Davis is the next. The White farm has been turned over to the son and grand-son of William White, and is now one of the best equipped and productive farms in all this section of the country, showing what frugality and faithful labor can accomplish in the period of an ordinary life.

Among those present at the gathering referred to was, Mrs. Margaret Lawton the mother of Mrs. Annie White, who is now seventy-six years of age. She was the mother of eleven children, has thirty grand children and twelve great grand children, and while not in robust health is full of hope and cheer.

William White was born on the farm now owned by John William Beckman. When two and a half years old the family moved to the farm now owned by Henry Smouse, where he lived until his marriage, June 13, 1840, when he married Rachael Smith. He purchased the farm he now lives on in 1847. The camp meeting he speaks of was held on the Bishop farm, adjoining the Park.

What is The Answer.

Sears and Roebuck, the big "catalogue house," just divided $20,000,000 among their stockholders. This firm sells for cash. Its customers buy on faith, from description, and pay the freight. It would be interesting, wouldn't it, to know how many Garrett countians contributed to that pot—sent their cash out West, to be divided there? Local merchants pay local taxes and licenses to do business. Local people are given the opportunity to examine what they buy at home and are extended credit when they purchase. It would also be quite interesting, wouldn't it, to know what proportion of the people of Garrett who sent their cash to Sears and Roebuck are on the debit side of the ledgers of local storekeepers?

Sent to the House of Correction.

Last Saturday afternoon two tramps entered the B. & O. railroad station at Deer Park hotel and damaged some of the inside fixtures and ramsacked the drawers and ticket cases. They were arrested by William Savage the B. & O. watchman and brought to ja[il] Monday morning, they were [ta]ken before Squire Rudisill, who, [af]ter hearing the testimony sen[t] them to one year in the House of Correction.

STATE BOUND TO PAY A MILLION EACH YEAR

Running Appropriations Go On Forever Unless the Legislature Acts.

That the continuing appropriations which have been made from time to time by the Legislature and which the State would be required to pay whether the Legislature again met or not amount to more than a million dollars a year was stated today by Comptroller Emerson C. Harrington. The exact amount as he has found it on his books, is $1,012,857.

Some of the acts providing for these payments date back more than a century and they have been added to at almost every session of the Legislature since. So that, unless legislators act with a full knowledge of what has already been appropriated, they are likely to provide for the payment of more money than the State has in sight, just as they did at the last session, when the amount appropriated took the biggest jump in the State's history.

Mr. Harrington has compiled the figures making comparison between the Legislatures of 1914 and of 1912 in order to see where the increased appropriations come in. This shows that the total appropriations made by the Legislature of 1914 for the fiscal years 1915 and 1916 exceed by $1,557,622 those of the Legislature of two years before—for the fiscal years 1913 and 1914.

This increase over the appropriations of the preceding Legislature was divided among the following items, the amount given being not the total amount, but the excess over what was provided by the preceding Legislature:

Special appropriations	$597,759
Omnibus bill, charitable institutions	301,357
General appropriation bill, State institutions	523,900
Miscellaneous items for expenses of State government	134,600

Another summary prepared by the Comptroller shows that the special appropriations made in special bills by the last Legislature totaled $860,159, and some of the items were:

Ocean City School building	$25,000
Star-Spangled Banner Centennial	75,000
Panama Exposition	75,000
Woman's monument	12,000
Board of Parole	30,000
Judges' salary increase	77,000
Shellfish Commission	15,000
Accident Commission	135,000
State Board of Health	150,000
Soil inspection	30,000
Queen Anne County High School	17,500
State Tax Commission	60,000

And all this goes to show that the cost of government is going up along with the cost of mere living, but where the Legislature failed was in not providing new revenue. Instead, it cut the revenue down by removing certain taxes and modifying others.

Gain In Postal Savings.

Evidence of the confidence in Uncle Sam, banker, which aliens have, never was more convincing than now. For 43 months postal savings accumulated at the rate of about $1,000,000 a month. Then, when the European war began, withdrawals fell off and thousands of strange faces appeared at postoffices with money in hands to intrust to the government.

Hence the August figures showed a net gain in deposits of $4,000,000—four times the average gain. September and October rolled up over $3,500,000 each, and, although November and December felt the usual holiday drains, those months, nevertheless, were marked by more than twice the normal receipts.

The new year opened with approximately $59,200,000 on deposit in postal banks to the credit of 497,000 persons, an average of $119 per depositor. A vast sum in cash, much of which under other circumstances would have gone into old stockings for safekeeping in unsafe places, has been put into the hands of the government by foreigner residents in this country.

OAKLAND COLLEGIANS NOSE OUT MT. SAVAGE

In a Fast And Exciting Game By a Score of 24 to 22.

The Oakland Collegian basket ball team defeated the fast Mt. Savage quint here Saturday night by a score of 24 to 22. The game was fast, though somewhat rough. This was due, however, to the closeness of the score, each team playing an exceptional game on the defense. The first half ended 14 to 6 in favor of the Mt. Savage five. The second period was close, the Collegians tying their opponents, by sensational playing, in the first five minutes. For the rest of the period the score was close, ending in a tie, each team having made 22 points. The captains then agreed to play until one team was two points ahead of the other. The two teams then fought furiously for six minutes when Sanner, for the Collegians, succeeded in caging the sphere in a most setsational shot from the court. The sensational goal throwing of C. Graham for Mt. Savage and the team work of Sincell and Sanner for the locals, featured the game. Reidler, of the home team, was at his best and put up an excellent game.

Manager Koonts of Mt. Savage repeatedly objected to the decisions of the referee, he being the first manager to be displeased by the decisions of Rev. Bremer, who is noted for his fairness and unbiased work on the floor.

Giessman, who played center for the Collegians in the first half, made a good showing and promises to add strength to the team in the future.

REV. O. A. BREMER INSTALLED

As Pastor of the Lutheran Church By Revs. Drs. Sigmund and Bauslin.

St. Mark's Ev. Lutheran church was very comfortably filled on last Sunday morning, the occasion being the installation as pastor of the congregation Rev. Otto A. Bremer, who has filled the pulpit of the local church as well as that of the Deer Park church, acceptably and with ability for several months past.

Dr. Frederick L. Sigmund, superintendent of the publication interests of the church, with headquarters in Philadelphia, and Rev. Dr. Bauslin, dean of Wittenberg Theological Seminary at Springfield, Ohio, conducted the service, the charge to the pastor being delivered by Dr. Sigmund and that to the congregation by Dr. Bauslin. Both sermons were practical and contained excellent advice.

In the evening Dr. Sigmund again preached and was assisted by Dr. Bauslin and the pastor of the congregation.

A School Teacher Vindicated.

The good citizens of Springdale district gathered in Squire Rudisill's office last Saturday, filling it to its utmost capacity and many persons standing outside. The occasion which had brought this crowd of men, women and children together was a suit against the teacher of the public school for illtreating one of the scholars. Attorney William R. Offutt defended the teacher, a wide awake, good natured young lady. The State was represented by States Attorney Renninger. Twenty-four witnesses were present, County Superintendent Rathbun, Profs. Bender, Loraditch and Miss Long of the Oakland High School were also on hand. At the suggestion of Mr. Renninger, Squire Rudisill dismissed the case as there was no evidence to sustain the charge. This action met with the most hearty approval of those present, for the teacher is loved by her pupils and respected by nineteen-twentieths of the patrons of the school.

It is believed that the result of this charge will be a decided improvement in the public school condition in that vicinity and the yearly complaint against the teacher will end. The community is to be congratulated for standing by the teacher of their school.

Learning to Know One Another

In the schoolhouse in Belleville, Wis., recently upon motion of the Catholic priest, the Methodist minister was elected president of the community's social center for this year. Then three basket-ball teams were formed, including the priest, the minister, the blacksmith, the editor, a farmer, the keeper of the village restaurant, a dentist, a clothier, a teamster, a druggist, a garage owner, a banker, a hardware merchant, and a house painter.

They differ in religion, in politics, in incomes, in most other things, about as widely as men ever differ, but in the common school building, in the free democracy of the social center, they agreed to lay aside their differences for the purpose of discovering how much good fellowship there was in meeting together now and then as equals, as brothers.

Committed to Insane Asylum.

Last Saturday morning Sheriff Scott took to the State Asylum at Sykesville, near Baltimore, Grant Lipscomb of Oakland, and Hester Glotfelty, of near Accident, who had beeen examined by physicians and pronounced insane. The sheriff was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Virginia. Before returning to Oakland they will visit Baltimore and Washington. At the latter city they will be the guests of Mr. Scott's brother.

Some Record.

The newspaper has made presidents, killed poets; made bustles for beauties and punished genius with criticism. It has curtailed the power of kings, converted bankers into paupers and graced pantry shelves. It has made paupers college presidents, it has educated the poor and robbed the philosopher of his reason; it smiles, cries, dies, but it can't be run to suit everybody, and the man will be crazy who tries.

Pet Bites Child.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

On Friday, the 5th of February, the friends and relatives of Mr. R. G. and Annie White, by arrangement made by their son Wesley White and wife and daughter and their sister Mrs. Durst, met at the homestead on the White farm, to celebrate the thirty-seventh anniversary of the marriage of R. G. White and Annie Lawton, their father and mother. The matter was kept secret, neighbors and friends were invited, and at about 10 o'clock a. m. the invited guests began to come in which numbered a little more than one-half a hundred. A very sumptuous dinner was prepared and certainly was greatly enjoyed. The day was passed in social conversation and in reminicence of the past, especially is this true when the conversation was taken up by father William White and Rev. J. M. Davis. Reference being made to the fact that Mr. Davis married the couple thirty-seven years ago, the anniversary of which they are now celebrating.

Father White has passed his ninetieth year, and is remarkably well preserved. During all these years he scarcely has ever been sick or had need of calling a physician. He was born and raised in the locality where he now lives and more than sixty years ago with his good wife began in the woods to open up a farm, build a cabin and commense life in earnest; raised an interesting family, and is highly esteemed as a worthy citizen.

Father White in his young days was a member of the Sunday school organized by Col. McCarty, April, 1829. The organization of this school took place at the home of Mr. G orge Loar in the large double log house in which he lived. But three of the scholars who attended the McCarty Sunday school are living today, namely: Abraham Wilson, Nicholas Merrill and William White. The moral effect and influence of that school and the lives of these early settlers is still felt by the generations that have followed. Mr. Wm. White was converted and joined the M. E. church as a result of a camp meeting held in a grove between Oakland and Mountain Lake Park in the summer of 1853. Rev. M. M. Eaton was the pastor. The late S. L. Townshend joined the church at the same time and the preacher, Dr. Eaton was his brother-in law. Mr. White is the oldest member of the M. E. church living, Rev. J. M. Davis is the next. The White farm has been turned over to the son and grand-son of William White, and is now one of the best equipped and productive farms in all this section of the country, showing what frugality and faithful labor can accomplish in the period of an ordinary life.

Among those present at the gathering referred to was, Mrs. Margaret Lawton the mother of Mrs. Annie White, who is now seventy-six years of age. She was the mother of eleven children, has thirty grand children and twelve great grand children, and while not in robust health is full of hope and cheer.

William White was born on the farm now owned by John William Beckman. When two and a half years old the family moved to the farm now owned by Henry Smouse, where he lived until his marriage, June 13, 1840, when he married Rachael Smith. He purchased the farm he now lives on in 1847. The camp meeting he speaks of was held on the Bishop farm, adjoining the Park.

What is The Answer.

Sears and Roebuck, the big "catalogue house," just divided $20,000,000 among their stockholders. This firm sells for cash. Its customers buy on faith, from description, and pay the freight. It would be interesting, wouldn't it, to know how many Garrett countians contributed to that pot—sent their cash out West, to be divided there? Local merchants pay local taxes and licenses to do business. Local people are given the opportunity to examine what they buy at home and are extended credit when they purchase. It would also be quite interesting, wouldn't it, to know what proportion of the people of Garrett who sent their cash to Sears and Roebuck are on the debit side of the ledgers of local storekeepers?

Sent to the House of Correction.

Last Saturday afternoon two tramps entered the B. & O. railroad station at Deer Park hotel and damaged some of the inside fixtures and ramsacked the drawers and ticket cases. They were arrested by William Savage the B. & O. watchman and brought to ja[il] Monday morning, they were [tak]en before Squire Rudisill, who [sen]t them to one year [in] House of Correction. STATE BOUND TO PAY A MILLION EACH YEAR

Running Appropriations Go On Forever Unless the Legislature Acts.

That the continuing appropriations which have been made from time to time by the Legislature and which the State would be required to pay whether the Legislature again met or not amount to more than a million dollars a year was stated today by Comptroller Emerson C. Harrington. The exact amount as he has found it on his books, is $1,012,857.

Some of the acts providing for these payments date back more than a century and they have been added to at almost every session of the Legislature since. So that, unless legislators act with a full knowledge of what has already been appropriated, they are likely to provide for the payment of more money than the State has in sight, just as they did at the last session, when the amount appropriated took the biggest jump in the State's history.

Mr. Harrington has compiled the figures making comparison between the Legislatures of 1914 and of 1912 in order to see where the increased appropriations come in. This shows that the total appropriations made by the Legislature of 1914 for the fiscal years 1915 and 1916 exceed by $1,557,622 those of the Legislature of two years before—for the fiscal years 1913 and 1914.

This increase over the appropriations of the preceding Legislature was divided among the following items, the amount given being not the total amount, but the excess over what was provided by the preceding Legislature:

Special appropriations	$597,759
Omnibus bill, charitable institutions	301,357
General appropriation bill, State institutions	523,900
Miscellaneous items for expenses of State government	134,600

Another summary prepared by the Comptroller shows that the special appropriations made in special bills by the last Legislature totaled $860,159, and some of the items were:

Ocean City School building	$25,000
Star-Spangled Banner Centennial	75,000
Panama Exposition	75,000
Woman's monument	12,000
Board of Parole	30,000
Judges' salary increase	77,000
Shellfish Commission	15,000
Accident Commission	135,000
State Board of Health	150,000
Soil inspection	30,000
Queen Anne County High School	17,500
State Tax Commission	60,000

And all this goes to show that the cost of government is going up along with the cost of mere living, but where the Legislature failed was in not providing new revenue. Instead, it cut the revenue down by removing certain taxes and modifying others.

Gain In Postal Savings.

Evidence of the confidence in Uncle Sam, banker, which aliens have, never was more convincing than now. For 43 months postal savings accumulated at the rate of about $1,000,000 a month. Then, when the European war began, withdrawals fell off and thousands of strange faces appeared at postoffices with money in hands to intrust to the government.

Hence the August figures showed a net gain in deposits of $4,000,000—four times the average gain. September and October rolled up over $3,500,000 each, and, although November and December felt the usual holiday drains, those months, nevertheless, were marked by more than twice the normal receipts.

The new year opened with approximately $59,200,000 on deposit in postal banks to the credit of 497,000 persons, an average of $119 per depositor. A vast sum in cash, much of which under other circumstances would have gone into old stockings for safekeeping in unsafe places, has been put into the hands of the government by foreigner residents in this country.

A TRIP TO NEW YORK CITY

A Garrett Countian's Impression of the Nation's Greatest City.

FIFTH LETTER.

Of the many, many churches of the city, what shall I write? They are located everywnere, hundreds and hundreds of them, costing from a few thousand dollars to hundreds of thousands of dollars each. Some of them are splendid specimens of architecture. In them are sermons preached in many languages, ministers of almost all nationalities minister to their own people, looking after their temperal as well as their spiritual wants.

Some of these churches have large choirs, others congregational singing. Choirs of boys, as in old Trinity, one of the early land marks of New York Christianity.

I remember a Sabbath day spent in this metropolis of the nation. I attended service in the morning in the old historic Methodist church—John street. A class meeting at 10:00 a. m., where there assembled Methodists from all parts of the Nation. At 11 o'clock I heard a good, practical, uplifting sermon. At 3 p. m. I attended a service in "Kit Burn's old rat den," once one of the degraded places of the city, but then a refuge to the homeless and forsaken ones. It was an impressive service. At night I was taken to a Seamen's Bethel and was greatly interested in the service, The first part of which was devoted to an experience meeting. Sailors from almost every where gave in their testimony in favor of a religious life. It was my privilege to speak in the two latter meetings.

During my recent visit it was my privilege to attend a service in one of the German Reformed churches of Staten Island. I noticed generally when a member of the congregation took his or her place in the pew, the head was bent for silent prayer. The singing was good, led by a small choir. The sermon was interesting and profitable.

We hear and read much of the wickedness of the great cities, and doubtless there is much wickedness, but then there are many thousands of genuine Christians, real worshipers of the true and living God, who are earnestly serving their master. There are hundreds of thousands of Sunday school officers, teachers and scholars studying the Word of God. There are hosts of men and women lifting up, helping and keeping the poor, weary strugglers through life. There are Young Men and Young Women's Christian Associations, Salvation lassies and lads doing good. The church is not dead or dying by any means. The wickedness we read about is the result of the multiplied thousands of people living therein people of all nations and climes. We believe in proportion to the population New York City has no greater amount of "wickedness" than the rural towns. The Christian people of New York City are doing a splendid work for the master. They might do more, so might we of the smaller towns.

A palace in pink. This is the description applied to the new post office in New York, which has just been completed at a cost of $6,000,000. It is claimed for this post office, which is built mainly of pink granite, that it is the finest and most perfectly equipped building of its kind in the world.

Before the entrance to the building, which is five stories high, is a colonnade of twenty giant pillars of pink granite, 35 feet high and 5 feet thick, the whole surmounted with the motto, "Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Some 165,000 cubic feet of granite, 18,000 tons of steel, 7,000,000 bricks, and 200,000 square feet of glass have been used in the construction of this building. A remarkable feature of the building is that it has no foundation, but rests on steel beams held up over the railway tracts by pillars. The beams are about 12 feet deep and 4 feet across, and enclosed in concrete. It is claimed for the building that it is the lightest in the city, there being windows everywhere.

At the back of the public entrance is the expansive workroom, said to be the largest in the country, 226 feet long and 160 feet wide, with not a column to break the space except around the edge. Three spans, each comprising two open girders, inclosed in plaster, cross the room from north to south. These spans, however, are far more than they appear to the naked eye. For years the government has found it necessary to have an inspection system to safeguard its business against dishonest employees. The wide span that arch over the big workroom were designed to contain galleries large enough to permit inspectors to move about in them comfortablo.

Through shutters in the side of each span which look like vents, and through peepholes in the floor of the galleries, the postal inspectors can easily look down upon all employees in the place, as well as on the public, remaining themselves unseen the while.

Earnestness is the path to immortality, thoughtlessness the path to death.—Buddha.

Scarcely any attempt is entirely a failure; scarcely any theory, the result of a steady thought, is altogether false, and no tempting form of error is without some charm of truth. Not only so, but every failure is a step to success. Every detection of what is false directs to the truth, and every trial abates some tempting form of error.—Mary A. Livermore.

Look Out For Them.

From different parts of the country come stories of a swindle successfully worked on farmers who thought they were going to get cheap groceries. Two smooth strangers went through the communities taking orders for a house in Chicago, pretending to sell a standard brand of sugar and flour so cheaply that every farmer visited took from $10 to $60 worth, and other things besides. Because of the low prices the flour and sugar had to be "paid in advance." It is alleged that in one community the swindlers picked up some $3,000 and no groceries delivered.

EARTHLY WEALTH HEAVENLY RICHES

Love and Benevolence Integral Parts of Righteousness.

Ours the Wealthiest Period of History—Faith and Godliness on the Decline—Great Increase of Selfishness. An Integral Part of Sin—Lesson to the Church of Christ—Changed Conditions Under the Messianic Kingdom—Removal of the Stony Heart.

July 26.—Reports from more than one hundred cities indicate great interest in THE PHOTO-DRAMA OF CREATION. This noble effort to call attention to the Word of God is being highly appreciated. Whoever sees it is irresistibly drawn toward Him who gave His well-beloved Son for man's redemption.

Today Pastor Russell's text was: "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, but is not rich toward God."—Luke 12:21.

The discourse opened with the declaration that the world today possesses wealth beyond anything recorded in history, and in every conceivable way is growing richer. A brief enumeration of modern improvements and conveniences which would amaze our forefathers was followed by a series of questions which appeal to every thoughtful mind.

Are we as a race, the Pastor asked, growing rich toward God? Is not the very reverse true? Are not faith and godliness on the decline? Is it not true that within the last fifty years the love of money, which St. Paul declares is "a root of all evil," has intensified? Although we are better housed, fed and clothed than were our forefathers, yet there is a general unrest due to trust in riches. Despite police, detectives, telegraphs, telephones, etc., human lives and property are still in peril because of the hunger for wealth.

"Whose Shall These Things Be?"

Taking up his text, the Pastor then discussed the parable from which it is taken. In it our Lord pictures a man whose lines were fallen in pleasant places and whose wealth increased under sun and shower. But instead of growing rich in character through the cultivation of noble qualities by using his opportunities for helping those less favored than himself, this rich man permitted selfishness to dominate him. Instead of dispensing wisely the wealth which Divine providence gave him, he accumulated more for himself.

Many today are following his example, the speaker regretted to say. In this parable the Master has drawn a picture of practically every man in the world, some of whom are really doing these things, and others are longing for the opportunity.

Hear the Lord's Estimation.

Commenting upon the Master's estimation of this foolish rich man, the Pastor asked, If the Lord considered the rich man of His parable a fool, what may we suppose is His estimate of the masses today—blessed as never before, and therefore responsible as men never before were responsible in the use of money? He fears that the Lord is not well pleased with the scramble for wealth witnessed everywhere.

The speaker then explained that the Lord does not address His reproof to the world, but to His Church—the consecrated few. The world, he declared, is about to learn a great lesson. Having sown to the wind the seed of selfishness, it is about to reap the whirlwind of trouble, the fruitage of selfishness, in which the interests of rich and poor will clash in the conflict between those who have secured wealth and those who will strive to take it from them—"a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation."

According to Scripture, God is not now appealing to the world: for well He knows that so intense is the spirit of avarice that such an appeal would be useless. By the time that the poor world has learned that selfishness is an integral part of sin, even as love and benevolence are integral parts of righteousness, it will be ready to cry for Divine assistance. Then God's means of assistance, the Messianic Kingdom, will be inaugurated and will bring blessed results of love, joy, peace and good will amongst men.

To the Church—God's saintly people both in and out of sects, parties, etc.—the Lord says, Let not your treasures be of an earthly kind: spend and be spent in the interest of others and in the service of God: and thus seek to share with Me, not only in the sufferings of the present, but in the glory, honor and immortality of the future.

"Take Away the Stony Heart."

The Pastor concluded his discourse after showing that during Messiah's Millennial Reign humanity's hardheartedness will gradually be dissolved. Satan will be bound and the curse removed. The stress being lifted, mankind will rise from their present condition of selfishness back to the image of God, lost in Eden, redeemed at Calvary. As the Scriptures declare, God will remove the stony heart and give them a heart of flesh—kind, sympathetic. But the incorrigible will He destroy in the Second Death.

CAPTURED "WILD MAN"

MYSTERIOUS DERELICT BROUGHT IN TO FORT RILEY.

Believed to Be Deserter From the Army — Unfortunate Will Be Given Attention Until His Case Is Investigated.

Junction City, Kan.—A real wild man, about the most forlorn specimen of humanity that one would care to look upon, has been captured in the timber between this city and Fort Riley, by a detail of cavalrymen from Fort Riley, sent out for that purpose.

For several months reports have been coming in that a wild man had been seen down near the Smoky Hill river, but few people believed it. Recently Lee Hendricks, who was plowing the Carl Stevenson field near the river, saw some wild grapes growing in the thicket and went after them. Looking up in the tree, Hendricks saw the wild man, who, on being discovered, jumped down and ran into the underbrush.

Hendricks' description was of a man with long, matted hair and glaring eyes, who muttered to himself continually. He wore a dirty, ragged khaki uniform, and this is what led to his capture. When the authorities at Fort Riley heard of it they immediately sent out a detail of soldiers, who started in along the river bank and beat through the brush toward town.

The man was discovered by his "den," which was merely a hole in the mud, partially covered with a piece of old canvas.

A short time afterward the man himself was found, hiding near the river. He made no resistance when captured.

He was taken to Fort Riley and questioned, and from his rambling answers it was learned that he had been living like an animal for four months in and around the place where he was captured. During that time he ate only green corn, grapes, sand plums and whatever else he could find in the fields and woods. His hair had grown until it hung down about his shoulders and his uniform was a mass of tatters. He is undoubtedly demented and will be given care and attention at the post.

Although the "wild man" talked freely of his life in the timber, he was silent when questioned about his army life and the officers have been unable to learn his name or the regiment with which he served. It is not known whether he is a deserter who was trying to hide out, or whether he is merely demented.

BEARD IS FIVE FEET LONG

Chin Adornment That Has to Be Cut to Keep Out of Man's Way.

Magnetic City, S. C.—Perhaps the longest bearded man in the world has known since the days of the Lombards, who figured in early history as the wearers of lengthy boscage, is S. G. Brinkley, a native of South Carolina, who has resided for many years in this city.

Such a luxuriant and rapidly growing beard as Brinkley wears is a marvel. When he lifts it from the sack in which he carries it, concealed under his shirt bosom, it trails the ground in front of him, as shown in a recent photograph, and measures five feet four inches in length. Until he cropped the end recently to make it more convenient to handle it measured six feet two inches in length. It is soft and beautiful, indicating a peculiarly fertile state of nourishment.

The wearer of this wonderful chin drapery is fifty-two years of age. He has worn it ever since shortly before he attained to the age of twenty-three years. It is not a cultivated, but rather an uninvited and spontaneous crop of whiskers.

Explaining the circumstances under which he grew this remarkable beard, Mr. Brinkley says:

At the age of twenty-one years I had never shaved my face. This was due to the fact that I had no beard to shave, and apparently little prospect for anything of the kind. Only a light fuzz covered my chin and cheeks. After arriving at my majority I shaved once a week for 12 months. With this my beard began to make its appearance with remarkable speed. From one week's end to another my face would literally be covered with a soft and luxuriant beard. I cropped my whiskers frequently to keep them out of my way."

Cost $7,600 to Find America.

Madrid.—Ledgers recently discovered at Palos, Spain, contain interesting facts concerning the outlay made by Christopher Columbus on his expedition to the new world. The armament of the little fleet cost $2,800. The personal expenses of Columbus and his officers were about $400, and $1.25 a month sufficed for the crew, so that about $4,400 was spent for the eight months that the voyage lasted. The cost of discovering America was about $7,600, all told.

Little Problems of Married Life

By William George Jordan

[Copyright, 1910, by Fleming H. Revell company.]

XI.—The Danger of Long Summer Separations.

Learns to Like the Taste.

LONG summer separations between husband and wife are unwise, temporary divorces that often leave a long trail of sorrow, grief and misunderstanding. They may not actually wreck home happiness, but they are an unnecessary risk, like "rocking a boat"—a foolish experiment that may overturn and swamp it. They say that "absence makes the heart grow fonder," but it is not always fonder of the one left behind. Brief separations may be love's tonics, but long ones are often love's narcotics.

When one member of the home firm voluntarily takes a long solitaire vacation and the other stays at home in loneliness, Cupid, though blind, sees trouble ahead. With two who love each other the temporary separation may be the thin edge of the wedge of a permanent growing apart.

These unnecessary solo vacations force each into a new environment in which the other has no part. They lessen the sweetness of mutual dependence. They break the continuity of loving conference and constant confidence. They make it easier for each to face life's problems alone instead of hand in hand with the other. They add in many ways to the complexity of home life, often creating a restless, vague sense of doubt. It is not always easy to piece again the broken threads into the old fabric of absolute unity, trust and dependence. Some note of discord creeps into the music of life for them both, and neither may be quite able to silence it.

The danger of these summer vacations apart is not when they are taken reluctantly and regretfully because of the pressure of compelling conditions, when business calls the husband away on some necessary trip, when the wife takes the little ones out for a visit to the old folks, when either is ill and is forced to go away and circumstances forbid both going, when a sickly child requires change of air, a breath of pine woods or the invigorating tonic of the sea. The very inevitability of a vacation, accepted under protest, may not lessen for an instant the constant heart hunger of each for the other; it may really intensify it.

But the regular exodus of the wife because she has a restless desire to get away somewhere, because she has friends who insist on her accompanying them or she fears the neighbors will think she cannot afford to go away or her selfish desire for personal pleasure throws into the shadows all thought of the loneliness and other hardship it may entail on her husband. These are the forms of voluntary separation for weeks and months that are dangerous. Sometimes they even prove a short cut from matrimony to alimony. Of the twenty-seven explanations by which she may finally secure his consent twenty-five are merely weak excuses, and the other two are shaky reasons that would not even have deceived herself for a moment in the first year or two of their married life.

These separations are always hardest for the one who is left. He in the city, still attending to his monotonous round of daily business and duties, goes home at night to a lonely house, eats where he can and walks through empty rooms until they grow unbearable in their grim isolation. If he really cares deeply for her he pictures her walking on the beach in her dainty new dress with the parasol to match, sitting on the wide veranda of a summer hotel in the evening in the midst of a merry group, laughing and jesting at trifles, or, in imagination, sees her rowing across the silvered waters of a moonlit lake with a gay party of friends.

There is a feeling of restless rebellion that now he forms no part of her living. In his honest heart he may try to make himself believe that he is glad she is having a good time and that he does not begrudge her a single hour of happiness, sunshine and new joy that may come to her, but down deep in his heart there is a note of insistent protest that she can possibly be happy away from him when the separation is of her choosing.

If she writes of the loneliness she cannot bear apart from him he involuntarily wonders why then does she stay away week after week with no word of return, why does she thus condemn herself to the misery of the continued absence, the awful days she pictures? He may have a pride of love that keeps back his pen from urging her return. He may feel that if her heart does not make her cut her visit short and come back he does not care for his words to do so.

He may study her letters as he does not like criticism, reading nothing into them from words and phrases dropping here a week the references and is such jolly company." No, he does not doubt her in the least. Of course she does not mean anything by it. She is just thoughtless, he says to himself, but somehow—does not like it. He would like to take a run down to the beach for a week or so himself, but he cannot afford the time or the money, and he gives up the idea.

His long evenings at home alone may soon become unbearable. He seeks distraction from this fertile with time; he joins little parties of friends, goes to the theater, takes up the threads of old acquaintance of his bachelor days and seeks to enjoy himself as best he can. In the beginning he may do it as one takes opium to dull a pain, but there is danger that he may learn to like the taste again. How far he may drift depends on the man.

And she, down near the ocean, may wonder vaguely why his letters, which ran seven pages long in the first two weeks of her absence, have dwindled down to brief notes like telegraphic messages, written in short, hurried sentences with no details—just one unexpanded fact in each sentence, like caramels in separate wrappers. In the old days she used to reread his letters until she knew them by heart. Then the mere facts they contained were of minor import. They were merely the excelsior in which the terms of endearment were packed. At that time she used to go over his letters, picking out the adjectives and nouns of loving, like a child dislodging raisins and citron from a cake.

When she finally returns in the early autumn she finds that he is not so effusively glad to see her as she expected. She feels in a subtle way some shade of loss that may elude expression in words. He may not thrill with enthusiasm at her story of the "perfectly delightful times" she had; he may not be melted into his old lover-like mood when he hears again how lonely she was and how she just "tried to seem to be happy because of the others."

He listens and thinks, and of what he thinks he may say little. Then she grows suddenly and acutely desirous of knowing just how he spent the summer. He feels that her fusillade of questions and shots of intense interest are coming a little late in the day, and all would have been unnecessary and they would be nearer and dearer to each other were it not for her self imposed exile on a solitary vacation.

Perhaps next day she looks over the summer gas bills, and if they be small she grows reflective and wonders how they could possibly be so small if he really sat every night alone reading till midnight "so he would be tired enough to sleep." If the gas bills loom larger than the amount her housewifely instinct tells her is just right she feels confident he has been having card parties up to unearthly hours and that he has been having a splendid vacation of his own.

Innocent or guilty, on this or some other charge, he is lucky if he be not caught between the upper and the nether millstones of her withering doubt and criticism. She, too, may have to stand the brunt of his protests, and in the face of some unwarranted jealousy, tortured out of perhaps innocent trifles, she may find it difficult to prove that convincing alibi that leaves no slightest residue of doubt. The result is often the distressingly unsatisfyingly Scotch verdict, "Not proved."

Vacations in the household are good, stimulating and revivifying for husband, wife and the little ones. If the spirit of love be true and constant they will realize that if the increased expenditure of money can be spared for an outing it should be arranged so that his vacation could be taken with theirs to lessen the term of separation, that some place nearer home could be chosen so that he could be with them at the close of each of his business days or that, at the most, only the few days between week ends would find them apart. Vacations have a true place and a real place in the economy of life, but it is making them a fetish if they be permitted to endanger the unity and truest harmony and mutual dependence of husband and wife.

Wonders at Small Gas Bills.

There is a theory that occasional brief separations of husband and wife are actually necessary, that they break the monotony of life, give the two a fresh start and tend to restore their real appreciation of each other. When one has to fast for a few days to get a normal appetite for meals there is something wrong with one's system.

When recourse to absence is necessary to keep the two together; when short separations are desired and sought on this plea and they welcome goodbys for even a few days with a glad sense of freedom and a loathing breath of relief, there is requires organically out of treatment than more direct, radical temporarily ease absence, while not cure. They should a trouble and make the causes of their mutual boredom home together.

Vacations with each other may be new and miniature honeymoons, bringing renewed love, life and light to both; but long vacations from each other are what the insurances companies term "extra hazardous risks."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 14, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. iii, 1-13, 19, 20—Memory Verses, 8, 9—Golden Text, I Sam. iii, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

What a specially great lesson this is for boys, with something for every one, young and old. In all Scripture there is a message from the heart of God to each individual heart that reads. It is true always, as in the last verse of our lesson chapter, that the Lord reveals Himself by His word. The Scriptures are the revelation of God to man, and the Lord Jesus Christ is the Living Word, in whom we see the Father, even as He said, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (John xiv, 9). Our lesson opens with Samuel ministering unto the Lord. See also chapter ii, 11, 18. This is not the word which is translated to "minister in the priest's office," but the word to serve or minister, as when Joshua ministered to Moses (Ex. xxxiii, 11; Josh. i, 1).

Even a child can serve Him who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister (Matt. xx, 28). May we always be able to say from the heart, "Whose I am and whom I serve," and count it our highest privilege to minister unto Him (Acts xxvii, 23; Luke viii, 3; Dan. vi, 16). In the revised version the words "precious" and "open" are in the margin "rare" and "frequent," and the meaning probably is that any special message from the Lord was of rare occurrence or it had been some time since He had spoken. The book of Judges ended with every man doing right in his own eyes (xxi, 25), and now Eli, the priest of the tabernacle, which was then at Shiloh (i, 3; Josh. xviii, 1, 10), was somewhat out of fellowship, for he mistook broken hearted, praying Hannah for a drunken woman and did not control his own sons, honoring them above God, so that a man of God had to come to him with a reproof and a warning (i, 12-16; ii, 27-36).

Before we consider the call of Samuel in our lesson let us look at the circumstances of his birth. His father, Elkanah, seems to have been a devout man, going up from year to year to worship and to sacrifice unto the Lord of hosts in Shiloh (i, 3). But he had two wives, which was contrary to God's original arrangement and always brought trouble. Hannah, who had no children, was continually taunted by the other, her adversary, provoked sore and made to fret and grieve (i, 4-8). Her refuge was prayer unto the Lord, and He heard her and gave her this son Samuel (i, 10-20). She called him Samuel because she asked God for him (i, 20, margin), and when she had weaned him she took him to Shiloh to serve the Lord in the tabernacle with Eli, visiting him from year to year when she went up to worship and taking him a little coat (i, 24-28; ii, 18, 19).

The Lord abundantly rewarded her for the gift of her firstborn, for He gave her five others, three sons and two daughters (ii, 20, 21). So Samuel grew before the Lord and was in favor both with the Lord and also with men, and the Lord was with him, and all Israel knew that he was established to be a prophet of the Lord (ii, 21, 26). How beautifully the Lord did bless the boy who was dedicated to Him even before his birth, and how grandly He did reward his mother and cause her to forget her misery and sing for joy! Her song in chapter ii, 1-10, which is also called a prayer, is one of the most beautiful on record.

Returning to our lesson story, we read that one night, or perhaps toward the dawn (verses 2, 3, 15), Samuel heard some one call him, and, supposing it to be Eli, he ran to him, but, on being assured that Eli had not called him, he lay down again. The second time he heard his name and went again to Eli, but was assured as before. Not until he heard his name the third time and for the third time went to Eli with the words "Here am I" did Eli perceive that the Lord was calling the child. Then he said to him, "If you are called again say, 'Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth.'" For the fourth time the Lord called him and this time mentioned his name twice—"Samuel, Samuel."

I have found only seven people in the Bible who were thus addressed, and there must be some significance in it, whether we can see it or not. Look them up and ponder the circumstances prayerfully. On hearing this fourth call Samuel replied as Eli taught him, and then the Lord gave a solemn message for Eli, to Samuel, faithfully repeated to him in the morning, telling him every whit, withholding nothing from him. It is doubtful if either of them slept again that night. Samuel had his first message directly from the Lord, and Eli was no doubt wondering what it could be. They each had enough to think about. Samuel from this time onward seems to have had always an ear for God. Note the peculiar language of I Sam. ix, 15, and may we all have similarly anointed ears to hear His voice. Eli saw the justice of it all, remembering no doubt the words of the man of God in chapter ii, 27, and he submissively said: "It is the Lord. Let Him do what seemeth Him good" (verse 18). Compare Job i, 21; ii, 10; Ps. xxxix, 9; Isa. xxxviii, 15; xxxix, 8.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

It is highly fitting that the nation shall celebrate the birthday of one of its greatest commoners. Not a single man or woman, it is safe to say, looks upon the pictures and busts of Lincoln which are everywhere displayed on this occasion, with anything less than reverential admiration.

Here was one man who did right as he saw it, let the consequences be what they may. Not many men lived just like him, in his time, nor to-day are such men any too frequent.

The rugged face of Lincoln tells a story of stress and strain. It breathes somewhat of melancholy, though they say of him that he was a real humorist. Some historians declare that Lincoln said, "I have always been a fatalist. What is to be will be or rather, as Hamlet says,

"There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough hew them how we will."

Yet shoulder to shoulder with this utterance one remembers the words of Navalis when he says that "Character is fate." Lincoln's character did indeed cause his future to be predetermined long before the event, for his character was set immutably toward the leading of right.

Inseparable with the thought of Lincoln is the memory of his mother, Nancy Hanks, that "angel mother" as he called her, who bequeathed to her neglected half-starved little lad, such a rich dower of faith in good, of persistence and determination. Who can declare that the great love which Lincoln had for his mother had no small influence in his trend of thought toward anti-slavery? It is related of him on one occasion as he journeyed on a flatboat to New Orleans that he happened to be at a place where a young slave woman was being sold at auction. She was exhibited and inspected by the prospective customers just as if she were a piece of horseflesh. Lincoln saw this and is said to have uttered at that time these memorable words: "If I ever get a chance to hit this thing, I'll hit it hard."

To "hit it hard" was indeed his characteristic in whatever he undertook. Such a characteristic is not usually found with anything else than a personality or rather individuality which is unusual. When the time came Lincoln did hit slavery and hit it hard, and doubtless would have acted just the same could he have foreseen the fate that was meted out to him for his action.

Lincoln's birthday is a day which should be a favorite with all men. Lincoln loved and reverenced womenkind, but he was a man's man, as the saying runs.

In his day it was a time of stress and strain yet men somehow looked to him, leaned on him. He is pictured by one writer as being a tall, large-featured, shabbily dressed man of uncouth appeance, in much-kneed, ill-fitting trousers, yet this same man, as described, was then President. He was, as Emerson expressed it, called to the helm in a tornado, but he grasped it firmly and unfalteringly held the ship to her course. There were fops then and dandies, just as today, but the slouchy, uncouth figure was beautiful in its own way, the rugged face glorious from that light which shined from within.

Such beauty is the true beauty, as everyone knows. The wonder arises, if Lincoln lived today, when apperances seem to count for ninety-five per cent. out of the hundred, would he have been just as uncaring and defiant of outward looks, as he was then? Perhaps so, but it might be that a Lincoln could only live then, in that environment which called him into existence and that now he would have grown up and developed in a different way. Certainly the men of today, all men know that it "does not do" to neglect the appearance, for many reasons and not all of them light ones.

The men of today who will succeed cannot take any chances in being regarded as slouchy or slovenly, careless and unkempt either in clothing or facial apperance.

"Other times, other manners" this must be the explanation of much that we wonder at now, as we read of Lincoln and his neglect of carefulness in attire. Those times have gone by and at this date, a man is not thought less of a man because he is well-groomed and clean, nor thought more of a man because he is untidy and displeasing in attire and personal care. It has indeed become a proverb that a man does not age so fast as a woman, may the reason not be found in the fact that the average man of today takes the proper care of his face and his person just as much of a business as he does everything else he undertakes? He bathes and he exercises, he has his hair and nails regularly attended to, he has facial and often body massages at regular intervals, he indeed sees to it that he is as spruce, as spick and span as the proverbial new penny, day after day, week in and week out.

PROSPERITY would advance faster it it did not stop to chat with the politicians.

DOES the "New Freedom" regard an $87,000,000 Treasury deficit as entirely psychological?

AFTER all it is really not strange that no Democrat covets President Wilson's chances for re-election.

JOSH Billings said: "If you are right, you can't be too radical if wrong, you can't be too conservative."

THE trouble with President Wilson's oratorical optimism is that it sounds too much like whistling to keep up his courage.

"IF it is a crime to make a counterfeit dollar, it is ten thousand times a worse crime to make a counterfeit man."—Abraham Lincoln.

THE Senate Postoffice Committee cut $2,000,000 from appropriation bill, because of decreased postal revenue. Another indication that the Presidents' prosperity is mirth.

THE Mountoin News, a twice-a-week paper published at Frostburg, is a live newspaper, brim full of local items, and a credit to its publishers as well as the city of Frostburg.

ASKED about his attitude toward the Democratic nomination for State Comptroller, Hugh A. McMullen, of Cumberland, said he was thinking about it. Mr. McMullen's name has been frequently mentioned in connection with this nomination.

"REPUBLICANS have dreamed of defeating Woodrow Wilson's renomination," says a contemporary. Not a bit of it. Woodrow Wilson's renomination should be the surest guarantee against Woodrow Wilson's re-election. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

A JOINT resolution for an amendment to the state constitution dividing Texas into three states was introduced by Senator W. L. Hall in the Texas legislature. The states would be North Texas, capital, Palestine, West Texas, capital Abilene, and South Texas, Texas, capital Austin.

"WHETHER or not the world would be vastly benefitted by a total and final banishment from it of all intoxicating drinks seems to me not now to be an open question. Three-fourths of mankind confess the affirmative with their tongues and I believe all the rest acknowledge it in their hearts."—Abraham Lincoln.

PRESIDENT WILSON insists that prosperity is at our door. When he was elected prosperity was not only at the door, but in the house, and in the factory and all around. But he and his party proceeded immediately to kick it out, and it does not look as if could be beckoned back under a Democratic Administration.

IT is said that Mr. Harrington, State Comptroller, has compiled the figures making comparison between the Legislatures of 1914 and of 1912 in order to see where the increased appropriations come in. This shows that the total appropriations made by the Legislature of 1914 for the fiscal years 1915 and 1916 exceed by $1,557,622 those of the Legislature of two years before—for the fiscal years 1913 and 1914. Our Democratic law makers are good spenders, whether in Congress or in the State legislature. Democratic economy is a legislative impossibility.

It has been said that to properly see a country it is necessary to return from a day's journey by the same road you traveled in going. This enables one to see the other side of things, and view them as lighted by the setting sun. This is good advice not only for the oursler but to all men. We should put able us into such positions as will ena a question both sides, or all sides of describing an table of the blind men needed lesson. Man teaches a much hold strenuously to too liable to matter even tho they are view of a one side of the argument. at but personal prejudice or bias shuts else. The just, fair man will endeav to view a question from every point of view and arrive at an honest conclusion regardless of personal interest. It is because men do not all do this that we have strife, contention, law-suits, wars, jails, etc. Let us try to see the other side, and get the other fellow's point of view.

VARIATIONS IN DEMOCRACY.

We have recently been furnished, says the American of Baltimore, a convincing demonstration of the fact that, right under the dome of the National Capitol, there are at least two brands of Democracy. We have been shown that, in the Senate at least there is a kind of Democrat that doesn't take orders from the White House. In the House, however, that brand seems to be so scarce that it is reasonably doubtful whether there are any. Democracy, at large and in the wild and wooly, differentiates considerably. According to the Fort Worth Record there are just fiftynine brands of Democrats running at large in Texas.

The listing of a few of the Texas brands will serve to indicate the lines of variation in the Lone Star State and it can be judged whether the same division into types is to be found in Maryland. In Texas, according to the Record, there are Democrats who drink whiskey and others who merely drink water. There are Democrats who believe in national banks and others who believe that the printing presses should run sixteen hours a day turning out the long green; there are Democrsts who talk Spanish and vote United States; there are real Democrats, near Democrats, dyed-in-the-wool Democrats and Cyclone Davis Democrats.

But enough of the Texas brands. If some observer of the great unterrified in Maryland would only count the variation types in the state—make a Democracy survey so to speak—the compendium would be of cotemporaneous interest. Some Maryland types that were familiar two decades ago are not so numerous as they were and some comparatively new brands are in the 1915 listing. Now, as to Bryan Democrats, is the brand as common in Maryland as it once was?

WANTED: THE McKINLEY WAY.

When William McKinley entered the White House on March 4, 1897, after four years of Democratic national control, the first document to which he put his signature was a call for an extra session of Congress to undo the prosperity-wrecking and deficitmaking laws of the preceding four years.

He had the new Congress in session March 15, had a protective tariff bill through the House by March 31, and had it enacted into law on July 24. In other words, in less than five months' time, the Wilson-Gorman law was off the statute books, and a prosperity-making law was substituted.

Manufacturers and business men responded with enthusiasm to the new prospect, and there followed the greatest era of industrial development the country ever knew.

President McKinley realized his duty as the nation's "advance agent of prosperity." He had no fear of Congress in extra session. "The people have only recently voted that this (a protective tariff enacted) shall be done," he declared in his inaugural, "and nothing is more binding upon the agents of their will than the obligation of immediate action."

The McKinley example of prompt achievement is precisely what the people are today determined shall be followed by the Republican President certain to enter the White House on March 4, 1917. His name is of no consequence; but his purpose is, and the more definitely it parallels the McKinley way of quickly restoring prosperity the more emphatic will be the majority vote cast for him at the elections in 1916.

THE anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, on February 12, will mark history to the Republicans of Maryland. It will signalize the wholesale return of Progressives to their first love. They have become convinced after two years of Democratic administration at Washington that the aims sought by them through Theodore Roosevelt can be accomplished only through the Republican party.

In the evening at Baltimore City, there will be several banquets at which former Progressive leaders will be conspicuous. Even former Senator George L. Wellington may once more clink glasses with his old party associates at a Republican dinner.

Federal Inspectors Leaving.

The federal government is gradually withdrawing from Maryland the live stock sanitary inspectors who were sent here to fight the recent foot-and-mouth disease epidemic. Dr. W. C. Siegmund, who has been in charge of the government's campaign in the state, yesterday announced that he had withdrawn four more inspectors, who have been transferred to fight the cattle plague in the vicinity of Wichita, Kansas.

At the present time 14 federal inspectors are searching among stock in all sections for hidden cases of the disease, but so far none have been found. These men will shortly be taken from Maryland, but the quarantine regulations on counties where the disease has appear will be continued for a few days.

ALTITUDES IN MARYLAND.

Highest Point In The State is Backbone Mountain.

The latest evidence of the work done in cooperation by the United States Geological Survey and the Maryland Geological Survey is Bulletin 563, about to be issued by the Federal Survey, which contains the results of spirit leveling in Maryland from 1896 to 1911, inclusive, published under the direction of R. B. Marshall, chief geographer. This bulletin is really an index to the 900 or more permanent marks of altitude set by the Uuited States Geological Survey in Maryland and includes also elevations determined or adjusted by the Coast and Geodetic Survey. In addition there is a list of 75 or more secondary elevations, including altitudes of many well known summits. The State is now completely mapped, and bench marks have been established in every county except Calvert and St. Marys.

The report should be consulted by engineers, surveyors, and others who have occasion to use accurate benchmark elevations. These elevations have been established by the United States Geological Survey in connection with its topographic surveying and mapping and afford starting points for surveys of any kind.

The highest point in the State is the summit of Backbone Mountain, in Garrett County, 3,340 feet above mean sea level.

A copy of Bulletin 563 may be obtained free on application to the Director of the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

By a law enacted by the legislature in 1914 it is a misdemeanor to get on any car or locomotive of any railroad company without permission. Those who do so are liable to a fine of from $1 to $25, or from one to six months sentence in the House of Correction. All laws in conflict to this new law were repealed. Therefore all persons who steal a ride on any B. & O. train are liable to be arrested. We understand this law is to be strictly enforced. If a person is sentenced to the House of Correction under this law, the B. & O. is to furnish free transportation for the prisoner and the Sheriff or Constable taking them to the prison, thus relieving the county of the cost of so doing.

A Satisfied Investor.

Friendsville, Md.,
January 19th, 1915.

Mr. R. E. Sliger, Agent,
Sun Life Assurance Company,
Oakland, Md.

Dear Sir:—I have received notice from your company that the dividend on my policy this year is $18.50; and I feel that it is my duty to write you just how much I am pleased with this result. My first premium was $105 00 on a five thousand dollar policy, and by using the dividend this year as part payment, it makes the second premium $86.50.

I have had the protection of $5000.00 for death, and if I had been totally disabled the company would have paid the premiums in the future and matured the policy, or would have paid me an income of $250.00 per year for twenty years if I desired.

I feel that the first thing to be considered in an insurance policy is the protection; but if it also combines a good investment with the protection, and the money paid for premiums is saved for old age, it then becomes the ideal way to save money.

Very truly yours,
Advertisement. JOHN W. HOLMAN.

DEATHS OF OLD PEOPLE PROBED

Coroner Learns Two Inmates of Home Died Suspiciously

MORS' STORY CORROBORATED

Orphan Girl Gives Testimony Which Leads Coroner to Suspect Ether Was Employed to Hasten End of One Old Man Inmate of Odd Fellows' Home at Yonkers, N. Y.—Aged Woman Also Gives Testimony.

Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 9. — Coroner Dunn held an inquiry at the German Odd Fellows' home on the Tuckahoe road into the questionable deaths of eight former inmates. Of the deaths of two of the inmates the coroner heard the story in graphic detail from a little orphan girl of twelve years and a feeble old woman. The deaths of these two persons were hastened by poison, according to the confession of the erstwhile porter of the home, Frederic Mors, who is now in Bellevue hospital under observation.

The deaths described by the unusual witnesses were those of Mrs. Catherine Piazzi on Nov. 8 of last year and Ferdinand Scholz on Jan. 4. Those are two of the eight of whom Mors said he gave chloroform or ether. Six others, according to his story, were dispatched by the same means.

It was the girl, Barbara Pabst, who told of the death of Scholz. She was going upstairs, she swore to Coroner Dunn, when Mors, then a porter, gave her a bottle to take to the old man's room.

"The stuff in the bottle made me feel funny," she said. And the coroner and sheriff took that as an indication that the bottle contained ether. In the old fellow's room she saw him dead, propped by a pillow in a sitting position, his eyes staring at the wall. There was some absorbent cotton on the table and two other bottles. Ring, another porter now in jail, and Mors were in the room.

Mrs. Schweitzer's testimony was to the effect that she saw Mrs. Piazzi sitting in her chair in her room feeling quite well and apparently happy about a half hour before her death was announced. Mrs. Schweitzer went down to the dining room. When she came back Mrs. Piazzi was lying on the bed. Mors was sitting on the edge, his head bent over her and his eyes looking intently at her as she breathed her last. Mors, according to the coroner's account of the woman's story, told Mrs. Schweitzer on her return to the room that Mrs. Piazzi was dead. He pushed the door shut on her.

PLAGUE AGAIN RAMPANT

Foot and Mouth Disease Closes Down Many Stock Yards.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The discovery of foot and mouth disease in the stock yards of nine cities, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Louisville, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Columbus, Jersey City and Baltimore, which resulted in the closing of these yards until they have been thoroughly disinfected, is regarded by the department as a setback in their campaign to eradicate the plague.

Announcement was made by the department of agriculture that it holds that cattle purchased for slaughter and found to be affected with foot and mouth disease shall not be paid for by the government, but may be condemned under the federal meat inspection law like any other diseased stock.

It is said that "purchasers of cattle for slaughter in territory where there is reason to suspect the existence of the disease purchase at their own risk and there is no reason why the government should insure them against the possibility of loss."

MEXICO CITY BANKS CLOSED

Capital Without Money and Deplorable Conditions Exist.

Washington, Feb. 9.—Most deplorable conditions continue to exist at Mexico City, according to advices received at the state department.

All the banks and principal business houses remain closed chiefly because of the Carranza order declaring the Villa and Chihuahua money in circulation there of no value and non-receivable. Much of this money was in use at Mexico City.

The condition of the poor partly on this account and partly because of the actual scarcity of the necessaries of life is growing worse. Carranza, who is at Vera Cruz, has promised that he will send relief. This relief, however, will be extended only to the very poor, it is said, and will not relieve the distress of the middle class and business interests generally.

The Carranza authorities are aggravating the situation at the capital, it is said, by shipping out of the city quantities of its own supplies for the use of troops in the field instead of letting the stock go for the use of the people of the city. Horses are being confiscated to the further embarrassment of business.

PRICE OF BREAD ADVANCES

New York Bakers Announce Raise of 1 Cent a Loaf.

New York, Feb. 9.—Housewives in Greater New York will have to pay six cents instead of five cents for a loaf of bread tomorrow morning. Announcement that the price would be advanced one cent was made by several large baking concerns and it was generally admitted that their lead would be followed by the great majority of bakeries, big and little. Flour is now costing the wholesale baker $8.75 per barrel.

Hugo Fredericks, president of the Wholesale Bakers' association, said:

"The price ought to have been increased two months ago. We have done everything we could to keep the price down by appealing to congress and the local authorities. The people should thoroughly understand by this time that the bakers could not continue to do business any longer at a loss."

BUSINESS TIDE TURNED

President Farrell of Steel Corporation Says Each Day Is Brighter.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 9.—Courage, cooperation, the sincere desire among business men and manufacturers to help one another are the prime essentials toward hastening a return to prosperous conditions in the United States, said James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, at the annual banquet of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania in the Schenley hotel.

"The tide has turned," Mr. Farrell declared. "Each day records a marked improvement. The time has come when co-operation should manifest itself among business men to bring about a larger employment and improvement of labor."

CONSCRIPTION HINTED AT

Under Secretary Tennant Presents Army Estimates In Parliament.

London, Feb. 9.—A hint at conscription was heard in the house of commons from the lips of Under Secretary of War Tennant, who said in presenting the army estimates:

"Recruiting has been very satisfactory. A little more energy might not be out of place, but there is no cause for discontent, still less for any disquiet. Every man is needed in this life and death struggle. The time has approached when we will be compelled to make inroads upon certain industries wherein large numbers of men are employed. I appeal to the labor members to consent to a relaxation of some of the more stringent regulations for the protection of labor.

"I do not believe that a single man in this house is despondent," added the secretary, "or that there is one who is not determined that there shall be but one result to the war—that the allies shall dictate the terms of peace.

"I am debarred from going into any discussion concerning either the number of the army or the places in which its force are distributed—perhaps the two points that the enemy wishes to know more than anything else. I hope that no member having knowledge of these points will be so indiscreet as to make any statement on the subject."

CANADIANS POORLY BOOTED

Alleged Government Was Defrauded In Equipping Volunteers.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 9.—In the house of commons Sir Wilfred Laurier charged that there had been gross fraud in connection with the boots furnished Canadian volunteers and declared that as a result the men stationed at Salisbury Plain were not in as good condition as they otherwise would have been. He demanded a full investigation.

Speaking for the government, Sir Robert Borden said that Sir Wilfred's charges would be fully probed.

A feature of the day's sitting was the speech of the German representative of the German constituency of North Waterloo, who declared that while the quarter million Germans in Canada were proud of their origin and of Germany's progress in arts and sciences, they were ashamed of her treatment of Belgium.

CREW HAVE "COLD FEET"

Captain McDonald Explains Reason Why Dacia Didn't Sail.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 9.—The American steamer Dacia did not sail from this port with her cargo of cotton for Germany because sixteen members of her crew refused to go with her. Most of them admitted that they did not want to remain on the Dacia because they were afraid the vessel would be captured by British warships or blown up by a mine.

Several men complained of being sick and were paid off. Captain McDonald said they were suffering with cold feet. "I think they have ice in their boots," he said.

Negroes have been signed to take the places of several men who left the ship.

NEUTRALS ORDERED OUT

Germans Strike at Italians and Swiss In Alsace.

Berne, Switzerland (Via Paris), Feb. 9.—The German government has decreed the expulsion of neutrals from the province of Alsace. The order strikes principally at Italians and Swiss. In this region there are only a few Americans, they being for the most part manufacturers.

The number of persons of Swiss nationality in Alsace is estimated at between 4,000 and 5,000. The Swiss government, however, has received assurances that many exceptions will be granted.

GERMANS SHIFT MEN IN POLAND

Rearrangement of Forces and Not Retreat Under Way

AUSTRIANS ENTER ROUMANIA

Neutrality of King Charles' Country Violated by Francis Joseph's Soldiers and May Result In Roumania Joining War—Kaiser and Czar at Front In Poland Cheering Their Soldiers.

London, Feb. 9.—Late advices from Petrograd and Warsaw indicate that the movement of German troops supposed to be preliminary to a retreat from central Poland is a shift from the neighborhood of Goumine and Borlimow in a direct drive toward Warsaw to the north.

The pressure is noticeably less at the points where the fiercest fighting occurred on Feb. 2, 3 and 4 and there are signs that the next offensive will be in the East Prussian territory in the neighborhood of Tilsit, Lipno and Gumbinen. It is conceded from all countries that the Russians are holding the advantages obtained in crossing the Bzura.

The positions now held have been inspected by Czar Nicholas, who has arrived at the front and there are reports that the German change of front is being made under the personal command of the kaiser, who arrived at the headquarters about the same time as the Emperor of Russia.

It seems a foregone conclusion that Russia is shortly to assume the offensive over its entire Polish lines. This movement is expected to be by a series of wedges, the movement being slow with none of the fierce fighting that characterized the German attacks along the Vistula.

Publication of reports from a Paris correspondent at Nish, Servia, that the Austrians violated Roumanian neutrality several days ago in an unsuccessful attempt to occupy Turn Severin, at the extreme western part of Wallachia, has created considerable excitement in official circles.

There is yet no official confirmation of the affair but word is expected at almost any time.

It is believed by many that the act may precipitate the government at Bucharest, already wavering on the side of the allies, into the war, thus adding between 180,000 and 200,000 troops against the Germans in the eastern theater of war.

According to the dispatch sent to the French newspaper it appears that a body of Austrian troops crossed the boundary near Turn Severin against the opposition of the frontier guards and pushed on toward the town which is the key to the defenses of Kladovo, the only town of Servia on the Danube which permits Servian communication with Roumania. The Roumania frontier patrol fell back until a strong force of soldiers could come up, when they turned and became the aggressors. There was a three-hour engagement which ended when the Austrian force was shoved back over the border into their own territory.

It is the belief that if Roumania joins the allies in active hostilities Italy will follow. It has been generally accepted that the two nations have agreed to act in concert.

Engagements In West.

London, Feb. 9.—The communiques of the French war office indicate that an engagement has been begun at La Bousse, north of Albert. In a small portion of the field the Germans left 200 dead when they were driven from trenches which they had stormed.

The French continue to make progress at Mesnil Les Hurtus in their drive at the railroad running back of the enemy's position.

The Berlin war office, in reporting on the fighting along the western front, lays emphasis on the conflict at La Bassee, where a part of the trench captured by the French a short time ago has been retaken. The capture of a French fortified position in the Argonne is also announced.

GERMANS WRECKED ASAMA?

Japanese Vessel Run Ashore to Prevent Her Sinking, It Is Surmised.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 9.—It is reported but not confirmed as yet that the Japanese cruiser Asama, ashore off the coast of Lower California, was in battle with a German warship and that the Japanese vessel was so badly crippled that her commander ran her ashore to prevent her sinking.

The report gained credence when the United States cruisers San Diego and Raleigh returned from visiting the Asama at Turtle bay. Crews of both vessels refused to say anything about the Asama, saying that they were warned not to under penalty of being court-martialed.

It is understood that these instructions come from Washington and that the state department's reasons for closing the mouths of the sailors is a fear that to divulge information about the Asama would be an unneutral act.

It is known that Rear Admiral Howard has reported to Washington regarding the Asama.

Penitentiary Prospers.

The Maryland Penitentiary had a prosperous year during the twelve-month ended November 30, 1914, as the annual report, just issued, shows. The institution began the year with 917 prisoners and ended it with 1012. The number discharged by expiration of sentence, pardon, death or other cause was 390, but 485 new prisoners more than made up the loss. It is said the outlook for this year is bright.

Of the 1012 prisoners in the "pen" on November 30, 347 were white men, 5 white women, 620 colored men and 40 colored women. These prisoners earned for themselves during the year by working overtime $97,985.69 and a surplus of $896.76 was turned in to the State Treasury, making the total net earnings of State and prisoners $28,888.45. The receipts from all sources were $149,902.73 and the expenses $149,005.97.

Although Baltimore is by far the most populous county in the State, it did not lead in prisoners claiming Maryland as their nativity, having only 25 to its credit, while Anne Arundel county furnished 28, Prince George's county 26 and Montgomery county 34. Larceny led all other crimes, being the cause of the downfall of 231 prisoners, while 98 were sentenced for burglary, 93 for second degree murder and 42 for robbery.

In proportion to their number, barbers seem to furnish the most criminals, as 31 of the prisoners followed that occupation prior to conviction. It is gratifying to note that only 6 printers are in the penitentiary and not one editor. This may cause some to think there has been a miscarriage of justice.

Badly Burned by Powder.

Earl Green of Guard, Md., who has been in the employ of the John Curry Lumber Co., for almost two years, met with a very painful accident recently while hauling lumber from Bird's to Listonburg. On his return trip he was bringing with him a few pounds of mining powder for Charles Murphy. He had it lying on the wagon seat and from some mysterious cause it exploded and almost burned Earl to death. His face and right hand were burned until the outer skin and a part of the flesh is falling off. His face was swollen to the extent of ten inches across.—Republican, Myersdale.

WHEN FAIR AT FRISCO IS OPEN.

Preparing to Greet Governor Goldsborough And Party.

When the Panama Pacific Exposition opens at San Fransico on February 20, A. J. ("Cy") Cummings and Miss Hemsley, host and hostess, respectively, at the Maryland Building, will be there and will remain there until the fair closes in the fall. They are now en route to the Pacific Coast.

The Maryland Building in the exposition grounds is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy when the fair starts. It is built on the Colonial style after the old Carroll Mansion at Homestead. It is similar to the Maryland Building at the Jamestown Exposition. Its cost will be about $23,000. It occupies a desirable site. The exposition managers had selected a site in the backyard of the Massachusetts reservation for the Maryland Building in advance of the arrival of the commissioners from this state. The Marylanders protested and insisted that they be given the site set aside for the building to be erected by Kentucky, whose legislature had made no appropriation for a building and was not at that time in a mood to do so. It was a hard fight, but the Marylanders won.

Immediately upon their arrival in San Francisco Mr. Cummings and Miss Hemsley will begin to prepare for the reception of Governor Goldsborough and party of Marylanders. They will leave Baltimore on March 8 and will make several stops en route.

At Los Angeles, Cal., a warm reception is being planned by the Maryland State Society and the Chamber of Commerce for Governor Goldsborough and party when they pass through that city on their way to the exposition at San Diego and thence to San Fransico. It is expected that the Governor will be the first chief executive of an Eastern state to attend the exposition officially. He will arrive in time for Maryland State Day, which is set for March 14.

Several thousand former residents of Maryland are living in Southern California. Madison Marine, formerly of Baltimore, is president of the state organization, which will pay honors to the Governor upon his arrival there.

WAS SORRY FOR TOM

By EUGENIE LEITCH.

"Well, I'd like to know why not!" Githers paused in the doorway, the picture of amazed protest. In one hand he held the evening paper and a magazine, and in the other a cigar. On his feet were slippers, around his form was a smoking jacket. A straight line drawn to the nearest object from him would have ended at the easy chair comfortably turned upward toward the electric lamp on the table. It was a chair that Githers had sat in after dinner for more evenings than he could count. "Why," he repeated, "can't I go in there and read? What do you mean, mother?"

Mrs. Githers approached him and picked a thread off his sleeve. "Wouldn't you just as soon sit upstairs with me?" she asked brightly. "I'm going to sew."

"What of it?" demanded her husband. 'Don't you usually sew downstairs here? Don't we always sit downstairs? Why——"

"My goodness, John!" exclaimed his wife impatiently. "Wouldn't you like a change?"

"Elmira," said Githers, firmly, "you're hiding something—tell me at once!"

"Simply nothing," said his wife. "Only Grace is going to have a caller this evening and I wanted to let the child have the living room—oh, its one of the boys in her class and it's all right, so you needn't glare. She's seventeen and must have friends among the boys as other girls do. Not that she wouldn't just as soon have us there, but we'd embarrass them!"

"What the dickens!" growled Githers, turning toward the stairs. "Pretty state of things when I can't use my own chair! Callers at her age! Umph!"

Mrs. Githers got him nicely arranged in her room and as she reached for the mending basket she paused, hand in air. The front door had slammed and a vast whistling heralded the entrance of the son and heir of the household. Mrs. Githers went and leaned over the banisters.

"Rob!" she called in dulcet tones.

"Hullo!" came the inquiring answer. "Where are you? Where is everybody Who's sick?"

"Come up," said his mother. "Wouldn't you like to sit up here with father and me?" she wheeled as he arrived at the door. "Here's a nice comfortable chair and—"

"What's the matter with the living room?" he demanded in amazement. "Why—"

Mrs. Githers sighed. "I never saw such stupid men folks!" she declared. "Why can't you do things without having them all explained. I'd like to know? Grace has a caller coming and—"

"Whoopee-e-e!" shouted Grace's brother, making a dart for her door. "Who's your beau, sis? Who've you got a crush on—"

"Mother!" came Grace's indignant voice. "Make Bob stop! I think he's perfectly horrid! I haven't got a crush on anybody and you know it, Bob Githers, and I perfectly hate you, so there now!"

"Children!" cried Mrs. Githers. "I'm surprised at both of you. Stop it at once!"

"Well, I'd like a look at the chump who's so important that I'm barred out of my happy home," protested her son. "Gee! There isn't anything to do up here! I'm going out!"

"No, please don't!" urged his distracted mother. "I'll read out loud to you and dad!"

"Mother!" called her daughter, frantically. "Come and tell me how my hair looks."

Left to themselves Githers and his son stared dismally at each other.

"Some doings, eh?" queried young Githers. "Tommyrot, I call it! Will sis be doing this every night forever'n ever till she's married off? I'm going to move if she does!"

"This chair," said his father irritably, "was built for a boa constrictor, not a man. And where are the matches?"

Mrs. Githers came back and Grace floated downstairs. She played a piece on the piano exactly as though she expected no one and then she wolked about. The men folks fidgeted. Then the telephone rang.

Presently Grace called dolefully upstairs: "Tom can't come! He's got an awful cold! Isn't that hor-r-id!"

Githers and his son reached the bottom of the stairs simultaneously.

"My but I'm sorry for Tom!" said Githers as he grabbed the easy chair.

Her Cherished Secret.

Little Jack, aged five, had accompanied his mother on a trip to the city.

When the conductor came around to collect the fares he asked the usual question:

"How old is the boy?"

After being informed the correct age, which did not require a fare, the conductor passed on to the next person.

The lad sat quite still, apparently pondering over something; then, concluding that full information had not been given, he called loudly to the conductor at the other end of the car:

"And mother's thirty-five."—Harper's Bazar.

Invented Half-Tone Process.

George Meisenbach, the inventor of a "half-tone" process by which photographs are transferred to printing blocks, died a few days ago in Germany, at the age of 71. The invention of the "half-tone" process over 30 years ago made possible the reproduction of photographs, paintings and drawings in full detail, as in modern newspapers, instead of in lines.

Willing to Wait.

A Baltimore clubman tells of two convicts who met for a moment alone in a corridor, and took advantage of the fact for a hurried interview. Said one, "How long are you in for?"

"For life," responded the other. "And how long are you in for?"

"Twelve years," responded the other.

"Then," said the "lifer," cautiously extracting a letter from its hiding place, as he glanced fearfully around, "take this and mail it for me when you get out."

NOVEL USE FOR BLUE LIGHT

Remarkable Demonstration by Doctor Titus Showing That It Produces Complete Local Anesthesia.

One of the most remarkable actions of light has recently come to our attention, the Journal of Surgery remarks. In an address before the Boston Physio-Therapeutic society, Dr. E. C. Titus has demonstrated that blue light possesses remarkable anesthetic power.

In his experiments he used a series of slender glass rods about one-eighth of an inch in thickness, placed side by side and tied together so as to form a kind of flexible mat which will adapt itself to various parts of the body. The glass must be of cobalt blue and transmit no red rays, this being a very important point. The rods are to be placed upon the area to be anesthetized, and some form of white light, preferably a tungsten lamp, brought as closely as possible without causing discomfort.

Strange to relate, in twenty minutes the part becomes insensitive, so that superficial and even deep incisions or punctures are no longer felt. This anesthesia lasts for one-half hour or more, and has occurred so constantly that there is no reason to believe that it is the result of suggestion or accident. Minor surgical operations have been performed under this method and without the least pain or discomfort, and there seems to be enough in it to merit attention.

More than thirty years ago there prevailed what was afterward termed the blue glass craze. All sorts of ailments were thought to be amenable to the action of blue light, and the newspapers were filled with glowing accounts of cures. Enthusiasm ran riot for a time and then the matter dropped out of sight.

Some time later there was a revival of interest in phototherapy when Finsen demonstrated the curative properties of the ultra-violet ray in various affections, especially lupus. Since then the physiological action of light has been carefully investigated, and, although much remains to be learned, there can be no doubt that we are nearer to an appreciation of its possibilities in the treatment of disease.

something new, says the Popular Mechanics. It pivots around the two points which fasten it to the leather sack, and can be so set to constitute a support when the watch is placed upon a table or other flat surface. When not in use, the support lies closely around the watch case.

FROZEN COMBS SHOULD BE GUARDED AGAINST.

See That Your Hens Do Not Roost In Exposed Places Or To Themselves.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

One of the hardest things to do during a cold snap is to keep the combs of the poultry from freezing. This is true more especially of some of the larger combed breeds, like the Minorcas, Leghorns, etc. It, perhaps, does not injure the value of a bird to any great extent, so far as breeding qualities are concerned, to have part of its comb frozen off, but it isn't very pleasant to the birds nor do they look so well afterwards. It is a very serious defect in a show specimen to have its comb frozen and poultry fanciers take extra precautions, such as taking the birds in the house or other warm places on cold nights, or anointing their combs with vaseline, to keep them from freezing.

Where more than one male is roosting with the flock, one is always boss and usually keeps his meeker comrades from roosting with the rest of the flock. Roosting alone, even though the place may not be exposed badly, they do not get the advantage of the body heat from the other birds and their combs freeze more quickly. Likewise, a few fowls roosting in a big space are not able to conserve their heat and suffer accordingly on cold nights. We have found, however, that even with open front houses, if the roosts are placed at the rear of the house, with a droppings board beneath, and the roof fairly low, and are kept well filled with birds, there is little danger from combs freezing.

Vaseline is recommended after the damage is done. If the bird is found with comb still frozen it should be thawed out very slowly, using cold water or snow. Apply the water with a cloth or the snow direct. When thawed out anoint with vaseline. Often the wattles will swell up like a couple of eggs and in this case they can be lanced to let out the collected serum and relieve the birds.

SUDAN GRASS GIVES PROMISING RESULTS AS A MARYLAND FORAGE CROP.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It has long been an acknowledged fact that Johnson grass would be a very valuable hay plant in the South if it were not for its persistent aggression as an obnoxious weed after once introduced in a field. This fact has led the Office of Forage Crop Investigations and others of the Department of Agriculture at Washington to search for a type of Johnson grass that would not after once introduced persist as a weed. As a result, seed was obtained in 1909 from Mr. R. Hewlson, Director of Agriculture and Land of the Sudan Government at Khartum. The seed was planted and the crop from the beginning showed its value. In fact, it seemed to be just what agriculturists had been looking for. The Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station has tested it at College Park and elsewhere in the State. In every case it has proven itself to be worthy of favorable consideration as a hay plant on every farm when conditions warrant.

Sudan Grass is not a Johnson Grass. It does not have persistent underground root stalks as is the case with Johnson Grass. Sudan Grass is killed above and below ground by the first frost in the fall, and does not persist in the soil by voluntary seeding as is the case with many of our most obnoxious annual weeds, such as foxtail, crab grass, etc. In appearance and habit of growth Sudan grass resembles both Johnson grass and the cultivated sorghums. It no doubt, however, is more closely related to the cultivated sorghums than to Johnson grass.

Sudan grass should not replace clover, alfalfa or even timothy, where these can be grown profitably, because, owing to quick growth and heavy yield, it is very exhausting on the land, while on the other hand clover and alfalfa add to the fertility. Hence, on farms growing clover, alfalfa timothy abundantly in normal [s]easons, Sudan grass should not be [g]rown as a consideration, excepting [i]n case of short pro[c]atch hay crop in [t]o be used for [d]uction—some[t]imes the regular hay helping out [a] crop is [n]ecessary.

Did you ever see a woman who had built up a flock of snowy Wyandottes or Leghorns? If she was proud of what her chickens did for her before they were pure breds, she is doubly so when they are. Hardly any more promising field for an independent income is open to a woman who knows how to handle chickens than that of getting pure-bred stock and building up a trade for breeding stock. Poultry Week, January 18-23, 1915, at the Agricultural College, is the time for her to get acquainted with the best breeds, methods of breeding and how to handle pure-bred stock to advantage. There is no industry in which a trained mind and a skilled hand work together better than in the breeding and raising of poultry.

Last week was examination week, and the students were quite anxious to see the results. No serious "flunks" have been reported, so we conclude things passed off satisfactorily to the students in general.

The School Board has provided us with special report cards for each class, which we appreciate very much, as it saves both teacher and pupils in giving out the grades and in asking for them, respectively.

More than thirty of the students have been getting Current Events, a very interesting little paper. The subscription has expired, and the renewal is but ten cents from now until the end of the term. Those who have not yet renewed please give your subscription to Ross Isenberg. Grammar school students who wish to have Currents Events will have the same opportunity.

Let us cheer for our girls basket ball team. They have been doing fine work this year, and deserve a great deal of credit. We congratulate them on their splendid playing at Keyser on Saturday night, February 6, when they defeated the Keyser high school girls to the tune of 15-4.

Hurrah for the red rose. Following is the programme of the Lancastrian Literary Society, to be rendered Friday afternoon, February 12, at two o'clock: Song, No. 17; inaugural address, president-elect; roll call, secretary; vocal duet, Emma Rathbun, Louise Chance; recitation, Robert Porter; "The Bingville Bugle," Playford Naylor; debate; "Resolved that the United States Government Should Aid Paupers," affirmative, Robert Garrett and Lloyd Casteel; negatwe, Ross Isenberg and Robert Sliger; song, No 75; piano duet, Mildred Dixon and Louise Harned; dialogue, Playford Naylor and Joe Rathbun; critic's remarks, Miss Long; song, 49.

GLEANINGS FROM THE HIGH SCHOOL

An Interesting Resume of What Is Going On In That Institution.

A students' council has been organized. Each class has elected a boy and a girl to represent them in this body. The Commercial department has elected a boy and a girl to represent the Commercial Juniors and Seniors, as this department is separate from the Academic department. The council meets every Thursday after school, at which time the members discuss the matters pro and con concerning questions of interest to the school. Suggestions of any kind are made as to the betterment of any method customary in the school, and a general discussion follows. The principal presides over the meeting. The council promises to be a fine thing and quite helpful to the school and students in general, it making possible for the pupils to be instructed and disciplined in a more democratic manner. The council is composed of the follwing members. Freshmen Lucille Friend and McNeil Casteel; Sophomores, Pauline Jones and Carlton McComas; Juniors, Mary Sincell and Edward Lewis; Seniors, Lulu Friend and Robert Garrett. The Commercial department is represented by Grace Laffey and John Scott.

We have been fortunate in getting a large quantity of pencils with "BOOST FOR THE OAKLAND HIGH SCHOOL" inscribed on them. They are quite popular among the students and can be had by inquiring of Ross Isenberg.

The glee club continues to practice each week on Wednesday evening from seven to eight-thirty at the high school. It has now been organized for nearly three months and the members show marked enthusiasm in learning the songs. The young men composing the club practically represent the best vocal talent in the school.

Prof. Bender is giving a series of talks on "The Physical and Mental Side of How to Study." He makes it quite interesting and gives us some good pointers and advice.

So far this week Garrett county has been having a spell of winter. The sledding has been good, but the weather has been rather severe. There were three days of snow and wind. They went to war against a preamble. On this question of principle they, while actual suffering was as yet afar off, raised their flag against a power to which, for purposes of foreign conquest and subjugation, Rome in the height of her glory is not to be compared; a power which has dotted the whole globe with her possessions and military posts, whose morning drumbeat, following the sun and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth daily with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England. —From Daniel Webster's Tribute to Revolutionary Fathers.

No. 1978 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

William M. Thayer plaintiff, vs. John O. Thayer, George B. Thayer, Daniel T. Thayer, Lucy Beckman, Samuel Laughrey, James Laughrey, Phoebe Friend, Mary Lipscomb, Reuben Enlow, A. P. Enlow, Matilda M. Enlow, May Shartzer, Nellie Enlow Baker, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S. Enlow, Ella Watson, Minnie Enlow, Mary Ellen Ridgely, Charles H. Trent, Parker Trent, Mary O'Brien, Charles Trent, Sadie Pugh, Ralph F. Trent, Ezra Trent and other heirs of Aaron Trent, late of Garrett County, deceased, whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, defendants.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate in Garrett County, of which Aaron Trent, deceased, died seized and possessed, and out of the proceeds to pay all bills of the decedent, which may be properly proven against the estate, and for a distribution of the balance amongst the heirs at law of the said Aaron Trent.

The bill states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death indebted unto the plaintiff in the sum of $266.88, and that the plaintiff paid out the additional sum of $68.85 as funeral expenses of the said Aaron Trent.

That being so indebted, and possessed of some real estate, but of no personal property of any consequence, the said Aaron Trent departed this life about Feb. 14, 1914, intestate, leaving no widow or descendants, but leaving nephews and nieces whose names are above enumerated, together with some other heirs whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, as his only heirs at law.

The bill further states that the said Aaron Trent was at the time of his death possessed of scarcely any personal property and consequently no letters of administration were ever applied for or granted on his said personal estate.

That Samuel Laughrey, May Shartzer, Nellie E. Baker, Minnie Enlow, Parker Trent, Charles Trent, Sadie Paugh, Ralph T. Trent, Wilson H. Trent, Ezra Trent, Ephriam E. Enlow, Josephus H. Enlow, Daniel S. Enlow, Ella Watson, Mary Ellen Ridgely and Charles H. Trent are all non-residents of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 11th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 12th day of February, 1915, give notice to said absent defendants, and also to any heirs of the said Aaron Trent, not mentioned above, and whose names are unknown, of the object and substance of this Bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 1st day of March next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

James B. Cox, vs. Gertrude Cox.

No. 1976 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vincule matrimonii.

The bill states that on or about the 15th day of June, 1906, the plaintiff was married to the defendant and took up their residence in Cumberland, Allegany county, Maryland, where they continued to reside until about the 15th day of December of the same year.

The bill further states that on or about the last named date the defendant left plaintiff's home and abandoned him and that he has never seen her from that day to this and does not know where she lives other than that he has been informed that she is now within the Panama Canal Zone.

The bill further states that the plaintiff never gave the defendant any reason for abandoning him, but that his conduct toward her had always been kind, affectionate and above reproach; and further says that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eight years and he believes is deliberate and final.

Plaintiff further says that he has resided for the last three years in Garrett county, and that no children was born as a result of said marriage.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 4th day of January, 1915, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of February, 1915, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of February next, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

GATHERING SHEAVES.

The following lines of a hymn, composed at Mountain Lake Park July, 9, 1893, by Miss Fannie J. Crosby, whose death occurred last Friday at the advanced age of ninty-five years, was dedicated to the late Dr. David Updegraff, published in the Philadelphia Christian Standard immediately following the closing of the camp meeting at the Park in 1893. This hymn is said to be one of the master pieces of the composer and is used more extensively in camp meeting and other services than any other of a like nature:

Gathering sheaves with a tireless hand,
Gathering sheaves at thy Lord's command,
Looking to Him for the power divine,
O, what a glorious work is thine!
Gathering sheaves in the morn's bright ray,
Beraing thy toil in the heat of day,
Lifting full many a broken vine,
O, what a labor of love is thine!

Love, is thy watchword, and still shall be,
Love, on thy banner, inscribed I see,
Love is the keynote of every song,
How like a river it flows along!
Brother, the words from thy lips that fall,
Tenderly echo thy Savior's call,
Thou art inspired by a voice divine,
O, what a labor for souls is thine!

Yonder thy home and thy mansion fair,
Yonder the crown[thou] shalt win and wear,
Beautiful stars in that crown will shine,
O, what a meeting will soon be thine!
Meeting with friends who have gone before,
Waiting for thee on the Eden shore,
Meeting where trials and storms shall cease,
Meeting with Jesus the Prince of Peace.

EDUCATIONAL MATTERS

Gleanings From The Oakland High School.

A number of students have begun work on a very interesting comedy, "Macbeth, a la mode," a delightful parody on one of Shakespeare's plays.

On February 22d the Lancastrian and Yorkist Literary Societies will combine in rendering a programme in honor of Lincoln and Washington. The high school had made this an annual occasion for several years, special lecturers or speakers being to address the school. Mr. Edward Sincell will make an address on Lincoln in the morning, and Mr. Ray Jones will make an address on Washington in the afternoon.

The number of graduates this year will probably be the largest that ever left the high school. The Seniors are about equally divided in the Academic and Commercial departments.

Miss Ada Laffey, of Frankville, sister of Miss Grace Laffey, a commercial senior, spent Friday last visiting the high school. She is the guest of Miss Evelyn Helbig, also a senior in the commercial department.

Every Monday is composition day in the Senior English class. Subjects are assigned by the teacher and the class has a week to prepare them. They are then read in class which creates much interest and develops literary ability. Occasionally oral compositions are required, "Personal Experience," being the latest subject for addressing the class.

Each senior is preparing an oration and may be required to deliver it during the year.

The game between the O. H. S. girls and the Beall H. S. girls drew a large crowd last Friday night. Again our girls showed their ability and won from the visiting team by a score of 18-10. It is said the Beall H. S. team had not been defeated before they met the O. H. S. team.

Friday afternoon, February 12, the following visitors were present at the opening programme of the Lancastrian Literary Society: Misses Bernadette Hart, June White and Messrs. Harold Harned, Frederick Thayer and John Foley.

A few of the high school students performed at the musicale given at the Empire theatre Monday night.

Miss Hanna, our Commercial teacher, has framed the first and latest specimen of the commercial senior's penmanship. It is amusing as well as interesting to see the contrast between the two. We shall try to be inspired to do still better before the year is over.

Lloyd Casteel, a Sophomore, has recovered from an attack of chicken pox, which has caused his absence for several days.

The following students have made not less than 80 per cent in each subject and not less than 95 per cent in deportment for the month of January: Freshmen; Helen Casteel, Stacia Friend, Mary Drake Naylor, Victor Harvey; sophomores; Lillian Helbig, Pauline Jones, Carrie Mann, Winifred Weimer, and Otis Harris; Juniors; Edward Lewis, Norine Ault, Clara Bush, Blanche Clark, Mildred Thrasher, Mary Sincell, Carrie Thrasher; seniors; Dottie Doman, Lulu Friend, Evelyn Helbig, Grace Laffey, Edwana Peddicord, Lena Ravenscroft, Delbert Davis, Ross Isenberg, Playford Naylor, Robert Garrett, Leah Sincell and John Scott; post graduate; Robert White.

Think It Over.

The weekly newspaper promotes the interests of the town in which it is published to such an extent that it becomes impossible to place an estimate upon its worth. There is no enterprise that does so much for the corporation or the individual citizen as the paper. It stands opposed to the town knocker, the town kicker, the town fanatic and the town drones. It stands for action as against dry rot. It stands for progress as against stagnation. It is ever ready to combat the schemes of visionaries and as ready to aid the constructive plans of the wise and level-headed citizens. It is for the upbuilding of the community. The paper has not yet come into its own, however, because it is never appreciated to the extent of its worth by the people at large. Yet when battles are to be fought for town or county a rush is made to the newspaper office always to find the loyal editor ready, frequently without hope of reward. Many other enterprises are encouraged by a bonus, but rarely is the newspaper offered any such help and still more often not given the support it is entitled to. Communities frequently lose sight of their real benefactor when they fail to recognize the weekly journal as such. The editor and his paper stand as the bulwarks of defense against the attacks of evil or designing schemes affecting the good of the individual or the town. For these and other reasons the newspapers of the town and county should receive the support of the public at large in a very liberal degree.

WHAT STATE FORESTRY CAN DO FOR THE LOCAL TIMBER OWNERS

A Two Hundred Per Cent Profit from Forest Land.

In addition to encouraging the reclamation of lands within the State through planting forest trees, the State Board of Forestry is, in a great number of cases, co-operating with timber owners for the improvement of their forest lands. Where this is done the timber which is ready for the axe is sold at a fair price, the logging operations are conducted in such a way that the removal of the trees which are mature is not injurious to the younger trees that are left, and the whole stand is put in a better producing condition than ever before. Emphasis can best be given this, and the work itself explained, by citing a case in point.

In May, 1914, the State Forester at Baltimore was visited by a gentleman owning 250 acres of wooded land in Anne Arundel county. It was an old stand of mixed hardwoods. The chestnut was being rapidly killed by the blight, a large share of the trees of other species were becoming overmature, and the stand as a whole much in need of an improvement cutting. Appreciating this, the owner was considering the sale of his merchantable trees, for which he had already received what he considered a fair offer.

Before selling, however, he wished to have the opinion of a skilled Forester on the advisability of cutting over the tract. The State Forester accordingly went over the land with him, and it was pointed out that for a very small sum this timber might be thoroughly covered by expert Foresters, the defective, diseased, and mature trees marked for removal, and a correct estimate secured as to the amount and value of the timber to be taken out.

This the owners agreed to have done, and a party of three men was sent from the Forester's Office to do the work. In this connection it may be added that men with special training are furnished to local landowners at a cost of $2 per day, the man in charge $3, in addition to traveling expenses and maintenance during the duration of the job. The property in question, 250 acres, was completly gone over in six days' time, the mature trees calipered, tallied and marked. One blaze, about four feet above the ground, clearly indicated the marked trees, while the other, as near the ground as possible and bearing a stamped letter "M" served as a check, making sure that only trees so marked were cut.

The total expense to the owner was $55.34 for the results of field work are tabulated and summed up free of charge in the office at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. The estimate of the trees marked were mimeographed, and this statement, showing the location of the tract with kinds and amount of timber, was sent out from the State Forester's Office to several hundred sawmill men in the same locality, who would be more likely to take an interest in the purchase of the wood and timber.

Four months from the time the preliminary examination was made, and three after the making had actually been done, the timber had been sold. It was sold for more than three times the amount originally offered, and with the purchase the buyer gave a written guarantee that in the removal of the old timber every reasonable precaution would be used for the protection of the young.

Such work, an object lesson in good management and economy, is of value to the community; it is of substantial and lasting improvement to the forest; and the financial profit to the owner is not the least of the benefits derived. The State Board of Forestry since then has been engaged in many similar undertakings, and the work has been highly advantageous to the owners. It is in a position to take up additional work of this nature, and is prepared to extend real assistance by experts to Maryland woodland owners in the improving, marketing and handling of their timber.

NO EXTRA SESSION WANTED.

The Cumberland News says: If President Wilson is determined to drive another nail in the Democratic coffin, he will force an extra session of Congress rather than abandon his ship purchase bill. Not every prospect ahead of the country is bright, but no darker cloud could loom on the horizon just now than the thought of having Congress in session beyond March 4.

No Congress ever sat at Washington that cost the country so much as the present one. It was estimated at the time the second Cleveland term cost as much as the four years of Civil war. The past two years of Democratic control have already equaled that vast sum, and plunged the national government into a deficit approximating $100,000,000 for the current twelve months.

The less the country sees and hears of statesmanship of that prosperity-wrecking kind the better it will be pleased. It is not encouraging news, therefore, that Mr. Wilson proposes to urge his shipping bill to the point of forcing an extra session.

A DOG CASE FROM DISTRICT NO. 6

Nearly Every Prominent Resident of That Section Attended Tuesday.

Before Justice Rudisill on Tuesday the case of the State vs. Mr. Ode DeWitt, of near Hoyes, was aired. Mr. DeWitt was arrested upon a warrant sworn out by Constable Coddington charging him with an assault, the implement used being a double bit axe and grew out of the attempt of the official to collect taxes upon a dog owned by Mr. DeWitt.

At the trial it was clearly in evidence that no assault had been made by Mr. DeWitt; that he paid the amount demanded by the constable and that while the latter was writing the receipt for the money Mr. DeWitt continued to work in cutting up a log to be used in firing a lime kiln. The decision of the Justice was favorable to Mr. DeWitt and the case was dismissed.

The matter was of such intense interest to the people of the Hoyes and Accident sections of the county that they came to Oakland in a body, their presence here being for the purpose of giving Mr. DeWitt their moral support, whose standing in the community has never been questioned and who is held in the highest esteem by all who know him. Among those here were Messrs. J. Arthur DeWitt, Wm. Mattingly, W. A. Smith, Thomas E. Bishoff, Wm. Enlow, Edward Biddle, R. B. Friend, Perry Savage, Rev. H. E. Friend, Jos. Senator Lee. Harrington and Warburton to Contend for the Place.

The Baltimors Star says:

The candidacy of at least three aspirants for the governorship now seems assured. The trio are William T. Warburton, of Cecil county, who will, it is said, seek the Republican nomination, and State Comptroller Harrington and United States Senator Blair Lee, who will contend for the Democratic nomination.

Mr. Warburton's name has been mentioned frequently for the past two years as available gubernatorial timber, and today friends of the Cecil countian stated that he would positively be in the running when the fight actually opens. Mr. Warburton is well known in every section of the state, though he has only held one elective public office. In 1912 he was the Republican floor leader of the house and established himself as a power both as a legislator and a leader. Previous to his legislative term and since Mr. Warburton has figured prominently as one of the leading business men of his section. He is a lawyer and also a financier. His combined business and legal experience, his friends argue, together with his recognized legislative ability, his friends point out, stamp him as a proper man for the Republicans to bring forward as their standard bearer.

On the Democratic end the candidacies of both Lee and Harrington has made no public announcement, but the comptroller has freely confided to friends in all sections of the state his intention of announcing himself during the spring.

Harrington will doubtless have the support of the old-line organization in the counties, while Lee will have the support for the most part of the elements which backed him in 1911. In addition there are many reports that Mayor Preston will throw his strength within the city organization to Lee. Congressman Linthicum insists that he will remain in the race, while friends of former State Senator Jonnie Beasman are advising him to feel out sentiment in his own behalf. According to reports from Frederick and other Western Maryland counties, Mr. Beasman is doing this very thing.

The supporters of Mr. Warburton point out, that, in addition to his other qualifications, he is known as a non-factionalist. In other words, that he is on friendly terms with every strong element of the Republican party in the state. There is still talk in the Republican camp of Chairman O. E. Weller as a candidate, but it is not believed that the latter would consider the nomination unless he received it unanimously. There are a number of other Republican possibilities, but most of those who have been stung by the gubernatorial bee are saying little at this time, and are keeping their ears close to the ground.

May Sue Roads Commission.

A Hagerstown paper of last week said:

The Board of County Commissioners discussed at length the matter of securing Washington county's proportion of the Shoemaker road fund for the last 11 years and instructed County Attorney Elias B. Hartle to advise it in regard to the law.

The commissioners contend that this fund of $300,000 annually in the state is to be apportioned among the counties according to the road mileage, and that in the 11 years since the law has beeen in effect Washington county has built only a little more than one mile of Shoemaker road.

The commissioners now want to build roads under the Shoemaker act, and claim the county is entitled to the money which was Washington county's for the years when it did not draw upon the fund. If this contention be correct, between $130,000 and $150,000 is due this county from the state.

The State Roads Commission, which expends the Shoemaker fund, takes the view that when a county in any year does not draw on the fund the county's share is legally apportioned among the other counties that avail themselves of the fund. The commissioners, before taking definite action wish to know from County Attorney Hartle if the commissioners can maintain a suit against the State Roads Commission for the money.

Garrett county will be interested in the outcome of this suit, as this county lost nearly $75,000, by not using the yearly appropriation to the county.

What A Million Means.

Of course we all know that a million is a thousand thousand, but when we talk of a million, do we realize the magnitude of the number, as applied to what we are speaking about? The present conflict is a war of millions. Russia has 8,000,000 men in the field, Germany 5,000,000, and France 3,000,000 a total of 16,000,000 To simply count this number would take a man 272 days—nearly nine months, working night and day. Standing close together, this vast army of men would cover over 1,100 acres of ground while if they stood one upon another they would make a column over 17,300 miles high.—Tit Bits.

Resolutions of Respect.

Be it further resolved, That we extend to the relatives and friends of our deceased brother our deepest sympathy in this their sad bereavement, and

George Washington's Living Representative

As hereditary representative of George Washington in the Society of the Cincinnati and in virtue of direct, incontestable descent from an older half brother and a younger full brother of the first president, William Lanier Washington of New York city is recognized as the head of the Washington family. The distinction of representing the Father of His Country in the Cincinnati, the society of descendants of officers who served in the American army in the Revolutionary war, is most interesting in itself, since it carries with it recognition by historians and genealogists as being the leading male member of the Washington family.

Mr. Washington has said, however, that there are others equally as closely related to Washington as himself and that he cannot and does not claim exclusive relationship to George Washington.

He is directly descended from Augustine Washington 2d, the eldest half brother of George Washington, who left issue. His only son, Colonel William Augustine Washington, married Jane Washington, the eldest child of Colonel John Augustine Washington, who was a full brother of George Washington. It is from this union of a nephew and niece of George Washington that William Lanier Washington is descended in the eldest male line.

The genealogical table of William Lanier Washington shows that he is the ninth in direct male descent from Colonel John Washington, the first American member of the family.

John Washington emigrated to America from England in 1657 and settled in Westmoreland county, Va. His eldest son was Lawrence Washington. The second son of the latter was Augustine Washington 1st, father of George Washington by his second marriage, with Mary Ball. By Augustine Washington 1st's first marriage he had four children, only one of whom, Colonel Augustine Washington 2d, left issue. His only son, Colonel William Augustine Washington, as stated above, married his cousin, Jane Washington, who was the daughter and eldest child of Colonel John Augustine Washington, younger full brother of George Washington. There were other children who left descendants, from whom several families in Virginia and West Virginia trace their descent to this day.

The son of Colonel William Augustine and Jane Washington was Colonel George Corbin Washington, born in 1789. He was a member of congress and Indian commissioner and was mentioned for the vice presidency of the United States. The eldest son of the latter was Colonel Lewis William Washington, born in 1812, and his eldest son was Major James Barroll Washington. William Lanier Washington is the eldest son of Major Washington.

He is married, but has no son to inherit his status.

The Washington Hatchet Story

Here It Is In Its Original Form, as Told In Weems' "Life."

WHEN George was about six years old he was made the wealthy master of a hatchet, of which, like most little boys, he was immoderately fond and was constantly going about chopping everything that came in his way. One day in the garden, where he often amused himself hacking his mother's pea sticks, he unluckily tried the edge of his hatchet on the body of a beautiful young English cherry tree, which he barked so terribly that I don't believe the tree ever got the better of it. The next morning the old gentleman, finding out what had befallen his tree, which, by the bye, was a great favorite, came into the house and with much warmth asked for the mischievous author, declaring at the same time that he would not have taken 5 guineas for his tree. Nobody could tell him anything about it. Presently George and his hatchet made their appearance.

"George," said his father, "do you know who killed that beautiful little cherry tree yonder in the garden?"

This was a tough question, and George staggered under it for a moment, but quickly recovered himself, and, looking at his father with the sweet face of youth brightened with the inexpressible charm of all triumphant truth, he bravely cried out: "I can't tell a lie, pa; you know I can't tell a lie. I cut it with my hatchet!"

"Run to my arms, you dearest boy," cried his father in transports; "run to my arms! Glad am I, George, that you ever killed my tree, for you have paid me for it a thousandfold. Such an act of heroism in my son is more worth than a thousand trees, though blossomed with silver and their fruits of fairest gold!"

WASHINGTON'S TRIUMPH.

How the Surrender of General Cornwallis Impressed a French Observer.

In the diary of Baron Closen, a young Frenchman who came to America with Rochambeau and acted as interpreter between the French general and Washington, are to be found many interesting references to the American chieftain and his career. In Closen's account of Cornwallis' surrender he says:

"At 2 o'clock the garrison of York marched out before the allied army, which was formed in two lines, the French standing opposite to the Americans and wearing their gala uniforms. While passing between the two lines the English showed the greatest contempt for the Americans, who, to say the truth, did not cut much of a figure compared with our army in appearance and equipment, for the greater part of these unfortunates were dressed in little white cloth jackets, dirty and ragged, and many of them were almost barefooted. The English had given them the nickname 'Janckey Dudle.'

"But what of that? the sensible man will ask. These people are all the more praiseworthy and brave for fighting as they do, when they are so badly provided with everything."

Of what he saw in the conquered town Closen writes:

"I shall never forget how awful its aspect was. One could not take three steps without finding great gashes made by bombs, fragments, fissures, bullets, partially filled trenches, scattered arms and legs of whites and negroes, pieces of uniforms. Most of the houses had been shattered by cannon balls.

"We found Lord Cornwallis at his headquarters. He is a man of noble soul, magnanimous and firm. He seemed to be saying: 'I have nothing for which to blame myself. I have done my duty and defended myself as long as it was possible.'"

Washington Served Without Pay.

Washington served without pay during the eight years of his command of the Continental armies, but he declared that "£50,000 would not induce me again to undergo what I have done."

WASHINGTON IN WAR

WITH unsheathed sword uplifted to the sky,
In solemn thought of all the future bore
Of deadly shock and long drawn battle roar,
He took command as sent him from on high.
No halting look in that imperial eye
That saw the blood red years of war in store,
Nor could the sphinxlike face stern duty wore
Make him afraid to fight for her or die.

WASHINGTON UNDER CARPET.

Owner Had to Hide Portrait to Save It From Soldiers.

One of the best Washington portraits in existence, the Pruyn portrait, is totally unknown to the great majority of the American public, since no reproduction of it has ever been made, but it was exhibited in New York for a short time in the Van Cortlandt mansion.

The Pruyn portrait presents the Washington familiar to us in the many Gilbert Stuart portraits, but it is perhaps one of the very best that ever came from that artist's brush. It shows a General Washington full of life and vigor, with a ruddy coloring and a very ruddy nose. It belongs to Mrs. William Gorham Rice of Albany, N. Y., who is a member of the Pruyn family.

This portrait is Washington's family portrait of himself and hung on the walls of Mount Vernon during his residence there. At his death it fell to the share of one of his four nephews, George Steptoe Washington.

This Mr. Washington lived near Falmouth, on the north side of the Rappahannock, and the portrait occupied a prominent place on his walls until the civil war. Then his homestead was suddenly filled with Union troops. To save the portrait its owner hastily ripped it from the frame and placed it underneath the carpet in one of the bedrooms. As luck would have it, General Hancock chose to occupy that room during his stay in Falmouth and tramped unwittingly back and forth over the Father of His Country. But the portrait was well protected by the carpet and is in fine condition.

After the war was over, the picture lines for the Steptoe W[illegible] Albany, N. Y. they sold the portr[illegible] looms. The p[illegible] was John [illegible]

In George and Martha's Courting Days.

The beaus and belles were courtly when
In powdered wigs they met;
The dames were prim and stately when
They entertained, and yet
Theirs may to us seem curious ways—
In George and Martha's courting days.

The world seemed young, all nature fair,
When George a-courting went,
Yet if we look, perchance, we'll find
To gain the dame's consent
He sang to her Love's sweetest lays—
In George and Martha's courting days.

For lovers loved the same as now,
And maids were shy and coy,
And passion burned within the heart
And turned to grief or joy,
And Love's fire kindled to a blaze—
In George and Martha's courting days.

DAUGHTERS OF THE REVOLUTION BUST OF MARTHA WASHINGTON.

Imagine, if we can, the time
When George, in velvet coat,
Sent perfumed notes to Martha's bower
Or lovelorn verses wrote,
When Cupid sent his piercing rays—
In George and Martha's courting days.

And when, perchance, he went to woo
Mayhap his snowy lace
At wrist and throat just brushed across
His blushing lady's face
And eyes met eyes in fondest gaze—
In George and Martha's courting days.

So picture to yourself her smile
As there on bended knee
The lover knelt by Martha's side
And vow'd his constancy,
For theirs were lovers' old, sweet ways—
In George and Martha's courting days.

—Albert Hardy.

Did Washington Swear?

The oft repeated story of Washington's profanity at the battle of Monmouth is strenuously denied in Marion Harland's autobiography, and upon the best authority—that of a Revolutionary veteran, Stirling Smith by name, who was uncle to Marion Harland's grandfather. "He did not swear," the old warhorse would thunder when irreverent youngsters retailed the slander in his hearing. "I was close behind him—and I can tell you, sir, we rode fast—when what should we meet running away, lickety-split from his field of battle with the British, his [illegible] at their heels, but Gen'ral [illegible] Gen'ral men. Then, with the Lee! In God's Washington, speakeaning of this ill sharp—says he: Now, you see, Gen name, whwas mighty high spirited timed[illegible]eaks up as haughty as the [illegible] had done, and says he: 'I know no one who has more of that most damnable virtue than your excellency. So you see, young man, it was Gen'ral Lee that swore and not Gen'ral Washington. Don't you ever let me hear that lie again!"

MEN live in deeds. For good or ill
Their acts survive, and not until
Time is no more can it be said,
"The man is dead."

LIVED one who Freedom's standard raised—
Lived, fought and passed; was blamed and praised;
Was crowned a hero in his day,
Then passed away.

A PEOPLE from oppression freed,
By him torn from a tyrant's greed,
Became a nation; lived and thrived
Because he strived.

THE heart that for his people's woes
Found courage to oppose their foes
Still pulsates in the nation's breast—
His grand behest.

GREAT Washington! Each passing year
But makes thy memory more dear;
Each year but adds unto thy fame,
Exalts thy name.

YOUR deeds live on, and in them you.
Your hand still guides. A purpose true

When Washington Was Defeated.

Washington was defeated in his first race for election to the Virginia house of burgesses by the candidate of the liquor interests. The young soldier had angered the tavern keepers and their friends by inveighing against drunkenness among the troops in his command.

"WAR A PLAGUE TO MANKIND"—WASHINGTON.

Washington said in speaking of war at the close of the Revolution, "My first wish is to see this plague to mankind banished from off the earth." Nevertheless, throughout his life he was always ready to fight for cause believed to be right. brav- ier traits. ery was one of he was incapa- Jefferson sai meeting personal ble of with the calmest undaun-ed."

Washington had many enemies, some of whom did their utmost to destroy letters and other evidences of their disaffection after they discovered that the general was destined to immortal fame as the first of the patriots.

Washington's dearest friend, gained during his military service prior to the Revolution, was Dr. James Craik, who attended the future president through two serious illnesses. After the Revolutionary war Dr. Craik became the Washington family physician at Mount Vernon.

THE REPUBLICAN,

THURSDAY FEBRUARY 18, 1915.

MARYLAND'S political pot has begun to boil again.

WILSON is a president of promises and prediction.

COAL is being shipped from this country to Italy.

THE American flag is neither a subterfuge nor a target.

THE country does not admire the Wilson brand of prosperity.

THE United States demands and commands respect the world over.

THERE is going to be a hot fight for the Democratic leadership in Maryland.

THE air is full of reports of possible candidates for the primaries next summer.

THE plain common sense of a Lincoln would come in handy in these parlous times.

IT is suggested that William Jennings Bryan be interred in Washington until after the war.

IT looks like the Democratic party was going to ask for waivers on President Wilson.

WHEN you want to read a real interesting paper of a local character, just get a copy of The Republican.

THE population of the United States is only 6 per cent. of the World's population and less than 25 per cent. of that of Europe.

TRIUMPHANT Democracy is not blowing the loud bazoo quite so energetically in these days as in early 1913. There is a reason.

ANY man can be a candidate, but only one a winner. Still, even the novelty of being a candidate often satisfies one's vanity.

THREE years ago the population of the world was 1,630,000,000 persons. The rate the European war is killing people will soon reduce that number.

WILLIAM T. WARBURTON, of Cecil county, at a Lincoln Day dinner at Westminister, announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor of Maryland.

HISTORY states that "Lycurgus made all the laws for his country and then retired." The St. Louis Globe-Democrat adds: "President Wilson has two years more." Alas! it is true.

ONE hundred years ago England was firing on the Stars and Stripes, now she seeks protection under "Old Glory." George Washington would enjoy the present situation if he were alive.

SIBERIA contains one-ninth of all the land on the globe. Great Britain and all Europe, except Russia, together with the whole of the United States, could be put into Siberia.

AT last U. S. Senator Blair Lee has announced his candidacy for Governor of Maryland on the Democratic ticket. How about "Our Davy?" He was spoken of as a possible candidate.

CONGRESS is investigating the administration of Judge Dayton, of the United States for Northern district of West Virginia. But the charges against Secretary Bryan are passed over. There is a reason. Judge Dayton is a Republican.

ONE billion dollars and more will have been poured into the strong boxes of farmers and others in this country when all the 1914 wheat crop is sold. This was the estimate given by B. W. Snow, expert grain statistician of the Bartlett-Frazier Company. The enormous sum which grain raisers are getting today for their wheat will amount to nearly twice as much as the $600,000,000 and more which they received for their wheat in 1913, according to Expert Snow's compilation.

When Washington Passed This Way.

SARA ROBERTA GETTY.

The old Braddock Road, with its winding ways,
With its tangled undergrowth and sod,
Is to us most dear, for in bygone days
Here a nation's hero's feet have trod.

It was Washington who, with Braddock's men
Marched over the hills to Fort Duqusne;
Though a slender youth, he was Colonel then,
With his future honors yet to gain.

They forded the river, the tale is told,
Near where the famous old bridge now stands;
There, with General Braddock brave and bold
Came the future hero of many lands.

But all this took place many years ago:
In seventeen hundred and fifty-five,
Long before our village began to grow
Or its earliest settlers were alive.

But the story lives on history's page,
And we tell the tale on his natal day,
As our children will in the coming age
Of the time when Washington passed this way.

Grantsville, Feb. 17th.

COLLIER'S weekly "strikes the nail squarely on the head" when it says: The Ship Purchase bill may be fairly described as representing the economic knownothingisim of certain Democrats, plus the desire of certain Cabinet members to enlarge their own scope."

A CHARGE was made in the House of Representative that the President influenced the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant the railroads the 5 per cent. freight rate increase. This may not be true, but it is true that the economic politics of the Democratic party are responsible for the necessity of the raise.

MISGUIDED patrons of mail order houses are reminded of the big dividend declared recently by Sears, Roebuck & Co., of Chicago. Many Garrett county people have helped swell the prosperity of this large corporation which makes a higher profit on everything it sells than does the home merchant, but pays no taxes here and fails to hear the cry of the distressed among us. Buy at home where your money belongs.

EXPORTS of merchandise from the United States in December at $246,266,000 were with a single exception the largest ever recorded for the month. Imports at $114,402,900 were the smallest for the month in six years. The exports excess at $131,863,900 is far the largest ever had for the season. This is the result of the war in the old world. As long as the war continues the exports of grain and merchandise will largely increase.

THERE are now twelve organized military companies in the State outside of the city of Baltimore, and not including the naval militia. The state has built commodious armories in several of the larger towns, and the organized army of the state now numbers in officers and privates about 2,000. Under the provisions of the federal military act passed in 1903 the reserve or unorganized military forces of this state number 202,000. Every state in the Union with the exception of Nevada now maintains an organized military force. These organizations, which are generally classified as being divisions of the National Guard, represent an aggregated reserve force of something over 122,000.

HOW ABOUT IT, MR. WILSON?

We still have the spectacle of a President of the United States standing stubbornly in attempting to force the Senate to do a thing it has expressed its unwillingness, or rather its determination not to do so. Also this same President threatens in the event the Senate does not finally bow to his will he will call an extra session of Congress to have it subserviently bend the knee to Gesler's cap. And President Wilson is doing all these things in spite of the Democratic platform to the contrary. In this document defining the party's beliefs and principles is the following plank:

We pledge ourselves to maintain the preservation and integrity of the State governments in full strength and efficiency as the guardians of the people, the proper branches of the Federal government, the Executive, the Legislative and the Judicial, each keeping within its appointed bounds and not encroaching upon the just powers of either of the others.

This is not only a matter of party belief, but it is a constitutional man date. That being the case, how can Mr. Wilson excuse his present attitude or offer any plea in abatement to the charge of encroaching upon the just powers legislative branch of Government.

"PAY-UP WEEK.

The idea comes out of Wisconsin, a state which has been running Kansas close in recent years as a laboratory of thought. It originated in the little town of Waukon, near Lacrosse, and has won approval in several other Wisconsin cities. Like the "Bring-it-Back Day" in Kansas, on which borrowers were invited to restore their borrowings, the "Pay-Up-Week" of Wisconsin is intensley practical in its aim whatever might be thought of its probabilities. It germinated in the belief that it would be a good thing if once a year citizens should make a special effort to put their finances in order. It was easy to dilate upon the prosperity that would follow, the general boost that would be passed around, if everybody who owed anybody paid up. It appealed immediately to those who had bills owed to them. That there was some doubt whether it would be as joyfully received by those who owed is evidenced by the device of offering an opportunity to earn $50 in gold to each debtor who settled, Nevertheless the scheme seems to have worked to some extent. The merchants sent out 8,000 statement and over 2,000 persons came in and settled, the aggregate indebtedness thus paid up amounting to $40,000, quite a respectable total for a town of Waukon's size. Perhaps, as the idea spreads we may yet have tags given to "payers-up," who may thus proudly proclaim their solvency. The suggestion has infinite possibilities, although before Waukon had demonstrated what it could do, few would have imagined one of them would have been to induce every fourth debtor in town to step up and settle.

THE CONCRETE TRUTH.

Representative Whitacre, of Ohio, Democrat, who led the revolt against Governor Cox, recently made a very illuminating speech on the tariff question in the House of Representatives, in the course of which he told his free trade colleagues some very unpleasant truths. He said it was up to them to prove that the Underwood bill has not injured business. "Men," continued Mr, Whitacre, "whose only possession is an empty dinner pail and a reduced pay envelope cannot be convinced that the tariff is not responsible for their condition. They had work when the tariff was passed, and are out of work now or on reduced pay to-day. They naturally associate the two and cannot be convinced that their conclusions are wrong. You can go down South and take the railroads and throw them into the Gulf and the people there would still vote the Democratic ticket, but you cannot go into Ohio and injure the manufacturing industries and get the people to stand by you."

This is pretty strong language coming from a Democrat, but it is what many of the caucus driven party members know but do not want to recognize. It is a statement of the concrete truth, which no Democrat can get away from.

If the South was not so tradition ridden it would break away from its false position. It is a section that has solidly voted against protection, a policy that has been its industrial and commercial salvation. It has been saved in spite of itself by Republican tariffs.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Pay Your Dog Tax.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Permit me space in The Republican for some thoughts on a subject occupying very great attention in Garrett county, namely, the payment of the dog tax. You hear it discussed wherever you go.

The County Commissioners are doing everything that they can do to collect the dog tax, as they are required to do by the the law. The constables of the several districts are doing everything they can do to meet the requirements of the Act of the legislature. That they are meeting with the most bitter opposition in the performance of their duty, cannot be successfully denied. This should not be. As long as the law is on the statute books, as loyal citizens of Garrett county, we ought to pay the tax. There is no question but that the law will be repealed by the next legislature. Today those owning dogs should be loyal to the county and its officials in carrying out the law.

These men are carrying sore burdens and suffering unjustly. In some districts it has been almost impossible to get a respectable man to serve as constable. In the few months this law has been in effect one district has had five constables.

As these men have tried to perform their duties they have been insulted, their lives threatened and they have been ordered from homes with curses and threats. This is all wrong. They are not the makers of the law but they are the servants of the law. Upon them is the duty laid under severe penalty for non performance of that duty. The strife and bitterness engendered is most unfortunate and to be greatly regretted.

The tax is being generally paid, or in lieu thereof many dogs have been killed. The work will go on until the last dollar is paid or the dog pay the penalty. The old adage, "Make the best of a bad bargain," is a good suggestion at this time. We advise dog owners to pay no attention to false rumors about persons refusing to pay the dog tax. We are not defending the dog law, but we are claiming fair treatment for the county officials who are trying to do their duty as they are required to do by the oath taken before entering upon the duties of their office.

From one section of the county nearly three score of the very best citizens gathered at the office of a Justice of the Peace in Oakland this week, to stand by a neighbor in a suit which had in its origin the enforcement of the dog tax. The next day another large delegation was in attendance at the same office, from another district, for the same kind of a reason.

The result of the several cases tried before the magistrate has been that it has cost the parties sued many times more than the tax on the dog and which had to be paid in the end. Lawyer's fees, costs, loss of time had to be met, win or loose.

TO USE MINES IN WAR ON SHIPPING

Germany Supplements Warning Note to Neutrals

BELIEVES WARFARE IS RIGHT

Kaiser's Government Stands Firm In Its Position of Claiming Privilege to Sink Any or All Ships Its Submarines May Come Upon In War Zone Around English Isles—Washington Sends Note to England.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Germany has sent a note to the state department in Washington in response to the American protest against the German establishment of a war zone. The contents of the note are not made public, but Count von Bernstorff has issued a statement believed to reflect in full his country's attitude.

His government insists upon the continuance of the war zone, but it is stated that if there is no attempt to cut off Germany's imports of food in neutral bottoms she may decide that the war zone is not necessary.

This statement by the German embassy, while in the form of a simple announcement, was in reality a paraphrase if not an exact translation of the note which was handed to the state department. The mere statement by the embassy without any reference to the delivery of the note was, of course, simply the observing of diplomatic proprieties, inasmuch as the state department itself did not make the note public.

In this statement from the German embassy also is conveyed the first intimation as to Germany's reply to the inquiry of the United States as to what is to be done to protect neutral shipping. The suggestion is made that neutrals might sail in daylight under convoy of their own warships.

Germany frankly reiterates that under any other circumstances the safety of neutral shipping in the war zone around the British isles will be "seriously threatened." Germany adds a warning of additional danger from mines, declaring that they will be laid in the new war zone to a very considerable extent.

Equal in importance to the receipt of the new German note was action taken by the state department in the Wilhelmina case. Secretary Bryan forwarded to Ambassador Page at London by cable the text of the German note and the one laid before the state department on Saturday with certain representations made by the owners of the Wilhelmina to the state department. These communications are to be laid before the British foreign office. The effect of this action will be a plain intimation to Great Britain that the United States believes, upon the evidence at its disposal, that the Wilhelmina's cargo of food, which was consigned to Bremen, ought to be released and the vessel permitted to continue her voyage.

The communications which the United States has laid before Great Britain contain the assurances that if England will reverse her policy of holding up shipments of foodstuffs consigned to noncombatants in Germany the latter government will modify her war zone decree.

That Italy has followed the lead of the United States in presenting to Germany its disapproval with the war zone decree was confirmed at the Italian embassy. It was stated that the protest of the Italian government had been a verbal one, submitted at Rome to the German ambassador.

In submitting the German note to Secretary Bryan Count Bernstorff explained that it was not intended as a formal reply to the American protest against the German war zone decree. As a matter of fact the note had been submitted to all neutral powers whose shipping might be affected by Germany's action. Nevertheless the note clearly indicated the general course that Germany will pursue in making its formal reply to the United States.

BERNSTORFF REMOVED?

Rumored That Ambassador Has Been Called Home to Germany.

Amsterdam, Feb. 16.—It is rumored from Berlin that Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington, has been summoned home. It is not known whether this is a temporary matter or a permanent change.

Count von Bernstorff, the report says, is among the diplomats who has been much criticised since the war. He is believed to be the object of intrigue owing to his failure to make Germany's views appreciated in the United States.

STAIRCASE UNDERMINED

Flooded Tiber Does Considerable Damage In Rome.

Rome, Feb. 16.—The great staircase of 300 steps in Rome leading from the Trastevere station to the Monteverde section, a hilly quarter of the city, is threatening to collapse because of undermining by the waters.

Serious damages have been detected in the Risorgimento bridge and all passage over the structure has been forbidden.

Information from the upper reaches of the Tiber indicates a further rise in the flood water of a few inches, after which, unless there should come more rain, the waters undoubtedly will begin to go down.

The Tiber reached a maximum height of fifty-seven feet. It was argued that the extraordinary rapidity of the current of the Tiber would serve very rapidly to reduce the flood stage.

At several street crossings around the vatican soldiers had built temporary wooden bridges. These with the passing of boats up and down the flooded thoroughfares completed the impression that a section of Venice had been brought up to Rome.

JUST WANTED TO GET OVER

Maid Consented to Marry Iowan In Order to Come to United States.

New York, Feb. 16.—Winning a wife by mail is risky business according to Ernest Van Beck, who owns a big farm out in Orient City, Ia.

That was the way he wooed and won sixteen-year-old Marie Jensen, who crossed over from Holland to marry him just seven days ago. They were married and shortly thereafter the bride informed him that she had consented to become his wife merely because she wanted to get to the United States and that there "didn't seem to be any other way."

Incidentally she requested car fare to Chicago, where she said she "wanted to see her brother—and somebody else."

The bridegroom, who is twenty-seven years old and wealthy, says he hasn't decided just what he intends doing about it, but he is certain he is not going to give her the car fare to Chicago.

Y., in connection with the celebration of 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada. The dominion police believe the lighted balloons were mistaken for searchlights on aeroplanes.

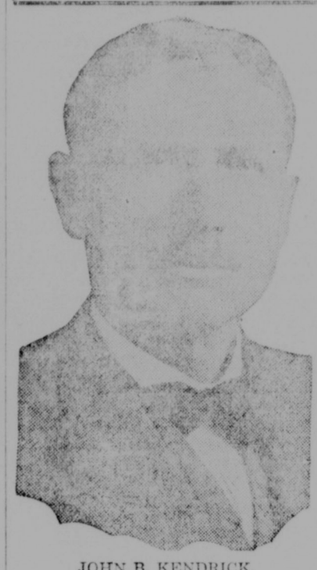
New Democratic Governor of Wyoming



JOHN B. KENDRICK.

TO ASK NEW BECKER TRIAL

Prisoner's Lawyers Claim Negro Marshall Did Change His Story.

New York, Feb. 16.—The Becker lawyers announced that they would apply within a few days for a new trial for the man twice convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The basis for the application will be the affidavit made in Philadelphia last Saturday by James Marshall, the young negro who testified in the second trial that he saw Becker talking to Jack Rose at Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street on the night that Rose says the final arrangements for the murder were made.

John B. Johnston, associated with Becker's defense, asserted that the Philadelphia affidavit contains a positive repudiation of testimony that Rose was with Becker on the night in question. It didn't concern the Becker defense, said Mr. Johnston, that Marshall came to New York on Sunday and recanted his Philadelphia recantation. The fact remained that he made oath in Philadelphia before a United States commissioner to statements vitally contradicting his testimony in the second trial.

HATFIELD PROMISES FIGHT

West Virginia Governor Defies Enemies, Saying He Won't Quit.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 16.—Governor H. D. Hatfield, in an address to the annual convention of the West Virginia Federation of Labor, said:

"It is true I am not admired; it is true that I am not courteously treated by the subsidized press of West Virginia; it is true I have been reflected upon and maligned; it is true that every possible effort has been made to coerce me, but I want to say that so long as I keep my health and can stand up for my rights I shall be fighting for the rights of the people. No newspaper, subsidized as it may be, can dictate my principles nor what I shall do as governor of West Virginia. I do not need, nor do I want their support; what I want is the support of the 250,000 or 300,000 people such as you are to stand up with me and fight for the rights of men against property rights."

TOO MUCH PIE KILLED HIM

Argument Over Eating Capacity Results In Death.

New York, Feb. 16.—Abraham Jakowski, forty-three years old, of Brooklyn, met a man in a restaurant and the two had an argument as to which could eat the more.

Pies were chosen as the instruments for the test and each contestant got three of the best mince pies in the place. Things went along evenly until each man had disposed of two pies. Then the stranger said to Jakowski, "I guess you win, for I'm through."

"I'm good for one more and maybe two," said Jakowski. He ate the third pie, but then complained of feeling ill. Leaving the fourth pie he went to see a physician. He fell dead as he told his symptoms. Acute indigestion had killed him.

RUSSIANS RUN OUT OF PRUSSIA

Rout of Invaders Complete; Thousands Are Prisoners

CZAR'S MEN ON DEFENSIVE

From the Carpathians to the Baltic Sea the Austro-Germans Are on the Move Against Russians—Slavs Say Efficiency of German Railways Is Responsible For Present Serious Reverse In East Prussia.

Berlin (By Wireless to London), Feb. 16.—The war office has made the following announcement:

"Field Marshal von Hindenburg's third battle of the Mazurian lakes will prove more disastrous to the Russians than the other two, from present indications. It is believed that 40,000 Russians were captured.

"Prussia is now cleared of the enemy. Indications point to a general German-Austrian offensive from Bukowina to the Baltic. The Russians are being rolled up in many portions of the line.

"Turkish advance guards drove back British divisions across the Suez canal at Ausum and Serpeum. Senussi Bedouins invaded Egypt and occupied the Siva oasis.

"Turks defeated the British at Kurma, Mesopotamia.

"Wireless negotiations between Austrian and Hungarian ministers resulted in the declaration that there is sufficient corn and flour for both countries, especially since Hungary will give Austria her superfluous stocks.

"Dutch shipping companies have decided to suspend commercial communication with England from Feb. 18, except mail steamers."

German Railroads Help.

London, Feb. 16.—German troops are advancing rapidly everywhere in East Prussia, the Berlin war office says in its statement. In northern Poland, also, considerable gains are reported.

Petrograd military commentators assert that Russia will gain an advantage in falling back to her own territory by depriving Germany of the use of the railroads which she employed effectively in transporting troops along the front when the fighting was on German soil.

In French Lorraine the Germans achieved a local victory, occupying positions which the allies were able to recover only in part by a counter attack. French warfare continues with varying degrees of intensity elsewhere along the front and both the French and German war offices claim small victories.

Russia to Quit Offensive.

Petrograd, Feb. 16.—The forced retirement of the Russian army from East Prussia is expected to result in a reversion by the Russians to their original plan of conducting a defensive campaign on their own territory.

When an offensive campaign was undertaken and the Russians invaded East Prussia and Galicia early in the war, the Germans were forced to withdraw a large number of troops from the west.

This was considered here to have contributed largely to the German reverse in the battle of the Marne. Russian officials say that the object of their offensive campaign has been achieved and the disposition now is to fall back to their original plan of defensive operations on Russian soil along a line from the Nieman river in the north, through Ostrolenka-Rajgred and on to Graevo.

With this program in operation, Russian observers say, it probably will be possible to retard the German advance and at the same time defensive operations will be easier because the Russians will be harassed no longer by the lightning changes along the German front.

RUBBER HIDDEN IN COTTON

X-Ray Examination Shows Contraband In Cretic's Cargo.

New York, Feb. 16.—The X-ray examinations of cargoes of outgoing British ships, which have been conducted by representatives of the British government for several months, revealed that bales of cotton waste aboard the White Star liner Cretic contained rubber. The Cretic is due to sail for Mediterranean ports.

Each of the 178 bales in the consignment contained about four pounds of rubber. The entire consignment was refused shipment when the contraband was discovered.

K. Maher of the firm, who was here following a visit to the operations.

Strong on Fourthly.

There is a colored preacher in Colorado whose favorite theme has ever been infant baptism. So frequently were his sermons based upon this theme that his congregation at last could endure it no longer. Accordingly a deputation appointed by the flock waited upon the minister and in plain words advised him that in the event he could not find something else to say, they would get someone who could. The dusky divine promised to meet their wishes, and on the next Sunday announced as his text. "Adam Where Art Thou?"

"This text, brethren, ' declared the minister, "can be divided into fo' heads. First, evey man is somewhere. Secondly, most men are where they ain't got no business to be. Thirdly, you'd better look out or you'll be there yo'sef. Fo'thly, infant baptism. Now, brethern I reckon we might as well pass by the first three heads and come immediately to the fo'th—infant baptism."—Exchange.

Sunday Services at the Home of Mr. Arch Barnard.

On Sunday, February 14th, 1915, at the hour of three o'clock religious services were conducted by W. P. Good at the home of Mr. Arch Barnard for the benefit of his father, Mr. Charles Barnard, who is deprived of the pleasure of attending divine services in the house of God by infirmities of age and being blind. Mr. Barnard was eighty-two years of age on Sunday and has a remarkable memory of the scripture. Mr. Good used as the basis of his remarks, Psalms 37:25, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread." Others taking part in the services were G. W. Moon and H. C. Herschman.

Their many friends wish them a long and happy married life.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 21, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. iv, 1-13, 18 Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text Jas. 1, 22—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

As we read this chapter and the two following and vii, 1, 2, we cannot but notice the frequent mention of the ark of the Lord, or the ark of God, or some of its other titles, and when we recall that it was the principal vessel in the tabernacle and the only one of all the tabernacle vessels that continued to be used in the temple of Solomon, that it was made specially to be a receptacle for the two tables of the law, that over its blood stained lid or mercy seat and between the cherubim the glory of the Lord was revealed, and that from above the mercy seat the Lord communed with Moses, we must be persuaded that this vessel had a wonderful significance. And when we read in Rev. xi, 19, of the temple of God in heaven being opened and there being seen in it the ark of His Testament we stand in still greater awe before this holy vessel. It is mentioned forty times in the books of Moses and twenty-eight times in Joshua, chiefly in connection with the crossing of the Jordan. In our lesson chapter and those following it is mentioned thirty-seven times, so that we can easily see that the interest centers upon it.

Lesson verse 2 shows us Israel smitten before the Philistines, and we think that we hear again the words of Joshua, "O Lord, what shall I say when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies?" (Josh. vii, 8.) But, as then, so now, it was because of sin in the camp. As the elders considered the present defeat they did not seem to think that the difficulty might be with Israel, nor did they turn to the Lord, but said, "Let us fetch the ark of the covenant of the Lord that it may save us" (verse 3). The presence of the ark caused Israel to shout with a great shout, and when the Philistines understood that it was because the ark was come into the camp they said that God was come into the camp, the gods that smote the Egyptians. On the part of both Israel and the Philistines it seemed like pure superstition. The latter knew no better, but for Israel to put confidence in the ark rather than in the Lord reminds us of their worship of Aaron's golden calf and, away beyond the time of this lesson, their worship of the serpent of brass (II Kings xviii, 4).

Is it not the same today with those who think there is any benefit in the mere reading of a chapter in the Bible, or saying a prayer, or taking the communion, or in any religious formality? Anything that is not real heart dealing with the Living God is only a form of superstition. The Philistines were stirred to great fervor by the cry of their leaders, "Be strong; quit yourselves like men and fight" (verse 9), and the Lord delivered Israel into their hands so that 30,000 were slain, including Eli's two sons, and the ark of God was taken (verses 10, 11). Poor old Eli waited with fear and trembling for tidings from the battle, and when he heard the sad news and that the ark of God had been taken he fell off his seat backward and broke his neck and died. He was ninety-eight years old and had judged Israel forty years (verses 12-18). I think that while outwardly it was a broken neck it may have been inwardly a broken heart. In the same day it seems as if Phinehas' wife was also taken away (verses 19-22), so that a great calamity came to the house of Eli in one day (ii, 34). Thus suddenly have great events transpired again and again, and so shall it be at the end time.

The story of the ark in the hands of the Philistines (chapters v and vi) makes us think of Jerusalem, a burdensome stone for all people, and that all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces (Zech. xii, 3). The Philistines found the ark a very grievous thing to have in their midst, and after a few months (vi, 1) they were glad to send it back to Israel. The story of the new cart and the two milk cows tied to it, with their calves shut up at home and the cows taking the straight way to Beth-Shemesh, lowing as they went, but not turning aside to the right hand or to the left (vi, 7-12), is a wonderful record of the hand of the Lord upon dumb beasts and brings to mind the dominion over all sheep and oxen, beasts of the field, fowl of the air and fish of the sea that has had some foreshadowings all the way along, but will be fully seen when the kingdom comes (Ps. viii, 6-9; Heb. ii, 8, 9).

The men of Beth-Shemesh rejoiced greatly to welcome the ark, and they offered burnt offerings and sacrifices unto the Lord, but they made a sad mistake when they looked into the ark, and they suffered greatly for it. As we said at the beginning of this study, the ark was made to keep the holy law of God, which Israel could not keep. The blood sprinkled upon the mercy seat from year to year (Lev. xvi) told of the demands of the law met by a substitute, even Christ, the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4). Life never was nor could be by the law, which can only bring us all in guilty before God and is therefore called the ministration of death (Gal. iii, 21; Rom iii, 19; II Cor. iii, 7).

LITTLE LEFT NOW FOR US TO EAT

Food Faddists Have Put Nearly All Edibles Under the Ban.

What can a person eat with safety, anyhow? A man connected with the government in Washington has written a book, weighing at least a half pound, to prove that white wheat bread is almost as fatal as poison. Wheat flour would be all right for food, he asserts, if the wheat berry were ground whole, outside shell and all, but flour made of the wheat berries "denatured" by first husking its coat off is responsible for nearly all the infant mortality and many of the diseases of grown-ups.

The same with rice and corn. The way corn is ground nowadays makes it dangerous as food he says.

Soup? Never eat soup, another food reformer advises us; it is most injurious.

Potatoes? Too much starch, the food faddists tell us. Beware of potatoes.

And corn, on the cob and in the can. It ought really to be labeled "poison," it has caused so many cases of pellagra.

Beef? Shun it as you would a pestilence; it helps to cause Bright's disease and rheumatism.

We have read all of this with more or less patience. Some of us have taken these fulminations against our favorite fooods seriously and half starved ourselves as a result.

But now comes the last straw. A food sharp in the East has written a scathing denunciation of smoked ham and bacon. He declares that they are little better than slow poison. He warns you in all solemnity to never let a morsel of smoked ham or bacon pass your lips if you wish to keep well and live long.

Why, the country was pioneered and settled on a diet of smoked ham and bacon. And the most stalwart husbandmen the world ever knew are tilling the farms of America on the same diet.

Banish the smokehouse from the American farm and you would take away its chief source of sustenance and strength and destroy the most toothsome, healthgiving morsel on the national table.

The freedom of these United States was won with ham and bacon as much as with powder and ball. History tells us that the principal ration of the Revolutionary army when it had meat at all was bacon. The armies of the Civil war lived and fought largely on ham and bacon and salt pork.

The first pioneers who came out from the settlements of the East to the plains and forested hills of the West lived on bacon and johnnycake on the journey. Bacon and greens, bacon and hominy were the staff of life of the early settlers of all this western country.

When Daniel Boone started on horseback from Kentucky to Missouri he chucked a side of bacon into one saddlebag and a sack of corn meal into the other to balance the load.

The backbone of every "grub stake," of every prospector, of every voyager, of every pioneer who blazed the way into the new West was bacon and a frying pan went along with it.

Fried bacon, brown and crisp; ham and eggs, sizzling in the pan; boiled ham hock and cabbage—are these things to go? Not if all the learned doctors on earth denounced them. Not even if they were forbidden by law. We stand on our constitutional rights as American citizens!

A Satisfied Investor.

Friendsville, Md.,
January 19th, 1915.

Mr. R. E. Sliger, Agent,
Sun Life Assurance Company,
Oakland, Md.

Dear Sir:—I have received notice from your company that the dividend on my policy this year is $18.50; and I feel that it is my duty to write you just how much I am pleased with this result. My first premium was $105.00 on a five thousand dollar policy, and by using the dividend this year as part payment, it makes the second premium $86.50.

I have had the protection of $5000.00 for death, and if I had been totally disabled the company would have paid the premiums in the future and matured the policy, or would have paid me an income of $250.00 per year for twenty years if I desired.

I feel that the first thing to be considered in an insurance policy is the protection; but if it also combines a good investment with the protection, and the money paid for premiums is saved for old age, it then becomes the ideal way to save money.

Very truly yours,

CHICKENS LAY "SHERRY AND EGG."

Coffee At a Dollar A Pint Gives That Morning After Taste.

The people of Fairmont, says West Virginia is really dry. The bootleggers have gone to selling coffee. If you don't believe it, ask the Java topers who contributed $200 to a former member of the "John Barleycorn" fraternity, who unloaded 200 pints of coffee at one dollar per, at Clarksburg Monday evening.

Tuesday morning, "the morning after the night before," was even worse for most of the thirsty souls than the after-effects of a regular celebration. They walked the streets with their tongues lagging out—and, yes, they had a dark brown taste in their mouth's,—(that's the color of coffee you know), and their eyes were green—not from the effects of Barleycorn, but madness. They were looking for the fellow who put over the job.

Some refused to tell how the scheme had been worked, but from what little could be learned, it is said that the bootlegger, as usual, sent a message from Oakland, telling all who wished to have their thirst quenched might get their supply from him at one dollar per pint. "This was a bargain—why we have been paying the bootleggers' union one-fifty for the same brand," was whispered about among the crowd. When the train arrived at the Clarksburg station the reception committee was there to meet the welcome guest and get "theirs." He stepped from the train, smilling, and after he had unloaded his luggage, he cautioned his customers not to unwrap the bottles until he had again boarded the train, for fear that the sleuths might arrest him. In less than five minutes the "bootlegger" had peddled 200 pints of the precious wet goods and had collected $200 as his share of the receipts. The train whistled and he was on his way.

The final scene was enacted in dark alleys and places of seclusion. Corks popped from scores of bottles and mouths watered for a taste of the precious contents. Then some one was heard to say. "Something's wrong with this bottle—this doesn't taste right; there must be a mistake." And every bottle was the same. "Why the crook has sold us coffee," snarled an indignant gentleman, who had begun to froth at the mouth, for want of a stimulant.

Further investigation revealed that every one of the 200 bottles contained nothing more than a few grains of coffee mixed with hot water. From conservative estimates the "Java peddler" made just $198. The coffee for the "whiskey" cost him about two dollars.

Although a number of sleuths were said to be trailing the peddler, his whereabouts are unknown. It is said that the Clarksburg coffee topers have wired their friends in other cities to be on the lookout for him.

Members of the Fairmont bootlegger's union refused to give out any interview concerning the Clarksburg incident, furthur than to intimate that their plans in that city had been foiled. It is stated that the bootleggers in all the cities were to work the coffee game all the same time. The Clarksburg peddler violated the rules and every member of his fraternity was made to suffer.

Secret meetings of the peddlers of John Barleycorn are on this week's program, according to a rumor on Fairmont streets. It appears that the state prohibition commissioner is having such stringent laws passed at the legislature that the organization may go into the hands of the receivers, and if something is not done soon, so that the members may be able to get their goods into the state that the union will most likely be dissolved.

Sunday the New York World, in a cartoon, showed the various ways that are used in getting intoxicants into dry territory. The "pumpkin" scheme worked by an Ohio farmer, who injected the fire-water into a number of squashes and sold them at a fancy price; the reinforced peanuts filled with squirrel whiskey; the water mellon plan as used in Kansas; the hot "dogs" filled with Wurtzburger; and and the hen that was fed with cherries and sent to a dry state laid a "cherry and egg," were all cleverly depicted. The aeroplane scheme as proposed for Wheeling was described. The only thing overlooked was the way some foreigners living in West Virginia got their beer from Ohio by floating the kegs across the Ohio river and the coffee plan as worked at Clarksburg, it can readily be seen that every secret of the organization has been found out. It is even hinted that after the half-gallon limit law goes into effect that the prohibition sleuths will be armed with stomach pumps, and in case of an emergency, when they have reason to believe that some persons may be carrying a few drops over a half gallon, that they can pump it out of the victim and thus prosecute him for violating the law.

Was Not Shot in The Head.

The adage, "If you want to hear the news, you must go away from home," was proven true Saturday, when the Cumberland News published the following:

Charles Jonoski and Lafayette Noel met on the Northwestern Pike between Oakland and Gorman yesterday and had an altercation in which Noel received a wound in the head from a bullet, but which is not considered dangerous inasmuch as the bullet failed to find a lodging in the skull, but inflictad a severe and deep scalp wound.

Jonoski is a dog tax collector and deputy game warden in Garrett county and met Noel who was riding horse back on the road. Jonoski informed Noel that he wanted his dog tax, but Noel stated he had no dog and Janoski said he would go to Noel's home to investigate as he believed he did own a dog. Noel forbade him doing this and some hot words followed and Jonoski struck Noel with a cane, it is alleged. This riled Noel, who jumped from his horse, grabbing the dog catcher by the throat, it is said, where upon, it is stated, Jonoski pulled a revolver, and aiming at Noel's head, fired.

Noel made his way to a physician to get his wounds dressed and then proceeded to Oakland. He states that he went to the states attorney of Garrett county and asked for a warrant for Jonoski, and that he refused to issue one.

It is true Jonoski and Noel met on the public road, but it is not true that Noel was shot. He did receive a few bruises on the head from a cane. Dr. Hinebaugh dressed Noel's wounds after he came to Oakland.

It is not true that States Attorney Renninger refused to have a warrant issued for Janoskie's arrest. On the contrary Mr. Renninger took Mr. Noel before Squire Rudisill and prepared the warrant for Jonoskie's arrest, on the sworn information of Noel, which was issued by Squire Rudisill and served by Deputy Sheriff DeWitt.

Not only that, but Mr. Renninger insisted upon Noel having his wounds dressed at once and not wait until he returned to his home.

The trial took place Wednesday before Squire Rudisill, and Jonoski was held for court.

PARADISE

Last Friday Chauncey Glass, with his son Robert visited Mt. Lake Park. The snow had vanished, but mud was in evidence, which did not help, aid or assist the act of sledding. Accordingly, Mr. Glass started to walk across the sod from the ball ground to the river bridge, and son Robbie brought up the rear with the team, when without just cause or provocation Mr. Freeland, disturber of Brother Glass's peace and agitator of Robbie's tranquility, accosted him, informing him that he was under arrest for driving his team across the "city limits," which is used as a cow pasture between acts.

The facts are that Mr. Glass was walking probably 150 yards in advance of a team belonging to and being driven by Robert Glass, the only descendent and sole heir to the estate of Chauncey Glass, and that said accused was in no way responsible for the act of said Robert Glass.

Brother Chauncey, of course, pleaded guilty, denied the charge and did, or attempted to do everything but hand over cash as demanded.

After much deliberation and fruitless efforts, plaintiff and defendant adjournment to the office of Squire Rudisil in Oakland, where the fine was made $2.10, but by careful manipulation on the part of Mr. Glass, he received his honorable discharge with the official signature and revenue stamp thereunto affixed, for the total sum of $2, lawful money of the United States.

The public generally feel that Mr. Glass has been wronged, as he was only following the example of others who had crossed before him unmolested, and no conceivable damage was or could be done at this season of the year, and he is in no way responsible for his sons' acts, as he has long since attained his majority.

On the charge of "false arrest," we understand that prominent attorneys will prosecute the case against the offending officer.

G. W. Weitzell boasts of 37 young chicks as being the first birds of Paradise hatched in 1915. Eleven of said chicks owe their being to a large yellow thomas cat which assisted in the act of incubation by driving the hen off the nest at night and sleeping on the eggs. The cat will be "re sot" as soon as the weather settles.

Alvin Fike is hauling limestone from McHenry to his farm here, preparatory to burning a kiln. This may be classed as one of the things a man will do "once."

Arthur Harvey, and family spent Sunday at Meese's.

Recently while Billy Kimmel was making mine ties, he composed the song, "Everybody's Doing This Now," which promises to be a popular "hit."

Mrs. Aaron Kerins recently borrowed a steel trap. We fear it is late in the season to launch her canoe in the fur business.

BARN AND CONTENTS BURNED

Loss of Building and Contents on James Guard's Farm Complete.

The large barn on the farm of James Guard, near Friendsville, was burned to the ground on Tuesday morning of this week, along with all its contents, including six head of horses, sixteen head of cattle and some other live stock, wagons, machinery, all the grain and hay stored in it, and some harness.

The cause of the fire was of an unknown origin, with insurance in force of about $800. Mr. Guard's loss above the insurance will amount to several thousand dollars.

NORTH GLADE

Wm. Good, of Swanton, held religous services for us Sunday, 14th inst. Rev, McAmic was also present.

Judge and Mrs. Harvey have been visiting at Ryans Glade for several days.

Quite a number of persons from here attended the funeral of Mrs. S. F. Broadwater at Dry Run last Thursday. Mr. Broadwater and family have our sympathy.

Mr. Ameen, of Kitzmiller, has just recently installed gasoline lighting plants in the homes of the following: Theodore and D. E. Beckman, J. A. Wilt, G. W. Moon and Mason Brothers. Others will probably "turn on the light."

We have just learned of the serious illness of Wm. Junkins. Hope he may soon recover.

Mr. W. H. O'Brien is about to lose a fine young horse.

Mr. Wm. Fitzwater's team ran away recently and nearly killed one of the horses. Chas. Ashby, of Deer Park, rendered surgical aid.

Spring time seems near at hand and farmers are getting busy. This is a land of peace and plenty, and although exorbitant prices prevail in necessaries of life, it is better than war, and we must "grin and bear" war taxes, dog taxes, and many other grievances yet a little while.

A Touch of Real Spring.

True there are three more days of February and all of March, with its wind and sleet, but notwithstanding that fact, it was a hard matter Sunday to convince any Garrett countian that spring was not here.

And, at that, if it were not spring it should have been. There was a temperature that hovered about 60 degrees; there was not a cloud in the sky, which was of that clear blue always associated with late May, and there were the hundreds of young, almost young and not young on the principal thoroughfares of the county and Oakland all wearing spring creations. Heavy overcoats, for the best part were invisible, so far as the men were concerned, the fashionable youth wearing a light coat. And it that wasn't spring—well.

It happened to be the first really fine Sunday for more than 10 weeks, and to this fact was probably due the crowds on the principal thoroughfares of the county.

Two Deaths at Blooming Rose.

The home of our neighbor and friend, Quinter Hook, is a place of sadness. Death has come in it and taken two of his children, a little boy and girl.

Measles, carried in the home, unintentionally, together with colds and croup, which developed diphtheria according to the attending physician. Everything was done that could be done, but of no avail.

Floyd Milton was the first, a little over a week ago, then followed little Bina Ellen. They were buried in Blooming Rose cemetery to await the coming of the Lord. Their spirits are with Christ for He loved children while on earth. He said, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." They cannot come back, but they can go to them. We extend our sympathy but it does not relieve their broken hearts, or soothe the anguish.

God alone can heal the wounds and if they live according to his plan, some "sweet" day they will meet their loved ones in the skies with myriads of angles.

WARNING FOR EMPLOYERS.

Commission Notifies Many Who Have Not Met Requirements.

The State Industrial Accident Commission is sending out a circular warning to a large number of employers throughout the State that are believed to come within the provisions of the Workmen's Compensatisn law, but who have not made any provision to comply with the act.

As the law is new and not well understood by many employers, the commission has not attempted to enforce the penalties for noncompliance up to this time. Warnings have been issued to many and these will be followed by warnings to all that the commission can discover. Inspectors will as far as possible personally see the negligent employers, but thereafter the commission intends to enforce the penalties on such as still refuse to comply.

Under the law every employer who does not make provision for his employes by insurance or otherwise to the satisfaction of the commission is subject to a fine of from $500 to $5,000. In addition to this any employer who refuses or neglects to insure within 10 days after being ordered to do so is liable for the amount of premiums charged by the State fund and six months' premiums as a penalty.

Mrs. Emma R. Chambers was awarded $8 a week for 7 years and 11 weeks by the commission last Friday for the death of her son, Edward M. Chambers, aged 20 years, who was accidently killed on December 7 last while at work for the Kendall Lumber Company in Garrett county. A number of interesting points were decided in the case.

The husband of the claimant was a policeman in Baltimore and died last year. He left a widow, the son who was killed in Garrett county, another son, 12 years old, and a daughter, who is self-supporting. It was shown that Edward contributed to the support of his mother and brother about $4.50 a week, but expected to give more when his salary was raised, as had been promised. It was shown that Mrs. Chambers had received some $2,580 from various fraternal orders and insurance companies and relied partly upon that money for support, but the commission decided that under the law insurance payments such as these could not be taken into consideration in fixing insurance.

But as the money received by her as the result of her husband's death helped to meet her living expenses, the commission ruled that she was only partly dependent for support upon her son. Next came the question of determining the amount of the payment to be allowed her because of her partial dependency upon her son.

It was shown that while he was working for $48.10 a month he had been promised a raise to $75 a month, to become effective March 1. The law provides that in fixing compensation expected wage increases shall be taken into consideration. The commission therefore decided that the son's average monthly wage would be $65, or $16 a week. Mrs. Chambers being entitled to one-half the weekly wage as thus determined.

The law also provides that partial dependents shall not receive more than $3,000 all told. Hence the payments to be made to her were directed to extend over a period sufficiently long to yield that amount.

Midland Girls Had Good Time.

Monday's Cumberland Times, in its letter from Midland, published the following concerning the basket ball game played in Oakland on Saturday night between the Oakland and Midland teams:

The Midland girls' basketball team under the chaperonage of Miss Mary Stakem, journeyed to Oakland Saturday night and after the fastest and most interesting game played by girls in Oakland were defeated by the home team by the score to 9 to 1. An enormous crowd witnessed the contest and voted it the fastest game yet exhibited by the female exponents in the town. Fast plays featured throughout and the clever work of the Midland team prevented Oakland from piling up a large score.

The girls report royal treatment at the hands of the Oaklandities, having spent a delightful evening after the game at an entertainment at the hotel in their honor. The guests present were: Misses Mary Sincell, Bessie Henderson, Evelyn Helbig, Clara Bush, Grace Laffey, Carrie Mann, Mary Stakem, Agnes Stakem, Pennet Anderson, Bernice Marshall, Marguerite McGuire, Lillian Winner, Grace Bererage, Bertha McGowan, Florence Gibson, Jennie Russell, Lena Ravenscroft; Messrs. Otto Melamet, Ed. Chance, Joe Rathbun, Leo Lyon, Mose Sincell and Albert Jones, of Cumberland.

EDUCATIONAL MATTERS

Weekly Gleanings From The Oakland High School.

Professor Ziehl, principal of the Kitzmiller High School, visited us last Friday.

Playford Naylor, a senior, has been confined to his home the past few days with an attack of la grippe.

President of the School Board R. E. Sliger visited us Monday.

Mr. Ray Jones gave a very interesting address on Washington Monday afternoon. At the close of the afternoon programme many of the students went to the Maryland Theatre where a fine programme was being rendered by the grammar school students in honor of Washington.

An ordinary wagon and horse is a source of much pleasure. That is what a jolly crowd of high school people thought last Monday afternoon. Of course, it was after school, when a solitary driver and one passenger in a wagon drove past the students. In an instant the little wagon groaned under the weight of the superfluous amount of humanity. But it wae an enjoyable ride and before they realized it, they were quite near Mt. Lake Park. A pleasant homeward walk concluded the escapade.

Recently our girls played a game at Piedmont. It was a swift and interesting one and hotly contested. Our team was defeated by a small margin, the score being 11-13. This is indeed no discredit, for they have a most admirable record back on them.

The game between the Midland ladies and the O. H. S. team last Saturday night was another exhibition of the ability of our team. The visiting players were defeated to the score 9-1.

Oakland has been showing a great deal of interest in basket ball this season, and the average game has been well attended. The spirit shown will boost the town and fire the enthusiasm of our players and it will spur them on to play a game that is always a credit to them and their town.

In order to study the welfare of the pupils in home, school and community, and create a mutual understanding between parents and teachers, and their co-operation in all work for the interest of the pupils, the principal has prepared the following programme for a parents' meeting to be held in the assembly room of the high school Friday evening, March 5, at 7:30 o'clock:

The Teacher, in and out of School, Mr. Scott T. Jones; The Pupil in School, Mrs. J. C. Ely; The Social Life of the Pupil as a Factor in His Education, Rev. O. A. Bremer; Sanitation, Mrs. E. Z. Tower; Occupations and Amusements of the Pupil Outside of School, Mrs. H. A. Loraditch; The Relation of the Community to Its High School, Rev. Archibald Moore; generel conference.

The programme will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental music. It is hoped that many parents, as well as other friends of education, will be present at this meeting.

The High School Girls are winning fame,
For they have scarcely lost a game,
Last Saturday night they played just for fun
And finished with the excellent score of 9-1.

We hear considerable complaint of the manner some automobile drivers are running their automobiles over the streets of this city said a prominent citizen Monday. "I expect to see or hear of some person being killed any day, from the way some people run their car." A few arrests for fast driving would be a wise treatment of the case.

The High school and Grammar schools of Oakland are to be congratulated upon the splendid programs presented last Monday, the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, Patriot, Statesman, Soldier and Hero of the beginning of this great program. The occasion was to the credit of the schools and all who took part.

Misses Amelia and Helen Thrasher, of Deer Park, are being entertained by friends in Washington City and in Baltimore. In Washington they have greatly enjoyed the Congressional sessions at the Capitol and other attractions of the city. In Baltimore Mrs. Elmer Haulenbeek, of 315 E. 24th street, and Mrs. Paul A. Trageser, of No. 2001 Cecil Avenue, have given them a Maryland welcome. They are enjoying every moment of their time.

TURNEY—LITTLE—Miss Alice W. Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Litttle and Mr. Milton Turney, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turney, of Oakland, were married Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Lutheran parsonage by Rev. O. A. Bremer.

PEDDICORD—ECHARD—Last Tuesday, 5 p. m. Mr. Fred C. Peddicord, son of Postmaster and Mrs. J. C. Peddicord, this city, and Miss Lucile E. Echard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Echard, of Mountain Lake Park, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert White, this city, and met Rev. Archibald Moore, D. D., pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church and were united in holy wedlock. The newly-weds went to the home of the groom's parents where they will remain until the nest being prepared for them is ready for ocupancy, he having rented the house formerly occupied by Norman Sanner and family. The house is being papered and painted.

Box Supper and Spelling Bee.

For the purpose of contributing financial aid toward maintaining the public schools of Oakland for a period of nine months, the Woman's Civic Club will conduct a box social and spelling bee and give a musicale at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Oakland on Tuesday evening of next week. A silver offering will be taken at the door. The Oakland orchestra will furnish the music. All are invited to attend.

Fine and Costs $37.00.

Squire Rudisill's court drew another full house yesterday when three cases from Accident were taken up. The charge of disturbing the public peace had been preferred against William Durst, Harry Schlossnagle and Sylvanus Schlossnagle. Each was found guilty. The total fine and costs reached over $37.00. Attorney Renninger appeared for the State and A. T. Matthews for the Messrs. Schlossnagle.

Albert Selbough and Bessie M. Artice, of Selbysport, went to Cumberland and took out a marriage license.

GOLDSBOROUGH AGAIN?

His Republican Friends Are Urging His Renomination.

Republican friends of Governor Goldsborough are beginning to discuss his availability as a candidate to succeed himself. At a political dinner in Cumberland in 1913 the Governor said he would not again be a candidate for the high position occupied by him. "However," as one of his friends said yesterday, "times change and men change with them."

This man, who is prominent in the state, explained that the Governor had reached no decision as to his future course, but he added that the Executive had not turned a deaf ear to suggestions that he enter the party primaries to succeed himself.

There are other Republicans anxious to have a try at the gubernatorial chair, and one or two of these, it is believed, would not get out of the race in favor of the Governor under any consideration. One of these men is Col. E. C. Carrington, who has informed his friends that he is in the governorship fight just as much as he was in the senatorial contest last year, and when he won his nomination through the failure of other candidates to oppose him. Mr. Carrington left for a fortnight's stay in Florida last Saturday, but before leaving the city he reiterated his intention to be a candidate.

By directing the attention of our readers to the advertising columns of The Republican today it will be noticed that the Mayor and Council give notice of the election to be held on Monday, March 8th, when three members of Council are to be elected. While three vacancies will exist by reason of the terms of three councilmen expiring, the resignation of Councilmen Deffinbaugh, which was tendered at the last regular meeting of the body, makes an additional vacancy, which Council will fill by appointment, Mr. Deffinbaugh's successor serving out his unexpired term. The resignation of Mr. Deffinbaugh was caused by his having been appointed postmaster, the appointment having been confirmed on Saturday by the Senate in exeuctive session.

We, of this vicinity, are beginning to wish that fewer tramps were abroad in this part of the globe. Their name is legion. A squad of them spent a recent night at Beckman's crossing and burnt up a large pile of B. & O. cross ties during the night.

H. B. Harvey takes time while settling up his store business to haul "things to be used" to his farm near Wesley Chapel. We are glad to know that he and his wife are not to leave this vicinity.

Next Monday there will be something doing at the People's store. The new firm will be on deck. It will be a get-you acquainted day. Open house all day long. Everybody busy taking stock this week.

As soon as vacated, Judge Cuppett will improve the property he purchased from A. D. Naylor, and make it one of the desirable properties of the Park. This is an indication that something will be going in the Park.

The shouting time is almost here. April 30th will soon be here. "The day of our deliverance draweth nigh."

In about two months more our summer visitors will be returning to the Park.

Chester Custer has set his saw mill on John Uphole's tract of land near the Park and will be soon in operation cutting up the timber into lumber and cross ties.

"First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," will be the motto over all.

Sparks from a B. & O. engine last Sunday afternoon set fire to the dead grass, along the railroad track, in front of Mr. Larney Carr's property, and burnt the grass off up to the county road and the park drive.

Dr. Ward's Letter From New England.

To the Editor of The Republican.

As promised, will send you a little description of my trip East, and how I think I like it. It is a nice little run from Oakland, Md., to Auburn, Me.,—at least 750 miles; about 12 hours to New York city, where we spend our first day, which is indeed, a pretty good sized town; about every thing goes on there, of course. At 9:40 p. m., we take the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway for Maine, via Boston and Portland, reaching Auburn, Maine, at 10:03 a. m.

With grip in hand, and without a word of information, or knowing a soul in the place, but simply asking a workman on the sidewalk, if this was the Main street into Auburn, we walked to the New Elm Hotel, across the street from the court house and within fifty yards of the First Methodist Episcopal church, (there being three Methodist churches here) and taking rooms in the hotel settle down, to get aquainted with Auburn.

This city in connection with Lewiston has a population of 42,000 people—the second largest city in the State.

The people are alert, quick and intelligent and exceedingly polite and courteous. This is Maine. The city is well improved, having all the modern conveniences; the electric railways run here and there in every direction, making travel convenient and a delight. The winters of course are fine. Plenty of snow and good sleighing most of the winter, and the great fur coat and cap is much in demand, the thermometer registering from 30 degress to 60 degrees below zero, "in the State of Maine." This is an unusual winter. Rained all day yesterday, (24 hours) then ceased, and this morning it is mild and beautful. The older citizens say the winter is "broken."

I have been pleased to meet some of the elderly gentlemen of this city. For instance, Dr. Sturgis, a fine typical New Englander. I wonder if our own Dr. Sturgis of Oakland, knows anything about him. He ought to; a fine gentleman, and also Major Bridgeman, of the U. S. Military service, who began to speak the praise of Maryland and her people, so soon as they told him I was from the South. His wife was a Marylander. Good people these; they are magnanimous.

R. B. WARD.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT

A Splendid Program Well Rendered Monday Afternoon.

The faculty of the Oakland Grammar school are to be congratulated upon the splendid arrangements made for the observance of Washington's birthday and the splendid program provided and for the successful carrying out of all the arrangements. The scholars met at the school building after dinner, formed into a marching column, by twos, each scholar carrying a small flag, about 10x14 inches. The column was headed by the Mountain City band, in uniform. The band tuned up the old town in good shape as the procession moved along to the Maryland Theatre where the exercises were held. Following the band were two boys holding a large stretched out flag, of which every loyal American is proud of, then came the scholars accompanied by their teachers.

It was a great sight, full of inspiration and hope. A lesson of patriotism was taught to these students which will be of great value, in the days to come to this country of ours. It was an impressive scene and will long be remembered.

Those assembled in the Theatre, and it was crowded, were Oakland's most substantial people who gave their presence and influence to encourage the school in the patriotic effort they put forth and they were well paid for so doing.

With all Europe at war and with the United States standing by as a neutral always facing the possibility, if not the probability, of being drawn into the gigantic conflict, the feeling of patriotism in the breasts of Americans is particularly marked. And there is nothing which tends to inspire patriotism in America more than the mention of George Washington and the observance of this day.

As the High School notes will give an account of the observance of the day in their building, we will not attempt to do so. They too did their part loyally and well and brought credit to both faculty and students. The Republican congratulates the school teachers of the county for their good work last Monday, for in many parts of the county appropriate exercises were held.

America's Mineral Products.

The mineral products of the United States are discussed in a small volume now being distributed by the United States Geological Survey which contains a fund of useful information concerning the useful minerals and their values and production in all the States during 1912 and 1913. The figures given in some of the tables are so stupendous as to be beyond comprehension. In one table are given the figures for mineral production from 1880 to 1913, the metals being valued at $185,000,000 in 1880 and increasing to $883,000,000 in 1913. The nonmetallic minerals increased from $173,000,000 in 1880 to $1,562,000,000 in 1913, and the total mineral production from $365,000,000 to $2,446,000,000. This total for 1913 was an increase over 1912 of more than $200,000,000. The values of the metals imported for consumption in 1913 was $237,000,000 and of those exported $319,000,000. The value of the total mineral production from 1880 to 1913, inclusive, was $35,197,000,000.

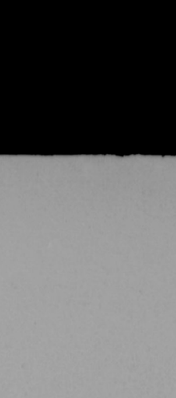
Little Problems of Married Life

By William George Jordan

[Copyright, 1910, by Fleming H. Revell company.]

VII.—Marriage Success on Business Lines.



Drifting to Sea.

MATRIMONY is the greatest business in the world. It employs the largest number of people, for the longest period of time, and has the bulk of the world's capital invested in it. Most of the other business enterprises are held in trust for this one. They are tributary to it, feeders to it, providers for it, preparers for it.

There is no faintest shadow of irreverence in calling matrimony a business, no slightest tinge of disrespect to its sweetness, its sacredness, its sentiment, its poetry or its possibilities. Marriage is the greatest business, for it keeps busy most of the people. In its perfection and in its ideal it means two living at their highest and best as individuals and in united harmony. It is consecrated duality in unity. It means a life partnership of two in the pursuit of happiness. This most important business should be conducted on business lines. There should be constant, concentrated effort to make it a success. Success comes not from drifting, but wisely working.

If men and women put into their married life the same seriousness of thought, intensity of purpose, patience, sacrifice and determination to make it a success that they devote to seeking to make a business prosper, the world would be transformed. Failures would be few; divorce, the bankruptcy of matrimony, would be rare, and the two could command success by their united determination to win it.

Success in marriage depends finally and solely on the two themselves. It is not what they have, but what they are; not what comes to them, but how they meet it that counts. Sickness, sorrow, trial, misfortune and poverty may even make them nearer and dearer to each other in truer union and finer unity. What they suffer for each other and with each other brings them closer together. What they suffer from each other gradually forces them apart.

Man does not expect to succeed in business by merely starting it and honoring it with the sunshine of his presence. He realizes it is not an automatic music machine where he has merely to put on a success record, start the mechanism and then sit back comfortably and delight his ears with the music of prosperity. If he wants dividends of success he must pay the assessments of effort. If we want real lasting harmony and melody in married life we must make our own music. It means the collaboration of two, never the lonely contribution of one.

In business when problems arise a man seeks to solve them. If inharmonies threaten to destroy his success he seeks to remove them. If one method fails he tries another. He does not let things drift or work themselves out some way. He knows it is his business to find out where things are wrong and how he can right them. He does not shut his eyes to troubles and think he is curing them by obscuring them.

Men are often blind or resigned in a cowardly way to unpleasant conditions in the home partnership that they would never surrender to in their office business. They often accept as inevitable in their home life what they could change if they only would. It is unjust to both for the husband or wife to accept any wrong condition, if any amount of effort will set it right. When all methods fail, bearing bravely may be moral strength; before they have been even tested, bearing meekly is sheer weakness.

There are people who fan themselves into serene self satisfaction with the thought that they are heroically accepting the shadows and shallows of married life, its preventable pain, sorrow and discord, when they are really only too lazy mentally or inert morally to take a bold, firm stand to win the freedom of thought, harmony and peace they desire. They are not considering matrimony as a business they must make succeed; they are degrading it to the gamble class. They have the assumed airy indifference of a man who has drawn a blank in a lottery and is trying hard to forget it.

When an excited customer enters a business house with some grievance, real or fancied, parades a schedule of wrongs and injustices as long as a tariff bill and starts in on a high keyed monologue of protest, exploding epithets of denunciation and filling the air with sparks of phrases sulphurous with indignation, the wise man of business remains cool and calm. He realizes that by losing his temper he may lose a customer, that it would be unwise, it would not pay. He waits patiently for a comma of intermission, a slight slackening in the cascading torrent of speech.

He smiles apologies; he presses the soft pedal of expression; he explains, defers, conciliates. He argues gently, appeals to reason, to justice, to pride; he seeks to create an atmosphere of cordiality. He feels a pleasing glow of triumph in the consciousness that he has met an unpleasant situation wisely, calmed the angry waters by the oil of his tact and perhaps converted an irritated customer into almost a friend.

Why does he not try the same method at home? Why does he not answer gently the first few words of a discord there, disarm the sting of a sarcasm by a smile, forego the victory of his logical position by a word of tenderness or a caress that gives him a finer triumph through a sweet appeal to sentiment, the logic of the heart?

When a man finds that he and his business partner do not agree he says in a tone that will not make his partner feel that he is being put through the third degree:

"We do not seem to have struck it right somehow recently; we are on the wrong trail; we are drifting and we must find our way back. We are in this business together to make it a success; it needs us both; we need each other. There is something wrong somehow. I may be at fault or you may be to blame; perhaps neither of us is cut out for an archangel. Let us talk it all over quietly and see if we can get our bearings; let us call a new deal and start all over."

But there may be in his home firm a little woman who realizes that they, too, are drifting. She knows down in her heart that she loves him and she needs him and that he loves her, but somehow little discords are separating them.

It seems as though she is in a fog and she has lost her bearings and the love laden craft of their happiness has somehow slipped from its moorings in the silence and the dark and is drifting far out to the great open sea. And she feels hopeless and helpless; she wants to do the right thing, but she does not know what she should do or say that will be right. They are just drifting, and she is tired and worn, heartsick and heart hungry, and she wants to be comforted by loving arms as we soothe a frightened, sobbing child. She cannot find her way back—alone.

If the husband, so wise in his office, were to transplant his business wisdom to the home, he could bring back the atmosphere of the old courtship days in a single hour. Seeking not the blame of either, but the happiness of both, with no shadow of recrimination, he could tell her sweetly, seriously and calmly, with the occasional punctuation mark of a caress or a gentle pressure of the hand, that they need each other and they have somewhere stumbled on a wrong trail and must go back together hand in hand to find the right path, and they will get light and love from each other, and they will forgive and forget, and they, too, will "have a new deal and begin all over."

The resulting happiness is foreordained. It is merely business wisdom. It is consecrated common sense, bringing the two home partners closer together and inspiring the home firm with new life, courage and confidence.

In business there are minor annoyances, trivial irritations and petty trials, usually taken for what they are worth, accepted as "all in the day's work," seen in their proper perspective, passed by with a smile and a shrug of the shoulders and forgotten in a few moments. In married life trifles are often exaggerated, augmented by argument, given a fictitious value, vitality and force out of all proportion to their real import.

Sometimes it takes only three minutes from unjust impatience over an underdone chop to a fever heat temperature, followed by thunder rumblings of protest, dark clouds, lightning flashes of superheated indignation, sudden coldness, falling barometer and a rain of tears. One stalks out of the dining room, leaving a trail of smoke and sparks of irritation like a speeding locomotive, while the other buries her head in her arms near the untouched dishes and just sobs in the silence, for her world of happiness has come to an end—again.

Happiness Has Come to an End.

In successful business partnership there are cheerful conference and counsel whenever it seems necessary to unite the best thought of both on the problem of both, but there is respect for each other's position, duties and responsibility. They avoid even the suggestion or semblance of intrusion or interference. They realize that their united strength comes from the fact that each is doing a work distinctly different from the other.

This business wisdom of noninterference might well be introduced into many home firms. When a husband is tempted by a meddling spirit of bossism to run every detail of the home and assumes omniscience on every phase of housekeeping from the cellar to the cupola, let him think for a moment how his partner downtown would resent a similar intrusion and then quietly subside into silence. The wife, too, must realize that, while her keen fresh mind may serve her husband in some business problem which troubles him and which he carefully presents to her, she should be satisfied with being ready to help in need, but she usurps undue authority when she actually attempts to control his business for him.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Basket Ball and Some Interpretation of the Rules of The Game.

To the Editor of The Resublican.

On several occasions we have been asked by friends to write an article on basket ball, to which we now reply.

As an athletic sport we believe basket ball to qualify among the first. It has all those qualities that tests the real mental and moral as well as the physical strength of the player. We have all had occasion, if we are interested in basket ball, to see the behavior of the various players upon the floor. The man who has properly disciplined himself will have himself under such perfect control that he will allow absolutely nothing to disturb his mental poise. It requires all his faculties to play his part in the game without the handicap of having his energy consumed by useless anger. We have all seen teams go to pieces, as it were, because an apparently unfair decision had been rendered. Not until that decision was forgotten did they play their usual game. One man on the team may spoil the game for the other four. With one man angry the team cannot be the well-ordered machine that makes it a consistent winner. Every manager and captain should demand of each individual player that he allow nothing to anger him in the game. If this request goes unheeded he should be disciplined.

We have seen games where the five men worked together in such perfect harmony that it seemed that the muscle of the five was responding to the mental processes of a single brain. We have seen other games where every man was trying to be an individual star, throwing team work to the winds in order to make spectacular plays. Such a player cares nothing for the final decision of the game if he has succeeded in covering himself with personal glory. We have seen guards vie with the forward in shooting goals when it was his business to guard his man. We have seen other guards so busy with his particular work in the game that not a single goal was registered to his credit, tut be it said to his credit that there was none registered to the credit of the opposing forward. It is the business of the guard to guard. If he keeps the other man from scoring he has played a star game even though he did not shoot a goal. It is the business of the forward to manage in some way to delude his guard and be near his basket the moment the ball is in his team mate's hands. We confess that this is not always an easy task, but somehow it must be accomplished if games are to won. The center has by far the most latitude of any man on the team. After the ball has been tossed at center he is a free lance to do what seems best. If he is good at shooting goals and he finds that the opposing center is not, he may leave him and play the position of forward. This part is often played by Mr. Sanner of the Oakland Collegians. His position on the team is center, but few of his opponents are equal to him in shooting goals, consequently he often leaves his man in order to be free to aid the forwards. If on the other hand the center finds that his opponent is better at throwing goals than himself he must play the part of guard.

We have nothing but words of praise for the Oakland Collegians. We believe they have made wonderful improvement since the opening of the season. We also believe that they deserve to rank among the first of the teams in this section of the country. They have shown a wonderful capacity for "coming back" in the second half when they had been nearly "swamped" in the first. This happened in both the Grafton and Mount Savage games, which were two of the fastest games of the season. We believe that with a strict adherence to the rules of training the Oakland Collegians could be champions of this state the coming season. The boys are fast, strong and use their heads, three essentials to a winning game.

The game with Grafton was a hard and fast game. It was rough because the teams were so equally matched. There was very little intentional roughness. On one occasion however the two centers almost came to blows which resulted in the expulsion of the Grafton player. He being the chief offender there was nothing for the referee to do but enforce the rules.

The game with Mount Savage was probably the roughest game of the season. We are convinced that the visiting team was intentionally rough. They have that reputation and they certainly maintained it on the Oakland floor. They were greatly displeased with the decisions of the referee and blamed him for their defeat. We maintain, however, that all this is pure cant. They were beaten, and beaten fairly. Seventeen fouls were called on the visiting team against fourteen on the home team. The visiting team won three more points on fouls than the home team, which left them three points to the good in spite of the referee's decisions. The Oakland boys won by virtue of throwing more field goals, which is the only final test of a team's playing ability.

The Keyser game was but a repetition of the Mount Savage game with many added unpleasantries. We are satisfied that the referee was absolutely impartial in his decisions and are forced to believe that the Keyser boys are hard losers. One of the qualities of true sportsmanship is to be able to take defeat when it is justly administered. There is no doubt in our mind but that the home boys played the cleaner and the better ball. The Keyser team began to object before the game was called. They even desired that our floor rules be changed, an unprecedented request from a visiting team. The interpretation of the rules was thoroughly discussed before the game began. There was no occasion for the multitude of objections made. Each member of the team took upon himself privileges that belong only to a captain.

Never before in our experience of three years in this capacity have the rules of courtesy to the referee been so completely ignored. We hope it may never be our lot in the future to officiate at such an unpleasant game.

The game with the Johnstown team was a delight to all lovers of the sport. It was truly a rare sight to see the superb passing of the visiting team. They won by a large score and deserved to win which fact if freely acknowledged by every member of the Oakland team. Added to their scientific playing the Johnstown team played clean ball. We consider them superior to any team that has played on the Oakland floor this season. It is no disgrace to the Collegians to lose to a team like that.

A few things might be said to the public regarding the interpretation of rules. We mention two. First, two men on one is not a foul, which seems to be the general opinion of those who attend the games. Three men must touch the ball at the same time before a foul can be called. The other is concerning the courtesy of the audience to the visiting team. No unkind or insulting remark may be addressed to a visiting player or players. On several occasions we have been compelled to foul the home team for this offense. On one occasion two fouls were called for this, both points were made and the home team lost the game by one point. Apart from an unkind remark now and then by some thoughtless spectator, we certainly admire and approve of the enthusiasm of the Oakland public. It has won many a game and is the one chief external element that makes the game worth while.

We have but one desire regarding the future of this game, and that is that Oakland may sometime have a well equipped gymnasium where this sport may be properly developed, the lives of the spectators safe guarded, and where they may witness the games with some degree of comfort. A gymnasium is not a remote possibility. A swimming pool and a shower bath with apparatus for proper gymnastics would mean much to the health of our boys and men. It would cost only a few hundred dollars and could be made to maintoin itself.

Mines Operating In Upper Potomac Field.

Mines in upper Potomac field are working as follows:

The Davis Coal and Coke Company of Beryle, the largest operators, comprising four openings—mines Nos. 19, 50, 51 and 52—employing about 250 to 300 men two days: the Masteller Coal Company, operating at Hampshire, two openings, four days; the Bloomington Coal Company and the Pattison mines, at Bloomington, eac four days; the Monroe Coal Company, of Barnum one day; Big Vein Coal Company, Shaw, W. Va., three and a half days. At Blaine and Kitzmiller about the same conditions exist—an average of about three days a week. On account of the formation of the small veins of coal with the bone coal, rock and sulphur, which sometimes despite the most experienced miners, come down with the coal, and if not taken out carefully interferes very materially with the marketing of the product, the mine foreman are busily on the watch, inspecting every car that comes out of the mines, looking for dirt.

Walt Mason, on "The Grip."

I don't feel flip; I have the grip; and all my person's aching; all day I sneeze; one hour I freeze, the next hour I am baking. I have the grip, and nurses skip around me with their potions; the doctor shoos the words I use, expressing my emotions. Vile tasting pills, and salts and squills, my inside works I rake with; my bulging brow once helped, but now it's only fit to ache with. "Cheer up, cheer up, Old Buttercup," my neighbors all keep crying; "no man should whine, nor yet repine, until he's sure he's dying; and then by jing, he ought to sing until he splits a rafter, and steer his bark into the dark with optimistic laughter!" They make me hot—they haven't got this curse of all diseases, so they can chaff and dance and laugh, and spring their sunshine wheezes. I wish they'd cease to speak their piece, and toddle to their home off; they do not ache and freeze and bake, and sneeze their dogs-d pink, off! GREAT NEED FOR CHRIST'S KINGDOM

The Bible Declares the World Needs a Strong Monarchy.

Earth the Rebellious Province of the Divine Empire—Not Ready For Autonomy—Selfishness and Discontent About to Bring a World-wide Crash. "The Hope Set Before Us In the Gospel"—Not Anarchy—Not Socialism—"The Desire of All Nations."

August 2.—The Photo-Drama of Creation continues to draw large crowds wherever presented. Many have voluntarily acknowledged that the Drama's explanations have restored their faith in the Bible as God's Word. Pastor Russell's text today was, "I will shake all nations, and the desire of all people shall come."—Haggai 2:7.

The discourse was introduced with the declaration that the only proper contentment is that which is combined with godliness and which sees from the Scriptural standpoint the Divine Power able to correct the difficulties of humanity. The godly believer, Divinely instructed, is able to appropriate to himself the Divine promises of providential care, and rests contented with unsatisfactory conditions.

On the other hand, the speaker declared, those who do not know of the Divine Power or who have lost faith in Divine Wisdom chafe under present conditions. The more discontented they become, the greater is their tendency toward ungodliness—doubt of Divine Love, Wisdom and Power. Self-dependence is a poor substitute; and as disappointments come, those inclined to combativeness find anger, malice, hatred, envy and strife surging through their minds, making them rabid Socialists or rabid anarchists.

The Pastor then discussed Christian Socialists, so-called. These, he said, are well-meaning souls who perceive the situation of their brethren and then declare that all Christians should immediately set about to secure for the world a just division of God's bounties. While approving the love and zeal of this class, he could not commend their course; for, although they seek to apply the principles of Divine Justice, they lack the Divine Wisdom necessary to a proper application.

The Scriptural View of Affairs.

This class were then reminded that Divine Wisdom has not yet seen fit to establish Divine Justice amongst men. Those who think that this evidences neglect on the part of the Almighty are in error. Those who believe that the time has come for the establishment of justice in all the earth should be able to find Scriptural evidence to that effect and point it out to us—evidence authorizing them to take their stand for Socialism.

Next the world was discussed from the Bible standpoint. Earth is the one rebellious province in the Divine Empire—one in which sin, selfishness and death constitute the ruling elements. The Bible declares that the world needs a monarchy—a strong, centralized government, in which the masses will have no voice, because in their fallen condition they know not what is for their highest good. Furthermore, the Word of God shows that present institutions under the power of selfishness will terminate in a world-wide crash—anarchy. They will be succeeded, however, by the Kingdom of God.

The Pastor showed that the Messianic Reign of Righteousness alone will bring mankind the joy and peace which all classes crave, but which none are wise enough to know how to bring about. The part of wisdom, he declared, is to look to God, not for Him to approve our methods, but for us to be informed respecting His Plan and to co-operate to the extent of our ability.

Different Gospels Offered Humanity.

It was next pointed out that no one will ever succeed in making the world happy by preaching the Gospel of Discontent. Today Labor is a hundredfold better fed, clothed and housed than were our immediate forefathers and, safe to say, a hundredfold more discontented. Our Lord was surrounded by conditions of sickness, poverty, etc.; and yet, it was asked, have we any evidence that He or His Apostles attempted to "break the chains of Labor?" Most assuredly not! He came to redeem mankind, and left the important work of social uplift until God's due time—the Millennial Kingdom.

Next was discussed the ass not that Socialists cry that theory; that find Heavenly hopes satis and comthey desire earthly re them. The forts, and intend e real difficulty is Pastor holds is not properly present- that the G ple. The Message taught ed to and His Apostles is consisby whereas that from the majority pulpits today is inconsistent.

After setting forth the Divine Plan for human salvation centering in the death of our Lord as our Redeemer, the Pastor concluded with the statement that Socialism will doubtless be the Divine arrangement for humanity in the ages following the Messianic Age, during which the race will be restored to perfection and made capable of self-government.

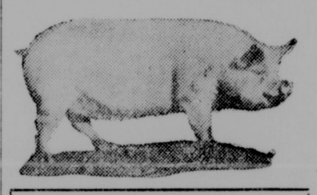
BROOD SOW CARE AT FARROWING TIME

Corn, the great fattening feed, which has made possible the great development of the pork industry, is so handy that we feed entirely too much of it to the breeding animal. Corn is too deficient in protein to make a good feed for the brood sow. The sow developing a litter must have an abundant supply of protein in the feed, says the Kansas Farmer.

The brood sow should never be kept in the same pens with fattening hogs. It is not necessary nor desirable that the sow should be kept in a poor or emaciated condition. The supplying of feeds containing larger amounts of protein, such as oats, bran, oilmeal and last, but not least, all the alfalfa hay she will consume, will keep the sow in a strong, thrifty condition. Where an abundance of alfalfa hay is kept constantly before breeding sows there is probably little necessity for the use of the grains or concentrates suggested. Our most successful hog men have long made a practice of keeping alfalfa hay constantly before the brood sows. This practice invariably results in strong, lusty pigs.

As farrowing time approaches the sow should be placed in the pen by herself three or four days before the pigs are due to arrive. The bed or nest should consist of a small amount of straw or chaff, and if the litter is coming early in the season the house should be good and warm. No changes should be made in the feed immediately preceding farrowing. The mistake most commonly made is to feed the sow too heavily immediately after the pigs are farrowed. The danger to avoid is too heavy feeding at this time. The first twenty-four hours the sow should receive no grain whatever, but should be supplied with all the warm water she can drink. The feeding for the first three or four days should be very light, gradually working up to heavier feeds as the pigs get older and make heavier demands on the sow for milk.

It is a detriment to feed the sow too heavily at first. Heavy feeding tends to stimulate too large a secretion of milk, which invariably produces indigestion and kindred troubles in the pigs and at times may even produce a feverish condition in the sow. After the first week or ten days the brood sow with a good sized litter will require about all the feed she will consume.



As producers of bacon of first quality the Yorkshire hog is hard to beat. The packers prefer it to any other breed for bacon purposes, and the demand always exceeds the supply. Yorkshires are white in color, naturally gentle and of quiet disposition, though excellent foragers. Their ears stand erect. Their bodies are long and deep, indicating maximum bacon possibilities as well as capacity for carrying, easily farrowing and properly nourishing the large litters of pigs for which they are noted. The illustration shows a Yorkshire sow of excellent form.

KEEP THE SKIMMILK.

No Economy In Shipping Light Instead of Heavy Cream.

The man who ships cream often asks whether he shall make it thick or thin, says the Farm Journal. All the logic is in favor of a cream that is at least 40 per cent fat. The milk mixed with butter fat is what makes it sour and spoil. Other things being right, a heavy cream will keep better and longer than a thin one. Cream of 40 per cent or higher not only stands transportation better, but is cheaper to ship. A gallon of 20 per cent cream contains one and two-thirds pounds of fat; the same quantity of 40 per cent holds three and one-third pounds, and the expense of shipping the light cream is just as great as for the heavy.

Twenty per cent cream contains 80 per cent of skimmilk, which the dairyman not only throws away, but pays expressage on besides. In other words, a pound of skimmilk shipped costs as much as a pound of fat and brings nothing, besides being given away, where if it were fed to calves a certain profit would result. One rule should be to keep at hom every pint of skimmilk possible. The creamery doesn't pay for it the pigs do.

Frequency of Farrowing.

Experience shows that a sow that grows eight pigs to maturity twice a year is more profitable than one that produces more pigs and fails to develop them. Usually the sow has sufficient milk for eight, and when they are allowed to suckle six to eight weeks the pigs are in prime condition to wean without having any setback. The sow can generally be bred successfully on the third day after weaning, and it is no trouble to have her produce two good litters a year if you give her proper attention.

Profitable Cows.

The half ton of butter per year cow is now represented in nearly all the breeds, but such performances are by no means common yet. The 500 pound of butter cow is still a good proposition.

THE REPUBLICAN,
Oakland, Md.

THURSDAY FEBRUARY 25, 1915.

FEBRUARY has enough days left to side-wipe the present spring.

SECRETARY Bryan, at least, has something to cheer him up before the lecture season approaches.

TURKEY has apologized to Italy and now Germany to Switzerland. Everybody is doing it but Mexico.

THE President is sending another confidential agent to Mexico. The brethren are not all provided for.

IT will be entirely satisfactory to the country to have the ship purchase bill interned for the duration of the war.

THE first duty of the Trade Commission will be to find the trade the President has been boasting so much about.

THE White House must be in a great extermity to appeal to the four Progressive Republicans in the Senate for help.

PRESIDENT Wilson's ship bill has been beached, with poor prospect of a tide high enough to permit of it being pulled off.

IF all seeds sent out by the members of Congress were planted the United States would be in a position to feed almost the whole world.

PRESIDENT Wilson couldn't have paid the Republican party a higher compliment than he did by refusing it representation on the Trade Commission.

IT is now said that the national Treasury deficit will amount to $121,000,000, which looks like a bond issue or another revenue tax—all due to the "simplicity and economy" of the Democratic party.

A CHICAGO professor says that in America a school janitor may aspire to a seat in the United States Senate. Why not, considering some of the persons who have succeeded in getting there?

THE Lenten season is now with us to remain forty days until Easter brightness dispels the gloom that pervades the solemn season that commemorates the suffering and death of the risen Savior.

THE House of Representatives amused itself Monday in conjecturing what would happen to New York if a hostile fleet should attack it. It would better have considered what's going to happen to the Democratic party in 1916.

VICTOR MURDOCK, chastened by defeat and some remorse for his Progressive activities, declares "the Democratic party is in for the beating of its life." This indicates that Victor will have his Republican principles on straight in 1916.

THE great Pacific-Panama Exposition is opened, the celebration of one of the greatest victories the world has achieved. And the best of it is that the victory was won by this country and that it is a victory of peace, whose fruits will enrich and not strip the nations.

THE Democratic administration is taking a great deal of comfort from the trade balance in our favor these days and point to it as "trade expansion." This alleged expansion, however, is confined solely to foodstuffs for man and beast, and has nothing to do with the working of the free trade tariff, as everybody knows.

THE Gubernatorial bee is buzzing in many bonnets. Senator Blair Lee has shied his castor as has Representative Linthicum. Comptroller Harrington has the leading strings well in hand and ex-State Senator Beaseman, of Carroll, is pursuing the watchful waiting policy with Carroll county behind him—four on the Democratic side.

Attorney Warburton, of Cecil county, at present is the only occupant of the republican camp.

NO HOPE IN NEW CONGRESS

Representatives Kitchin and Fitzgerald are two of the strongest Democrats in the present Congress, and both will be in the new Congress, which goes into commission March 4. The former will succeed Mr. Underwood as floor leader of the majority. The latter is the present chairman of the important Committee on Appropriations, and will no doubt, occupy as high a position in the next House. These two, with thirteen other equally independent minds refused to be bound by the caucus which forced their weaker brethren to vote for the President's shipping bill. There is good reason to believe that a large number of those who voted for the bill were forced to do so by the Presidential drivers. This is evidenced in the significant speech of Representative Humphrey, who said: "I congratulate the Democrats upon the facility and volubility with which they praise the President on the floor and curse him in the cloak-room." This must be taken as a revelation of the truth, which has heretofore been common gossip, and a severe reflection on the manhood of the subservient members.

Of the fifteen Democrats who avowed their freedom of caucus dictation on this bill, fourteen will be members of the new Congress. The next house of Representatives will have a bare Democratic majority of twenty-seven. With Mr. Kitchin as the floor leader, in place of Mr. Underwood, and opposed to the measure, with thirteen followers, it is difficult to see what chance the shipping bill stands in that body, unless it is put in some form reversing the President's ideas of what it should be, and that is not at all likely. At the present moment it looks as if President Wilson was in a very deep hole.

THE DEATH RECORD

MRS. O S. LEWIS.

Mrs. O. S. Lewis died at her home, nearthis city Saturday night, aged about 40 years. Mrs. Lewis had been suffering with a boil. Friday blood poisoning took place, which inside the next forty-eight hours resulted in her death. The remains were taken to Terra Alta Tuesday for interment in the Oak Grove cemetery.

MRS. SAMUEL SYPOLT.

Mrs. Samuel Sypolt, aged 73 years, died at her home near Rodamer, W. Va., of paralysis with which she was stricken just a week before. She was a sister of E. F. Hardesty of Terra Alta and Spencer Hardesty of Deer Park.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at the Messenger church and interment was made in the Arnold cemetery.

GEORGE A. CROWE.

George A. Crowe died Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of his son, John Crowe, at Johnson's, this county, four miles west of Frostburg, aged 87 and 19 days. He had enjoyed good health until two weeks ago. He was born in Garrett county near Grantsville, and was but a few miles of the scene of his death. He was one of the few remaining residents who recall stage coach days. His wife died eighteen months ago at an advanced age. The surviving children are Mrs. William A. Murphy, Mrs. Calvin Wilson, Floyd, John and Thomas Crowe, of Garrett county, Clarance and Eugene Crowe, of Meyersdale, Pa.; Mrs. Lawrence Finzel and George Crowe, of Frostburg.

The funeral took place at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. S. Nicholson of the M. E. church, Frostburg, officiating. Burial was made in the church cemetery at Johnsons.

JOHN GEORGE NINE.

The death angel has again visited our midst and taken from us one of our most esteemed friends and neighbors in the person of John George Nine. Born Nov. 30, 1860, died Feb. 19, 1915; aged 54 years, 2 months and 19 days.

He united with the church of the Brethren when only twelve years old, and was a faithful member until death. The funeral service was very ably conducted at his home near Gorman, Md., by Eld. I. W. Abernathy from the text, "Prepare to meet thy God," after which his remains were interred in the family burying ground by the side of his beloved wife who preceded him to eternal rest just one month and fifteen days.

The pall-bearers selected by the family were David F. Liller, Thomas O. Hayes, Peter A. Chisholm, James Aronhalt, John A. Blamble and Freeman Everts, being the same as were selected by Mr. Nine to bear the remains of his companion to her final resting place. He leaves three children to mourn his loss, Wilbert, Mrs. Della Beckman and Mamie; three brothers and three sisters.

While we mourn his loss we can rest assured that his trials and griefs eternally are o'er and we can repeat these consoling words of the blessed Bible, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

A FRIEND.

URSULA BLANCHE HARVEY.

Was born August 21st, 1880, at Ryans Glade, Md., died January 21st, 1915, at Merril, Md.

On Jan. 1st, 1907, she was united in marriage to John W. McIntyre by E. P. Idleman. At the age of 14 she gave her heart to God and joined the Methodist church and continued faithful till death. The last three months she was a great sufferer of dropsy, which caused her death. No one knew how intense was her suffering and how patiently she bore it but those that stood by her side. All that doctors and loving hands could do to restore her to health was of no avail. God thought best. He took her home to be with him.

A few days before she died she asked her friends that had gathered around her bed side to sing, and while they were singing that old familiar hymn, "My Heavenly Home is Bright and Fair," her face lit up with a smile, as though she had a glimpse of Heaven, and with beckoning hands she said, "I'll soon be at home with Jesus." Those were the last words she uttered. As she looked up into the face of her brokenhearted mother, with a smile and said, "all is well, I am going home," and then she fell asleep, the sleep that knows no waking. She is survived by a mother, Hester Harvey, three sisters and one brother, a husband and three little childrend, Floyd, Annie and Albert and a host of friends.

A short service was held at the home by Rev. Kirkpatrick, of Grantsville, Md., assisted by Rev. Kimbel, of Canton, Ohio, from there her body was taken to the home of her mother, at Ryans Glade, and on Saturday morning at the White church her funeral was preached by Rev. Arnot to a large [illegible] of sorrowing relatives and friends. laid to rest was mortal of Sula was that had gone before her two little babies shore. May God meet her on the other hearts.

I would not live always; the broken-

stay

Where storm after storm rise to o'er the way;

The few lurid mornings that dawn on us here

Are enough for life's woes, full enough for its cheer.

I would not live always; no, welcome the tomb!

Since Jesus hath lain there, dread not its gloom;

There sweet be my rest till he bid me arise,

To hail him in triumph ascending the skies.

Who, who would live always, away from his God;

Away from von Heaven, that blissful abode;

Where the rivers of pleasure flows o'er the bright plains,

And the nooptide of glory eternally reigns.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

"Farmer" Offers A Suggestion That Has Merit, Which, If Carried Out, Will Help Over The Hard Places.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Of course times are hard. No man living today is old enough to remember a National Democratic administration when times were not hard, when money was not scarce, when the mills were not closed down and thousands of honest, hard working men out of employment.

These are but a few of the natural consequences of a National Democratic administration. No honest Democrat but what down deep in his heart now knows this and admits it to himself as being a fact, if not to his Republican neighbor. Nobody but a Democratic office holder, or one who does not know enough to recognize the buttered side of a buckwheat cake, but what knows that Wilsen and his advisers have made a terrible mess of the affairs of the country.

These matters are self-evident, but what we started in to say was to suggest a remedy by which we may be able to dodge or thwart some of the consequences of these Democratic blunders. My suggestion is:

We have plenty of spare land in this county—land that is producing nothing, but is capable of producing good crops of buckwheat or potatoes, and can be rented at a nominal sum. Some of it is in brush or woods. This can be had to crop and use for three years for the clearing of it. Why not put in your spare time (the only thing of which you have a surplus in these Wilson times) in clearing up a couple of acres of this land. Put an acre and a half in buckwheat and half an acre in potatoes. This will yield at least thirty bushels of the former and a hundred bushels of the latter. Thirty bushels of buckwheat will make 600 pounds of flour and as many pounds of shorts, or more than enough flour to last your family through the winter, and sufficient shorts to fatten a hog. One hundred bushels of potatoes would supply your family with all that staple they would want for the winter and a surplus to sell or convert into other necessities. These two acres will yield you your bread, a part, at least, of your meat, and with plenty of potatoes, no one would starve to death.

I am free to admit that this comes short of what a man should have in this God-favored land, and far short of what a great many who are now reduced to want, have been in the habit of having, but I contend that at least it beats Wilson's and Bryan's proposed corn and oat flake diet. Try it.

BLOOMING ROSE

There has been and still exists a state of great excitement over the affliction that has visited the home of our neighbor, Quinter Hook. All kinds of reports have been reported and people have been so worked up that they are afraid to meet each other for fear of catching some malignant disease. If one has a little cold they think they are contracting fever or diphtheria. If a doctor is called for any purpose, at once it is reported that there is diphtheria at that house. Schools have been closed, and some that have not been closed are more or less handicapped for want of attendance. All this has been caused by people handling the truth carelessly. Outside of this the neighborhood has no reason for complaint. The disease was carried by a relative coming from Pittsburgh with a little boy, who broke out with the measles a few days after he came.

We need a good man for Commissioner from this end somewhere. C. W. Friend has been favorably spoken of. He would make a good commissioner.

Prospects are good for the new road down to Firendsville from Blooming Rose church, as all opposition has about died out. The road would make it easier to go and come from our little city under the hill.

SAL-VET

COSTS SO LITTLE

You Can't Afford to Keep Stock Without It

You willingly pay more for hay than you would for straw to feed your stock, because it pays you a bigger profit. Anything which makes your farm animals gain faster and keep healthier, is not an expense, but a wise, profit producing investment. That is just the reason why so many thousands of farmers today are feeding SAL-VET—the great worm destroyer and live stock conditioner. They have found from actual experience that "it pays to feed SAL-VET." It keeps their stock in a healthy, worm-free condition, aids digestion, helps animals derive the greatest good from what you feed—makes them gain faster—pay better profits, For example, read this letter:

"SAL VET has helped my ewes wonderfully, and was straightening out some of my wormy pigs. I kept it before my stock all the time, and the animals like it. I must say it keeps stock in fine condition and is not at all expensive.
ROY W. JUSTUS, Prop., Boscok Stock Farm, Egan, S. Dak.

That is the whole truth in a nutshell. SAL-VET is "not at all expensive" for any farmer to feed. But it IS expensive for any farmer NOT to feed it.

Here Are the Benefits You Receive

All at a cost of only one-twelfth of a cent a day for each sheep or hog and only one-third of a cent a day for each horse or head of cattle.

100,000 SLAVS REPORTED TAKEN

Berlin Gives Official Account of East Prussia Victory

RUSSIANS LOSE 150 CANNON

Petrograd Admits Disaster In Mazurian Lake Region — Grand Duke Nicholas Says Bravery of One Army Corps In Sacrificing Itself Saved Whole Russian Army—Seven Slav Generals Among Captured.

Berlin (Via London), Feb. 23.—The German official statement announces that the captures in the battle of the Mazurian lake district of East Prussia have been increased to seven generals and more than 100,000 men. The pieces of cannon taken numbered 150.

The Germans claim to have routed their opponents completely. Russia admits being driven from East Prussia, but insists that only one army corps was lost and that sacrificed itself to save the rest of the army.

The Russian version of the East Prussian situation was given in a dispatch to Petrograd from the Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, from his field headquarters. He admits that his troops were forced from East Prussia, but says that the greater part of the Mazurian lakes army escaped intact through the heroism of a single army corps, which sacrificed itself to hold the German flanking movement in check, and that the Russians are now resuming the offensive on a line just inside the frontier in northern Poland.

The Russian statement explains that the grand duke was aware on Feb. 4 that the Germans in East Prussia had been heavily reinforced, but he could not aid his troops there because of a lack of railways and bad marching conditions. A retirement was ordered, but the Germans pressed the pursuit so hard that the whole Russian army was on the verge of being wiped out when one corps turned heroically and held the enemy at bay. The rest of the force under Baron Sievers, numbering about 120,000 men, got safely to their defensive positions, but the gallant 40,000 were annihilated, only scattered parties returning to the Russian lines.

MYSTERY VOICE IN CAPITOL

Wisconsin Governor Entertained Every Afternoon.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—Every afternoon at 2 o'clock or shortly afterward a woman's voice has sung "The Holy City" in the governor's private office in the state capitol. For three weeks a persistent search has been made for the mysterious singer and with no result.

The affair is beginning to get on the governor and Colonel Priestly, his secretary. The superintendent of public buildings has searched the wing of the capitol in vain. The voice appears to come from one corner of the governor's office, and the governor has ordered the position of his desk changed so he faces the corner.

The voice sometimes sobs out the song, at other times it is jubilant, but it is apparently always the same human voice.

RESENT JAILING OF PRIESTS

People of Mexico City Arise In Protest Against Carranzaists.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The people of Mexico City have made demonstrations against the Carranza people there on account of the imprisonment of 180 priests of the federal district because of their failure to deliver to General Obregon the 500,000 pesos demanded of them.

Secretary Bryan instructed Consul Canada at Vera Cruz to make representations to Carranza regarding the imprisonment of the priests as soon as the matter was reported. He repeated to the Brazilian minister at Mexico City the instructions sent Consul Canada and it is expected the minister will bring the views of the United States to the attention of General Obregon.

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 23.—W. A. Anderson has brought suit against a firm of furniture dealers for $300 damages for arousing Anderson from his sleep and carrying his bed. He owed the firm for a bed. Anderson says the firm took the wrong bed.

DAYTON DENIES CHARGES

Judge Appears Before Congressional Probers In Washington.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Emphatic denial of impeachment charges pending against him was made by Federal Judge A. G. Dayton of West Virginia before the investigating subcommittee of the house judiciary committee.

"I have rested for several months under these charges," he said, "I have been subjected to espionage in my private affairs, my debts and financial obligations have been pried into and a constant series of inflammatory articles has appeared in newspapers."

The judge dwelt upon the attitude of the United Mine Workers of America toward him, referring to cases in which he decided against that organization and declaring that he simply carried out the law "without any prejudice against union labor."

He said he had in no way sought to displace Judge John H. Jackson, his predecessor on the bench and specifically denied that he had joined in a campaign with Baltimore and Ohio railroad officials to force Judge Jackson's resignation or impeachment. A letter was put in evidence from former President Roosevelt, dated May 26, 1914, in which the former president stated that he instituted an investigation of Judge Jackson on his own responsibility and appointed Judge Dayton "without solicitation from anyone."

Judge Dayton denied that he had ever shown favoritism to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in litigation in his court. He said that before his appointment to the bench he had been a local attorney for the Baltimore and Ohio, but that his sole fee from the railroad had been an annual pass.

The charge that he had manipulated receiverships and trusteeships in order to give them to his personal and political friends Judge Dayton said had "not the slightest foundation in fact" and could be disproved by the court records.

Judge Dayton said that the "prying into his private loans with banks," was an effort to ruin him financially.

ZEPPELIN BOMBS CALAIS

Five Persons Killed and Number of Houses Are Wrecked.

Calais, Feb. 23.—A German Zeppelin flung five bombs on this city. Five persons were killed and a number of houses wrecked by two of the missiles while the three others fell without doing any harm.

Leaving here the airship went in the direction of Dunkirk, dropping several bombs along the Dunkirk-Calais railway, but failing to do material harm. Near Dunkirk sharpshooters in the allies' camp caused the craft to change its course and fly around the city over the channel.

It is believed the Zeppelin started from the aerodrome at Zeebrugge and crossed the allied lines at Nieuport while it was still dark.

MAY STOP COTTON EXPORTS

Britain Threatens to Stop All Shipping to Germany.

London, Feb. 23.—The British government may reconsider its ruling permitting the entrance of cotton into Germany. This was intimated in the house of commons by Harold J. Tennant, undersecretary for war.

Mr. Tennant stated that when the ton corn was reached not to make cot- lieved that and the government be- many were al requirements of Ger- added, "this attitu satisfied, but, he from time to time." be revised

The allied governments yet decided upon the precise not which it is proposed to adopt in taliation against Germany's recently initiated belligerent policy, but a speedy agreement is expected.

Washington, Pa., Feb. 23.—Jonas Emery, representing the Pittsburgh-Westmoreland Coal company, optioned 1,100 acres of coal lands four miles south of Ellsworth, this county. The option was secured at a price of $320 per acre.

AN IRRESISTIBLE ADVANCE.

—Taylor in Los Angeles Times.

GRANTSVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Schaefer and little son, Donald, and Mrs. D. M. Lohr and son, Wendell, of Grantsville, spent part of last week with relatives at Springs, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ringer spent the week end with the latter's parents at Guard.

Mrs. Henry Schaefer and little son are spending a week with relatives at Springs, Pa.

Mrs. Arthur Hileman from Friendsville has been a guest of her sister, Mrs. Marshall Beachy for several days.

Mrs. Albert Swauger held a little quilting bee at her home recently, her neighbors having kindly gathered to assist in the work. The ladies included Mrs. Harry Leatharn, Mrs. Howard Ringer, Miss Lizzie Klotz, Miss Hettie Ringer and Mrs. T. H. Bittinger. The quilt was finished and is a credit to the workers. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The ladies of this place have been having a good social time the past few weeks. Miss Christina Winterberg entertained the Sewing Club at her home, all of the members were present but two. The ladies were regaled with with some very delicious refreshments and delighted by being permitted a peep into the "sample box" of their hostess, which contained all sorts of pretty hand-worked laces and edges. A handsome hand-knitted bed spread was also exhibited, being in excellent condition, although about twenty years old.

Mrs. E. B. Durst has been suffering from the effects of a burn on her hand, which became irritated, causing her entire arm to swell and giving her much pain. The injured member is now healing nicely.

The Miners Journal says that the time was when anyone in Grantsville wishing to go to Frostburg was put to considerable inconvenience in getting there, and much time was consumed in making the trip, to say nothing of the ill effects of the rough, jolting ride of fourteen miles.

But now all this is changed.

If one owns an auto-car, he can make the trip a real pleasure in much less than an hour; with a buggy or sleigh in a little over two hours, while the mail-hack, comfortable and roomy, makes the run, with frequent stops, in about three hours. The driver of the hack, William H. Evans, is a most obliging, courteous employee of Uncle Sam, whose only dereliction is—he doesn't favor Woman Suffrage, a fact, as indicated, which does not prevent him from being nice to lady passengers when he has them.

A farmer's team makes the trip with ease in a few hours, and even J. J. Bender's mule quartette comes back earlier and with greater ease than formerly.

What has changed all these conditions?

Good Roads!—a change which has made it possible for the tourist to enjoy frequent excursions through Garrett Co., noted for it's picturesque and fertile farm lands.

The farmers have made it possible for the Pike in... carry their produce over wear upon their... time and with less have made it possible for... and strain business or pleasure bent only; they trip without the dread of a upon tiresome journey to rack the nerves days after.

There has been established a feeling of sociability and good fellowship between the people of the two towns, and the business interests of the towns have been promoted, as many shoppers now go from here to Frostburg for furniture and other articles not so easily available here.

Each summer brings throngs of people, seeking rest and recreation, who tarry for weeks in the village—to the benefit of hotels, stores and other business places.

"Casselman Cabin," and other bungalows soon to be erected, will be the medium element through which many summer sojourners will be brought to this vicinity, thus promoting mutual business interests and cementing the numerous friendships formed between the people of "The Mountain City" and "The Old Town On The Pike."

Miss Mollie Dorsey spent last week with friends in Cumberland and Frostburg.

J. W. Durst and Henry Schaefer were visitors to Frostburg recently.

Mrs. Irene Haves is spending a week with her sister, Mrs. J. C. Grady, of Midland.

Charles Bill visited Elk Lick, Pa., last week.

Miss Fannie Shaw of Hilldale Farm, is staying with Hester and Potter Shaw during their mother's absence, in Salisbury, Pa.

We are having some fine weather at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Shillingburg were pleasant visitors at J. W. King's Sunday.

Misses Lida Steyer and Jane Burton and Mr. Milton Tucker were visiting friends at Blaine, W. Va., Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Mary Norenchen, of New York City, is spending a few days with Miss Mabel Neville.

Miss Opal Shillingburg spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Helen King.

Mrs. Oates, daughter Verta, and son Robert were pleasant callers at R. L. Neville's Sunday afternoon.

A large crowd attended prayer meeting at Mrs. Hester Harvey's Sunday night.

Mr. I. F. Shillingburg was calling on W. T. Steyer Sunday afternoon.

Miss Myrtle Wilson spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents.

Miss Edna Harvey, who has been on the sick list, is improving.

Miss Norma Mulvey spent Thursday with Opal Shillingburg.

In The School House.

"Now, in order to subtract," said the teacher, "things have to be of the same denomination. For instance, we could not take three apples from four pears, nor six horses from nine dogs." A hand went up in the back of the room, "Please, ma'am, can't you take four quarts of milk from three cows?

In a class in arithmetic the word "average" was encountered. The teacher wishing to make sure that the word was understood, asked the meaning of the word. One boy raised his hand: "Please ma'am, it's what a hen lays an egg on." "Wha-at!" exclaimed the astonished teacher. "Well that's what my book says," replied the boy. The teacher requested him to bring the book and show her the statement to which he referred. He got his reader and turned to the sentence: "The hen lays, on an average."

SENATE ADDS TO NAVAL BILL

Measure Carries $3,000,000 Over House—Smoot Wants 75 Submarines.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The naval appropriation bill reported to the senate carries appropriations aggregating $152,961,981, an increase of about $3,000,000 over the aggregate appropriated by the house bill.

One of the important new features of the bill is an authorization for an armor plate factory, for which $1,000,000 is made available, the factory to be built by the secretary of the navy in his discretion if he cannot make contracts for armor plate that are satisfactory.

The senate committee adhered to the two-battleship program. It also provided for twenty-one submarines.

Senator Smoot introduced an amendment to the naval appropriation bill which will have many supporters authorizing the construction of fifty seagoing submarines to cost $1,400,000 each and twenty-five coast defense submarines to cost $550,000 each. The senator explained that war had demonstrated the need of such boats.

TRADE BOARD NOMINATED

President Sends His Five Selections to the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 23.—President Wilson sent to the senate his nominations for the federal trade commission—the board that is to regulate the big corporations of the country as the interstate commerce commission has regulated the railroads. This important new commission is to consist of:

Joseph E. Davies, a lawyer, now commissioner of corporations, secretary of the Democratic national committee and an active Democratic leader in Wisconsin.

William J. Harris, now director of the census, formerly president of a Georgia fire insurance company.

William H. Parry of Seattle, formerly editor of the Post Intelligencer of that city.

George Rublee of New Hampshire, a lawyer.

Edward Nash Hurley, business man of Illinois, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

OUR FORTIFICATIONS EASY

Invaders Would Have No Trouble, Says Congressman Gardner.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, who stirred up the controversy over the defenses of the United States, made a speech in the house in which he showed that the government has on hand only enough ammunition to keep each gun on our seacoast defenses busy for an hour in case of attack by a hostile fleet. Mr. Gardner spoke on the fortifications bill.

Mr. Gardner aroused laughter when he declared that the seacoast guns could not be used to repel a land attack, for "we have ingeniously so arranged it that only three out of the entire 1,100 are mounted so as to point in any direction." He added:

"There can be no doubt that troops convoyed and landed by a successful foreign nation could readily take our coast fortifications in the rear. Obviously enough that is so unless Mr. Bryan's million patriots suddenly sprang to arms and could find the arms to spring to."

Carnegie to Lay Cornerstone.

Meadville, Pa., Feb. 23.—Andrew Carnegie, one of the largest donors of the new Carnegie hall of chemistry of Allegheny college, has agreed personally to lay the cornerstone of the new building. It is expected that the cornerstone laying will take place in June during the college centennial.

Swiss Put 9 Bullets In Airplane.

Berne (Via Paris), Feb. 23.—Swiss soldiers opened fire on an airplane, said to have been German, which flew over Bonfal. The machine was struck by nine bullets and the pilot was forced to descend at Ferrette after hovering over the positions at Rechesy.

PART OF CREW MAY BE LOST

Mate and Thirteen Sailors of Steamer Evelyn Missing

MEN STARTED FOR HOLLAND

Captain and Twelve Men of the Crew of Ill-Fated Cotton-Laden Steamer Suffer From Exposure Before Being Picked Up by German Patrol Boat. United States Likely Will Not Protest Disaster.

The Hague (Via London), Feb. 23.—The fourteen men of the crew of the American steamer Evelyn, which was sunk by a mine in German territorial waters, who were reported to have proceeded for Holland after the disaster, have not been heard from by the coast guard stations along the north Holland coast. The weather has been bitter with a dense fog prevailing.

The Dutch marine department also is without information concerning the missing men of the Evelyn's crew.

Men Suffer From Exposure.

Berlin (By Wireless), Feb. 23.—One stoker from the American steamer Evelyn died from exposure after the cotton boat was sent to the bottom off Borkum island. Captain Smith, the pilot and twelve men, who, with the dead stoker, a Spaniard, escaped in one of the lifeboats, drifted for hours until picked up by a German patrol. The mate and thirteen men in the second lifeboat headed for Holland and should have landed there by this time.

According to advices received here Captain Smith has informed the German authorities that his ship came to grief through the advice of a British naval boarding officer, who instructed him to follow the course on which he struck the mines instead of the northerly course as laid down in the German instructions.

The Evelyn struck two mines at 4 o'clock Friday morning and sank seven hours later. Captain Smith and the men in his boat drifted until Saturday afternoon during which the stoker died. They were rescued by a German patrol boat. The other men in the boat are all recovering. They are now at the Sailors' home at Bremerhaven.

Civil Suit Likely.

Washington, Feb. 23.—President Wilson conferred with Secretary Bryan concerning the destruction of the American steamer Evelyn off the coast of Germany last Friday, but in the absence of definite information as to the cause of the wreck, no course of action beyond diplomatic inquiries was decided upon.

Anxiety prevailed among officials over the fate of that portion of the crew of the Evelyn supposed to have rowed for the coast of Holland after the vessel struck.

It was conceded in official quarters that if the nationality of the mine were not determined, and if no proof were obtained to show whether official notifications to neutral vessels concerning the course they should steer, were being followed by the Evelyn there would be virtually no ground for diplomatic protest.

A civil suit, however, by the United States war risk insurance bureau and the owners of the vessel and cargo is certain to follow upon such evidence as can be gathered through the official inquiries now being made. Some officials thought that a claim for damages might even be laid against both Germany and Great Britain if the mines were sown far beyond belligerent zones of operation without giving due notice to neutral craft.

The Evelyn is the first ship insured with the bureau of war risk insurance to be lost since it began operations several months ago. Insurance on ships and cargoes amounting to more than $55,000,000 has been written.

Another Cotton Cargo Leaves.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 23.—Following the example of the Dutch and Norwegian ships, the American steamship Medina of the Mallory line, a cotton ship, bound for Rotterdam, sailed from here with the American colors and her name in large letters painted on her side. The symbols are visible at a distance of several miles and the commander of the ship has no fear of German torpedoes in the war zone. The Medina carries a cargo of 13,000 bales of cotton.

The steamship Ogeechee, also of the Mallory line, laden with cotton for northern Europe, started on her voyage, but was not allowed to proceed on account of the action of members of the crew, who thought she was not seaworthy.

Grey Quick to Deny.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Sir Edward Grey has sent to the state department through the British embassy here a statement characterizing as a falsehood a recent report from Berlin attributing to the British the intention to destroy an American ship in the naval war zone and charge it to a German submarine with the expectation of precipitating a crisis between the United States and Germany.

The Berlin statement received in the United States by wireless was cabled to London by the British embassy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson IX.—First Quarter, For Feb. 28, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. vii, 3-17. Memory Verses, 11, 12—Golden Text, I Sam. vii, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

When the men of Beth-shemesh lost 50,070 men because of their transgression they sent to the men of Kirjath-jearim to come and take the ark away from them, for they said, "Who is able to stand before this holy Lord God?" Their question is a very suggestive one, for the holiness which God requires in His law, which is holy and just and good, is so great that no man can stand before it, even as it is written: "If thou, Lord, shouldest mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand? But there is forgiveness with thee * * *" (Rom. vii, 12; Ps. cxxx, 3). The way out for all, for all have sinned and come short, is that the necessary holiness is found in Christ, who perfectly kept this holy law and is made righteousness unto all who receive Him (II Cor. v, 21; I Cor. i, 30). The ark found a resting place at Kirjath-jearim for many years in the house of Abinadab in the hill until David removed it to a tent which he had pitched for it in Jerusalem (II Sam. vi, 3, 4). After it had been twenty years there Israel seemed to awake to a desire for the Lord, for it is said that they "lamented after the Lord" (verses 1, 2).

It may have been that after the catastrophe at Ebenezer, in which the sons of Eli were slain and the ark of God taken and because of which Eli died, Samuel returned to his father's home at Ramah, for there he lived all his life afterward; there he built an altar unto the Lord; there he judged Israel going in circuit to Bethel, Gilgal and Mizpeh, and there he died and was buried (i, 19; ii, 11; vii, 16, 17; xxv, 1). Ever since the Philistine victory Israel had been under their power, but now Samuel encouraged them to put away their idols, return unto the Lord with all their hearts and serve Him only, that He might deliver them out of the hands of the Philistines (verses 3, 4). The one thing that the Lord is looking for in all the world is a whole heart for Himself (II Chron. xvi, 9); no idols, nothing to grieve or hinder, but such yielded hearts that He can magnify Himself in us and work in us all His good pleasure (Heb. xiii, 20). So all Israel gathered together to Mizpeh that Samuel might pray for them (verses 5, 6). They drew water and poured it out before the Lord and fasted and confessed their sin.

The wise woman of Tekoa said, "We are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again" (II Sam. xiv, 14), and in Lam. ii, 19, we read, "Pour out thine heart like water before the face of the Lord." True emptiness before Him will always bring His fullness; He perfects His strength in our weakness; when we are nothing then He can work. There must be no will nor way nor thoughts of ours to hinder. The Philistines, hearing of the Israel movement, went up against them, for when the people of God turn to Him with purpose of heart the devil always wakes up to oppose. Israel did the right thing in saying to Samuel, "Cease not to cry unto the Lord our God for us." So Samuel offered a sacrifice and cried unto the Lord, and the Lord heard him and thundered with a great thunder and discomfited the Philistines, and they came no more into the coast of Israel all the days of Samuel (verses 7-13).

We are reminded of such words as these: "The God of glory thundereth;" "God thundereth marvelously with His voice; great things doeth He, which we cannot comprehend" (Ps. xxix, 3; Job xxxvii, 5). Neither thunder nor lightning should cause us any fear if we are right with Him, but should rather make us rejoice to hear His voice and see His might. As Noah, Daniel and Job are quoted as samples of righteous men (Ezek. xiv, 14-20), so Moses and Samuel are mentioned as great intercessors (Jer. xv, 1). At the same place where the Philistines conquered Israel and captured the ark there the Lord overthrew them and delivered Israel (chapter iv, 1; vii, 12), and Samuel set up his memorial stone and said, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." All who trust in the Lord can surely say the same, and we should say always: "Henceforth * * * unto Him who died for us and rose again." "Henceforth * * * laid up for me a crown of righteousness" (II Cor. v, 15; II Tim. iv, 8). By the great sacrifice of Himself we are redeemed; by His sacrifice as a burnt offering, typified in Samuel's offering (verse 9), we become wholly dedicated to Him (Lev. i), and when we willingly acknowledge it and desire to serve Him only then we may expect to see His power on our behalf and His working in and through us.

A Satisfied Investor.

Friendsville, Md.,
January 19th, 1915.

Mr. R. E. Sliger, Agent,
Sun Life Assurance Company,
Oakland, Md.

Dear Sir:—I have received notice from your company that the dividend on my policy this year is $18.50; and I feel that it is my duty to write you just how much I am pleased with this result. My first premium was $105.00 on a five thousand dollar policy, and by using the dividend this year as part payment, it makes the second premium $86.50.

I have had the protection of $5000.00 for death, and if I had been totally disabled the company would have paid the premiums in the future and matured the policy, or would have paid me an income of $250.00 per year for twenty years if I desired.

I feel that the first thing to be considered in an insurance policy is the protection; but if it also combines a good investment with the protection, and the money paid for premiums is saved for old age, it then becomes the ideal way to save money.

Very truly yours,

SIFTING ASHES.

A family on the north side have several children, but only one—the eldest—is a boy. The little lad grew used to sisters, but longed for a brother. The boy was twelve recently, and the house was rather upset in anticipation of something or other. The father was busy and the son had to sift the ashes and care for the furnace. At this juncture a nurse appeared on the scene and two days later she came to the little boy.

"What do you think you've got?" she asked him.

"A baby brother," fairly gasped the youngster.

"No, dearie—it's a baby sister," replied the nurse.

"Gosh!" moaned the youngster. "Must I always sift these ashes?"—National Monthly.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 40. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1915. NUMBER 1.

TWO MARYLAND DAYS.

One for the Commission and One for Governor and Staff.

Maryland will be blessed with two days at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, for the commission on March 20 and one for Governor Goldsborough and staff, and May 20.

The selection of these two days was agreed upon yesterday by the commission and was a compromise between those members of the commission who adhere to the original date, March 20, and other members who were anxious that Governor Goldsborough and staff should have a day at the Fair.

Members of the commission and others will have the option of visiting the Pacific Coast in March or in May. The Governor and his staff, it was generally conceded, will form the larger party.

A majority of the commission was apparently willing to postpone the date until May to suit the convenience of Governor Goldsborough, but a telegram from President Moore, of the general exposition commission, stated that the program called for March 20 for Maryland Day and that a postponement would bring serious inconvenience. Mr. Moore suggested separate visits by the Maryland Commission and by the Governor and staff.

Beginning of Auto Lines.

Frostburg and Somerfield, Pa., are to be terminal poinst of an Auto Line which is to be started over the National Pike April 5. The schedule as advertisee by A. J. Shirer, owner of the cars which are to be used on the route, is as follows: Leave Somerfield (Youghioghney Hotel) 7 a. m; leave Grantsville (Bender Hotel) 8:30 a. m.; arrive Frostburg 9:30 a. m. Going westward: Leave Frostburg (Gladstone Hotel) 3:30 p. m.; leave Grantsville 4:30 p. m.; arrive Somerfield 6. p.m.

Although there has been much speculation as to someone starting an Auto Line between Frostburg and the neighboring towns to which there are no transportation facilities this is the first announcement that such an Auto Line would be started.

THE ALLEGHENY RESORTS

Those Within Garrett County Are The Best On Earth.

"See America first" will be in fashion this summer, because of the war in the old world. The traveling public will have to go somewhere. This mania for travel will keep the procession moving. America's resort places will advertise their special attractions. Why not Garrett county make an effort to secure some of these tourists. Grantsville with its splendid hotels, Deer Park, Mountain Lark Park, and Oakland ought to make a strong effort to secure part of this trade. It would mean tens of thousands of dollars left in Garrett county.

The state road completed to Baltimore city places these resort towns in a desirable position. This is an ideal resort region. Pure air, pure water, splendid drives, all the modern conveniences, and an abundance of good things to eat are to be enjoyed on this mountain summit.

High up in the mountains and yet but a few hours from the busy city life, there is no reason why this regin should not be crowded with summer visitors. Here they enjoy many advantages not to be found elsewhere. Here is comfort, rest and quiet for the tired body; here is health for the sick; here is safety for the women and children, all within reach of the business house and factory; telegraph and long distance phone; easy of access, with parlor chair cars and Pullman sleepers on fast express trains; the early morning papers to read at breakfast time.

Let us get busy and advertise our resort towns, as well as the entire county. Let the world know of Garrett county. Put it on the map. Now is our opportunity. Let the slogan be, "See Garrett county, Maryland's ideal resort region."

Dentistry.

Dr. G. C. Keller will be at Accident, Monday, March 8th, remain 10 days; at Friendsville, Wednesday, March 17th, remain two weeks.

EDUCATIONAL MATTERS

Weekly Gleanings From The Oakland High School.

George Queer, a commercial senior, is confined to his home with a slight attack of grip.

Joseph Foley, our congenial poet, is recovering from a brief illness which has caused his absence for several days.

Superintendent Rathbun visited the school last Friday afternoon.

Prof. Bender is now giving a series of short talks on "The Purpose of the Recitation."

A few of the members of the senior English class entered a contest in the American Magazine. For the February contest several wrote a composition on "Shall We Arm?" and for the March contest a few papers were submitted on "The Meanest Thing I Ever Did." Each composition was examined and read by the teacher, Prof. Bender.

The Clarksburg Business College girls played the O. H. S. girls Wednesday night at the Empire Theatre.

The Yorkist Literary society has postponed its program until next Friday afternoon, on account of the monthly examinations this week, which leaves little time for preparing to render a program.

We congratulate four of our former students, Miss Lucile Echard and Mr. Fred Peddicord; Miss Alice Little and Mr. Milton Turney, upon their marriage last week. The grooms were graduates of classes '13 and '11, respectively.

Last Saturday night the Eureka team of Frostbutg defeated the O. H. S. girls by a score of 16 to 10. A preliminary game had been arranged by the boys team and the Collegians, but at the last minute a protest was entered and the game was not played. Some ill feeling was entertained on this account and some of the young men rooted for the Frostburg team, greatly to the annoyance of the O. H. S. team.

Wednesday concluded the sixth month of school with splendid records of grades and attendance.

Miss Louise Harned, a junior, was confined to her home several days last week on account of a severe cold.

Miss Frances Miller, a freshman, suffered a brief illness last week.

Miss Grace Laffey spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents at Frankville.

Mr. Loraditen attended the Agricultural Institute at the Keyser Preparatory at Keyser, West Virginia, Wednesday of last week.

The Parents' Meeting which was to be held Friday evening, March 5, has been postponed until Friday evening, March 12. It will be held at the high school.

Miss Louise Chance, a freshman, was absent recently on account of a cold.

Miss Hanna spent Saturday and Sunday in Cumberland.

THE DEATH RECORD.

FRANCIS M WILSON.

Mr. Francis M. Wilson, of Fairmont, W. Va., where he was engaged in the wholesale and retail notion business, died at Blaine, W. Va., Friday night. The deceased was stricken with paralysis on Thursday night. Several years ago Mr. Wilson conducted the Bee Hive store in Oakland, located in the present Manhattan Hotel. He was fifty-four years of age.

ETHEL COGLEY.

Ethel Cogley, aged 16 years, who has been living near Clarksburg, W. Va., for the past three months, was burned to death last Sunday. Miss Cogley was up stairs and while near a grate her clothing caught fire. She became frightened and ran down stairs and through one or two rooms. Her friends threw something around her and smothered the flames, but the young lady was so badly burned that she died in about 7 hours. Her remains were brought to Oakland Tuesday. The funeral took place Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., from St. Matthew's Episcopal church, of which she was a member. The services were conducted by Rev. Wm. Shearer, pastor. The interment took place in the Oakland cemetery. Miss Ethel was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Cogley, of this city.

Weighing Social.

The Epworth League of St. Paul's M. E. church will hold a weighing social at the home of Miss Gertie Shirer, on Alder street, Tuesday evening, March 9, 1915. The weighing will be conducted on a basis of fifteen cents per hundred pounds or fraction thereof. A musical program will be rendered and refreshments served. A pleasent evening is assured everyone who attends. Come and bring your friends.

STATE ROAD SYSTEM COMPLETED BY JULY FIRST

Every County Seat In Maryland Will Be Connected With Baltimore.

Frank H. Zouck, assistant to the chairman of the State Roads Commission, today expressed the opinion that Maryland's main arterial highway system will be completed in accordance with the original plan to connect up every county seat with Baltimore city by not later than July 1.

Most of the system has been finished and the portions yet to be built, with the exception of two or three very short links, are now under contract. The remaining contracts, covering the short links referred to, will be awarded in the very near future.

And when the system has been finished it will be possible, varying slightly the favorite expression of a member of the last Legislature, to travel over a thoroughly modern highway from Oakland "among the snow-capped peaks of Garrett to Ocean City, on the ocean-kissed shores of Worcester."

Some people seem to be under the impression that the plan for the State highway system calls for connecting up the county seats, not only with Baltimore, but with each other as well. This is a mistake, though many of the county seats will be connected with each other.

The county seats of Howard, Frederick, Washington and Allegany counties connect with Baltimore by the Frederick and Old National pikes, running through Ellicott City, Frederick city, Hagerstown and Cumberland on into the extreme northwestern corner of the State, from where a branch road has been built down to Oakland, the county seat of Garrett.

A road running from Rockville, the county seat of Montgomery, connects with the Frederick pike at Ridgeville. Another connection with Baltimore is afforded through the District of Columbia and thence over the Baltimore-Washington boulevard.

In Memory of John J. Schlossnagle.

Born October 18, 1849, died Feb. 10th, 1915. He was born and reared on the farm, now owned by an only brother, Henry Schlossnagle, Accident, Md. From Accident he moved to Oakland, where he resided several years, then moving to the farm where he lived at the time of his death.

He had been a sufferer of dropsy for a number of months, and although he had been very ill part of the time, his death was unexpected and came as a severe shock to his family.

Early in life he united with the Lutheran church of Oakland, and as long as health permitted he was always a very faithful attendant at his church.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter and two sons at home, and three daughters married, Mrs. Harley Wotring, of East Liverpool, Ohio; Mrs. Guy L. Sanders, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. Owen Martin, near home, also one sister Mrs. Thos Turney, of Oakland, and the one brother above mentioned.

After impressive service conducted Rev. O. A. Bremer, the remains were laid to rest in the Oakland cemetery.

The pall-bearers were P. P. Gortner, J. L. Shetler, D. J. Swartzentruber, Silas Welch, W. H. Smouse and J. S. Browning.

Jesus, while our hearts are bleeding
O'er the spoils that death has won,
We would say as time is fleeting
Calmy say, "Thy will be done."

Tho' cast down, we're not forsaken;
Though afflicted, not alone;
Thou dids't give, and thou hast taken;
Blessed Lord, "Thy will be done."

By thy hands the boon was given;
Thou has taken but thine own:

Why Not Beans.

The European war is going to make food prices tend upward, consequently the farmer who raises food crops will find a rising market for his products. On nearly every farm one or two acres of beans could be raised without interfering with the "big" crops.

Every farmer knows the essentials of bean culture, learned from garden experience; and if the crop be not too large it can be quickly picked, sunned a few days, and flailed out by hand or run through a pea-huller.

As for a market, every groceryman in the land sells beans. He must buy from somebody—why not from the farmers of his territory? This country has never raised enough little white beans for its own use, large quantities being imported from Mexico and elsewhere each year. Now, while others are busy with their wars, is a good time for us to plan to supply this deficit.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A Correction By the Garrett County Creamery Management.

To the Editor of The Republican,

DEAR SIR: In your issue of February 25, there appeared the following statement:

"T. W. Casteel, proprietor of the Oakland Creamery, paid Garrett county farmers last year $3000 for their milk."

As that statement is somewhat erroneous, I am asking that it be corrected.

The fact is that the Garrett County Creamery paid out to the farmers of Garrett county for milk and cream the sum of $12,011.35 during the year 1914, one patron alone having received $661.74 during the year for his product.

Present indications show that a much greater sum will be paid out this year than was last as many farmers are enlarging their herds and others who have not patronized the creamery heretofore have given notice that they are going to take advantage of the opportunity to receive a monthly cash income through the creamery.

We wish to make this the banner year for the farmers of Garrett county and for the creamery, hence we should be very glad to talk dairying to any farmer in the vicinity of Oakland who has not already seen its advantages.

Very truly yours,
L. W. HOPKINS,
Manager Garrett County Creamery.

The next of these games will be played Saturday, March 6th, when the Lonaconing "Champs" will be entertained on the local floor. Everybody knows the caliber of the "Coney" five, so look ont for a great game.

STATE SELLS TREES AT COST

Free Advice Given as to Methods of Laying Out and Planting Groves.

Through the liberality of the State and the enterprise of the State Board of Forestry, the landowners of Maryland will this spring be able to get forest and ornamental trees at cost. At the same time they may have expert advice when and how to plant, and trained men will be furnished at cost to supervise and lay out forestry work within the State. It is important to order early, for the supply of some species is already exhausted. These trees are available for commercial, ornamental or protective planting, such as windbreaks, etc., and many farmers will doubtless accept the opportunity to add value to waste places or improve the appearance of their homes.

One year ago the board established at College Park a nursery for the growing of forest trees. Though begun so recently, this nursery contains at the present time close to a quarter million trees, which are of suitable size and age for planting in the spring. Among the varieties available to landowners of Maryland are white and loblolly pines, Norway spruce and Douglas fir, black walnut, black locust, white ash, tulip poplar and red oak. All are valuable timber trees and species of rapid growth. The conifers, in common with the locust and oak, show excellent development on a variety of soils. All are most suitable for reforesting the waste lands found on many farms. As to the white ash, black walnut and tulip poplar, these trees, while requiring somewhat better planting sites, are all well known for their value, both as shade and timber trees. In price they range from $2.50 a thousand for locust seedlings to $5.50 for white pine transplants, and all orders are packed and boxed free of charge.

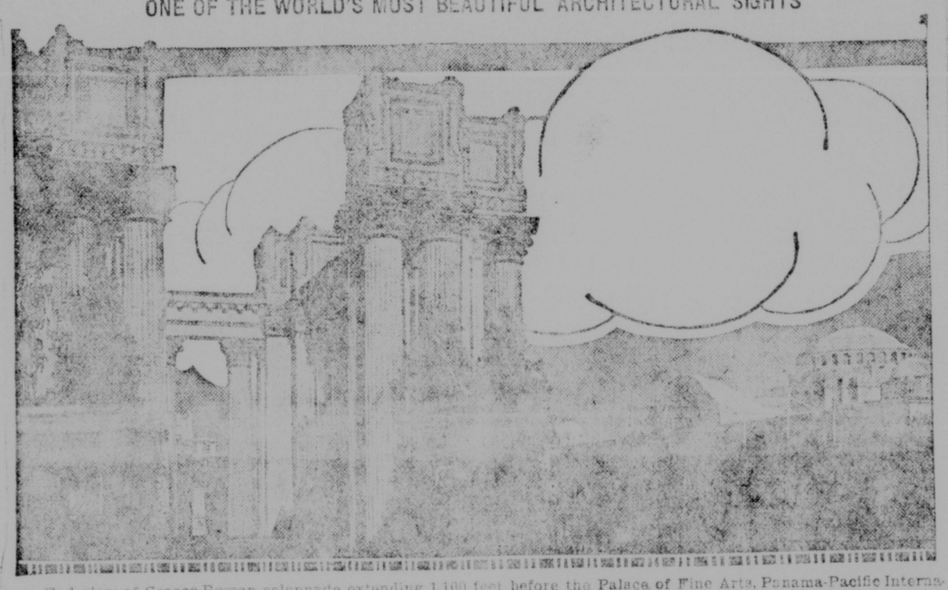
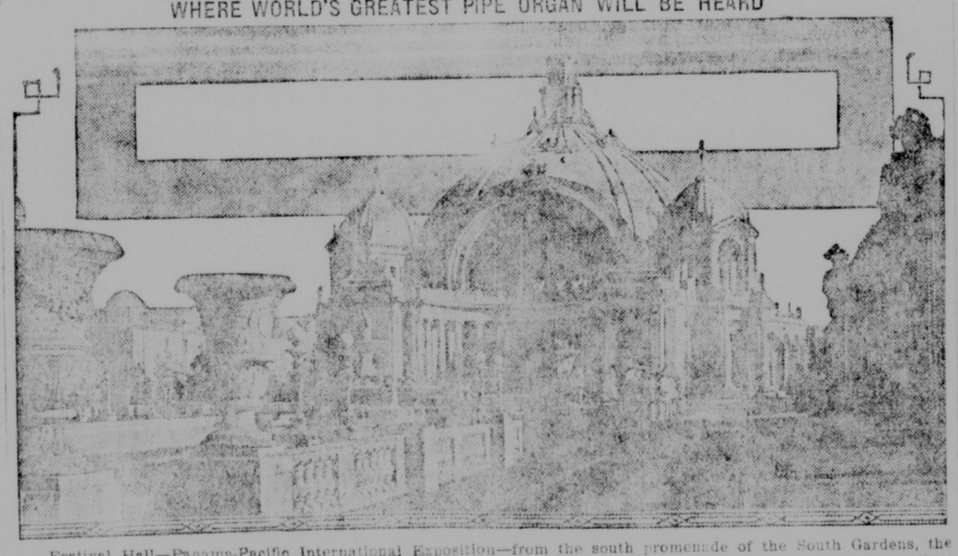
ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL ARCHITECTURAL SIGHTS



End view of Graeco-Roman colonnade extending 1,100 feet before the Palace of Fine Arts, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, at San Francisco, and curving in a graceful sweep along the shores of the Fine Arts lagoon. Surmounting these pillars are beautiful figures of women gazing into an urn, expressive of Art and Beauty. Eric Ellerhause is the designer of these groups. Over the foliage and forestation of the Fine Arts lagoon can be seen the Half Dome of Philosophy and the grand central dome of the Palace of Education.

WHERE WORLD'S GREATEST PIPE ORGAN WILL BE HEARD



Festival Hall—Panama-Pacific International Exposition—from the south promenade of the South Gardens, the facade of the Press building showing at the extreme right. On the great organ in this hall—one of the six greatest organs in the world—Camille Saint Saens will play an original composition, and there will be recitals by Edwin Lemare of London, Wallace Sabin and other maestros. This hall will center the intellectual, dramatic, musical and literary life of the exposition at San Francisco many of the 400 conventions of this year making it their assembly place.

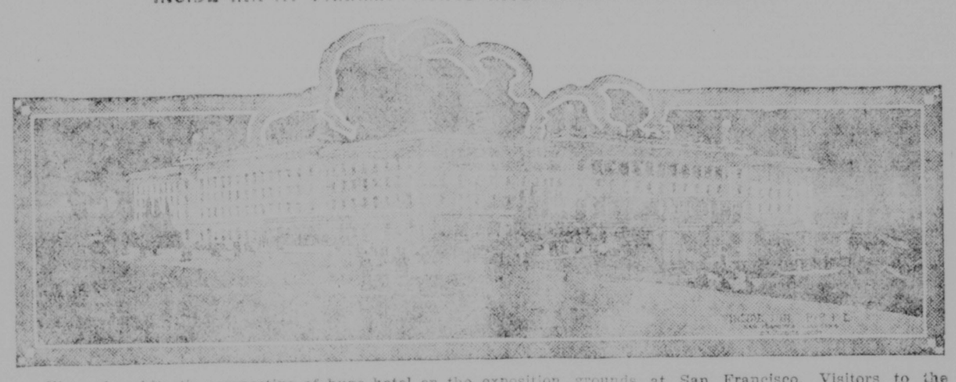
INSIDE INN AT PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION



View of architect's perspective of huge hotel on the exposition grounds at San Francisco. Visitors to the great world's exposition at St. Louis in 1904 will remember the huge Inside Inn at that exposition. There is a similar large building at San Francisco, with a capacity of accommodating thousands of people. The location of the building is within the exposition grounds, near the great Palace of Fine Arts. The Inside Inn is a city in itself.

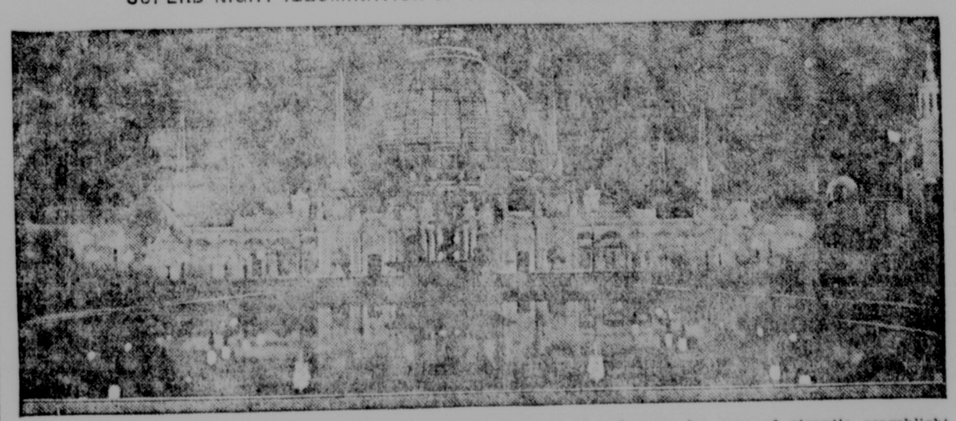
SUPERB NIGHT ILLUMINATION OF THE VAST PALACE OF HORTICULTURE



At night the vast glass dome of the Palace of Horticulture is played upon by rays of gigantic searchlight projectors set within the building. The globe, which is the largest hemispherical glass dome in the world and is one of the many marvels of the great Panama-Pacific International exposition, then assumes all the colors of the rainbow. This photograph shows the great building at night with the rays of the searchlights casting the sign of the Zodiac over its gleaming surface.

THURSDAY MARCH 4, 1915.

CONGRESS adjourns today. A blessing in disguise.

POOR old Shipping Bill. It passed—into the ash pile. May it rest in peace.

THE Democratic party is sowing mines for its own destruction.

THE main troubles with the country begin with a D—Democracy and deficits.

THE present Congress is picayunish with thousands and extravagant with millions.

NOTHING will become the profligate, wasteful sixty-third Congress so well as its demise at noon today.

ONE way to stop this food fight between Germany and England would be for American vessels to cease visiting their ports.

THE Trade Commission appointments stamp President Wilson not only a narrow but a vindictive partisan.

THE only bombardment New York City should be exercised over is the one promised by "Billy" Sunday.

SPAIN has determined to be among the "high flyers," as she is negotiating for twelve American aeroplanes.

THE destruction of the Turkish forts at the Dardanells will enable the Russians to market it is estimated 200,000,000 bushels of wheat.

ACCORDING to Secretary Josephus Daniels, North Carolina is the whole United States under this administration. But that is only since his latest acquired farm down there.

THE next session of Congress will have a fullfledged Prohibitionist as one of its members, Hon. Charles B. Randall, of California, the first prohibitionist to be elected Congressman.

THE Philadelphia Press says: The next time the President tells us he is going to give us prosperity that was never before heard of he will confer a favor by just mentioning the date.

TODAY two years ago Mr. Wilson was inaugarated as President of the United States. Two years of Democratic prosperity has been endured and we are all watching and waiting for the promised good times.

WHEN this country imports over $126,000,000 more goods from abroad in seven month under a Democratic tariff law than it did under a Republican tariff law, is there any room to wonder why there are thousands of men and women idle in our land?

WE got an idea of the high cost of a Democratic president when congress proposes to vote $160,000 to pay the expenses of the president's trip to the Panama-Pacific exposition. And he intends to make partisan speeches going and coming too!

GARRETT county last fall made history by voting the county dry. A step in the right direction. Now, Oakland has the opportunity to write a splendid page in the history of the city, by lengthening out the public school term to nine months. Is Oakland equal to the occasion?

THE Chilian government intends to purchase several vessels on the west coast, now sailing under other flags, in order that they may be used to move nitrate to the United States and bring back coal and other merchandise. This presents an unusual opportunity for the extension of American trade.

"UNCLE JOE" Cannon was asked in Chicago a short time ago what he thought of the outlook for the Republican party in 1916, and he answered with a story.

"A black man was arrested for horse stealing while I was prosecuting attorney in Vermilion county," he said. "He was placed on trial after being duly indicated. When his day in court came he was solemnly taken before the judge, who read to him the charges of indictment. 'Are you guilty or not?' he was asked. The black man rolled uneasily in his chair. 'Well, boss,' he finally broke out, 'ain't dat de very thing we is about to try?"

IN A PREDICAMENT

There is a present deficit in the United States Treasury of $80,000,000, and still mounting. The ground plan for this defiency was outlined by the Underwood bill, which called for the $100,000,000 "war tax." But this $80,000,000 promises to be swelled to $121,000,000 by the end of the present fiscal year, June 30. The smothering of the ship purchasing bill has elimmated the threatened danger of an extra session of Congress, but how about the deficit in revenues that is piling up? Unless a miracle happens, it looks very much like an extra session would have to be convened to provide for another revenue measure, or the Treasury will be put to the alternative of a bond issue.

Some of the reasons for this deficiency are found in the ineffective emergency revenue tax, which is not coming up to expectations as a producer; the income tax falling below estimates and the mordinate increase in the expenses of government under Democratic management. The total deficiency on June 30 is figured out from the latest Treasury statement, which shows that on the year's business up to date the excess of ordinary disbursements over receipts is $82,830,608. This does not include payments on account of the Panama Canal. Taking these items into consideration, the Treasury statement issued under the direction of Secretary McAdoo indicates that the present deficit totals $101,156,660. But this does not tell the whole story. The Postoffice Department is just about $20,000,000 shy on the year's business, thus bringing the deficit up to a grand total of more than $121,000,000.

Isn't it strange, with these facts staring him in the face, the President should have insisted on spending $40,000,000 in a shipping speculation, in which the government stood to be a looser? Can anyone see into the economic mind of the administration and discover any excuse for the profligate waste that has been going on, and is still going on? From a business point of view it is condemned from every angle. And this is the administration that professed to know all about business, and affected to tell business men they were not conducting their enterprises correctly. As a competent critic has observed: Washington has afforded many examples of how not to deal with government finances, but perhaps none ever surpassed the present Congress, which took office on a promise of economy, and has increased expenses while running up a deficit.

DEMOCRATIC FUR WILL FLY

The Belair Times remarks that: This will be a lively year in Democratic politics. Blair Lee has announced his candidacy for Governor and Emerson Harrington, who is supposed to be the candidate Senator Smith and his friends want has also entered the ring and the result will definitely settle the question as to whether Senator Smith or Senator Lee will be the real leader of Maryland Democracy. It will be a bruising fight and no matter which side wins, the Republicans will have a fine chance to again carry the State. Governor Goldsborough has given a splendid administration of the affairs of the State, and this record will be a big asset to whoever is the Republican standard bearer. Mayor Preston is expected to be renominated for mayor of Baltimore. His friends claim that he is stronger this year than he was four years ago. This is denied by the Republicans although the News and the American are both supporting him this year while they opposed him four years ago. The ruling of the Court of Appeals declaring James McEvoy ineligible because a Police Commissioner is not permitted to run for that office during the term for which he was appointed, leaves the Republican Mayoralty situation somewhat muddled. There is every reason why the Republicans should put forward the strongest possible candidates for Governor and Mayor. Factional differences should be subordinated and an earnest effort made to win in the City and State.

This should be a good Republican year. The Democratic record generally is unsatisfactory. Business conditions are trying and thousands of men are out of jobs.

Citizens Municipal Meeting.

All citizens of the town of Oakland who are inclined to have a business administration of municipal matters, are urgently requested to attend a meeting at the Court House on Friday Evening, March 5, 1915, at the hour of 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of nominating three persons for members of the Town Council.

Committee.

Oakland owes a debt to the Civic Club it can never pay. The ladies composing this club are ever ready to take hold of anything for the betterment of this city. Their good work is seen everywhere. At the cemetery, in the cleaning up of the town, at the county fair, the water fountain, raising money for this and for that good purpose, and just last Tuesday through their offorts the sum of $38.00 was raised to extend the public school term of Oakland to nine months. The extension of the school term means much to the school children of the city. A city the size of Oakland should have not less than a nine months school term. To those persons who subscribed to this fund, to the Civic Club, to the school board and its efficient secretary Oakland is grateful. This advance step is to our credit. Now, that we have a lengthened school term, it should never again be reduced to seven or eight months.

ANOTHER NOTABLE PERSONALITY FROM PRIMITIVE DAYS HAS GONE

The Death of Mrs. Hannah Spiker At the Advanced Age of 84.

By the death of Mrs. Hannah Spiker, in the 84th year of her age, Wednesday January 27th 1915, at, the residence of Mr. William Brenneman, known as the Alexander Lohr homestead on Meadow Mountain Glade, Garrett County Maryland, another aged person of eccentric personality is taken from some of the wildest and most unfrequented haunts offering seclusion in the mountains and glades of Garrett. After religious rites reverently observed in the near by Lutheran church the interment followed in the family cemetery of the homestead just mentioned.

She had so far survived the contempararies of childhood and preserved such scant tracings of her former history as to leave but vague and doubtful guidance back to the stock from which she had descended. It is said her mother was a Murphy and more than that appears too much shrouded in conjecture to be accepted as authentic. Those of the community whose lives have been longest spared down the sun-set slope of life know but little of her lineage but knew her well as one whose fiery temperament it was far more prudent to pacify than to provoke, and as one, while alone in their midst, had to be reconed with as but few of the weaker sex have defiantly required. They saw her regal in a realm of her own creation and of a solitude she cared not to have broken by any offending foot-fall from the out side world. It is thought Mrs. Spiker was once a member of the Methodist church, and it is known that she later became identified with the Lutheran church and sought its services when opportunity permitted which, owing to her habits of severe isolation, was of but seldom occurance.

The undersigned first met this strange product of the mountains in the month of May, 1873, living then with her aged husband, the late Mr. Jacob Spiker, in a decaying old log cabin standing within speaking distance of the more commodious residence, since built by the late Mr. Alexander Lohr, in which, after many ramblings through the changes and trials of more than forty years, her career ended. Like "poor Joe" from the pen of Dickens, she had to move on, and eventually the thriftless couple worn by age, was located on a small survey in the dense forest far down on the then almost trackless Meadow Mountain road and about as remote from any other habitation as existed even that early day of pioneers over this unimproved region. In a few years, while on a visit to a son in a Western State, the enfeebled husband died, the small survey with its few improvements soon passed into other hands and from that relinquishment, during the remaining twenty five or more years of life, Mrs. Spiker was as but a hermit in the wilderness, enduring cold and hardships harrowing to relate. The sham of a house she contrived to get together on the west side of the road from the abandoned survey, in a few years was lost by fire, and for years she passed the summers sitting within the marks of the four walls where the shanty once stood in order to maintain, as she believed, the right of possession to that and contiguous lands. This was a deep forest in a rigorous zero climate of blinding snows where one of such a robust frame and iron will, as was hers, could have met and survived such extremes of weather with such privations in living. Often in riding by, the writer hereof has divided his midday meal with this needy old woman and watch her eating with relish and listen to her quaint sayings in tones as cheerful as though the luxuries of wealth and the blessings of friends were hers. But a living so impovished would not have been possible but for the watchful care and charitable interventions of residents who would visit her camp and minister to her wants. In the month of January, 1915, conscious that the hand of a fatal malady was at last fixed upon her powerful constitution, she left the crude camp in a walk of miles to the door of William Brenneman, where she found a merciful fulfillment of the Divine promise: "I was a stranger, and ye took me in. "There after a few days of increasing weakness, close to the seat of the old log cabin where the earlier years of her life were spent, gently cared for, in the paling light of a winter evening the spirit left the tired body and forever "crossed the bar." In delineation of a character receiving its formation beyond the reach of any softening influence, either civil or religious, hardening in the enviroments of a pitiless fate during a process of more than three-fourths of a century, a book of engrossing interest might be complied.

But she held her own opinion, she smoked her own pipe and traversed such paths as were of her own choosing. "We do not know, we cannot say." When the supremest teacher that ever walked among men, saw His diciples bringing for judgment the erring woman subject to stoning under the Mosiac law, He bent to the ground and wrote on the sand. Answering the charge He said: "He that is without sin, let him cast the first stone." The record is silent as to the casting even of a single stone.

SAL-VET

COSTS SO LITTLE

You Can't Afford to Keep Stock Without It

You willingly pay more for hay than you would for straw to feed your stock, because it pays you a bigger profit. Anything which makes your farm animals gain faster and keep healthier, is not an expense, but a wise, profit producing investment. That is just the reason why so many thousands of farmers today are feeding SAL-VET—the great worm destroyer and live stock conditioner. They have found from actual experience that "it pays to feed SAL-VET." It keeps their stock in a healthy, worm-free condition, aids digestion, helps animals derive the greatest good from what you feed—makes them gain faster—pay better profits, For example, read this letter:

"SAL VET has helped my ewes wonderfully, and was straightening out some of my wormy pigs. I kept it before my stock all the time, and the animals like it. I must say it keeps stock in fine condition and is not at all expensive.

ROY W. JUSTUS, Prop., Iroscok Stock Farm, Egan, S. Dak.

That is the whole truth in a nutshell. SAL-VET is "not at all expensive" for any farmer to feed. But it IS expensive for any farmer NOT to feed it.

Here Are the Benefits You Receive

All at a cost of only one-twelfth of a cent a day for each sheep or hog and only one-third of a cent a day for each horse or head of cattle.

Mr. H. Fazenbaker, of Lonaconing, one of Maryland prosperous farmers, raised last year one thousand and ten bushels of potatoes. He also has quite a large dairy disposing of his milk and butter at a good price. He also has a real chicken farm consisting of several hundred chickens, and for his eggs he has been getting 35 to 40 cents per dozen for them.

Every farmer should take and read a good farm paper. There is none published better than the Gentleman Farmer, a splendid weekly paper for the farmer's home. It is a $1.50 a year paper, but for the next 30 days it can be had for $1.00 a special reduction. Call or mail your $1.00 and post office address to L. A. Rudisill, Oakland and you will receive the paper for 52 weeks, or 25 cents for 12 weeks.

BARGAINS?

IT Is true that every store occasionally has bargains to offer, but no store can live upon bargains alone. Nevertheless, "great reductions," "remarkable values" "manufacturer's sacrifice" and dozens of similar variations of the word "bargain" are the rule rather than the exception in retail advertising. TO THE WISE BUYER, AND MOST OF THE READERS OF ADVERTISEMENTS HAVE CONSIDERABLE WISDOM IN THE MATTER OF VALUES, THESE CLAIMS ARE ACCEPTED FOR JUST WHAT THEY ARE WORTH. SENSIBLE PERSONS KNOW THAT NO STORE CAN SELL MERCHANDISE HABITUALLY FOR LESS THAN ITS REAL VALUE AND THEY ARE WELL SATISFIED TO PAY FOR AN ARTICLE WHAT IT IS WORTH.

Reason with yourself!

Would OUR business be a success if WE sold goods at COST for ten or fifteen days out of each sixty or ninety days?

Would OUR business be a success if WE closed our doors to all profit for ten or fifteen days out of each sixty or ninety days?

Could you, Mr. Buyer Man, take a vacation for ten or fifteen days out of each sixty or ninety days and make a living for YOUR family?

The answer is NO. And yet

We hear much about BARGAINS, about Tremendous Savings, about Cut Prices, about Goods at Cost and Below Cost.

How is it possible?

We are working away with a vengeance, striving with all the means and experience that this long-established organization has acquired, to gather into our store merchandise that measures up to the standard of what it ought to be for the price.

Our buyers' time and energy is devoted to the selection of such merchandise.

We are rather proud of our reputation for giving GENUINE BARGAINS in our sales which come as often as we can work them out truthfully—but no oftener.

We will not be tempted in rush of busy-ness to forget the principles that underlie the Davis Hardware way of doing things.

We have gathered stocks that we are proud of, merchandise that will stand the "hundred cents to the dollar test."

It is in this spirit that we invite you to our store; invite you to make comparisons, to use your own judgment, to decide for yourself whether these hundred cents to the dollar values are or are not equal to the hundred and twenty-five cents to the dollar "bargains" so often advertised.

We are full of confidence—our stock is large and most complete, our prices are as low as the usual sale "bargains," our goods are never misrepresented.

And now let your good judgment come in and guide you in your purchases.

FIND VIOLATIONS OF NEUTRALITY

Hamburg-American Line Indicted by Federal Jurors

CONSPIRACY IS THE CHARGE

Government Alleges Plot to Defraud Through False Clearance of Vessels and False Manifests of Cargoes. Five Individuals Are Named as Assisting in Effort to Deliver Goods to German Warships at Sea.

New York, March 2.—Two indictments were brought in by the federal grand jury against the Hamburg-American Steamship company, its general representative and chairman of its directors in this country and four other men. The indictments charge conspiracy to defraud the United States.

One indictment is for conspiracy to defraud this government by causing collectors of the United States customs "by means of false statements to make, record and transmit untrue and inaccurate records." The other charges such conspiracy "in and by obtaining clearance papers by means of false manifests."

The men named in the indictment are Karl Buenz, director in charge of the New York office of the Hamburg-American line; J. Poppenhause, who served as supercargo on the steamship Berwind; George Koetter, Felix Seffner and Adolph Hacmeister.

The federal grand jury had been investigating since Friday last a complaint made by Sir Courtenay Walter Bennett, British consul general here, and evidence submitted by the office of the United States district attorney. The consul general alleged violations of the customs law in connection with the chartering of the American steamships Berwind and Lorenzo and the Norwegian steamships Fram and Sommerstad.

The indictments charge the company, Mr. Buenz and the others with conspiring to defraud this country from Aug. 1, 1914, to Feb. 26, less than a week ago, "willfully, corruptly and feloniously." It is charged that "the defendants with others unknown caused various steamships to be chartered in the name of the company" and had the ships delivered at various ports of this country and there laden with coal and other merchandise.

Then, says the grand jury, these ships were cleared "with the purpose and intent" of having them proceed under directions of supercargoes to various places at sea, there to deliver what they had aboard "to ships of a foreign country."

It is specified that the conspiracy extended to false manifests and false destinations for the ships about to sail. The grand jury says that to effect the object of the conspiracy Koetter on Aug. 5 last asked John H. Gans to clear the steamships Berwind and Lorenzo and told Gans that he would get clearance papers from the Berwind-White company, or Wessels, Kulenkampf & Co.

On the same day, say the indictments, Buenz met Koetter at the company's offices and called in Gustav B. Kulenkampf. Buenz told Kulenkampf, it is charged, that the Berwind and Lorenzo were each loaded with coal and asked Kulenkampf to execute shippers' manifests and secure clearances. It is stated that Buenz and Koetter told Kulenkampf that the destination of the ships was Buenos Ayres.

WAR EXPENSES GROW

After April 1 England Will Spend $8,500,000 a Day.

London, March 2.—The house of commons unanimously voted appropriations for war expenditures amounting to $1,435,000,000, making the total amount for war expenses to date $3,235,000,000.

Prime Minister Asquith stated that the war expenditures were growing steadily and that after April 1 they would probably average $8,500,000 a day. The premier's reference to this increase in the expenses is taken to mean that Kitchener's new armies will be in France by that time. Recent reports state that the British now have approximately 1,000,000 men in France and that transports are carrying men across the channel daily.

Mr. Asquith said England was so situated financially that the drain upon her resources could continue for years without causing an actual crisis. He stated that as the result of the recent conference in Paris of the finance ministers of Russia, France and Great Britain, England will probably advance more funds to Servia and Belgium, in addition to the $4,000,000 already advanced to Servia and the $50,000,000 granted to Belgium.

Man Dies Suddenly on Barn's Roof.

Johnstown, Pa., March 2.—John P. Kelly, aged forty-four, a liveryman of Cassandra, died suddenly on the roof of a barn which he was razing there. Kelly would have fallen to the ground had some of his companions not caught his body as it rolled down the roof. Heart disease is supposed to have caused death.

SAXONS REJECT TOYS

German Curse Placed on Gifts From American Children.

Berlin (By Mail to London), Feb. 12.—"The toys sent to the fatherland by those dear little American children are spotted with German blood and German tears and the German curse rests upon them. Therefore the Saxons are right in returning to the children of the gun runners their toys with the polite but unmistakable suggestion, 'As long as your fathers are helping kill those of the German children we must decline to accept your stuff.'"

This is one of the most striking passages in an editorial just printed in the Dortmund Zeitung, bearing the caption, "Toys and Guns." Its tenor is particularly illustrative of the sentiment now being voiced by the entire German press toward the United States. It is the expression of the Saxons when they declined acceptance of the gifts from the American little ones.

EMPEROR GROWS WEAKER

Francis Joseph Dozes Off When He Should Be Wakeful.

Vienna (Via Rome), March 2.—The physical condition of Emperor Francis Joseph has become most serious. He is so weak that he sits most of the time as if he were in a coma. He will doze off oblivious to his surroundings even in the imperial audiences, and it is only with great difficulty that he can be aroused sufficiently to sign necessary state papers.

Premier Tisza was making an important report to the emperor when he was frightened to see the head of his imperial master suddenly fall forward. The premier summoned physicians, who found that their patient had dropped asleep through sheer senile exhaustion.

RELIEF VESSELS SAFE

Two Big Cargoes From United States For Belgium at Rotterdam.

Rotterdam (Via London), March 2.—The largest amount of gifts from the United States to the destitute people of Belgium which has been received on any day since the relief work began arrived at Rotterdam.

The steamer Great City, carrying 9,400 tons of goods, representing the generosity of people in every state in the Union, docked here, as did the steamer Southpoint, which brought 7,000 tons of flour contributed by millers of northwestern states.

The American relief commission was much pleased at the safe arrival of the gift ships, as the threat of a shortage of food supplies during March now is removed.

MANY WISH TO ENROLL

American Legion Idea Meets With Approval Everywhere.

New York, March 2.—Several hundred persons sent word to Secretary Hausman that they want to enroll as members of the American Legion.

Letters and telegrams indicated that the plan to enroll as reservists for any possible difficulty into which this government may be drawn the hundreds of thousands of men skilled in crafts useful in modern warfare has met with generous approval and that the next few months will witness a real revolution in this country's state of preparedness for war.

Aged Man Sentenced to Pen.

Utica, N. Y., March 2.—Henry B. Ward, eighty-four years old, pleaded guilty at Cooperstown to a charge of murder, second degree, and was sentenced to prison for not less than twenty years. Ward shot his daughter-in-law last August.

Roumanian Reserves Ordered Out.

Paris, March 2.—Ten classes of Roumanian reserves have been ordered to mobilize by March 13, according to a dispatch from Bucharest. This is believed to foreshadow Roumania's immediate participation in the war.

STATE OF MARYLAND OUT OF MONEY OFFICERS BORROWING POSTAGE STAMPS

Extravagant Appropriations Exceeded Revenues And Bureaus Can Not Pay The Debts Contracted.

The deficit in the State revenues, prophesied by Comptroller Emerson C. Harrington in his recent annual report, and caused by the extravagant appropriations of the last Legislature, is already being seriously felt by a number of State boards and commissions and institutions, and is in some cases hampering their work.

Requisitions for the running expenses of the boards and other bodies are not being honored, or only in part, the reason, as it is understood, being that the State has not the money to do so, and has no way of borrowing the money, even if it were considered advisable.

One of the worst sufferers, perhaps, is the State Board of Health. Practically all of its activities, except the routine office work, and some of that even, have had to be suspended. The salaries have been paid, although those due at the end of January were not paid until near the middle of Feoruary, but for the traveling and other expenses of the health officers and inspectors and the like there has been no money since the first of the year.

One man was left in a town in the western part of the State without money to pay his hotel bill, and the executive officials of the department had to make up a purse to get him home. There was a good deal of lending of money, too, to the employes of small salary when the salaries were late in arriving.

One of the bureau heads began dictating letters Tuesday, when the stenographer asked what was the use of writing letters, as the supply of stamps had given out and there was no more money to buy postage. The chief of the bureau bought his own stamps and suggested lending a few hundred dollars to the board for the actual necessities to carry on the routine work. It was refused on the ground that it was not incumbent upon him to pay the State's expenses, working as he was at a salary much below what he could make elsewhere.

At the State Industrial Accident Commission salaries have been paid, and a small amount has been granted for small expenses for which cash must be paid, such as postage and the like, but the commission has received nothing for the payment of bills for supplies and service of various kinds since December 15, and those to whom these bills are due are growing somewhat impatient, or at least some of them.

Chairman Hanna was very reluctant to talk about the matter when asked about it.

"I do not wish to complain," said he "We understand the cause and are doing the best we can. We are making no kick."

But being pressed, Mr. Hanna admitted that the money for postage had given out and that he was paying for the postage on the State's business.

"We can stand off most of the people," he said with a smile, "but I was asked today when we were going to pay our telephone bill. We haven't paid it in two months."

The Public Service Commission is in much the same fix. Business houses to whom it owes money cannot be paid, and some of them are crying for the cash.

The State Tax Commission has had no trouble so far, and might, it is said, retain from the bonus tax sufficient money to pay necessary expenses. It estimates that this tax on corporations levied by the last Legislature will produce $100,000 a year, so that it ought to be on Easy street.

The Roads Commission is in a different category. Its running expenses are paid out of the big loan, and it has no trouble. However, the 1 per cent tax for the maintenance of the State roads has not been paid by the treasurer. It is understood that a number of other State boards are on very "short rations, and that the same condition exists in the State eleemosynary institutions, such as asylums, hospitals and reformatories.

It is expected that the present condition will show improvement next month when some heavy payment of taxes, especially from Baltimore city, will be turned into the State treasury. One reason given for the present stringency is that the time limit for the payment of taxes with the discount in the city was extended from February 1, as in former years, to March 1. Heretofore there has been a large payment from Baltimore into the State treasury in February. Because of the extension of the time this did not occur this year, but the big payment is expected in March instead. As the city pays much more than half of all the State taxes, this payment is likely to help the treasury considerably.

Comptroller Harrington, when asked about the matter Thursday night in Cambridge, made the following statement:

"The payment of the funds for the running expenses and for bills of the different State boards and commissions has been necessarily delayed on accouut of the condition of the State's treasury.

"The causes for the deficit have been heretofore disclosed in part by the appropriations now being so largely in excess of the revenues for the year 1915, and also because of recent legislative enactment the payment of certain funds or revenues into the State Treasury has been delayed.

"The Treasury officials are straining every nerve in order to meet the requirements of the different boards and commissions, paying the most urgent first. We hope to be able in a short time to be in a position where these boards may not be so much embarassed. A fuller statement may be made at an early date."

DACIA A FRENCH PRIZE

England Denies Arranging to Have Steamer Taken by Ally.

London, March 2.—The foreign office issued a denial of reports that an arrangement had been made by which the seizure of the American steamship Dacia was turned over to the French government and states that the treatment of a French prize court will not be any harsher than a British court.

The Times declared that France is now bound by article 56 of the declaration of London, adding that the French rule clearly and unqualifiedly refuses to recognize as valid the transfer of a ship belonging to a citizen of a belligerent country to that of a neutral.

As a matter of fact France, after the outbreak of the war, announced that she would abide by the declaration of London and inasmuch as she did not exclude article 56 the presumption is that it will apply to the case of the Dacia unless some special incident intervenes.

FAIL TO KILL TURK LEADERS

Plot Hatched by Peace Party Made Abortive by Betrayals.

Paris, March 2.—The Paris Temps says that a second abortive attempt was made upon the lives of Talaat Bey, Turkish minister of the interior, and Enver Pasha, minister of war, on Saturday night in Constantinople.

The attempt failed because of the betrayal of the plotters and numerous executions have been ordered of persons—many of them of prominence officially—connected with the plot.

The present attempt is believed to have been engineered by agents of the peace party.

AUSTRIA TO GO ON RATIONS

Nation Will Run Short of Food Unless Consumption Is Regulated.

Amsterdam, March 2.—A dispatch from Vienna says the Austrian government has decided to put the whole nation on rations and will take over all supplies and regulate consumption as soon as the amount of foodstuffs in stock is ascertained.

The government explains that the supply on hand now is insufficient at the usual rate of consumption to last until the next harvest. Official orders for the system was issued.

ALLIES' POLICY TO BE PROTESTED

United States Government Will Make Vigorous Kick

WOULD SHUT OFF OUR TRADE

Franco-British Plan to Blockade Enemy Countries and Germany's Submarine Decree Are Both In Contravention of International Law and Usage, According to Washington. Crisis For Government Approaching

Washington, March 2.—The United States government will voice its opposition to the allies' newly announced plan of cutting off neutral trade to the Teutonic allies. This extraordinary infringement of its rights will be fought as vigorously as this country refused to acquiesce in Germany's threat to destroy neutral shipping.

The result of this latest move by Great Britain and France so far as the United States is concerned, is this:

The Washington government finds itself confronted with all of the dangers to which it was subjected under the German war zone campaign and in addition is now facing the certainty that its merchant vessels with cargoes destined for Germany or any of her allies will be seized and detained. In other words, United States vessels, which under all the rules and precedents of international law have the right to proceed without molestation, will run the danger of being torpedoed and sunk if they attempt to reach an English port and will be seized and detained if they carry goods suspected of being destined to Germany and her allies.

It is frankly acknowledged that United States commerce is in an extremely critical situation. The situation is all the more serious in that Great Britain's threat does not apply solely to cargoes consigned to German, Austrian and Turkish ports, but to any which are of "presumed enemy destination, ownership or origin."

This means that American shipments to neutral ports, if there is reason to suspect that the cargoes will reach Great Britain's enemies, will be detained.

Shipments from Germany to the United States and other neutrals will fall within the ban of the decree also.

The south, with its supply of cotton, is likely to feel more immediately the effect of the policy. Shipments of cotton to Germany, which have been proceeding with considerable freedom recently, will be completely halted by the British policy of retaliation.

The scope of the new policy is so broad that if it is made effective all trade with Germany, Austria and Turkey will be impossible. It is proposed to seize not only goods which may be "presumed" to be of enemy destination, but also goods owned by the enemies of the allies or exported from their territory. That is, trade between Germany and Austria and Turkey and the rest of the world will even be impossible by shipments of goods in and out through neutral countries. It is generally believed that the British and French fleets are in a position to make this most sweeping prohibition of trade with their enemies absolutely effective.

Apparently it is the intention of the allied governments to justify their new policy by the latest German policy, as Sir Edward Grey notified the United States in a recent note that England could not be expected to remain bound by the rules of international law and provisions of war if her enemy continued to disregard them.

The American policy is to have nothing to do with the charges of the belligerents against one another, but to stand firm in insistance upon American rights based on this government's understanding of international law.

To Starve Germany the Plan.

London, March 2.—Great Britain decreed in behalf of herself and her allies the complete prohibition of shipments of food to Germany and of all other trade of whatever nature with Germany or her ally, Austria.

The decision to bar the oceans to all commerce with the Teutonic allies was made public in the house of commons by Premier Asquith, who after an arraignment of Germany's war zone decree as "piracy and pillage" declared:

"There is no form of economy pressure whereto we do not consider ourselves entitled to resort."

"We do not propose to assassinate neutral seamen or destroy neutral ships," the prime minister continued. "If neutrals suffer inconvenience the allies will regret it, but neutrals should remember that this phase of the war was not initiated by us."

Germany Accepts Modified Proposals.

Berlin, March 2.—Germany has accepted "with a few modifications" the American proposals looking to a modification of the "war zone" campaign and to the removal by the allies of the embargo on food for Germany. The reply to the American note suggests that under the principles of international law importation should be not only of foodstuffs but also of such raw materials as are necessary for the peaceful civilian population.

THE DEATH RECORD

CLEVELAND KIMMEL.

Cleveland Kimmel, 23 years old, son of the late William Kimmel, died Thursday at Paradise, from a complication of diseases. He had been a railroad man and was a member of the brotherhood and also of the Loyal Order of Moose. For a time Mr. Kimmel sought treatment in a Cumberland hospital. Surviving are his mother, seven brothers and three sisters. Interment took place at Thayerville.

MISS EDNA RHODES.

Flowers have their time to wither
Leaves to fall at the cold winds breath
But all—thou hast all seasons for Thine own. Oh, Death.

Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Rhodes, died at her home near North Glade, February 2, 1915, aged 22 years, 4 months and 22 days. She had been a great sufferer for four years, and within the last year that dreadful disease, consumption, took hold of her. All medical aid was had, and all remedies a loving mother could give were used, but nothing seemed to help, yet she was not discouraged. She felt the assurance she was ready for that life eternal. She leaves to mourn their loss father, mother, brother and two sisters. But we feel our loss is Heaven's gain, and may we not say ours "but Thy will be done." The funeral services were conducted by her uncle, Rev. Wm. J. Barnard, and Rev. Frank McCamic, pastor of the charge, on Feb. 4th, in the M. E. church, and the interment was made in the North Glade cemetery. The pall bearers were Edward, Stephen, Charles, Clay and Bradley Rhodes, all her uncles, and Ross Rhodes, her cousin.

Gone to rest our dearest sister,
Here no more we'll see your face;
But we'll meet again in heaven,
When we've run life's rugged race.
Gone to rest, sleep in Jesus,
Blessed hope we'll meet again.
And in heav'n there'll be no parting,
We'll be free from care and pain.

Short her stay but how we'll miss her.
Stricken hearts alone can say;
When we see her earthly garments,
Miss her dear face day by day.
Gone to rest she's free from sorrow,
With the angles' round God's throne,
And we soon again shall see her,
But our hearts are sad and lone.

When we reach the pearly portals
Of that city, bright and fair;
Then we'll meet our dear, dear sister,
She will bid us welcome there,
And with Jesus and the angels,
We will dwell for ever more.
And we'll know our dearest sister,
When we meet on that bright shore.

Her sister, AUGUSTA OSS,

Voting Under the Flag.

That order by a Chicago court that American flags must wave from each polling place, displayed both inside and outside, on primary day commends itself to public attention. Surely, if there is one time when patriotism should be evoked it is in casting one's vote in the ballot box. Patriotism has been associated too much and too exclusively with the idea of militarism, of aggression and force. The result of that kind of misguided, one-sided patriotism may be measured on the battlefields and in the desolate homes of Europe. It is the same sort of distorted perspective which makes a hero out of a world's champion in the prize ring. Physicial strength, force and skill are admirable in their place, but there are other qualities, both in nation and in individuals that make more for progress and civilization. Men can do more to make their country great by a patriotic purpose at the ballot box than by prating of victories vicariously won on the battlefield. Less vainglorious flag waving in defiance and more reverent respect in practice for the institutions and principles the flag represents are in order, and the Chicago suggestion should be emulated nation wide.

If by some such means the exercise of a citizen's highest privilege can be brought home more solemnly to each voter, we will be able to exhibit a much more creditable evidence of the triumph of democracy than has yet been attained.

THE GREAT WHEAT EXPORTS

An Immense Increase as Compared With Last Year's Trade.

What vast increases have been made in the exports of foodstuffs from the United States since the European war began was disclosed last Thursday by the Department of Commerce in a detailed statement of exports for the seven months ending with January. In all, $377,040,000 worth of breadstuffs and meat were sent abroad, which, compared with the same seven months of 1914, was an increase of $188,000,000.

One hundred million bushels more wheat were exported than last year; 38,000,000 bushels more oats; 10,000,000 bushels more corn; 40,000,000 pounds more fresh beef; 84,500,000 pounds more canned beef; 1,500,000 barrels more flour; 1,000,000 pounds more pickled beef; 22,000,000 gallons more gasoline, naptha, etc., and 111,000,000 gallons more residuum fuel oil, etc., were sent abroad.

At the same time there was a great decrease in the export of cotton because of the war, the total for the seven months being 4,105,525 bales, or 2,500,000 bales less than last year.

The Beulah Railway.

God a great railway to heaven has planned
He staked out the line with His dear, loving hand;
Away back in Eden the grant was first given,
On Calvary's cross the last spike was driven.
The road was surveyed with a special design,
To make it a practical Holiness line;
The grade was thrown up with the greatest of care,
Directly through Caanan, a country most fair.

Of fasting and praying the ballast was made,
The ties are as solid as when they were laid;
The gauge is quite narrow, with rails from above;
Salvation's the engine, 'tis driven by love.
The crossings are guarded, not a curve on the track.
Trains never take siding, nor ever turn back.
The streams are all spanned by bridges of Faith,
The last one we cross is the river of death.

Vestibule coaches, God's chariots they are;
"Holiness to the Lord," is inscribed on each car;
Trains stop at all stations where signal is given,
And run to the Grand Central depot in Heaven.
Convictions the station where sinners get in,
Soon reaching repentence, confessing their sin,
And Faith is the office where tickets are sold
And baggage checked through to the city of gold.

Regeneration comes next in view.
The heart is now changed and all things become new;
God's spirit bears witness with that of our own,
That we are his children, joint heirs to his throne.
Following the spirit along in the light,
The old carnal Nature now comes into sight.
"Inbred Sin" the porter calls out through the train,
Put off the old man he cannot remain.

But trusting in Jesus and reading His word,
The all-cleansing fountain is seen in the blood;
By faith we step in and its waves o'er us flow,
We rise from the pool and are whiter than snow.
What transports of rapture now sweep o'er the plain,
The music of Paradise filling the train.
Oh, ecstasy, revishing, fountain of bliss!
Scenery celestial! Is heaven like this?

Jesus the heavenly bride groom is near,
Making perfect in love and casting out fear;
Our hearts are made younger as onward we glide;
Our strength is renewed and our needs are supplied.
All glory to Jesus! Hallelujah! Praise God!
Travel is luxury on the old Beulah road,
God's railway celestial encircling the globe;
The good of all ages have traveled this road.

Elijah and Enoch by official request,
Ran in on a special, not stopping at death.
No accident has this railway yet known,
The dispatcher is He who sits on the throne.
Trains only move at Jehovah's command,
He holds the throttle with ominipotent hand,
The Holy Spirit is the head light so clear,
Revealing the track to the wise engineer.

The angels are brakemen, so kind and urbane,
Adding much to the comfort of all on the train.
Dying Love is a town in the valley of fear,
The backsliders repair shops are located here.
Are your vows broken? Have you been untrue?
Step into these shops and be burnished anew.
Dear sinner take passage for Heaven today,
Make haste, there is danger and death in delay.

The spirit is calling and so is the bride;
Our train is now coming and you must decide.
The road you are traveling will land you—well,
In anguish and torment with demands to dwell.
The fare is expensive, just think of the cost
When Heaven and Jesus and all may be lost.
So many are taking the Try route to Heaven,
When God's great beeline is the only route given.

His word is the guide and its teachings are plain,
You'll surely be lost if you take the wrong train.
Then be not deceived in making your choice,
But follow the word and the Spirit's small voice,
Take the train they advise and then stay on board,
And you will ride Home to eternal reward.
I've a ticket for Home, hallelujah. Praise God!
My baggage is checked I am now on the road;
I've said to the world and its honors good-bye.
My soul is on the wing, I'm enroute to the sky.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

BY JORGE GODOY.

Author of "Short Poems," "Smilling, Sobbing Sonnets," &c.

Night. Silence. A battlefield.

Bullets and swords no longer whizz and clash; cannons have ceased to roar; the living no longer trample on the dead.

All is still. Not a sound is heard, except now and then the dying groan of some wounded soldier.

The silvery moon and twinkling stars illumine the gory scene before me.

I gaze on the slain. An indescribable sorrow gnaws my heart.

I think sad thoughts.

Here lie the victims of man's injustice, the heroes, the patriots. Friends and enemies, young and old, rich and poor alike sleep the eternal slumber side by side.

And I ask myself:

"Why should brothers kill each other?"

I picture poor old broken-hearted mothers anxiously awaiting the return of their sons, and innocent sweethearts robbed of their lovers' kisses, sobbing bitterly; and weeping widows and tearful orphans kneeling and praying by the graves of those they will see no more; and the spectres of poverty, pain, suffering, and death appear before my mind's vision.

And I curse war.

And again I repeat:

"Why should brothers kill each other?"

On and on I wander, thinking! thinking! thinking!

The nocturnal hours pass by. I welcome the break of day. Birds begin to sing melodiously. The dew-kissed flowers smile. All Nature seems happy.

I gaze on the golden rays of the rising sun, and on all the wonders of both earth and heaven, and this time instead of asking myself I question God:

"Why should brothers kill each other?"

Lesson X.—First Quarter, For March 7, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. ix, 17, to x, 1. Memory Verse, x, 1—Golden Text, I Pet. ii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

These three chapters, in which we find today's lesson (viii to x), tell a sad yet beautiful and wonderful story, the sad part being Israel's rejection of God as their king and their desire to be like other nations; the wonderful past, His most gracious dealings with them and, the beautiful part, the way He overruled ordinary events to bring to Samuel the right man. It seems strange that Samuel, knowing so well Eli's failure to govern his sons, should have failed himself in the same way (chapter viii, 1-5), but perhaps some who may read this are not qualified to throw any stones. The desire of the people for a visible king, like all other nations, hurt Samuel, for he was now an old man and had all his life judged them righteously; but, knowing that he was only the Lord's representative, he told Him all about it, as we should always do in all things. The Lord reminded Samuel that he was not the rejected one, but that the people had rejected Him and that Samuel was only sharing His rejection (chapter viii, 6-9). It is so still, for our Lord Jesus counts all treatment of His messengers as done to Himself (Matt. x, 24, 25, 40).

The Lord told Samuel to heed their request, but to protest and show them what manner of man the king would be. This he did in the six times "He will take" of chapter viii, 10-18. Notwithstanding the warning the people insisted that they must have a king. Samuel told the Lord their decision, and He told Samuel to make them a king (chapter viii, 19-22).

Whether it be in answer to our right or our wrong requests, it is often His way to do beyond our desires, and so He selected for them the finest looking man in all Israel—a choice young man, none goodlier and head and shoulders taller than any other (chapter ix, 1, 2; x, 23). Samuel did not need to look for him nor to have any anxiety as to finding the right man, for the Lord told him in his ear one day, "Tomorrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin" (chapter ix, 15, 16). I like that expression "told him in his ear," for it is a great thing to have an ear for God, an anointed ear to hear His voice, His only. The commonplace events which the Lord used to bring the unsuspecting man to Samuel are fully told in chapter ix, 3-14, and, if He thus wrought for an unbelieving man and a rebellious people, how much more will He work on behalf of His own, who truly desire to please Him! (Rom. viii, 32; Isa. xlviii, 17.)

The special lesson portion assigned us today begins with Saul approaching Samuel by the direction of the young maidens whom he met going out to draw water. How many Bible incidents there are associated with women drawing water, and how these maidens must have rejoiced a few days or weeks later that they had been used to direct the king to Samuel! There is a lot of comfort in the assurance that God worketh all things after the counsel of His own will and a whole lot more when we are willing to have Him work in and through us the good works He has prepared for us (Eph. i, 11; ii, 10). As Saul drew near to Samuel again the anointed ear heard the Lord's whisper: "Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! This same shall reign over my people" (verse 17). The words "Behold the man!" make us think of Zech. vi, 12, and John xix, 5, 24, the God-man, the King who shall yet rule over all Israel and over all nations forever. As the maidens were used to direct Saul to Samuel, so may we all be used to direct many "whosoevers" to Him who is ready to save them and share His kingdom with them.

Now we find Saul in the kind hands of Samuel at a surprise party, where he hears wonderful things which he never expected to hear and which all came to pass. He is the most honored guest. Samuel, knowing that God would do as He had said, had made every preparation and had invited these thirty people to meet him. After the feast Samuel communed with Saul, then cared for him overnight, in the morning again communed with him alone. The servant, having passed on, showed him the word of God, kissed him and anointed him captain over the Lord's inheritance. Saul's humility (verse 21) reminds us of that of Gideon (Judg. vi, 15), and well would it have been for him if he had continued thus humble. Note also his wise conduct toward his enemies in chapter x, 27, "He held his peace," or, as in the margin, "He was as though he had been deaf." Compare Ps. xxxviii, 13.

Chapter x, 7, is one of the most restful verses I ever found, "Do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee." And the context teaches me that each morning, as I start the day, the Lord knows every one I shall meet and all that shall come my way. He orders all the circumstances, and I have only to fit in, not counting my own will or pleasure, but, seeing His hand in everything and saying a hearty "Even so, Lord," aim to glorify Him by patience and long suffering with joyfulness. As Joseph was able to say to those cruel brethren, "Not you, but God," so may we by His grace (Gen. xlv, 8).

Democratic Correspondent Lambasts the Administration.

The well known Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, "F. A. R." broke out in a regular tirade against the Wilson administration, in last Tuesday's evening edition, which would hardly have been accepted as a genuine "F. A. R." production, had it not appeared in the Sun. It would be difficult for any one to produce a stronger anti-administration article—even if written by a dyed-in-the-wool Republican—but that "F. A. R." evidently writes from the heart, is proven by his last sentence, when he says: "I have been a Democrat from the first breath I drew, and I shall die a Democrat, but I shall welcome the Republicans back to power."

The article is one typical of an expert writer accustomed to dealing with practical questions without waste of words. It is a general castigation of an administration that has failed—according to the writer's judgment—and he a long-time resident and observer of political affairs in Washington. We give a few of his statements verbation.

"When the Democratic party took full possession of this government on Mar. 4. 1913, there was an era of good feeling brordered only by the confines of the republic. The time of its power is now half over. And if popular discontent and dissatisfaction gain in the half to come in the same ratio as in the half which has passed, the band of its supporters will be of Spartan dimensions only

"He has put a man at the head of the Department of State who is no more fitted for that position than a black cat. He has put a man at the head of the Navy Department whose most noticeable act has been the issuing of an arbitrary edict prohibiting gentleman and ladies attached to the service from taking a glass of wine at their own table. It is common gossip that with the majority of his Cabinet the Executive takes no council, and perhaps this is well. But it certainly puts a big load on his shoulders when added to his gigantic task of guiding that wonderful aggregation assembled in the two wings of the building on Capitol Hill.

* * * * * * *

"The so-called Premier of this administration, having so little to do officialy, naturally spends his time in seizing every opportunity to talk, for no sound in the world is sweeter to the ears of William J. Bryan than the sound of his own voice. * * * * He has been a millstone around the neck of the Democratic party since 1896, and, as was predicted in the beginning of this administration, he has been a grevious burden to it

* * * * * * *

"Much stress has been laid upon the legislation accomplished in the two years, and the wonderful effects to follow. There can be no disguise of the fact that the results so far have been happy, but, to the contrary, disastrous. The whole truth is, the country looks with distrust on many of those in charge of public affairs

* * * * * * *

"You may hear at every street corner, "Washington will not pick up again until the Republicans come back." It is sometimes said that you cannot get an idea of the sentiment of the country at large in Washington. This is a serious mistake. Washington constantly is in the [illegible] men of all classes come and go from North and to South, and from East and West. They all express their views. It is not the Republicans any more than the Democrats who do not approve. It is not alone the tariff, or the anti-trust measure, or the shipping bill, or this that or the other in the way of legislation. It is also the men, the Bryans and all of that clan, too numerous to mention. The people have no confidence in them; they doubt their ability and they doubt their discretion to run the government as it should be run."

A Satisfied Investor.

Friendsville, Md.,
January 19th, 1915.

Mr. R. E. Sliger, Agent,
Sun Life Assurance Company,
Oakland, Md.

Dear Sir:—I have received notice from your company that the dividend on my policy this year is $18.50; and I feel that it is my duty to write you just how much I am pleased with this result. My first premium was $105.00 on a five thousand dollar policy, and by using the dividend this year as part payment, it makes the second premium $86.50.

I have had the protection of $5000.00 for death, and if I had been totally disabled the company would have paid the premiums in the future and matured the policy, or would have paid me an income of $250.00 per year for twenty years if I desired.

I feel that the first thing to be considered in an insurance policy is the protection; but if it also combines a good investment with the protection, and the money paid for premiums is saved for old age, it then becomes the ideal way to save money.

Very truly yours,

Advertising Farm Products.

Several days ago when talking with a farmer friend the subject of advertising the farm products was brought into our conversation. In a casual way I asked, "My friend, how much do you spend a year advertising?" "Spend, why I spend nothing, what have I got to advertise?" Yes, this is the way most of us think, what have I got to advertise?

Then I told him the following experience: Advertising products of the farm has given me larger returns for the amount spent than any other one undertaking.

There are many things to consider when advertising. The most important being, is the article used locally or generally. By having this question in mind we then know whether to advertise in a local or generally distributed paper.

The following ad inserted in a county paper was the direct means of selling 75 bushels of seed wheat at $1.50 per bushel on the open market.

For Sale—Russian and China seed wheat, yield 40 and 36 bushels per acre

Then I asked him what kind of corn he grew. He told me the variety and yield he had been securing for several years past. "Well, why don't you advertise seed corn for sale? Don't you know you are securing good yields and you have a very good variety and I am sure lots of farmers would like to buy their seed corn from you?" "Well, I never thought of that, was his reply." Yes, that's the trouble, so few of us do think of these little things.

Each year we sell from $200 to $250 worth of seed corn. To succeed, grow a standard variety and keep it pure. Practice good farming and secure large yields. Send samples to various agricultural exhibits. Have printed letter heads, shipping tags and business cards. These are among the best methods of advertising.

Mr. Farmer, consider these few facts and in the future grow pure bred grains, obtain large yields and try some advertising. I am sure you will find it profitable.—G. P. Radebaugh, Harford Co., Maryland.

Now there's good old Uncle Ike, he lives in Garrett county; some folks call him "close." He bought raw land many years ago and made it pay itself out. In bad weather, when other men went to the cross roads store, Uncle Ike was improving his farm. He refused to be buncoed by fakers that came along; loose ends were kept tucked in; leaks plugged up. He and his good wife raised a large family, and they lived well if they did wear old clothes until they had the cash to pay for new ones. At the same time they helped to build a high school and church in a good community.

OAKLAND'S NEW POST-MASTER NOW IN CHARGE

Mr. Charles A. Deffinbaugh Now Custodian of the U. S. Mails.

Monday morning Mr. Charles A. Deffinbaugh, editor of the Mountain Democrat, assumed the duties of postmaster in the Oakland post office. Mr. Deffinbaugh is a courteous, accommodating gentleman, and we believe will make a popular postmaster, striving to meet the fullest demands of the public. He has been a faithful worker in the ranks of his party, and his paper has ever been ready to give service to the party of his choice. He deserves this recognition of his efficient services.

Mr. C. J. Peddicord retires from office with honor and credit. His record as postmaster is one to be proud of. His mind was on his duties, as postmaster. Every department of the office was under his special oversight. He was painstaking, courteous and accommodating. Under his administration the business of the office was developed rapidly. His work was recognized favorably by the officials of the Post Office Department. The post office inspectors spoke flatteringly about the manner he conducted the office and of the splendid conditions he kept the business matters of the office. He was popular with the general public and retires with the very best wishes of the patrons of the office. He will remain for a time with Postmaster Deffinbaugh to introduce him into the mysteries of the office.

The following new subscribers have been added to the list of The Republican since last Thursday:

SUITS INVOLVING $10.000 DAMAGES

Entered By A. P. Enlow and Lloyd Skiles, Following Their Arrest.

Messrs. A. P. Enlow, and Lloyd Skiles, both residing in the vicinity of Hoyes, were in Oakland on Monday, where they employed counsel and entered suits aggregation $10,000 for damages against Constable Walter Coddington, of District No. 5, alleging false arrest.

The suits grew out of the cases heard by Justice of the Peace Rudisill early last week when both Messrs. Enlow and Skiles were brought before him upon warrants sworn out by Constable Coddington, who charged them with having resisted him in collecting taxes upon their dogs.

At the hearing of the cases they were dismissed by the Justice at the request and by direction of the States Attorney.

A Tribute to Mrs. D. I. Totten.

Though denied motherhood, she mothered all who came to her; never a teacher by profession yet a constant teacher in her expression and attitude toward the highest things in life; frail in body, yet so strong in spirit that no trouble had power to shake her courage, and no one so faulty but she could find a loving excuse, simple and unassuming in manner yet with intellect of such fineness, she found daily companionship of the great masters in literature of the world.

From kinsman, neighbor and friend, from young and old among all who knew her comes in sweet accord that tribute old:

"Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all."

GARRETT JOURNAL PLANT SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION

Was Purchased by Mr. H. A. Rasche, Who Becomes Editor and Manager of The Democrat.

Last Saturday the plant of the Garrett Journal, consisting of the working equipment of that concern, was sold at public auction, under foreclosure proceedings, by Attorney Stuart F. Hamill, who represented Mr. James D. Hamill, founder and publisher of the Journal until about two years ago, when he sold the plant to the Journal Publishing Company, a corporation composed of a number of business and professional men of Oakland and vicinity.

The sale on Saturday was conducted in front of the Journal office on Alder street and was knocked down to Mr. H. A. Rasche at his bid of $1,687, which amount pays the greater portion of the mortgage and the costs in making the sale. Immediately following the sale of the property the type, furniture and other accessories were moved from the office of the Journal to the Democrat office and there made a part of the equipment of that paper.

With the current issue of the Democrat Mr. Rasche becomes its editor and business manager, the official duties of Mr. Deffinbaugh as postmaster of Oakland, which position he assumed Monday of this week, being such as to render it impossible for him to remain editor of the Democrat and at the same time give the patrons of the Oakland office the consideration due them.

Yesterday afternoon a petition was filed with the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Garrett county praying the Court for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the books of the Garret Publishing Company and wind up its affairs. The petition states that the company is insolvent. The paper was prepared by Attorney S. F. Hamill at the request of Mr. Arthur Townshend, who avers that the publishing company is indebted to him in the sum of about $100 for rent, and was also signed by Mr. Herbert Montgomery, a former employe of the Journal, to whom is due for wages an amount approaching $100.

The Oakland Planing Mill.

There is being completed in the lower end of Oakland a two story planing mill, 30 x 60 feet, on the B. & O. lumber switch. The building will be be equipped with new machinery of the latest design. The company will be wholesale and retail dealers in all kinds of lumber and building material. They will be prepared to do all kinds of mill work. The firm, The Oakland Planing Co., will do contracting for all kinds of building. The new mill will be in operation by April 15th. Their advertisement will appear in the Republican in a few weeks.

Swat Him.

Because the fly is small and does not roar like a lion or devour its prey at a mouthful, mankind pays little attention to it. But the fly is as deadly a foe to civilization as any of the pests of more fearsome aspect which makes it his business to exterminate. The fly's attack is insidious and therefore the more to be guarded against. He buzzes into the houses, drops his deadly disease germs where they will fertilize and buzzes out again to pick up a fresh cargo. Swat him, he is your enemy.

Two Years of The New Freedom.

President Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party have with the close of the 63rd Congress had full control of the National Government for two years. The "New Freedom" has been tried, says the Bel Air Times, the tariff law hailed as the "great deliverer" from high cost of living and nefarious trusts put into effect. Vast numbers of unemployed throughout our land, and city after city grappling with the problem of how to care for them, bear mute testimony to the "blessings" of this "New Freedom," which frees honest labor from the opportunity to work.

The new tariff law has not reduced the high cost of living, has not busted any trusts, and has not provided a sufficient revenue for the needs of the Government. War taxes in times of peace are being crowded upon us, and withal we are facing a National deficit.

STATE ROAD BALTIMORE TO OAKLAND SOON READY

Members of State Road Commission Make Inspection Tour of Roads In Garrett County.

Having spent an hour digging their automobile out of a big snow drift near Accident, Garrett county, where they had become stalled, Henry G. Shirley, chief engineer of the State Roads Commission, and Frank H. Zouck, assistant to the chairman of that body passed through Cumberland Saturday after an inspection trip.

It was in Garrett county, where Spring begins a month after it starts in other parts of the state and where winter sets in before election day. The place where the car stuck was nearly midway between Accident and Keyser's Ridge. A farmer's son was appealed to and he brought a shovel and a road was made through the drift, which at that point was about three feet deep and packed hard. Road Commissioner Andrew Ramsay of Mount Savage, was along and helped in the snow-shoveling.

When Messrs. Shirley and Zouck started out last Wednesday morning they thought the roads would be clear of snow all the way to Oakland, but after they got to Frostburg, where they spent Wednesday night, they found plenty of snow badly drifted. There was no trouble on the National road, because it is wide and the drifts did not block it. Neither was there any trouble on the reconstructed portion of the state road between the National road and Oakland, but it was on the unreconstructed road, with its bad grades and deep cuts, that there was constant trouble with the snow.

Mr. Shirley wanted to see how the state roads in Western Maryland had stood the winter, as it will soon be time to start maintenance work for the year. That they had gone through very well was shown by the inspection.

In Garrett county, between Cove and Accident there is in progress the most important piece of relocation work in the state. The road to be abandoned is not only the worst in Maryland for its grades but also for its turns. By taking an entire new route for several miles the State Roads Commission has shortened the distance, reduced the curves and found easy grades through a mountainous country.

The party's automobile by making some good jumps and bumps was forced over the new road under construction after a desperate fight, and the trip showed that the new route will be one of the most picturesque in the state when the leaves are again on the trees and the grass is again green. When this link is finished which should be by the middle of summer, and there is rebuilt about fifteen miles of road chiefly between Hagerstown and Cumberland, a motorcar trip between Baltimore and Oakland will be an easy thing for a summer day's journey.—Balto. Sun.

BASKET BALL.

Lonaconing Girls Defeat the Local Team at Lonaconing.

The Central High School sextette won in a fast, furious, and exciting basketball game on the Armory floor at Lonaconing, when in one of the most interesting games of the season they sent the Oakland girls down to defeat to the tune of 27 to 25.

In the first half of the game Oakland started off at a brisk gait and succeeded in getting a lead of ten points before the spell was broken, when the Lonaconing girls commenced to climb up until the score was even.

In the second half the teams tied the score twice, and when the whistle finally blew for the end of the half the contest stood 24 to 24. An extra period was played in which a double foul was called, each side making the goal, thus tieing the score again. The play continued for a few minutes when Miss Morgan scoped in a timely field goal, thus winning the match by the score of 27 to 25.

Miss Stevenson from her center position executed a clever basket from the middle boundary of the basketball field. Miss Thrasher played an excellent game. The lineup and score was as follows:

Central High		Oakland
Hohing	F	Hendrickson
Morgan	F	Thrasher
Burt	C	Sincell
Stevenson	C S	Clark
Love	G	Bush
Atkinson	G	Ravenscroft

Substitute, Rathbun at guard for Oakland. Referee, Dr. Hodgson. Scorer, Major. Halves 20 minutes. Field goals—Central, Hohing 5, Morgan 2, Stevenson 1. Foul goals—Hohing 11. Oakland—Field goals Thrasher 4, Hendrickson 3. Foul goals, Hendrickson 11.

Lonaconing Vs. Oakland.

The Lonaconing Champs were in Oakland Saturday night. They returned with their first victory of the season away from home. When the whistle sounded the official score was 35 to 16 in favor of the Champs. The game, which was well played, was refereed by Rev. O. A. Bremer, and his decisions were satisfactory to both teams. The Champs returned to Piedmont on Baltimore and Ohio train No. 4.

TOWN ELECTION FOR COUNCILMEN MONDAY

Resulted In Selection of Messrs. J. B. Cheuvront, Geo. Little, Henry Lauer.

Oakland had the tamest city election Monday that it has experienced in many years, the sole reason being that but one ticket—the Citizens—in the field, composed of Messrs. J. B. Cheuvront, George Little and Henry Lauer, who were nominated at a meeting held in the court house on Friday evening last when voters to the number of 236 participated.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill, with Mr. Sincell, of The Republican, as secretary. Four names were proposed, the additional one to those enumerated above being Mr. W. A. Gonder.

The vote on Monday resulted in the unanimous election of the ticket nominated at Friday evening's meeting of the residents of Oakland.

Basket Ball.

On next Friday night, March 12, at the Empire Theatre the Fairmont State Normal basket ball team will line up against the Oakland Collegians, which promises to be one of the fastest games of the season. This team defeated our team at Fairmont a few weeks ago and is made up of the fastest players of that section. Game called at 8:30.

On next Tuesday, March 16th, the fast Piedmont five will be the attraction at the Empire Theatre. This game will be the last game of the season. Through the courtesy of the management of the Empire Theatre this game will be a benefit game for the Collegians, so all turn out and give the boys a litt. Game called at 8:30 p. m.

GREEKS DEMAND NATION JOIN WAR

"Down With Turkey!" Is Cry Heard in Athens

PEACE ADVOCATE IS HISSED

King Constantine's Hand May Be Forced by Populace—M. Venizelos, Former Premier and Supporter of Intervention, Cheered by Greeks in Athens—Believed Country Cannot Escape Entering Conflict.

Athens, March 9.—Alexandros Zaimis has declined the invitation of King Constantine to form a new cabinet. The king has asked M. Gounalis, deputy from Patras, to attempt the task.

London, March 9.—An Athens dispatch says that popular demonstrations in favor of war with Turkey have already taken place and have been quelled with difficulty. The appearance of M. Venizelos, the former premier, on the streets has been cheered by vast crowds.

M. Zaimis, who was trying to form a new cabinet, is reported to have been received badly and when he appeared at his office was hissed and jeered. The uproar continued while he was on his way to the royal palace to confer with the king.

The dispatch says that a big crowd surrounded the parliament building shouting "Down with Turkey!" and "We want war!" as the deputies arrived.

A guard was placed about the Turkish legation and Salin Bey, the Ottoman minister, did not appear in public as usual but kept close to his quarters.

Some of the correspondents in Athens take the optimistic view that the intervention of Greece is already settled and that the crisis now confronting the country was advised simply to make it easier for the king to decide against Germany, which it is said he was loath at first to do because of the fact that his wife is a sister of the kaiser and because he had a military training in Germany and has close relations with that country.

Other correspondents think the deadlock between the king and the Venizelos party is irreconcilable and that the situation will grow worse with the possibility that eventually the people will take matters into their own hands, compel the king to heed the apparently popular wish for war and turn over the control of the government to the former premier.

Apparently King Constantine is determined to keep Greece neutral, while Venizelos and his large following, having openly declared in favor of the intervention on the side of the allies, are bending every effort to bring about their purposes.

ALLIES' POLICY MODIFIED

Neutrals May Trade With Each Other But Not With Germany.

Washington, March 9.—The details of a temporary arrangement made in London between the British government and representatives of American cotton shippers whereby cotton may be shipped to neutral countries under certain conditions were communicated to the state department by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador. Great Britain declares, however, that cotton cannot proceed to Germany and Austria.

The agreement is regarded as an indication of what may be expected under the new policy of the allies. It puts into immediate effect a virtual blockade of Germany. The statement was made that the coming orders in council will secure to all neutrals full freedom of trade with one another and that in this respect the new policy will in effect be less severe on neutrals than a formal blockade of all Germany's means of internal and outlet would be.

Mr. Bryan declared that the latest communication to the British and French governments on the subject of their proposed interference with trade with Germany would not be made public by the state department at this time. The department recognizes that the belligerent governments are confronted by a delicate situation and does not desire to embarrass them by making public any proposals to which they may be giving consideration.

Unions Vote Against Mediation.

Bellaire, O., March 9.—Sixty-three local unions of the United Mine Workers of America voted against the plan of admitting the differences of the strike in the coal regions in eastern Ohio to Secretary of Labor William Bauchop Wilson.

West Orange, N. J., March 9.—For the second time in three months the plant of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was attacked by fire. The flames destroyed the record plating mill, where the master plates for records are made.
